United States Code Annotated Currentness
 Title 18. Crimes and Criminal Procedure (Refs & Annos)
 ◻ Part I. Crimes (Refs & Annos)
 ◻ Chapter 19. Conspiracy (Refs & Annos)

→§ 371. Conspiracy to commit offense or to defraud United States

If two or more persons conspire either to commit any offense against the United States, or to defraud the United States, or any agency thereof in any manner or for any purpose, and one or more of such persons do any act to effect the object of the conspiracy, each shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

If, however, the offense, the commission of which is the object of the conspiracy, is a misdemeanor only, the punishment for such conspiracy shall not exceed the maximum punishment provided for such misdemeanor.

HISTORICAL AND STATUTORY NOTES

Revision Notes and Legislative Reports

1948 Acts. Based on Title 18, U.S.C., 1940 ed., §§ 88, 294 (Mar. 4, 1909, c. 321, § 37, 35 Stat. 1096; Mar. 4, 1909, c. 321, § 178a, as added Sept. 27, 1944, c. 425, 58 Stat. 752).

This section consolidates said §§ 88 and 294 of Title 18 U.S.C., 1940 ed.

To reflect the construction placed upon said § 88 by the courts the words "or any agency thereof" were inserted. (See Haas v. Henkel, 1909, 30 S.Ct. 249, 216 U.S. 462, 54 L.Ed. 569, 17 Ann.Cas. 1112, where court said: "The statute is broad enough in its terms to include any conspiracy for the purpose of impairing, obstructing, or defeating the lawful functions of any department of government." Also, see United States v. Walter, 1923, 44 S.Ct. 10, 263 U.S. 15, 68 L.Ed. 137, and definitions of department and agency in § 6 of this title.)

The punishment provision is completely rewritten to increase the penalty from 2 years to 5 years except where the object of the conspiracy is a misdemeanor. If the object is a misdemeanor, the maximum imprisonment for a conspiracy to commit that offense, under the revised section, cannot exceed 1 year.

The injustice of permitting a felony punishment on conviction for conspiracy to commit a misdemeanor is described by the late Hon. Grover M. Moscowitz, United States district judge for the eastern district of New York, in an address delivered March 14, 1944, before the section on Federal Practice of the New York Bar Association, reported in 3 Federal Rules Decisions, pages 380 to 392.

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Hon. John Paul, United States district judge for the western district of Virginia, in a letter addressed to Congressman Eugene J. Keogh dated January 27, 1944, stresses the inadequacy of the 2-year sentence prescribed by existing law in cases where the object of the conspiracy is the commission of a very serious offense.

The punishment provision of said § 294 was considered for inclusion in this revised section. It provided the same penalties for conspiracy to violate the provisions of certain counterfeiting laws, as are applicable in the case of conviction for the specific violations. Such a punishment would seem as desirable for all conspiracies as for such offenses as counterfeiting and transporting stolen property in interstate commerce.

A multiplicity of unnecessary enactments inevitably leads to confusion and disregard of law. (See reviser's note under § 493 of this title.)

Since consolidation was highly desirable and because of the strong objections of prosecutors to the general application of the punishment provision of said § 294, the revised section represents the best compromise that could be devised between sharply conflicting views.

A number of special conspiracy provisions, relating to specific offenses, which were contained in various sections incorporated in this title, were omitted because adequately covered by this section. A few exceptions were made, (1) where the conspiracy would constitute the only offense, or (2) where the punishment provided in this section would not be commensurate with the gravity of the offense. Special conspiracy provisions were retained in §§ 241, 286, 372, 757, 794, 956, 1201, 2271, 2384 and 2388 of this title. Special conspiracy provisions were added to §§ 2153 and 2154 of this title. 80th Congress House Report No. 304.

Amendments

1994 Amendments. Pub.L. 103-322, § 330016(1)(L), in sentence beginning "If two or" struck out "not more than $10,000" and inserted "under this title" following "shall be fined".

1. Historical

"Section 37 [former section 88 of this title] first appears as § 30 of 'An act to amend existing laws relating to Internal Revenue, and for other purposes,' enacted on March 2, 1867, 14 Stat.L. 471, and, except for an omitted not relevant provision, the section has continued from that time to this, in almost precisely its present form. It was carried into the revision of the United States Statutes of 1873-4 as § 5440 of Chapter 5, the title of which is 'Crimes against the Operations of the Government,' while another chapter, Chapter 7 of the revision, deals with 'Crimes against the Elective Franchise and Civil Rights of Citizens.' Forty-two years after its first enactment the section was carried into the Criminal Code (in force on and after January 1st, 1910) where it now appears as § 37, again in a chapter, now Chapter 4, devoted to 'Offenses against the Operations of the Government,' while Chapter 3 of the Code deals with 'Offenses against the Elective Franchise and Civil Rights of Citizens.' The section has been widely applied in the prosecution of frauds upon the revenue, in land cases and to other operations of the government." U.S. v. Gradwell, U.S.R.I.1917, 37 S.Ct. 407, 243 U.S. 476, 61 L.Ed. 857.

2. Constitutionality

The First Amendment did not preclude prosecution for conspiracy to defraud the United States by assisting in the filing of false tax returns, based upon defendant's conduct in advising taxpayers that they were nonresident aliens who were exempt from income taxes, when defendant knew that the taxpayers were not, despite defendant's claim that he was pursuing in good faith what he believed was the proper procedure to challenge the validity of tax laws. U.S. v. Ambort, C.A.10 (Utah) 2005, 405 F.3d 1109. Conspiracy ↪ 32; Constitutional Law ↪ 91

Defendant could be punished for arson, conspiracy to commit arson and mail fraud, and use of fire to commit mail fraud, without violating double jeopardy clause; government was required to, and did, prove additional fact for each offense that was not required by the others, i.e., arson required attempted destruction of a building, use of fire to commit a felony violation required use of mails to defraud another, and conspiracy to commit arson offense required agreement to use fire to destroy a building. U.S. v. Smith, C.A.5 (La.) 2003, 354 F.3d 390, certiorari denied 124 S.Ct. 1698, 541 U.S. 953, 158 L.Ed.2d 386. Double Jeopardy ↪ 151(4)

Statute prohibiting conspiracy to defraud the United States was not unconstitutionally vague as applied to prosecution of attorney for litigation-related conduct, where indictment alleged with particularity the essential nature of the alleged fraud and identified attorney's specific conduct which furthered the conspiracy. U.S. v. Cueto, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1998, 151 F.3d 620, certiorari denied 119 S.Ct. 1249, 526 U.S. 1016, 143 L.Ed.2d 347, habeas corpus denied 2005 WL 3448030. Conspiracy ↪ 23.5

If offense clause of statute criminalizing conspiracies against the United States covers act or offense, person cannot alternatively be convicted under statute's broad defraud clause. U.S. v. Sturman, C.A.6 (Ohio) 1991, 951 F.2d 1466, rehearing denied, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 2964, 504 U.S. 985, 119 L.Ed.2d 586.

Statutes proscribing conspiracy to defraud United States by impeding and impairing legal functions of Internal Revenue Service, willfully aiding and assisting in preparation of false individual income tax returns, and aiding and assisting in willful making of false statement to United States government, punish actions, not speech, and, thus, do not infringe the right to freedom of speech. U.S. v. Daly, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1985, 756 F.2d 1076, rehearing denied 763 F.2d 416, certiorari denied 106 S.Ct. 574, 474 U.S. 1022, 88 L.Ed.2d 558, certiorari denied 106 S.Ct. 575, 474 U.S. 1022, 88 L.Ed.2d 558.

This section has been widely applied in prosecutions for frauds upon the revenue and is not unconstitutional. U. S. v. Heck, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1974, 499 F.2d 778, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 677, 419 U.S. 1088, 42 L.Ed.2d 680, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 678, 419 U.S. 1088, 42 L.Ed.2d 680.

Former § 88 of this title [now this section], making conspiracy to commit offense against United States a felony, was valid. Cullen v. Esola, D.C.Cal.1927, 21 F.2d 877. Conspiracy ↪ 23; Conspiracy ↪ 28(3)

The certainty required in the definition of an offense may be accomplished by the use of words or terms of settled meaning, or which indicate offenses well known to and defined by the common law, and this has been accomplished in former § 88 of this title [now this section] by the use of the terms "conspiracy" and "defraud." Crawford v. U S, App.D.C.1907, 30 App.D.C. 1, reversed 29 S.Ct. 260, 212 U.S. 183, 53 L.Ed. 465, 15 Am. Ann. Cas. 392.

Supreme Court's Booker decision, holding that mandatory application of Federal Sentencing Guidelines violated defendant's right to jury trial on any disputed factual subject that increased maximum punishment did not apply to defendant's convictions for conspiring to commit securities and wire fraud, money laundering, and making a false statement to a federal official, which were final on the date case was decided. Durante v. U.S., S.D.N.Y.2006, 425 F.Supp.2d 537. Courts ↪ 100(1)

Personal money judgment against defendant in the amount of $3,927,392.40, which was the greatest amount sought for his four convictions, did not violate the excessive fines clause of the Eighth Amendment; forfeiture was well under authorized penalty, was consonant with the harm defendant personally caused, and was not grossly disproportional to gravity of defendant's offenses of conspiracy to use interstate commerce facilities to promote prostitution, violation of Travel Act, inducement of interstate travel to engage in prostitution, and conspiracy to commit money laundering. U.S. v. Reiner, D.Me.2005, 397 F.Supp.2d 101. Forfeitures ↪ 3

Statute prohibiting two distinct forms of conspiracy, including conspiracy to commit specific offense against United States and conspiracy to defraud United States, was not unconstitutionally vague and overbroad as applied to charges made against doctor who allegedly improperly administered experimental drug program where charges detailed manner and means of conspiracy and listed the alleged overt acts and time frames involved. U.S. v. Najarian, D.Minn.1996, 915 F.Supp. 1460. Conspiracy ↪ 23.5

3. Construction

Conspiracy statute requirement that government show defendant conspired to commit one or more substantive offenses against United States, or that defendant conspired to defraud government in any manner or for any purpose, is written in disjunctive and should be interpreted as establishing two alternative means of committing violation. U.S. v. Harmas, C.A.11 (Fla.) 1992, 974 F.2d 1262.

Indictment is sufficient if it contains the elements of the offense charged and fairly informs defendant of the charge against which he must defend, and enables him to plead acquittal or conviction in bar of future prosecutions for the same offense. U.S. v. Mohnhey, C.A.6 (Mich.) 1991, 949 F.2d 899, rehearing denied.

Defendants indicted under "defraud" clause of federal conspiracy statute rather than "offense" clause--conspiracy to defraud the United States rather than conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States--could not be convicted where factual allegations of indictment and evidence adduced at trial only showed that they conspired to commit offense of concealing assets from Internal Revenue Service after receiving notice of assessment for taxes owed; statute's use of disjunctive meant that defendants could not be accused of conspiring to defraud but convicted of conspiring to commit specific offense. U.S. v. Minarik, C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1989, 875 F.2d 1186, rehearing denied.

To violate this section making it a crime to knowingly and willfully make a threat to take the life of the President of the United States, it is not necessary that a threat be uttered with a willful intent to carry it out; rather, it is sufficient that the defendant intentionally makes a statement, written or oral, in a context or under such circumstances wherein a reasonable person would foresee that the statement would be interpreted by those to whom the maker communicates it as a serious expression of intention to inflict bodily harm upon the President, and that the statement not be the result of a mistake, duress or coercion. U. S. v. Lincoln, C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1972, 462 F.2d 1368, certiorari denied 93 S.Ct. 298, 409 U.S. 952, 34 L.Ed.2d 224.

Where there are two conspiracy statutes, one general and the other specific, the specific must control. U. S. v.

Bates, C.A.9 (Nev.) 1970, 429 F.2d 557, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 61, 400 U.S. 831, 27 L.Ed.2d 61, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 175, 400 U.S. 916, 27 L.Ed.2d 155, rehearing denied 91 S.Ct. 452, 400 U.S. 1002, 27 L.Ed.2d 449.

Former § 88 of this title [now this section], making it a crime to conspire to defraud United States, was at least as co-extensive as conspiracy at common law. Falter v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1928, 23 F.2d 420, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 528, 277 U.S. 590, 72 L.Ed. 1003.

Former § 88 of this title [now this section] was construed as declaring not only against conspiracies to commit offenses, but also to conspiracies to defraud the United States, and to punish such conspiracies when supplemented by an overt act, though the wrong had not become effectual in its purpose. Curley v. U S, C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1904, 130 F. 1, 64 C.C.A. 369, certiorari denied 25 S.Ct. 787, 195 U.S. 628, 49 L.Ed. 351.

This section is not so ambiguous as to fail to inform defendant of the nature and cause of the accusation against him. U. S. v. Buschman, E.D.Wis.1975, 386 F.Supp. 822, affirmed 527 F.2d 1082.

Former § 88 of this title [now this section] was strictly construed. Torres v. Swope, W.D.Wash.1938, 25 F.Supp. 483. See, also, France v. U.S., Ohio 1897, 17 S.Ct. 219, 164 U.S. 676, 41 L.Ed. 595; U.S. v. Robbins, D.C.Utah, 1907, 157 F. 999; Curley v. U.S., C.C.A.Mass.1904, 130 F. 1, 64 C.C.A. 369, certiorari denied 25 S.Ct. 787, 195 U.S. 628, 49 L.Ed. 351.

4. Other laws

Absentee ballot affidavits which defendant witnessed were relevant to count of conspiracy to violate absentee voter laws. U.S. v. Smith, C.A.11 (Ala.) 2000, 231 F.3d 800, certiorari denied 121 S.Ct. 1956, 532 U.S. 1019, 149 L.Ed.2d 752. Conspiracy ↪ 45

Generally, conviction and punishment for crime of conspiracy as well as crime of aiding and abetting does not violate U.S.C.A. Const. Amend. 5 double jeopardy clause in that such offenses are separate and distinct. U. S. v. Cowart, C.A.5 (Ga.) 1979, 595 F.2d 1023.

Part-time prison employee could not be convicted in drug prosecution under both general conspiracy statute, this section, and specific conspiracy statute, section 846 of Title 21, when conspiratorial agreement alleged under former statute was same as that alleged under latter. U. S. v. Corral, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1978, 578 F.2d 570.

Defendants could be properly charged with violation of both the general antifraud provision of section 77a et seq. of Title 15 or section 1341 of this title and this section since conspiracy required proof of an agreement to commit an offense against United States, not an element required for violation of section 77a et seq. of Title 15, and an element not common to both section 77a et seq. of Title 15 and section 1341 of this title was the offer or sale of security. U. S. v. Tallant, C.A.5 (Ga.) 1977, 547 F.2d 1291, certiorari denied 98 S.Ct. 262, 434 U.S. 889, 54 L.Ed.2d 174.

By including conspiracies within section 174 of Title 21, Congress intended to provide more severe penalties than are applicable under this title and did not intend to merge drug conspiracies in completed substantive crime or to preclude convictions for both. U. S. v. Sarno, C.A.1 (Mass.) 1972, 456 F.2d 875.

This section may apply to crimes made punishable by section 2 of this title, when two or more persons conspire willfully to cause act forbidden by section 2 of this title, they conspire to commit offense. U. S. v. Lester, C.A.6 (Ky.) 1966, 363 F.2d 68, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 705, 385 U.S. 1002, 17 L.Ed.2d 542, rehearing denied 87 S.Ct. 951, 386 U.S. 938, 17 L.Ed.2d 813.

Substantive offenses proscribed by mail fraud and fraud by wire sections, §§ 1341 and 1343 of this title, are closely related to conspiracy to commit offense against United States as proscribed by this section. Isaacs v. U. S., C.A.8 (Minn.) 1962, 301 F.2d 706, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 32, 371 U.S. 818, 9 L.Ed.2d 58, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 33, 371 U.S. 818, 9 L.Ed.2d 58.

This section, applicable to all persons, and § 7214 of Title 26, applying specifically to every officer or agent appointed and acting under the authority of any revenue law of the United States, could not both be applied to employee of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, in so far as their application operated to produce cumulative punishment, and where fines were imposed under both statutes, the smaller of the two fines would be set aside. United States v. Grunewald, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1956, 233 F.2d 556, certiorari granted 77 S.Ct. 91, 352 U.S. 866, 1 L.Ed.2d 74, reversed on other grounds 77 S.Ct. 963, 353 U.S. 391, 1 L.Ed.2d 931.

The Federal Kidnapping Act, § 1201 of this title, does not by implication repeal this section, and defendants charged with conspiracy to kidnap could be prosecuted under this section. U.S. v. Bazzell, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1951, 187 F.2d 878, certiorari denied 72 S.Ct. 73, 342 U.S. 849, 96 L.Ed. 641, rehearing denied 72 S.Ct. 171, 342 U.S. 889, 96 L.Ed. 667.

Former §§ 88 [now this section] and 338 of this title were broad in scope and not limited by the common law rules applicable to a prosecution for false pretenses. Deaver v. U.S., App.D.C.1946, 155 F.2d 740, 81 U.S.App.D.C. 148, certiorari denied 67 S.Ct. 121, 329 U.S. 766, 91 L.Ed. 659.

Former § 88 of this title [now this section] had nothing to do with conspiracy to unlawfully disclose information affecting the national defense under former § 34 of Title 50, fixing a maximum of 20 years' imprisonment, and hence prisoner who was serving an indeterminate sentence of 4 to 12 years for such conspiracy was not entitled to release on habeas corpus. Farnsworth v. Zerbst, C.C.A.5 (Ga.) 1938, 97 F.2d 255, rehearing denied 98 F.2d 541.

Former § 88 of this title [now this section] had no connection with such an offense as former § 51 of this title related to. U.S. v. Patrick, C.C.M.D.Tenn.1893, 54 F. 338.

Government did not act unreasonably by failing to charge conspiracy to violate the Clean Air Act and to defraud the United States until it had evidence supporting the crime of conspiracy. U.S. v. W.R. Grace, D.Mont.2006, 434 F.Supp.2d 889. Indictment And Information ↪ 7

Fact that carrier's alleged conduct was immune from liability under Sherman Act did not preclude government from filing criminal fraud charges against carriers based on same conduct, where Sherman Act count required that government show that carriers had effect on interstate or foreign commerce but not effect on government, and fraud statute required that government show that carriers defrauded government. U.S. v. Gosselin World Wide Moving N.V., E.D.Va.2004, 333 F.Supp.2d 497, affirmed in part, reversed in part and remanded 411 F.3d 502, certiorari denied 126 S.Ct. 1464, 164 L.Ed.2d 246. Conspiracy ↪ 33(2.1)

Authority to amend terms of national agreement between automobile manufacturer and union, allegedly demanded from manufacturer by defendant union officials to avoid continuation of strike, was not "thing of value," as required to support prosecution for conspiracy to violate provisions of Labor Management Relations Act prohibiting certain financial transactions; manufacturer's grant of authority to amend terms of agreement would have been invalid and unenforceable under express terms of agreement and union's constitution. U.S. v. Campbell, E.D.Mich.2003, 291 F.Supp.2d 547, reversed 398 F.3d 407, rehearing en banc denied, on remand 2006 WL 897436. Conspiracy ↪ 28(3)

No basis exists for concluding that Congress intended interdependent relationship between conspiracy statute and solicitation statute, and absent some evidence that two statutes were not to be applied independently, court is without cause to limit government's broad discretion in selecting charges on which case is brought. U.S. v. Holveck, D.Kan.1994, 867 F.Supp. 969. Criminal Law ↪ 29(3)

Language of this section and illegal transportation statute, section 2314 of this title, authorize punishments for each violation and do not place limitations on cumulative punishment for violation of these sections by single transaction, and this section requires proof of agreement and some overt act, while illegal transportation statute requires proof of transporting forged bank check with fraudulent intent; thus, imposition of multiple punishments based on convictions under these sections did not violate double jeopardy clause of U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5. Foster v. U.S., S.D.Ohio 1983, 577 F.Supp. 665, affirmed 740 F.2d 967.

Fact that this section and § 1503 of this title overlap to some extent does not bar a prosecution under either of them. U S v. Bonanno, S.D.N.Y.1959, 177 F.Supp. 106, on subsequent appeal 285 F.2d 408.

Conspiracy to commit kidnapping under the general conspiracy statute is an offense separate from conspiracy under kidnapping statute and carries a lesser penalty. U.S. v. Parrett, D.Utah 1994, 872 F.Supp. 910. Criminal Law § 29(5.5)

5. Superseding provisions

Former § 88 of this title [now this section], penalizing conspiracy to commit offense against United States, and former § 242 of this title, penalizing conspiracy to influence verdict of jury, may overlap, but neither repealed or superseded the other. Burton v. U. S., C.A.5 (La.) 1949, 175 F.2d 960, rehearing denied 176 F.2d 865, certiorari denied 70 S.Ct. 347, 338 U.S. 909, 94 L.Ed. 560, rehearing denied 70 S.Ct. 565, 339 U.S. 916, 94 L.Ed. 1341.

Former § 34 of Title 50, prescribing punishment for conspiracy to violate former § 32 or 33 of that title, where an overt act was committed, superseded former § 88 of this title [now this section], as to such offenses. Enfield v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Okla.) 1919, 261 F. 141.

The provisions of the Emergency Price Control Act, 50 App., former § 904(a), making it a crime to agree to violate said Act did not indicate congressional intent to cover the whole field of conspiracy to violate said Act and thereby to supersede former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U. S. v. Semel, D.C.Conn.1946, 66 F.Supp. 202.

6. Purpose

Two independent values served by the law of conspiracy are the protection of society from the dangers of concerted criminal activity and the identification of an agreement to engage in crime as sufficiently threatening to the social order to warrant its being the subject of criminal sanctions regardless of whether the crime agreed upon is actually committed. U. S. v. Feola, U.S.N.Y.1975, 95 S.Ct. 1255, 420 U.S. 671, 43 L.Ed.2d 541.

Legal concepts of conspiracy and complicity manifest general principle that society, having power to punish dangerous behavior, cannot be powerless against those who work to bring about that behavior. Scales v. U. S., U.S.N.C.1961, 81 S.Ct. 1469, 367 U.S. 203, 6 L.Ed.2d 782, rehearing denied 81 S.Ct. 1912, 366 U.S. 978, 6 L.Ed.2d 1267.

Scheme to take money, if in fact it is not bank money, is not enough to constitute proscribed conspiracy to take bank money, even if defendants may have mistakenly believed that it was or might be bank money, as Congress, in enacting this section, did not intend to make criminal schemes which, if successfully carried out, would not result in commission of substantive federal offenses. Lubin v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1963, 313 F.2d 419.

This section is designed to punish concerted action which makes the crime easier to perpetrate and harder to detect. Woods v. U.S., C.A.D.C.1956, 240 F.2d 37, 99 U.S.App.D.C. 351, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 815, 353 U.S. 941, 1 L.Ed.2d 760, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 1385, 354 U.S. 926, 1 L.Ed.2d 1438.

One of purposes of this section is to punish concerted action involving a plurality of actors which makes crime easier to perpetrate and harder to detect. U. S. v. Kohne, W.D.Pa.1972, 347 F.Supp. 1178.

This section was intended to insure wholesome administration of the government of the United States and to protect that government against being defrauded of its inherent right to honest, impartial, and efficient service of its employees. U.S. v. Bowles, D.C.Me.1958, 183 F.Supp. 237. See, also, U.S. v. Weinberg, D.C.Pa.1955, 129 F.Supp. 514, affirmed 226 F.2d 161, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 305, 350 U.S. 933, 100 L.Ed. 815.

Rationale behind creation of crime of conspiracy to violate state and federal laws was belief by Congress that mere agreement among members of persons to commit an offense was itself a danger to society demanding classification of a crime, and although an overt act is necessary for conviction, it is not necessary to prove that conspiracy was successful. U. S. v. Bonanno, S.D.N.Y.1960, 180 F.Supp. 71.

The purpose of this section is to protect the government from impositions through conspiracy to cheat and defraud in respect of its rights and privileges, operations and functions, as well as in respect of its property; it prohibits a conspiracy to defraud the United States in any manner or for any purpose. U. S. v. Gilboy, M.D.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 442. See, also, Berenbeim v. U.S., C.C.A.Colo.1947, 164 F.2d 679, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 454, 533 U.S. 827, 92 L.Ed. 1113. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(1)

7. Retroactive effect

Admitted successive overt acts occurring after this revised section increasing penalty for conspiracy became law were part of continuing crime for which defendants were indicted and convicted, and therefore such section was not an ex post facto law as applied to conspiracy which was commenced before effective date of such section but was continued by overt acts after its effective date. U.S. v. Goldberger, C.A.3 (N.J.) 1952, 197 F.2d 330, certiorari denied 73 S.Ct. 40, 344 U.S. 833, 97 L.Ed. 648.

Former § 88 of this title [now this section] applied with equal force to rights of the United States created subsequent to its passage, as well as those previously existing. Curley v. U S, C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1904, 130 F. 1, 64 C.C.A. 369, certiorari denied 25 S.Ct. 787, 195 U.S. 628, 49 L.Ed. 351.

8. District of Columbia

A violation of D.C.Code, § 22-108, prohibiting the bringing into the district of stolen stock, was a "crime against the United States," within former § 88 of this title [now this section]. Arnstein v. U.S., App.D.C.1924, 296 F. 946, 54 App.D.C. 199, certiorari denied 44 S.Ct. 454, 264 U.S. 595, 68 L.Ed. 867. Conspiracy ⚡ 28(1)

A conspiracy to violate D.C.Code, § 22-1510, by keeping a bucket shop was a conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States, within former § 88 of this title [now this section]. Easterday v. McCarthy, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1919, 256 F. 651, 168 C.C.A. 45. See, also, U.S. v. Campbell, D.C.Pa.1910, 179 F. 762; U.S. v. Cella, 1911, 37 App.D.C. 423, certiorari denied 32 S.Ct. 526, 223 U.S. 728, 56 L.Ed. 633. Conspiracy ⚡ 28

Even assuming that the common law as it existed in Maryland when the District of Columbia was ceded made misconduct in office a criminal offense, it was not an offense against the United States as a distinct sovereign in such sense that an indictment would lie under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for conspiracy to commit such offense in the District, especially against a person who was not a resident thereof. U.S. v. Haas, S.D.N.Y.1906, 167 F. 211. Conspiracy ⚡ 23

A conspiracy to do any act which has been declared a crime by any law of the United States, although such law may be applicable to the District of Columbia alone, would be a conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States. In re Wolf, W.D.Ark.1886, 27 F. 606.

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Any conspiracy to obtain money by false pretenses in the District of Columbia is a conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States. In re Wolf, W.D.Ark.1886, 27 F. 606. Conspiracy ↪ 28(3)

Former § 88 of this title [now this section] applied to the District of Columbia. In re Wolf, W.D.Ark.1886, 27 F. 606.

Since a crime against the United States is committed by any person who violates either D.C.Code, § 22-2304, marking it an offense wrongfully to accuse any woman of unchastity, or D.C.Code, § 22-2501, denouncing perjury, an indictment for conspiracy to commit either of those crimes charged an offense under former § 88 of this title [now this section]. Fletcher v. U.S., App.D.C.1914, 42 App.D.C. 53, certiorari denied 35 S.Ct. 283, 235 U.S. 706, 59 L.Ed. 434.

Any one in the District of Columbia who committed a crime denounced by the District of Columbia Code committed a crime against the United States, and it follows that he was indictable for a conspiracy under former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U.S. v. Cella, App.D.C.1911, 37 App.D.C. 423, certiorari denied 32 S.Ct. 526, 223 U.S. 728, 56 L.Ed. 633. See, also, Fletcher v. U.S., 1914, 42 App.D.C. 53.

Official misconduct in office, being an offense under the common law, was an offense in the District of Columbia, and was an offense against the United States, whether it was an offense against the United States when committed by federal officers in any of the states or territories, and it was immaterial that such offense was a misdemeanor at common law, while the conspiracy to commit it, by reason of the character of the penalty prescribed by former § 88 of this title [now this section], became an infamous offense. Tyner v. U.S., App.D.C.1904, 23 App.D.C. 324. Criminal Law ↪ 10

9. Scope of section

Where a substantive offense embodies only a requirement of mens rea as to each of its elements, this section requires no more. U. S. v. Feola, U.S.N.Y.1975, 95 S.Ct. 1255, 420 U.S. 671, 43 L.Ed.2d 541.

This section can punish conspiratorial conduct which does not amount to a substantive violation of section 1955 of this title. U. S. v. Kohne, W.D.Pa.1972, 347 F.Supp. 1178.

10. Separate offenses

Charges of conspiracy to commit mail fraud and conspiracy to defraud United States by impeding lawful function of Department of Housing and Urban Development were not commensurate or lesser-included offenses of each other; former offense required proof that conspiracy to defraud existed, that defendant was party to conspiracy, and that act or acts constituting use of mails in furtherance of conspiracy had been performed, whereas latter offense required proof of agreement to defraud United States and proof that one or more persons acted in pursuit of that objective. U.S. v. Thompson, C.A.10 (Okla.) 1987, 814 F.2d 1472, certiorari denied 108 S.Ct. 101, 484 U.S. 830, 98 L.Ed.2d 61.

11. Civil remedies

County corrections officer's conviction on guilty plea to violating federal criminal conspiracy statute by conspiring to deprive inmate of his right to be free from cruel and unusual punishment conclusively established his civil liability for conspiring to deprive inmate of his Eighth Amendment right to be free from cruel and unusual punishment as incarcerated inmate. Pizzuto v. County of Nassau, E.D.N.Y.2003, 239 F.Supp.2d 301. Judgment ↪ 648

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Federal statute providing for criminal penalties for conspiracies to commit any offense against United States does not authorize civil suit for damages. Willing v. Lake Orion Community Schools Bd. of Trustees, E.D.Mich.1996, 924 F.Supp. 815. Action ↪ 3

Violations of this section and sections 241, 242 and 1001 of this title governing conspiracy against rights of citizens, deprivation of rights under color of law, conspiracy to commit offense or to defraud United States, and the making of fraudulent statements or knowingly using any false document did not give rise to a civil cause of action. Fiorino v. Turner, D.C.Mass.1979, 476 F.Supp. 962.

Statute setting forth offense of conspiracy to commit offense against or to defraud the United States, standing alone, did not provide for civil remedy. D'Amato v. Rattoballi, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 2003, 83 Fed.Appx. 359, 2003 WL 22955858, Unreported. Conspiracy ↪ 7

12. Private right of action

There is no private right of action under federal criminal statutes, proscribing deprivation of rights under color of law and conspiracy to commit offense or to defraud the United States. Rockefeller v. U.S. Court of Appeals Office, for Tenth Circuit Judges, D.D.C.2003, 248 F.Supp.2d 17. Action ↪ 5; Civil Rights ↪ 1330(1)

Alleged conspiracy to defeat the laws of the United States by failing to register securities did not give rise to private cause of action under 18 U.S.C.A. § 371 for conspiracy to commit an offense or to defraud the United States. Rapoport v. Republic of Mexico, D.C.D.C.1985, 619 F.Supp. 1476.

Federal criminal statute, 18 U.S.C.A. § 371, proscribing conspiracy to commit offense or to defraud the United States, did not secure rights to state prisoner; thus, prisoner could not sue directly under that statute nor use that statute as a predicate for an action under 42 U.S.C.A. § 1983. Dugar v. Coughlin, S.D.N.Y.1985, 613 F.Supp. 849.

Portion of complaint brought by residents of Wounded Knee, South Dakota, who were allegedly kept from their homes or forcibly confined due to federal law enforcement activity allegedly engineered by defendants which alleged violations of this section, did not state causes of action since this section did not provide a private cause of action. Lamont v. Haig, D.C.S.D.1982, 539 F.Supp. 552.

41. Generally, nature and elements of conspiracy

The gist of a "conspiracy" is an agreement among conspirators to commit an offense, attended by an act of one or more of the conspirators to effect the object of the conspiracy. United States v. Falcone, U.S.N.Y.1940, 61 S.Ct. 204, 311 U.S. 205, 85 L.Ed. 128. See, also, Carter v. U.S., C.A.Kan.1964, 333 F.2d 354; Schnautz v. U.S., C.A.Tex.1959, 263 F.2d 523; Carlson v. U.S., C.A.Okl.1957, 249 F.2d 85; Rent v. U.S., C.A.Tex.1954, 209 F.2d 893; Tabor v. U.S., C.C.A.Md.1945, 152 F.2d 254; Bacon v. U.S., C.C.A.Okl.1942, 127 F.2d 985; *Oliver v. To prove conspiracy, Government must prove beyond reasonable doubt that two or more people agreed to pursue unlawful objective together, that defendant voluntarily agreed to join conspiracy, and that one of members of conspiracy performed overt act to further objectives of conspiracy. U.S. v. Parekh, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1991, 926 F.2d 402, rehearing denied. Conspiracy 24(1); Conspiracy 27

Conviction for conspiracy requires that Government prove beyond a reasonable doubt an agreement between two or more persons to commit a crime against the United States and an overt act committed by one of conspirators in furtherance of agreement; no element need be proved by direct evidence, but may be inferred from circumstantial evidence. U.S. v. Schmick, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1990, 904 F.2d 936, certiorari denied 111 S.Ct. 782, 498 U.S. 1067, 112 L.Ed.2d 845. Conspiracy 24(1); Conspiracy 27; Conspiracy 47(2)

"Conspiracy" is combination of two or more individuals formed for purpose of committing criminal act through their joint efforts. U.S. v. Gaddis, C.A.7 (Ind.) 1989, 877 F.2d 605, 108 A.L.R. Fed. 363. Conspiracy 23.1

Elements of the offense of conspiracy are an agreement between two or more persons to commit a crime against the United States and an overt act by one of them in furtherance of the agreement. U.S. v. Conspiracy ↻ 24(1)

The elements of a "criminal conspiracy," are an object to be accomplished, a plan or scheme embodying means to accomplish that object, an agreement or understanding between two or more of the defendants whereby they become definitely committed to co-operate for the accomplishment of the object by means embodied in the agreement, or by any effectual means and an overt act in jurisdictions where statutes so require. Pinkerton v. U. S., C.C.A.5 (Ala.) 1944, 145 F.2d 252. Conspiracy ↻ 23.1

The conspiracy, and not the overt act in pursuance of the conspiracy, is the gist of the crime. U.S. v. Cohen, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1944, 145 F.2d 82, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 553, 323 U.S. 799, 89 L.Ed. 637, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 553, 323 U.S. 799, 89 L.Ed. 638, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 554, 323 U.S. 800, 89 L.Ed. 638. "Criminal conspiracy" is confederation to do something unlawful, either as means or an end. U.S. v. Wilson, D.C.W.Va.1927, 23 F.2d 112. Conspiracy ↻ 23.1

A "conspiracy" to commit crime under former § 88 of this title [now this section] was a substantive offense, completed by the unlawful agreement, the overt act being no part of the conspiracy. Bell v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Utah) 1924, 2 F.2d 543.

The offense of conspiracy, under former § 88 of this title [now this section], consisted in the conspiracy alone, and not in both the conspiracy and the acts done to effect its object. U. S. v. Black, C.C.A.7 (Wis.) 1908, 160 F. 431, 87 C.C.A. 383. Conspiracy ↻ 25

The gist of the offense is conspiracy, combination, or agreement to effect an unlawful end, which offense is completed only on some one or more of the parties doing an act to effect the object of the conspiracy, termed an "overt act." U.S. v. Richards, D.C.Neb.1906, 149 F. 443.

Criminal "conspiracy" is agreement between two or more persons to join together to accomplish some unlawful purpose; government must prove beyond reasonable doubt that two or more persons made agreement to commit offenses charged in indictment, defendant knew unlawful purpose of the agreement and joined in it with intent to further the unlawful purpose, and one conspirator, during existence of conspiracy, knowingly committed at least one overt act described in indictment to accomplish some object or purpose of conspiracy. U.S. v. Ramming, S.D.Tex.1996, 915 F.Supp. 854. Conspiracy ↻ 23.1

In order to sustain conspiracy conviction, evidence must show agreement by two or more persons to combine efforts for illegal purposes and overt act in furtherance of the conspiracy by one of the members. *U.S. v. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

The essence of crime of "conspiracy" is two or more persons combining with intent and purpose of committing a public offense by doing an unlawful act or doing a lawful act in an unlawful manner, and conspiracy is a distinct offense from that which the parties intend to accomplish as result of conspiracy. U S v. Flynn, S.D.N.Y.1951, 103 F.Supp. 925. Conspiracy ↪ 23.1; Conspiracy ↪ 28(2); Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

To constitute a conspiracy under former § 88 of this title [now this section] there must have been an agreement between the parties, a unity of design and purpose, and an overt act committed by one for the purpose of effecting the object of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Hamilton, C.C.S.D.Ohio 1876, 26 F.Cas. 90, 8 Chi.Leg.N. 211, No. 15288. See, also, U.S. v. Harrison, C.C.A.N.J.1941, 121 F.2d 930, certiorari denied 62 S.Ct. 124, 314 U.S. 661, 86 L.Ed. 530; U.S. v. Olmstead, D.C.Wash.1925, 5 F.2d 712; U.S. v. 42. Statutory offense, nature and elements of conspiracy

Miscitation of this section in indictment charging defendant with conspiracy to violate former section 4705 of Title 26, making it a crime to sell, barter, exchange and give away narcotic drugs to others without a written order did not misinform defendant as to offense with which he was charged, and since he could not have been misled as to possible penalties involved, in that they were clearly proscribed by statute, and since defendant failed to make any showing that he was prejudiced by statutory miscitation, request for correction of sentence was properly denied. U. S. v. Haley, C.A.8 (Minn.) 1973, 478 F.2d 766, certiorari denied 94 S.Ct. 139, 414 U.S. 849, 38 L.Ed.2d 97. Sentencing And Punishment ↪ 2252; Indictment And Information ↪ 108

Conspiracy to violate federal laws is purely statutory offense. Steigleder v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Okla.) 1928, 25 F.2d 959.

Former § 88 of this title [now this section] created the offense of conspiracy. Reilley v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1901, 106 F. 896, 46 C.C.A. 25, reversed on other grounds 23 S.Ct. 334, 188 U.S. 375, 47 L.Ed. 508.

Indictment which charged conspiracy and referred to federal statute complied with rule requiring citation of statute claimed to be violated, and it was not necessary to cite the statute for the offense which was the object of conspiracy. U. S. v. De Sapio, S.D.N.Y.1969, 299 F.Supp. 436. Indictment And Information ↪ 108

43. Common law offenses, nature and elements of conspiracy

Statutory requirement that one or more of the conspirators do an act to effect the object of the conspiracy is what distinguishes the general statutory crime of conspiracy from common-law conspiracy. U. S. v. Bermudez, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1975, 526 F.2d 89, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 2166, 425 U.S. 970, 48 L.Ed.2d 793. Conspiracy ↪ 27

At common law, the crime of "conspiracy" was complete when one had agreed with others either to do an unlawful act, or to do a lawful act in an unlawful way, and to these requirements former § 88 of this title [now this section] has added the requirement that some member of conspiracy has done an overt act in furtherance of the venture. Deacon v. U. S., C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1941, 124 F.2d 352. Conspiracy ↪ 27

Under former § 88 of this title [now this section] federal courts and jurisdiction of a prosecution for conspiracy to punish the commission of what would have been a crime at common law, but was not made criminal by any federal statute. U.S. v. Galleanni, D.C.Mass.1917, 245 F. 977.

Conspiracy denounced by former § 88 of this title [now this section] was distinguishable from the common-law offense in that it required an overt act, which when committed completed the offense, without reference to the ultimate success of the conspiracy. Ryan v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ind.) 1914, 216 F. 13, 132 C.C.A. 257. Conspiracy ↪

At common law proof of an overt act was not necessary to show a completed offense of conspiracy. Robinson v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Minn.) 1909, 172 F. 105, 96 C.C.A. 307. See, also, McGinniss v. U.S., C.C.A.N.Y.1919, 256 F. 621; U.S. v. Rintelen, D.C.N.Y.1916, 233 F. 793; Jones v. U.S., Or.1908, 162 F. 417, 89 C.C.A. 303, certiorari denied 29 S.Ct. 685, 212 U.S. 576, 53 L.Ed. 657; U.S. v. Brace, D.C.Cal.1907, 149 F. 874.

While it is the general rule that there are no common-law offenses against the United States, such rule does not apply to the District of Columbia; and, the common law being in force in the District of Columbia when former § 88 of this title [now this section] was enacted, any common-law offense not repealed, superseded, or plainly inconsistent with existing legislation or necessarily obsolete was an offense against the United States within the meaning of said section. Tyner v. U.S., App.D.C.1904, 23 App.D.C. 324. Criminal Law ¶ 10

Common law principles of conspiracy require a meeting of the minds, and understanding, and explicit or implicit agreement or concert of action to demonstrate a conspiracy. Maynard v. Kear, N.D.Ohio 1979, 474 F.Supp. 794, 18 O.O.3d 274. Conspiracy ¶ 24(1)

"Conspiracy" is enlargement of common-law doctrine of aiding and abetting, or being a principal, or an accessory before the fact. U. S. v. Molin, D.C.Mass.1965, 244 F.Supp. 1015. Conspiracy ¶ 23.1

At common law, the crime of conspiracy was complete when defendants entered into the proscribed agreement. US v. Grunewald, S.D.N.Y.1958, 162 F.Supp. 626. Conspiracy ¶ 24(1)

At common law, the corpus delicti of conspiracy was fully established by proof that the coconspirators had actually entered into the agreement and there was no requirement that the prosecution prove in addition to the agreement the doing of an overt act pursuant to the agreement and the common-law rule has been carried forward into federal statutes. US v. Grunewald, S.D.N.Y.1958, 162 F.Supp. 626. Conspiracy ¶ 24(1); Conspiracy ¶ 27

Where it is impossible under any circumstances to commit substantive offense without cooperative action, preliminary agreement between same parties to commit the offense is not an indictable conspiracy either at common law or under this section. U. S. v. Anthony, M.D.Pa.1956, 145 F.Supp. 323. Conspiracy ¶ 28(1)

Under common law, act of conspiring, without more, was public offense. U. S. v. Schneiderman, S.D.Cal.1951, 102 F.Supp. 87. Conspiracy ¶ 23.1

44. Single offense, nature and elements of conspiracy

When a single agreement to commit one or more substantive crimes is evidenced by an overt act, the precise nature and extent of conspiracy must be determined by reference to the agreement which embraces and defines its objects, and whether the object of a single agreement is to commit one or many crimes, it is in either case that agreement which constitutes the "conspiracy" which former § 88 of this title [now this section] punished, and one agreement cannot be taken to be several agreements and hence several conspiracies, because it envisages the violation of several statutes rather than one. Braverman v. U.S., U.S.Mich.1942, 63 S.Ct. 99, 317 U.S. 49, 87 L.Ed. 23. Conspiracy ¶ 24(2)

A single agreement to commit an offense does not become several conspiracies because it continues over a period of time, and there may be such a single continuing agreement to commit several offenses. Braverman v. U.S., U.S.Mich.1942, 63 S.Ct. 99, 317 U.S. 49, 87 L.Ed. 23. See, also, U.S. v. Todaro, C.C.A.Conn.1944, 145 F.2d 977; U.S. v. Gilboy, D.C.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 442. Conspiracy ¶ 24(2)

A single conspiracy may have for its objective the violation of two or more of the criminal laws, the substantive

Separate spokes meeting at common center constitute "wagon wheel conspiracy" only if those spokes are enclosed by "rim." U.S. v. Evans, C.A.10 (Okla.) 1992, 970 F.2d 663, certiorari denied 113 S.Ct. 1288, 507 U.S. 922, 122 L.Ed.2d 680, denial of habeas corpus affirmed 51 F.3d 287, denial of habeas corpus affirmed 70 F.3d 1282, denial of post-conviction relief affirmed 82 F.3d 427. Conspiracy ↻ 24(3)

Mere fact that operation consists first of a robbery, planned and executed with the aid of an insider, and then of concealment of the money, executed by persons other than the insider, does not necessarily entitle the defendants to a multiple-conspiracy instruction. U.S. v. Maldonado-Rivera, C.A.2 (Conn.) 1990, 922 F.2d 934, certiorari denied 111 S.Ct. 2811, 501 U.S. 1211, 115 L.Ed.2d 984, certiorari denied 111 S.Ct. 2858, 501 U.S. 1233, 115 L.Ed.2d 1025, certiorari denied 111 S.Ct. 2858, 501 U.S. 1233, 115 L.Ed.2d 1026. Separate conspiracies exist when each of conspirators' agreements has its own end, and each constitutes an end in itself. U.S. v. Sababu, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1989, 891 F.2d 1308. Conspiracy ↻ 24(2)

Hostility and competition among purported tax-exempt churches in which defendants sold ministries did not preclude the finding that defendants were engaged in a single overall conspiracy to defraud the United States rather than in a series of multiple conspiracies when it was the defendants and their associates, not the churches, who were the ones who were alleged to have engaged in the conspiracy; it was not inconsistent with the alleged ongoing nature of the conspiracy that disputes might arise between the defendants and their associates and that switches in affiliation might occur from time to time. U.S. v. Heinemann, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1986, 801 F.2d 86, certiorari denied 107 S.Ct. 1308, 479 U.S. 1094, 94 L.Ed.2d 163. Conspiracy ↻ 24(2)

Gist of criminal conspiracy may involve numerous transactions and fact that conspirators individually or in groups performed different task in pursuing common goal does not necessitate finding of several conspiracies. U.S. v. Smith, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1986, 789 F.2d 196, certiorari denied 107 S.Ct. 668, 479 U.S. 1017, 93 L.Ed.2d 720. Conspiracy ↻ 24(2)

When there is only one agreement, there is only one violation of this section even though the conspiratorial agreement may encompass diverse criminal objectives which would violate several statutes. U. S. v. Bendis, C.A.9 (Hawai'i) 1981, 681 F.2d 561, certiorari denied 103 S.Ct. 306, 459 U.S. 973, 74 L.Ed.2d 286. Conspiracy ↻ 24(2)

Commission or attempted commission of several offenses constitutes several crimes but one agreement to violate a number of laws remains but one crime if it is charged merely as a conspiracy and not as a substantive offense. U. S. v. Commission of a substantive offense and a conspiracy to commit it constitutes separate and distinct offenses for which Congress can affix different penalties, except where the agreement of two or more persons is necessary for the commission of the substantive crime and there is no ingredient in the conspiracy which is not present in the completed crime. *Pifer v. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

A conspiracy to commit a crime is a different offense from the crime which is the object of the conspiracy, notwithstanding that the substantive offense is charged as one of the overt acts committed in furtherance of the conspiracy. *Upshaw v. 46. Merger of offenses, nature and elements of conspiracy

Substantive offenses of unlawful use of communication facility to facilitate distribution and possession with intent to distribute schedule II controlled substance, and attempt to evade and defeat taxes failed to invoke concerns which underlie law of conspiracy, and therefore, substantive counts did not merge into conspiracy to distribute cocaine, defraud Internal Revenue Service, and prevent collection of income tax count so as to preclude imposition of consecutive sentences; rejecting *United States v. 47. Wharton's rule, nature and elements of conspiracy

Wharton's Rule applies only to offenses that require concerted criminal activity, a plurality of criminal agents; in such cases, a closer relationship exists between the conspiracy and the substantive offense because both require collective criminal activity; the substantive offense therefore presents some of the same threats that the law of conspiracy normally is thought to guard against, and it cannot automatically be assumed that the legislature intended the conspiracy and the substantive offense to remain as discrete crimes upon consummation of the latter so that absent legislative intent to the contrary, the rule supports a presumption that the two merge when the substantive offense is proven. Iannelli v. U. S., U.S.Pa.1975, 95 S.Ct. 1284, 420 U.S. 770, 43 L.Ed.2d 616. Conspiracy ↪ 28(1)

"Wharton's Rule" prohibits conviction for both substantive offense and conspiracy to commit that offense if substantive offense necessarily requires participation and cooperation of more than one person. U.S. v. Brown, C.A.5 (Miss.) 1993, 7 F.3d 1155.

Wharton's rule did not apply to indictment charging both conspiracy and substantive offenses of defrauding United States and giving or receiving gratuities by public official since neither substantive offense required culpable participation of two persons for its violation. U. S. v. Previte, C.A.1 (Mass.) 1981, 648 F.2d 73.

Under "Wharton's Rule", an agreement between two people to commit a particular crime cannot be prosecuted as a conspiracy where the crime necessarily requires the participation of two persons for its commission. U. S. v. Rone, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1979, 598 F.2d 564, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 1345, 445 U.S. 946, 63 L.Ed.2d 780.

Classic "Wharton's Rule" offenses are adultery, incest, bigamy and dueling. U. S. v. Rone, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1979, 598 F.2d 564, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 1345, 445 U.S. 946, 63 L.Ed.2d 780.

"Wharton's Rule", which states that an agreement by two persons to commit a particular crime cannot be prosecuted as a conspiracy when the crime is of such a nature as necessarily to require the participation of two persons for its commission, is actually a limited exception to the well-established principle that a conspiracy to commit a substantive offense and the substantive offense itself can constitute separate offense. U. S. v. Ohlson, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1977, 552 F.2d 1347. Conspiracy ↪ 28(1)

Application of Wharton's rule that an agreement by two persons to commit crime cannot be prosecuted as a conspiracy when the crime is such as to necessarily require the participation of two persons for its commission is limited to cases in which the essential participants are the only conspirators. U. S. v. Rueter, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1976, 536 F.2d 296. Conspiracy ↪ 28(1)

Where conspiracy conviction is challenged under principle that an agreement by two persons to commit particular crime cannot be prosecuted as conspiracy if crime is of such nature as to necessarily require participation of two or more persons for its commission, the challenge is determined by analysis of statute creating substantive offense and not by evidence introduced in particular case to prove offense. U. S. v. Pezzino, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1976, 535 F.2d 483, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 111, 429 U.S. 839, 50 L.Ed.2d 106. Conspiracy ↪ 28(1)

Wharton's rule did not preclude conviction of both the substantive offense of violating federal gambling law under section 1955 of this title and offense of conspiracy to violate the law. U. S. v. Crockett, C.A.5 (Ga.) 1975, 514 F.2d 64.

"Wharton's rule" affords a narrowly limited exception to principle that a conspiracy as well as the substantive offense may be prosecuted; rule provides that when to the idea of an offense plurality of agents is logically necessary, conspiracy, which assumes voluntary accession of a person to a crime of such a nature that it can be aggravated by a plurality of agents, cannot be maintained. U. S. v. Robertson, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1974, 504 F.2d 289, rehearing denied 506 F.2d 1056, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 1568, 421 U.S. 913, 43 L.Ed.2d 778.

If the statute defining the substantive offense requires concerted action and none participated other than the necessary parties, there is no additional danger to society and a charge of conspiracy to violate the statute will not lie. U. S. v. Boyle, C.A.D.C.1973, 482 F.2d 755, 157 U.S.App.D.C. 166, certiorari denied 94 S.Ct. 593, 414 U.S. 1076, 38 L.Ed.2d 483. Conspiracy ↪ 28(2)

An agreement by two persons to commit a particular crime cannot be prosecuted as a conspiracy when the crime is of such a nature as to necessarily require the participation of two persons for its commission, but such exception does not apply when offense could be committed by one of the conspirators alone; the exception to the general rule is also limited to cases where essential participants are the only conspirators. U. S. v. Lupino, C.A.8 (Minn.) 1973, 480 F.2d 720, certiorari denied 94 S.Ct. 257, 414 U.S. 924, 38 L.Ed.2d 159. Conspiracy ↪ 28(1)

The "Wharton rule", that when to the idea of an offense plurality of agents is logically necessary, conspiracy, which assumes the voluntary accession of a person to a crime of such nature that it is aggravated by a plurality of agents, cannot be maintained, was not applicable and did not make unindictable alleged conspiracy of defendants to manage, conduct, finance or operate an unlawful gambling operation. U. S. v. Bobo, C.A.4 (S.C.) 1973, 477 F.2d 974, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 1557, 421 U.S. 909, 43 L.Ed.2d 774.

Where both the conspiracy and the substantive offense do consist of the same acts or transactions, the conspiracy charge may not be added to the substantive charge. U. S. v. Skillman, C.A.8 (Mo.) 1971, 442 F.2d 542, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 82, 404 U.S. 833, 30 L.Ed.2d 63.

A conspiracy charged may not be added to a substantive charge where agreement of two persons is necessary for completion of the substantive crime and there is no ingredient in the conspiracy which is not present in the completed crime. Reno v. U. S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1963, 317 F.2d 499, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 72, 375 U.S. 828, 11 L.Ed.2d 60. Conspiracy ↪ 28(1)

Wharton's rule precludes indictment for conspiracy to commit substantive offense where agreement of two persons is necessary for completion of substantive crime and stands as exception to general principle that conspiracy and substantive offense that is conspiracy's immediate end do not merge upon proof of latter. U.S. v. Finazzo, E.D.Mich.1975, 407 F.Supp. 1127.

Where a crime necessarily involves the mutual cooperation of two persons, and if they have in fact committed the crime, they may not be convicted of conspiracy to commit it, but this rule does not apply where the substantive offense can be committed by a single individual. U. S. v. Boisvert, D.C.R.I.1960, 187 F.Supp. 781.

48. Civil conspiracy, nature and elements of conspiracy

The essential elements whether of a criminal or civil conspiracy are the same. U.S. v. American Precision Products Corp., D.C.N.J.1953, 115 F.Supp. 823. Conspiracy ⚡ 1.1; Conspiracy ⚡ 23.1

49. Continuing offense, nature and elements of conspiracy

If the purpose of the conspiracy contemplated the commission of one offense, the continuance of the result of the commission of that offense would not necessarily continue the conspiracy, but if the purpose of the conspiracy contemplates continuous co-operation of the conspirators in the perpetration of a series of offenses against the United States within the scope and purpose of the conspiracy, it is in effect "a partnership in criminal purposes," and continues until the time of its abandonment, or the final accomplishment of its purpose. U.S. v. Kissel, U.S.N.Y.1910, 31 S.Ct. 124, 218 U.S. 601, 54 L.Ed. 1168. See, also, Remus v. U.S., C.C.A.Ohio 1923, 291 F. 501, certiorari denied 44 S.Ct. 180, 263 U.S. 717, 68 L.Ed. 522.

A conspiracy once established is presumed to continue until the contrary is established. Poliafico v. U. S., C.A.6 (Ohio) 1956, 237 F.2d 97, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 590, 352 U.S. 1025, 1 L.Ed.2d 597, rehearing denied 77 S.Ct. 718, 353 U.S. 931, 1 L.Ed.2d 725. Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2

A conspiracy may be a continuing crime. Huff v. U.S., C.A.5 (Ga.) 1951, 192 F.2d 911, certiorari denied 72 S.Ct. 560, 342 U.S. 946, 96 L.Ed. 703. Criminal Law ⚡ 150

Where conspirators continue their efforts to commit crime in pursuance of plan, conspiracy continues until abandonment or success thereof. Huff v. U.S., C.A.5 (Ga.) 1951, 192 F.2d 911, certiorari denied 72 S.Ct. 560, 342 U.S. 946, 96 L.Ed. 703. Criminal Law ⚡ 150

Where once a conspiracy is shown to exist, which is not ended merely by lapse of time, it continues to exist as to all persons involved until there is shown some affirmative act of withdrawal by persons who attempt to evade responsibility for acts and declarations of their co-conspirators after the withdrawal, and the withdrawal must be evidenced by some act to disavow or defeat the purposes of the conspiracy. Blue v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1943, 138 F.2d 351, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 1046, 322 U.S. 736, 88 L.Ed. 1570, rehearing denied 64 S.Ct. 1259, 322 U.S. 771, 88 L.Ed. 1596, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 1046, 322 U.S. 737, 88 L.Ed. 1570. Conspiracy ⚡ 40.4

A conspiracy, once proved to exist, must be deemed to continue until the contrary is established, although a conspiracy is "complete" with the commission of the first overt act in the sense that the word is ordinarily used to represent a conspiracy. U.S. v. Perlstein, C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1942, 126 F.2d 789, certiorari denied 62 S.Ct. 1106, 316 U.S. 678, 86 L.Ed. 1752. See, also, U.S. v. Weinberg, D.C.Pa.1955, 129 F.Supp. 514, affirmed 226 F.2d 161, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 305, 350 U.S. 933, 100 L.Ed. 815. Conspiracy ⚡ 24.15; Criminal Law ⚡ 315

When once a conspiracy is shown to exist which in its nature is not ended merely by lapse of time, it continues to exist until there is shown some affirmative act of termination. U.S. v. Rollnick, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1937, 91 F.2d 911. Criminal Law ⚡ 315

The purpose of a "conspiracy" to violate federal law may be continuous, in that it may contemplate commission of several offenses or overt acts. Marino v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1937, 91 F.2d 691, certiorari denied 58 S.Ct. 410, 302 U.S. 764, 82 L.Ed. 593. Conspiracy ⚡ 25

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Conspiracy is not ended so long as there is intention to continue it, as respects required overt act. Bellande v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (La.) 1928, 25 F.2d 1, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 602, 277 U.S. 607, 72 L.Ed. 1012. Conspiracy ↻ 27

Conspiracy is a continuing crime, not renewable by other acts constituting several offenses. U.S. v. Olmstead, D.C.Wash.1925, 5 F.2d 712.

A conspiracy may be a continuous agreement, and, once established, may properly be found to continue until consummation of purpose or abandonment. Nyquist v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Mich.) 1924, 2 F.2d 504, certiorari denied 45 S.Ct. 508, 267 U.S. 606, 69 L.Ed. 810. See, also, U.S. v. Wilson, D.C.W.Va.1927, 23 F.2d 112. Conspiracy ↻ 23

The joinder of new persons in a conspiracy after its formation, does not constitute a new conspiracy, since such joinders relate to the original formation, and there is in the eyes of the law but one continuing, and not many successive, conspiracies. Norton v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Tex.) 1923, 295 F. 136.

A conspiracy by bankrupts to conceal their property from their trustee formed within thirty days of the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, and followed by actual concealment of the property, was an offense which continues to the date of the refusal to turn over the property to the trustee on his election, and an indictment for conspiracy under former § 88 of this title [now this section] properly charged the commission of the offense of such date. U S v. Stern, E.D.Pa.1911, 186 F. 854, affirmed 193 F. 888, 114 C.C.A. 102.

Where "the unlawful combination or agreement contemplates a series of acts for its accomplishments, requiring a considerable period of time for their performance, the conspiracy is a continuing offense as to conspirators who have not withdrawn therefrom, as long as any act or acts are committed by one or more of them in furtherance of the object thereof and such acts are not separate and distinct offenses, but merely a part of the substantive offense." U.S. v. Eccles, C.C.Or.1910, 181 F. 906. Conspiracy ↻ 43(10); Indictment And Information ↻ 125(5.5)

The offense is a continuing one so long as it is in process of execution, as manifested by overt acts in pursuance thereof. U.S. v. Brace, N.D.Cal.1907, 149 F. 874.

Where the evidence shows one continuous agreement or intention to secure such underrate, proof of a single overt act in furtherance of it is sufficient to make out the offense, but proof of separate overt acts will not show more than one offense where the agreement is continuous. U.S. v. Howell, W.D.Mo.1892, 56 F. 21. Conspiracy ↻ 47

In a conspiracy charge, the offense is continuing and acts performed at any time during its continuance are chargeable against defendants. U.S. v. Jackson, E.D.S.C.1951, 94 F.Supp. 912. Criminal Law ↻ 150

A conspiracy once shown to exist is presumed to continue whenever one conspirator does some act in furtherance of its purpose; and in a continuing conspiracy, proof of an overt act is necessary only to establish continued existence of the agreement, and to bring the existence thereof within the applicable period of limitations. U.S. v. Greater Kan. City Retail Coal Merchants' Ass'n, W.D.Mo.1949, 85 F.Supp. 503. Conspiracy ↻ 44.2; Conspiracy ↻ 46

50. Consummation of offense, nature and elements of conspiracy

An agreement or confederation to commit a crime is punishable as a "conspiracy", if any overt act is taken in pursuit of it, and the agreement is punishable regardless of whether the contemplated crime is consummated. U.S. v. Bayer, U.S.N.Y.1947, 67 S.Ct. 1394, 331 U.S. 532, 91 L.Ed. 1654, rehearing denied 68 S.Ct. 29, 332 U.S. 785, 92 L.Ed. 368. Conspiracy ↻ 28(1)

Under former § 88 of this title [now this section] it was not necessary that the alleged conspiracy should have been

51. Felony or misdemeanor, nature and elements of conspiracy

Conspiracy is now a crime with two degrees: a felony if even one of the objects is a felony, a misdemeanor otherwise. Williams v. U.S., C.A.5 (Ga.) 1956, 238 F.2d 215, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 589, 352 U.S. 1024, 1 L.Ed.2d 596. Criminal Law ↪ 27

As at common law a conspiracy to commit a misdemeanor or felony was only a misdemeanor, so conspiracy under former § 88 of this title [now this section], not being declared a felony, was also merely a misdemeanor. Berkowitz v. U S, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1899, 93 F. 452, 35 C.C.A. 379.

A conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States, under former § 88 of this title [now this section] was a misdemeanor. U.S. v. Gardner, C.C.N.D.N.Y.1890, 42 F. 829.

Whether crime of conspiracy is misdemeanor or felony turns upon punishment which can be imposed for violation of substantive offense which is object of conspiracy. U. S. v. Haim, S.D.N.Y.1963, 218 F.Supp. 922. Criminal Law ↪ 27

Conspiracy to possess gasoline ration coupons acquired unlawfully and to transfer such coupons unlawfully is a felony. U.S. v. Strickland, W.D.S.C.1945, 62 F.Supp. 468. Criminal Law ↪ 27

52. Partnership in crime, nature and elements of conspiracy

A "conspiracy" is a partnership in crime, and an overt act of one partner may be the act of all without any new agreement specifically directed to that act. U. S. v. Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., U.S.Wis.1940, 60 S.Ct. 811, 310 U.S. 150, 84 L.Ed. 1129, rehearing denied 60 S.Ct. 1091, 310 U.S. 658, 84 L.Ed. 1421. Conspiracy ↪ 41

Partnership in profits of criminal venture is not essential to show conspiracy, but defendant must at least have demonstrated an intent to further promote and cooperate in illegal activity. U. S. v. Alvarez, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 610 F.2d 1250, on rehearing 625 F.2d 1196, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 2017, 451 U.S. 938, 68 L.Ed.2d 324. Conspiracy ↪ 24.5

Generally, mere willing participation in acts with alleged coconspirators, knowing in a general way that their intent was to break the law, is insufficient to establish a conspiracy. U. S. v. Purin, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1973, 486 F.2d 1363, certiorari denied 94 S.Ct. 2392, 416 U.S. 987, 40 L.Ed.2d 764, certiorari denied 94 S.Ct. 2640, 417 U.S. 930, 41 L.Ed.2d 233. Conspiracy ↪ 40.1

A conspiracy is a partnership in crime; it has ingredients, as well as implications, distinct from the completion of the unlawful project. U. S. v. Skillman, C.A.8 (Mo.) 1971, 442 F.2d 542, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 82, 404 U.S. 833, 30 L.Ed.2d 63. Conspiracy ↪ 24.10

Once conspiracy is established, there is partnership in crime and partners act for each other in carrying it forward. Downing v. U. S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1965, 348 F.2d 594, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 235, 382 U.S. 901, 15 L.Ed.2d 155. Conspiracy ↻ 41

"Conspiracy" is a partnership in criminal purposes, and the gist of the crime is the confederation or combination of minds, and to infer guilt from mere association between conspirators does not meet the necessary test. Ong Way Jong v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1957, 245 F.2d 392. Conspiracy ↻ 24(1)

A "conspiracy" is a partnership agreement having crime as the partnership business done by overt acts and difficulty of accomplishment is not conclusive of the end of the agreement to act in concert. U.S. v. Rollnick, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1937, 91 F.2d 911. See, also, Marino v. U.S., C.C.A.Cal.1937, 91 F.2d 691, 113 A.L.R. 975, certiorari denied 58 S.Ct. 410, 302 U.S. 764, 82 L.Ed. 593; U.S. v. Armour & Co., D.C.Okla.1943, 48 F.Supp. 801, reversed on other grounds 137 F.2d 269. Conspiracy ↻ 24(1)

"Conspiracy" exists when two or more persons formally or informally agree to share purposes of a crime; it is a partnership in criminal purposes. U. S. v. Molin, D.C.Mass.1965, 244 F.Supp. 1015. Conspiracy ↻ 24(1)

A "conspiracy" is a combination of two or more people to do something unlawful, and has been described as a partnership in crime. U.S. v. Belisle, W.D.Wash.1951, 107 F.Supp. 283. Conspiracy ↻ 23.1

A "conspiracy" is partnership in crime, and it has ingredients, as well as implications, distinct from completion of unlawful project. U. S. v. Schneiderman, S.D.Cal.1951, 102 F.Supp. 52, reversed on other grounds 193 F.2d 875. See, also, U.S. v. Spector, D.C.Cal.1951, 102 F.Supp. 75, reversed on other grounds 193 F.2d 1002. Conspiracy ↻ 23.1

53. Combination or concert of action, nature and elements of conspiracy

"For two or more to confederate and combine together to commit or cause to be committed a breach of the criminal laws, is an offense of the gravest character, some times quite outweighing in injury to the public, the mere commission of the contemplated crime. It involves deliberate plotting to subject the laws, educating and preparing the conspirators for further and habitual criminal practices. And it is characterized by secrecy, rendering it difficult of detection, and adding to the importance of punishing it when discovered." U.S. v. Rabinowich, U.S.N.Y.1915, 35 S.Ct. 682, 238 U.S. 78, 59 L.Ed. 1211. See, also, U.S. v. Spector, D.C.Cal.1951, 102 F.Supp. 75, reversed on other grounds 193 F.2d 1002; U.S. v. Schneiderman, D.C.Cal.1951, 102 F.Supp. 52, reversed on other grounds 193 F.2d 875.

The union in the unlawful purpose did not constitute the crime of conspiracy within former § 88 of this title [now this section], which required not only the unlawful conspiracy, but that some party must have done an act to effect its object. Hyde v. U.S., U.S.Dist.Col.1912, 32 S.Ct. 793, 225 U.S. 347, 56 L.Ed. 1114, Am. Ann. Cas. 1914A, 614. See, also, U.S. v. Rabinowich, N.Y.1915, 35 S.Ct. 682, 238 U.S. 78, 59 L.Ed. 1211; Joplin Mercantile Co. v. U.S., Mo.1915, 35 S.Ct. 291, 236 U.S. 531, 59 L.Ed. 705; Becher v. U.S., C.C.A.N.Y.1924, 5 F.2d 45, certiorari denied 45 S.Ct. 462, 267 U.S. 602, 69 L.Ed. 808; Wilson v. U.S., C.C.A.N.Y.1921, 275 F. 307, certiorari denied 42 S.Ct. 571, 257 U.S. 649, 66 L.Ed. 416; McGinniss v. U.S., D.C.N.Y.1919, 256 F. 621; U.S. v. McHugh, D.C.Wash.1917, 253 F. 224; U.S. v. Bopp, D.C.Cal.1916, 237 F. 283; Shea v. U.S., Ohio 1916, 236 F. 97, 149 C.C.A. 307; Daly v. U.S., Mass.1909, 170 F. 321, 95 C.C.A. 107; Jones v. U.S., Or.1908, 162 F. 417, 89 C.C.A. 303, certiorari denied 29 S.Ct. 685, 212 U.S. 576, 53 L.Ed. 657. Conspiracy ↻ 27

A "conspiracy" consists of a combination or confederation between two or more persons formed for the purpose of committing, by their joint efforts, a criminal act. U. S. v. Hedman, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1980, 630 F.2d 1184, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 1481, 450 U.S. 965, 67 L.Ed.2d 614. Conspiracy ↻ 23.1

A "conspiracy" is a combination of two or more persons to accomplish some unlawful purpose, or some lawful purpose by unlawful means. U. S. v. Heck, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1974, 499 F.2d 778, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 677, 419 U.S. 1088, 42 L.Ed.2d 680, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 678, 419 U.S. 1088, 42 L.Ed.2d 680. Conspiracy ↪ 23.1

This section requires some concert of plan and purpose between two or more persons. Romontio v. U.S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1968, 400 F.2d 618, certiorari granted 91 S.Ct. 144, 400 U.S. 901, 27 L.Ed.2d 137, certiorari dismissed 91 S.Ct. 1384, 402 U.S. 903, 28 L.Ed.2d 644. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

It is not necessary to find express agreement, oral or written, to find conspiracy, but it is sufficient that concert of action be contemplated and that defendants conform to arrangement. Esco Corp. v. U. S., C.A.9 (Or.) 1965, 340 F.2d 1000. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

A "conspiracy" is a combination of two or more persons by concerted action to accomplish criminal or unlawful purpose, or to accomplish, by criminal or unlawful means some purpose not in itself criminal or unlawful. Saier v. State Bar of Mich., C.A.6 (Mich.) 1961, 293 F.2d 756, certiorari denied 82 S.Ct. 388, 368 U.S. 947, 7 L.Ed.2d 343 . Conspiracy ↪ 1.1

A conspiracy cannot be committed by a single individual acting alone; he must act in concert with another person. Herman v. U.S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1961, 289 F.2d 362, certiorari denied 82 S.Ct. 174, 368 U.S. 897, 7 L.Ed.2d 93. Conspiracy ↪ 24(4.1)

Under this section making it a crime to conspire to commit an offense against the United States, the offense is complete when two or more persons combine to commit an offense against the United States and do any act to effect object of conspiracy. Jones v. U. S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1958, 251 F.2d 288, certiorari denied 78 S.Ct. 703, 356 U.S. 919, 2 L.Ed.2d 715. Conspiracy ↪ 28(1)

The rule that a conspiracy to commit a crime is a different offense from the crime which is the object of the conspiracy does not include conspiracy to commit crimes which in their very nature require concerted action of all the participants, and in such cases the result has such a close connection with the objective offense as to be inseparable from it. Freeman v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Mich.) 1945, 146 F.2d 978. Conspiracy ↪ 37

Where a scheme to defraud is shared in by two or more, it becomes a "conspiracy". Blue v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1943, 138 F.2d 351, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 1046, 322 U.S. 736, 88 L.Ed. 1570, rehearing denied 64 S.Ct. 1259, 322 U.S. 771, 88 L.Ed. 1596, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 1046, 322 U.S. 737, 88 L.Ed. 1570. See, also, Van Riper v. U.S., C.C.N.Y.1926, 13 F.2d 961. Conspiracy ↪ 32

If a crime necessarily involves mutual cooperation of two persons and they have in fact committed the crime, they may not be convicted of a "conspiracy" to commit it. U S v. Zeuli, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1943, 137 F.2d 845. Conspiracy ↪ 28(2)

A "conspiracy" is a group offense, and therefore two or more people must participate to create the crime. U. S. v. Fox, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1942, 130 F.2d 56, certiorari denied 63 S.Ct. 74, 317 U.S. 666, 87 L.Ed. 535. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

A mutually implied understanding is sufficient so far as combination or confederacy is concerned, and the agreement is generally a matter of inference deduced from the acts of the persons accused of unlawful conspiracy, which acts are done in pursuance of an apparent criminal purpose. Oliver v. U S, C.C.A.10 (N.M.) 1941, 121 F.2d 245, certiorari denied 62 S.Ct. 124, 314 U.S. 666, 86 L.Ed. 533, certiorari denied 62 S.Ct. 125, 314 U.S. 666, 86 L.Ed. 533. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

The gist of the crime of "conspiracy" to violate federal law is the confederation or combination of minds. Marino

v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1937, 91 F.2d 691, certiorari denied 58 S.Ct. 410, 302 U.S. 764, 82 L.Ed. 593. See, also, U.S. v. Watson, D.C.Miss.1883, 17 F. 145; U.S. v. Renken, D.C.S.C.1944, 55 F.Supp. 1, affirmed 147 F.2d 905, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 44, 326 U.S. 734, 90 L.Ed. 437. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

Charge of conspiracy will not lie as to crimes that cannot be committed except by concerted action of at least two persons and of such a nature that immediate effect of their consummation reaches only participants, so that conspiracy to commit them is in such close connection with objective offense as to be inseparable therefrom. Curtis v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Colo.) 1933, 67 F.2d 943. Conspiracy ↪ 28(1)

Crime requiring concerted action precludes charge of conspiracy only where concurrence and consummated act are so connected as to constitute one act. Lisansky v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (Md.) 1929, 31 F.2d 846, certiorari denied 49 S.Ct. 514, 279 U.S. 873, 73 L.Ed. 1008. Conspiracy ↪ 23.1

A combination or conspiracy is not necessarily unlawful. U.S. v. American Column & Lumber Co., W.D.Tenn.1920, 263 F. 147, motion denied 40 S.Ct. 588, affirmed 42 S.Ct. 114, 257 U.S. 377, 66 L.Ed. 284, 19 Ohio Law Rep. 529. Conspiracy ↪ 1.1

A combination or conspiracy in itself lawful may be made unlawful by acts in furtherance thereof, which are themselves unlawful. U.S. v. American Column & Lumber Co., W.D.Tenn.1920, 263 F. 147, motion denied 40 S.Ct. 588, affirmed 42 S.Ct. 114, 257 U.S. 377, 66 L.Ed. 284, 19 Ohio Law Rep. 529. Conspiracy ↪ 1.1

In a criminal prosecution for conspiracy, the unlawful combination and confederacy, rather than the overt acts done in pursuance of it, constitute the essential element of the offense. Howland v. Corn, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1916, 232 F. 35, 146 C.C.A. 227. See, also, Becher v. U.S., C.C.A.N.Y.1924, 5 F.2d 45, certiorari denied 45 S.Ct. 462, 267 U.S. 602, 69 L.Ed. 808; Proffitt v. U.S., C.C.A.Cal.1920, 264 F. 299. Conspiracy ↪ 24

A conspiracy consists in the unlawful combination, and, but for the necessity of alleging an overt act, is committed when the combination is entered into, without anything further being done to effect the object. U.S. v. Raley, D.C.Or.1909, 173 F. 159. Conspiracy ↪ 27

"It is true that the act of unlawful combination is more dangerous and disturbing to the peace of society than would be the crime which is the object of the combination, when accomplished by a single individual. It has been declared that the confederacy of several persons to effect any injurious object creates such a new and additional power to cause injury as to require special criminal restraints. You can readily appreciate why this is true. A conspiracy will become powerful and effective in the accomplishment of its illegal purpose in proportion to the numbers, power, and strength of the combination to effect it. It is also true that, as it involves a number in a lawless enterprise, it is proportionately demoralizing to the well-being and law-abiding characters of the men engaged, and, as a consequence, to the community to which they belong. Such is the general idea of a conspiracy." U.S. v. Lancaster, C.C.S.D.Ga.1891, 44 F. 896.

Striking employees of a receiver, appointed by the court to manage railroad property were acting in contempt of the court when, by threats and intimidation, they induced others to leave their work and so made it difficult or impossible for the receiver to operate the railroad, and it was an offense under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for them to have conspired to commit that offense. U.S. v. Kane, C.C.Colo.1885, 23 F. 748.

"Conspiracy" is a combination or agreement of two or more persons joined together to attempt to accomplish some unlawful purpose; the essence of the offense is a combination on mutual agreement by two or more persons to either disobey or disregard the law. U. S. v. Masiello, D.C.S.C.1980, 491 F.Supp. 1154. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

A "conspiracy" need not be a formal agreement nor must it be embodied in a document, but it can be an implied agreement or a concert of action understood by the parties to be for a common end. Cape Cod Food Products v.

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

National Cranberry Ass'n, D.C.Mass.1954, 119 F.Supp. 900. Conspiracy ↪ 1.1

The offense of harboring and concealing a fugitive from justice itself requires concert of action, and hence it is not permissible to make a separate offense of conspiring to commit that offense out of the same concert of action. U.S. v. Hagan, W.D.Ky.1939, 27 F.Supp. 814. Conspiracy ↪ 28(1)

Though one defendant may be indicted for conspiracy with other persons not named as defendants in indictment, and crime of conspiracy is a distinct crime apart from commission of offense itself, where substantive offense requires concert of action or plurality of agents, parties committing offense cannot be indicted for a conspiracy to commit offense. U.S. v. Hagan, W.D.Ky.1939, 27 F.Supp. 814. Conspiracy ↪ 28(1)

Whether the rule that parties committing an offense requiring concert of action or plurality of agents cannot be indicted for a conspiracy to commit offense is applicable to any particular case depends on the facts. U.S. v. Hagan, W.D.Ky.1939, 27 F.Supp. 814. Conspiracy ↪ 28(1)

Employés, if acting without any illegal purpose, may quietly and peaceably leave the service of their employer by concerted action at a given time, so long as they do not violate any contract to remain longer, but it is unlawful for employés whose employment is at an end to combine to induce others to quit the same service at the same time, but before their employment has expired. U.S. v. Stevens, C.C.Me.1877, 27 F.Cas. 1312, No. 16392. Conspiracy ↪ 30

54. Intent, nature and elements of conspiracy

To support a conviction for conspiracy to commit mail fraud, government was not required to show an intent to use the mail to effect the scheme. U.S. v. Morales-Rodriguez, C.A.1 (Puerto Rico) 2006, 448 F.3d 50. Conspiracy ↪ 28(3)

Evidence supported finding that defendant intentionally participated in conspiracy to commit wire fraud, given that defendant developed founding documents for fraudulent investment company and forms used for agreements with investors, made presentations at staff meetings in which he described how investment program operated and estimated potential return on investment, was introduced to prospective investors as company's certified public accountant (CPA), was involved in creating bank accounts used to deposit investor money and was present at meeting in which codefendant indicated that accounts were used to make it difficult to trace transactions, recruited investors into program, and repaid one unsatisfied investor with funds he had solicited from another investor. U.S. v. Dazey, C.A.10 (Okla.) 2005, 403 F.3d 1147. Conspiracy ↪ 47(5)

Showing of willfulness required to establish charged conspiracy objective of violating Safe Drinking Water Act (SDWA) did not require that defendant know the specific provision of law he violated, and jury was thus properly instructed that act was willful if committed voluntarily and purposefully, with specific intent do something forbidden by law, that is, with bad purpose either to disobey or disregard the law. U.S. v. Overholt, C.A.10 (Okla.) 2002, 307 F.3d 1231. Conspiracy ↪ 24.5; Conspiracy ↪ 48.2(2)

Conspiracy is "specific intent" crime. U.S. v. Blair, C.A.10 (Okla.) 1995, 54 F.3d 639, certiorari denied 116 S.Ct. 220, 516 U.S. 883, 133 L.Ed.2d 151. Conspiracy ↪ 24.5

Evidence was sufficient to find defendant guilty of mail fraud and conspiracy to commit mail fraud; government was not required, in order to establish intent to defraud, to prove that victim lost money or that defendant wanted victim to lose money. U.S. v. Easton, C.A.8 (S.D.) 2002, 54 Fed.Appx. 242, 2002 WL 31814951, Unreported. Conspiracy ↪ 47(5); Postal Service ↪ 35(5); Postal Service ↪ 49(11)

of intent to defraud properly explained fraudulent intent, in prosecution for mail fraud and conspiracy to commit mail fraud; financial or economic harm was not necessary to establish intent to defraud, but existence of scheme could serve as evidence of intent. U.S. v. Easton, C.A.8 (S.D.) 2002, 54 Fed.Appx. 242, 2002 WL 31814951, Unreported. Postal Service ☞ 35(5); Postal Service ☞ 50

55. Agreement to commit offense, nature and elements of conspiracy-- Generally

Single agreement to commit several crimes constitutes one conspiracy; multiple agreements to commit separate crimes constitute multiple conspiracies. U.S. v. Broce, U.S.Kan.1989, 109 S.Ct. 757, 488 U.S. 563, 102 L.Ed.2d 927. Conspiracy ☞ 24(2)

An agreement to advocate forcible overthrow of the government does not of itself constitute an unlawful conspiracy if it does not call for advocacy of action. Yates v. U. S., U.S.Cal.1957, 77 S.Ct. 1064, 354 U.S. 298, 1 L.Ed.2d 1356. Conspiracy ☞ 28(3)

To prove conspiracy to commit wire fraud, the government must show (1) that there was a conspiracy, an agreement to commit wire fraud, (2) that defendants knew of the agreement, and (3) that they intentionally joined in the conspiracy. U.S. v. Johnson, C.A.8 (Mo.) 2006, 450 F.3d 366. Conspiracy ☞ 32

Although government need not prove commission of substantive offense or even that conspirators knew all details of conspiracy, in order to establish conspiracy, government must prove that intended future conduct conspirators agreed upon included all elements of substantive crime. U.S. v. Pinckney, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1996, 85 F.3d 4. Conspiracy ☞ 24(1)

It was not necessary for each coconspirator to agree to or actually participate in every step of alleged conspiracy to procure and market stolen motor vehicles in interstate commerce as long as there remained one agreement, express or implied, among various coconspirators to contribute in different ways at different times in furtherance of a stolen car business for their mutual benefit. U.S. v. Spudic, C.A.7 (Ind.) 1986, 795 F.2d 1334. Conspiracy ☞ 41

Standard for determining existence of single conspiracy is whether there was one overall agreement among parties to carry out objectives of conspiracy. U.S. v. Bloch, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1982, 696 F.2d 1213. Conspiracy ☞ 24(2)

It is appropriate to punish an agreement to commit an act intended to aid another crime but inappropriate to impose conspiratorial liability on one who, without agreement, merely assists conspirators in achieving their object. U. S. v. Perry, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1981, 643 F.2d 38, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 138, 454 U.S. 835, 70 L.Ed.2d 115. Conspiracy ☞ 40

Essence of conspiracy is proof of conspiratorial agreement, while aiding and abetting requires there be a community of unlawful intent between aider and abettor and principal. U. S. v. Bright, C.A.5 (Miss.) 1980, 630 F.2d 804. Conspiracy ☞ 23.1; Criminal Law ☞ 59(5)

Gist of conspiracy is agreement to commit offense; it is not necessary to prove that person charged with conspiracy participated in each aspect of the operation. U. S. v. Heller, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 625 F.2d 594. Conspiracy ☞ 24(3)

Conspiracy law is directed only at persons who have intentionally agreed to further an illegal object; to convict, government must prove that there was an agreement to accomplish an illegal act. U. S. v. Wieschenberg, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1979, 604 F.2d 326. Conspiracy ☞ 24(1)

In a conspiracy indictment, gist of offense is agreement and specific intent to commit an unlawful act, and when required by statute, an overt act. U. S. v. Wander, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1979, 601 F.2d 1251. Conspiracy ☞ 23.5

Essence of crime of conspiracy and evil at which the crime is directed is an agreement to commit an unlawful act; it is such an element of agreement which serves to distinguish conspiracy from aiding and abetting which although based upon agreement does not require proof of such fact. U. S. v. Cowart, C.A.5 (Ga.) 1979, 595 F.2d 1023. Conspiracy ↪ 23.1

To support a conviction of conspiracy to defraud the United States, it is not necessary that government be subjected to property or pecuniary loss, nor is it necessary that conspirators receive a pecuniary advantage; rather, all that is required is an agreement to interfere with or obstruct one of the United States' lawful governmental functions by deceit, craft, or trickery, or at least by means that are dishonest. U. S. v. D'Andrea, C.A.7 (Ind.) 1978, 585 F.2d 1351, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 1795, 440 U.S. 983, 60 L.Ed.2d 244, rehearing denied 612 F.2d 1386. Conspiracy ↪ 33(1)

Mere knowledge, acquiescence or approval without cooperation or agreement to cooperate is not enough to constitute one a party to a conspiracy. U. S. v. Rodriguez, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1978, 585 F.2d 1234, on rehearing 612 F.2d 906, rehearing denied 617 F.2d 1214, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 108, 449 U.S. 835, 66 L.Ed.2d 41, certiorari granted 101 S.Ct. 69, 449 U.S. 818, 66 L.Ed.2d 20, affirmed 101 S.Ct. 1137, 450 U.S. 333, 67 L.Ed.2d 275. Conspiracy ↪ 40.1

Under this section, the precise nature and extent of conspiracy must be determined by reference to agreement which embraces and defines its objects; whether the object of single agreement is to commit one or many crimes, it is in either case that agreement which constitutes the conspiracy which statute punishes. U. S. v. Elliott, C.A.5 (Ga.) 1978, 571 F.2d 880, rehearing denied 575 F.2d 300, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 349, 439 U.S. 953, 58 L.Ed.2d 344. Conspiracy ↪ 24(2)

The gravamen of offense of conspiracy is the making of an agreement to commit crime. U. S. v. Borelli, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1964, 336 F.2d 376, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 647, 379 U.S. 960, 13 L.Ed.2d 555. See, also, U.S. v. Quong, C.A.Tenn.1962, 303 F.2d 499, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 119, 371 U.S. 863, 9 L.Ed.2d 100; U.S. v. Anthony, D.C.Pa.1956, 145 F.Supp. 323. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

It is not necessary that there be any agreement to commit substantive offense from inception of scheme for there to be conspiracy, but if there is such agreement at any time, it is sufficient. U. S. v. Zuideveld, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1963, 316 F.2d 873, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 671, 376 U.S. 916, 11 L.Ed.2d 612. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

"Conspiracy" is agreement to perform illegal act. Maggiore v. Bradford, C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1962, 310 F.2d 519, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 881, 372 U.S. 934, 9 L.Ed.2d 766. Conspiracy ↪ 1.1

Conspiracy or unlawful agreement is gist of offense of conspiracy to defraud. Dennis v. U.S., C.A.10 (Colo.) 1962, 302 F.2d 5. Conspiracy ↪ 32

Though the law requires overt acts to complete criminal conspiracies, essence of offense of conspiracy, that which is punished, is the "agreement". Black v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1958, 252 F.2d 93. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

Gist of offense of "conspiracy" is agreement among conspirators to commit offense attended by an act of one or more of them to effect the object of conspiracy. Hanis v. U. S., C.A.8 (Mo.) 1957, 246 F.2d 781. See, also, U.S. v. De Cavalcante, C.A.N.J.1971, 440 F.2d 1264. Conspiracy ↪ 23.1

The crime of conspiracy to commit offense against United States is complete when two or more persons agree or combine together to commit such an offense and supplement agreement or combination with overt act in furtherance thereof. O'Neal v. U. S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1957, 240 F.2d 700. See, also, U.S. v. Salinas-Salinas, 555 F.2d 470. Conspiracy ↪ 28(1)

To constitute conspiracy to commit offense against United States, agreement to commit offense need not be in any particular form or susceptible of direct proof, but may be inferred from parties' statements and acts with other circumstances. O'Neal v. U. S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1957, 240 F.2d 700. Conspiracy ↻ 47(2)

A "conspiracy" is an agreement by two or more persons to accomplish a lawful objective by unlawful means, or by lawful means an illegal objective. Yates v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1955, 225 F.2d 146, certiorari granted 76 S.Ct. 104, 350 U.S. 860, 100 L.Ed. 763, certiorari granted 76 S.Ct. 105, 350 U.S. 860, 100 L.Ed. 763, reversed on other grounds 77 S.Ct. 1064, 354 U.S. 298, 1 L.Ed.2d 1356. Conspiracy ↻ 23.1

Gist of offense of conspiracy is the unlawful agreement. Toliver v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1955, 224 F.2d 742. Conspiracy ↻ 24(1)

More than proof of a mere passive cognizance of a crime on part of a defendant is required to sustain a charge of conspiracy to commit such crime, and defendant must have done some act or made some agreement showing an intention to participate in some way in such conspiracy. Bridges v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1952, 199 F.2d 811, rehearing denied 201 F.2d 254, certiorari granted 73 S.Ct. 648, 345 U.S. 904, 97 L.Ed. 1341, reversed on other grounds 73 S.Ct. 1055, 346 U.S. 209, 97 L.Ed. 1557. Conspiracy ↻ 40.1

An overt act alone is insufficient to constitute a conspiracy and there must be an unlawful agreement to which the overt act is referable. Hall v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Okla.) 1940, 109 F.2d 976. Conspiracy ↻ 27

"Conspiracy" is established where two or more persons agree to commit crime and do overt act to effect object of conspiracy. Tinsley v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (S.D.) 1930, 43 F.2d 890. See, also, Castro v. U.S. C.A.Fla.1961, 296 F.2d 540; Johnson v. Wall, D.C.N.C.1963, 219 F.Supp. 4, affirmed 329 F.2d 149. Conspiracy ↻ 23.1

The offense consists not in the mere agreement, but in the existence of a conspiracy and the doing of an act to effect the object of the conspiracy. U.S. v. Baker, D.C.R.I.1917, 243 F. 741. See, also, Breese v. U.S., N.C.1913, 203 F. 824, 122 C.C.A. 142; U.S. v. Nunnemacher, C.C.Wis.1876, Fed.Cas. No. 15,902.

"Conspiracy," as defined by former § 88 of this title [now this section] meant an unlawful agreement to do some act which by some law of the United States has been made a crime and this is what is meant by agreeing to commit an offense against the United States. In re Wolf, W.D.Ark.1886, 27 F. 606. Conspiracy ↻ 25

It is in the nature of the crime of conspiracy that there be a meeting of minds or an agreement among individuals to violate the law. U. S. v. Bonanno, S.D.N.Y.1960, 180 F.Supp. 71. Conspiracy ↻ 24(1)

The essence of a "conspiracy" is an agreement, which means that two or more persons, however informal the medium may be, agree to do or refrain from doing one or more things, and the "conspiracy" may embrace an illegal object, or a legal purpose illegally to be effected. George W Warner & Co v. Black & Decker Mfg Co, E.D.N.Y.1959, 172 F.Supp. 221, reversed 277 F.2d 787. Conspiracy ↻ 1.1

Gravamen of corpus delicti of conspiracy is the agreement or combination even where the particular conspiracy statute requires an overt act. US v. Grunewald, S.D.N.Y.1958, 162 F.Supp. 626. Conspiracy ↻ 24(1)

An unlawful conspiracy may be formed without simultaneous action or agreement on part of conspirators. Noerr Motor Freight, Inc. v. Eastern R.R. Presidents Conference. Noerr Motor Freight, Inc. v. Eastern R. R. Presidents Conference, E.D.Pa.1957, 155 F.Supp. 768, affirmed 273 F.2d 218, certiorari granted 80 S.Ct. 862, 362 U.S. 947, 4 L.Ed.2d 866, reversed on other grounds 81 S.Ct. 523, 365 U.S. 127, 5 L.Ed.2d 464, rehearing denied 81 S.Ct. 899, 365 U.S. 875, 5 L.Ed.2d 864. Conspiracy ↻ 2

A "conspiracy" is agreement between two or more persons to do an evil act in concert, any plot or secret combination for evil purpose, such as conspiracy against government, combination between two or more persons to commit any act punishable by law or effect a legal purpose by criminal or unlawful means, or any striking connivance of persons, classes or agencies. U S v. O'Connor, D.C.D.C.1955, 135 F.Supp. 590, reversed on other grounds 240 F.2d 404, 99 U.S.App.D.C. 373. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1)

Mere uniformity of action in performance of acts will not constitute a "conspiracy", but there must first be an agreement to do certain illegal acts or to do legal acts in an illegal manner. U.S. v. Armour & Co., W.D.Okla.1943, 48 F.Supp. 801, reversed on other grounds 137 F.2d 269. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1)

A mutual understanding between the parties or any two or more of them is all that is necessary to prove a "conspiracy". U.S. v. Direct Sales Co., W.D.S.C.1942, 44 F.Supp. 623, affirmed 131 F.2d 835, certiorari granted 63 S.Ct. 758, 318 U.S. 749, 87 L.Ed. 1125, affirmed 63 S.Ct. 1265, 319 U.S. 703, 87 L.Ed. 1674. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1)

Evidence was sufficient to find defendant guilty of mail fraud and conspiracy to commit mail fraud; government was not required, in order to establish intent to defraud, to prove that victim lost money or that defendant wanted victim to lose money. U.S. v. Easton, C.A.8 (S.D.) 2002, 54 Fed.Appx. 242, 2002 WL 31814951, Unreported. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(5); Postal Service ⚡ 35(5); Postal Service ⚡ 49(11)

56. ---- Formal or express agreement to commit offense, nature and elements of conspiracy

Imposition of criminal liability for conspiracy to assault federal officers even though assailants were unaware that their victims, undercover narcotics agents, were federal officers, would not enlarge the conspirators' agreement beyond its terms as they understood them. U. S. v. Feola, U.S.N.Y.1975, 95 S.Ct. 1255, 420 U.S. 671, 43 L.Ed.2d 541. Conspiracy ⚡ 28(3)

Agreement between conspirators need not be express, but rather can be informal tacit understanding. U.S. v. Murphy, C.A.8 (Mo.) 1992, 957 F.2d 550. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1)

Agreement to accomplish illegal objective, as element of conspiracy, need not be explicit; implicit agreement may be inferred from facts and circumstances. U.S. v. Boone, C.A.9 (Idaho) 1991, 951 F.2d 1526. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1); Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2

Government need not prove formal agreement to establish existence of conspiracy to violate federal law; tacit or mutual understanding among parties will suffice. U.S. v. Ellzey, C.A.6 (Ohio) 1989, 874 F.2d 324, denial of post-conviction relief affirmed 940 F.2d 659. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1)

Agreement between the coconspirators and the defendant need not be proved by direct evidence but may be inferred from concert of actions; it is not necessary for all coconspirators to know each other or to work together on every phase of the criminal venture. U. S. v. Wilson, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1981, 657 F.2d 755, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 1456, 455 U.S. 951, 71 L.Ed.2d 667. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(2)

To constitute a conspiracy under this section proscribing such crime, agreement need not be formal or express, and may consist of nothing more than tacit understanding. U. S. v. Pintar, C.A.8 (Minn.) 1980, 630 F.2d 1270. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1)

No formal agreement is necessary to constitute conspiracy; such agreement may be inferred from facts appearing in evidence. U. S. v. Cudia, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1965, 346 F.2d 227, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 428, 382 U.S. 955, 15 L.Ed.2d 359, rehearing denied 86 S.Ct. 612, 382 U.S. 1021, 15 L.Ed.2d 536. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1)

Ordinarily unlawful agreements can be established only by acts and conduct of conspirators and inferences to be drawn therefrom. Dennis v. U.S., C.A.10 (Colo.) 1962, 302 F.2d 5. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

An express agreement is not necessary to prove a conspiracy. U. S. v. Frank, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1961, 290 F.2d 195, certiorari denied 82 S.Ct. 38, 368 U.S. 821, 7 L.Ed.2d 26. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

Conspiracy involves some action in concert among conspirators but there need not be an express agreement among them. U. S. v. Amedeo, C.A.3 (N.J.) 1960, 277 F.2d 375. See, also, U.S. v. Banks, D.C.S.D.1974, 383 F.Supp. 368. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1)

In prosecution for, among other things, conspiring to commit an offense against the United States, evidence of an express agreement is unnecessary. U.S. v. Clancy, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1960, 276 F.2d 617, certiorari granted 80 S.Ct. 1611, 363 U.S. 836, 4 L.Ed.2d 1723, reversed 81 S.Ct. 645, 365 U.S. 312, 5 L.Ed.2d 574. See, also, U.S. v. Morris, C.A.Ill.1955, 225 F.2d 91, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 179, 350 U.S. 901, 100 L.Ed. 791, rehearing denied 76 S.Ct. 300, 350 U.S. 943, 100 L.Ed. 823. Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2

A conspiracy is seldom susceptible of direct proof and ordinarily it can be established only by acts and conduct of conspirators and inferences to be drawn therefrom, and agreement need not be in any particular form. Jones v. U. S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1958, 251 F.2d 288, certiorari denied 78 S.Ct. 703, 356 U.S. 919, 2 L.Ed.2d 715. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(2)

A "conspiracy" is an agreement to commit a crime or to engage in criminal activities attended by one or more overt acts. It needs no writing to make or prove it. It need not be explicit. It may be implicit. Duke v. U.S., C.A.5 (Ga.) 1956, 233 F.2d 897. See, also, U.S. v. Gilboy, D.C.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 442. Conspiracy ⚡ 23.1

To constitute criminal conspiracy, there must be an agreement among alleged conspirators, but it need not be in any particular form, nor be expressed, but it may be an implied understanding and must usually be inferred from circumstances shown. Nilva v. U.S., C.A.8 (Minn.) 1954, 212 F.2d 115, certiorari denied 75 S.Ct. 40, 348 U.S. 825, 99 L.Ed. 650, rehearing denied 75 S.Ct. 203, 348 U.S. 889, 99 L.Ed. 699. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1)

In order to establish conspiracy, it is not necessary to show any formal agreement between the conspirators, but the common plan can be established by what the alleged conspirators have done, as well as by what they may have said. U. S. v. Geoga, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1954, 210 F.2d 45. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

It is not essential to constitute crime of "conspiracy" that agreement be in any specified form or that any particular words be used, but it is enough if the minds of the parties meet and join in an understanding way to accomplish a common purpose. Reavis v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Okla.) 1939, 106 F.2d 982. See, also, Martin v. U.S., C.C.A.Colo.1938, 100 F.2d 490, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 590, 306 U.S. 649, 83 L.Ed. 1047; Beland v. U.S., C.C.A.Tex.1938, 100 F.2d 289, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 485, 306 U.S. 636, 83 L.Ed. 1037; Wilder v. U.S., C.C.A.Okl.1938, 100 F.2d 177; Marino v. U.S., C.C.A.Cal.1937, 91 F.2d 691, 113 A.L.R. 975, certiorari denied 58 S.Ct. 410, 302 U.S. 764, 82 L.Ed. 593; Marx v. U.S., C.C.A.Minn.1936, 86 F.2d 245; Stack v. U.S., C.C.A.Wash.1928, 27 F.2d 16; Pearlman v. U.S., C.C.A.Or.1927, 20 F.2d 113, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 85, 275 U.S. 549, 72 L.Ed. 419; U.S. v. Waltham Watch Co., D.C.N.Y.1942, 47 F.Supp. 524. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1)

Proof of meeting of minds by intelligent and deliberate agreement to commit offense establishes "conspiracy," though agreement is not manifested by formal words. Hoffman v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Colo.) 1933, 68 F.2d 101. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1)

In dealing with conspiracy, it is not essential that persons acted together in formal manner found in ordinary lawful transactions. U.S. v. Wilson, D.C.W.Va.1927, 23 F.2d 112.

To sustain an indictment charging a conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States, under former § 88

of this title [now this section] it was not necessary that there should have been direct evidence of a formal agreement, but it was sufficient if the evidence of the separate details of the transaction as it was carried out indicate with the requisite certainty the existence of a preconcerted plan and purpose. Reilly v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1901, 106 F. 896, 46 C.C.A. 25, reversed 23 S.Ct. 334, 188 U.S. 375, 47 L.Ed. 508. See, also, U.S. v. Wilson, D.C.Or.1894, 60 F. 890; U.S. v. Newton, D.C.Iowa 1892, 52 F. 275; The Mussel Slough Case, C.C.Cal.1881, 5 F. 680. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

While it is necessary to prove that coconspirators agreed on central objective of conspiracy, agreement may consist of nothing more than a passive understanding. U.S. v. Weiner, E.D.Mich.1991, 755 F.Supp. 748, affirmed 988 F.2d 629, certiorari denied 114 S.Ct. 142, 510 U.S. 848, 126 L.Ed.2d 105. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

Even absent express agreement, if two persons pursued the same object, one performing one part of the act, and the other another part of the act so as to complete it with a view to attainment of object which they are pursuing, this will be sufficient to constitute a conspiracy. Smith v. B & O R. Co., D.C.Md.1979, 473 F.Supp. 572. Conspiracy ↪ 1.1

To "conspire" is to agree to share an unlawful purpose, and two people may share an unlawful purpose without entering a formal or a written agreement, and it is sufficient if their agreement is shown by conduct by silent understanding to share a purpose to violate the law. U. S. v. Palladino, D.C.Mass.1962, 203 F.Supp. 35. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

It is not essential to a conspiracy that the precise person, time and place or precise methods be agreed upon. U. S. v. Gilboy, M.D.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 442. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

57. Common design or purpose, nature and elements of conspiracy

To convict defendant of participation in a single conspiracy with other defendants, it is sufficient if it is established that parties to the agreement were aware that others were participating in the scheme; the coconspirators must have knowingly embraced a common criminal objective. U.S. v. Grier, C.A.7 (Wis.) 1989, 866 F.2d 908, rehearing denied. Conspiracy ↪ 24.5

Unity essential to a conspiracy is derived from the assent of its members to contribute to a common enterprise. U. S. v. Grassi, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 616 F.2d 1295, rehearing denied 624 F.2d 1098, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 363, 449 U.S. 956, 66 L.Ed.2d 220. Conspiracy ↪ 24(3)

While conspiracy is seldom born of open covenants openly arrived at, there must be proof of common purpose and plan to prove that defendant has joined in conspiracy. U. S. v. Alvarez, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 610 F.2d 1250, on rehearing 625 F.2d 1196, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 2017, 451 U.S. 938, 68 L.Ed.2d 324. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

Principal factors that court examines when resolving the issue of whether there exists a prejudicial variance between allegation of a single conspiracy in the indictment and proof at trial are the existence of a common goal, the nature of the scheme, and an overlapping of participants in the various dealings. U. S. v. Tilton, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 610 F.2d 302. Conspiracy ↪ 43(12)

Parties to a conspiracy must at least know of the existence, though not necessarily the identity, of coconspirators and must share a common purpose with such known conspirators; such two requirements of an agreement are known as the "party dimension" and the "object dimension." U. S. v. Lindsey, C.A.7 (Ind.) 1979, 602 F.2d 785. Conspiracy ↪ 40.1

To establish conspiracy, proof that each conspirator knew exact limits of illegal plan or identity of all participants therein is not required, but it is required that it be established that there was single plan, essential nature and general scope of which was known to each person who was to be held responsible for its consequences, and existence of such joint venture can be established by evidence as to repetitive or parallel transactions but not by evidence as to isolated instances, explicable without reference to continuing or broader program. Hoffman-La Roche, Inc. v. Greenberg, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1971, 447 F.2d 872. Conspiracy ↻ 2; Conspiracy ↻ 19

Single conspiracy can be shown without proof that every defendant participated in every transaction, so long as defendants participate in common plan or series of transactions. U. S. v. Hutul, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1969, 416 F.2d 607, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 562, 396 U.S. 1007, 24 L.Ed.2d 499, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 573, 396 U.S. 1012, 24 L.Ed.2d 504, rehearing denied 90 S.Ct. 1519, 397 U.S. 1081, 25 L.Ed.2d 820, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 599, 396 U.S. 1024, 24 L.Ed.2d 517. Conspiracy ↻ 41

Various people knowingly joining together in furtherance of a common design or purpose constitute a single conspiracy; while the conspiracy may have a small group of core conspirators, other parties who knowingly participate with these core conspirators and others to achieve a common goal may be members of an overall conspiracy. U. S. v. Varelli, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1969, 407 F.2d 735. Conspiracy ↻ 24(2)

Defendant can join conspiracy at any time and may be found to have done so when, with knowledge of its existence, he has undertaken to further its design. Cave v. U. S., C.A.8 (Iowa) 1968, 390 F.2d 58, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 2059, 392 U.S. 906, 20 L.Ed.2d 1365. Conspiracy ↻ 40.3

Common design is essence of conspiracy. U. S. v. Cudia, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1965, 346 F.2d 227, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 428, 382 U.S. 955, 15 L.Ed.2d 359, rehearing denied 86 S.Ct. 612, 382 U.S. 1021, 15 L.Ed.2d 536. Conspiracy ↻ 24(1)

Indispensable ingredient of conspiracy is that accused persons must have had common aim. U. S. v. Goss, C.A.4 (N.C.) 1964, 329 F.2d 180. Conspiracy ↻ 25

Common design is essence of conspiracy; it may be shown by proof of concert of action in commission of unlawful act from which plan, common design or agreement can be inferred. U. S. v. Zuideveld, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1963, 316 F.2d 873, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 671, 376 U.S. 916, 11 L.Ed.2d 612. Conspiracy ↻ 25; Conspiracy ↻ 47(1)

Conspiracy requires no formal agreement of the parties concerned and it is sufficient if there is concerted action, with all parties working together understandingly and with a single design for accomplishment of a common purpose. American Cyanamid Co. v. Sharff, C.A.3 (N.J.) 1962, 309 F.2d 790. Conspiracy ↻ 24(1)

Under general law of conspiracy common course of conduct between a defendant and third person need not be based upon express agreement, and existence of common scheme or fact of defendant's participation in it need not be proved by direct evidence and both may be inferred from a development and collocation of circumstances. Hernandez v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1962, 300 F.2d 114. Conspiracy ↻ 24(1); Conspiracy ↻ 47(2)

Common design is the essence of "conspiracy". U. S. v. Lester, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1960, 282 F.2d 750, certiorari denied 81 S.Ct. 385, 364 U.S. 937, 5 L.Ed.2d 368. Conspiracy ↻ 24(1)

The agreement for conspiracy may be shown by a concert of action, all parties working together understandingly with a single design for accomplishment of a common purpose. American Tobacco Co. v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Ky.) 1944, 147 F.2d 93, certiorari granted 65 S.Ct. 864, 324 U.S. 836, 89 L.Ed. 1400, certiorari granted 65 S.Ct. 865, 324 U.S. 836, 89 L.Ed. 1400, rehearing denied 65 S.Ct. 1021, 324 U.S. 891, 89 L.Ed. 1438, affirmed 66 S.Ct. 1125, 328 U.S. 781, 90 L.Ed. 1575. See, also, U.S. v. Olmstead, D.C.Wash.1925, 5 F.2d 712; Fowler v. U.S., C.C.A.Wash.1921, 273 F. 15; U.S. v. McHugh, D.C.Wash.1917, 253 F. 224. Conspiracy ↻ 47(1)

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

The common design is the essence of the crime of conspiracy and this may be made to appear when parties steadily pursue same object, whether acting separately or together, by common or different means, but always leading to the same unlawful result. American Tobacco Co. v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Ky.) 1944, 147 F.2d 93, certiorari granted 65 S.Ct. 864, 324 U.S. 836, 89 L.Ed. 1400, certiorari granted 65 S.Ct. 865, 324 U.S. 836, 89 L.Ed. 1400, rehearing denied 65 S.Ct. 1021, 324 U.S. 891, 89 L.Ed. 1438, affirmed 66 S.Ct. 1125, 328 U.S. 781, 90 L.Ed. 1575. See, also, U.S. v. Randall, C.C.A.Ind.1947, 164 F.2d 284, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 729, 333 U.S. 856, 92 L.Ed. 1136, rehearing denied 68 S.Ct. 901, 333 U.S. 878, 92 L.Ed. 1153; Lefco v. U.S., C.C.A.Pa.1934, 74 F.2d 66. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

"Conspiracy" involves the element of agreement, of the existence of a single design for the accomplishment of common purpose and there must be a combination by concerted action to accomplish an unlawful result or to accomplish a lawful result in an unlawful manner. Schmeller v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1944, 143 F.2d 544. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

Formal agreement is not necessary to constitute a conspiracy, it being sufficient if there is an association in purpose to defraud. Blue v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1943, 138 F.2d 351, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 1046, 322 U.S. 736, 88 L.Ed. 1570, rehearing denied 64 S.Ct. 1259, 322 U.S. 771, 88 L.Ed. 1596, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 1046, 322 U.S. 737, 88 L.Ed. 1570. See, also, Blumenthal v. U.S., C.C.A.Cal.1946, 158 F.2d 883, rehearing denied 158 F.2d 762, certiorari denied 67 S.Ct. 1307, 331 U.S. 799, 91 L.Ed. 1824, affirmed 68 S.Ct. 248, 332 U.S. 539, 92 L.Ed. 154, rehearing denied 68 S.Ct. 358, 332 U.S. 856, 92 L.Ed. 154. Conspiracy ↪ 32

In conspiracy prosecution, proof of formal agreement of conspirators is not necessary, and agreement need not be manifest by any formal words, but it is sufficient to show that minds of conspirators reached a common understanding to jointly accomplish the illegal object. Cruz v. U S, C.C.A.10 (N.M.) 1939, 106 F.2d 828. See, also, District Sales Co. v. U.S., C.C.A.S.C.1942, 131 F.2d 835, affirmed 63 S.Ct. 1265, 319 U.S. 703, 87 L.Ed. 1674; U.S. v. Glasser et al., C.C.A.Ill.1941, 116 F.2d 690, modified on other grounds 62 S.Ct. 457, 315 U.S. 60, 86 L.Ed. 680. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

Conspiracy is proved when the jury is satisfied that two or more entered into an agreement to accomplish a common and unlawful design, followed by some act to carry it into execution. U.S. v. Barrett, C.C.S.C.1894, 65 F. 62, affirmed 18 S.Ct. 327, 169 U.S. 218, 42 L.Ed. 723. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

It means that, on the part of two or more persons, there was a common purpose, supported by a concerted action, to defraud; that each had the intent to do it; that it was common to each of them; and that each understood the others as having that purpose. U.S. v. Frisbie, C.C.E.D.La.1886, 28 F. 808, affirmed 15 S.Ct. 586, 157 U.S. 160, 39 L.Ed. 657. Conspiracy ↪ 23

Multiple conspiracies do not exist merely because the coconspirators perform varying functions or only knowingly align themselves with the "hub" of the conspiracy; if the plan or scheme has as its purpose a common goal to which the coconspirators align themselves, then a single conspiracy exists. U.S. v. Vigi, E.D.Mich.1973, 363 F.Supp. 314. Conspiracy ↪ 25

When two or more parties are found to have joined in a common scheme, all are responsible for acts and declarations of each co-schemer in furtherance of scheme while it is in progress regardless of whether conspiracy is charged in the indictment; when a common scheme has been found to exist, general rules of agency regarding joint liability are applied as a matter of evidence in determining guilt on substantive counts. U. S. v. Dukow, W.D.Pa.1971, 330 F.Supp. 360. Conspiracy ↪ 40.3

Character and effect of a conspiracy are not to be judged by dismembering it and viewing it in its separate parts but by looking at it as a whole, and it is the common design which is essence of the conspiracy or combination and this may be made to appear when parties steadily pursue the same object whether acting separately or together, by common or different means but always leading to the same unlawful result. U. S. v. American Honda Motor Co., N.D.Cal.1967, 271 F.Supp. 979. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1)

Common design is the essence of conspiracy and the crime may be committed whether or not the parties comprehend its entire scope, whether they act separately or together, by the same or different means, known or unknown to some of them, but ever leading to same unlawful result. U. S. v. Boyance, E.D.Pa.1963, 215 F.Supp. 390. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(3)

It is not necessary that all the defendants come into conspiracy at one time or that they should all know each other, the complete and exact scope of the conspiracy or all of its ramifications; it is not necessary that all contribute alike either to the making of the scheme or its fulfillment; it is enough if at some time during the continuance of the conspiracy there is a common design and purpose applicable to all. U. S. v. Gilboy, M.D.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 442. Conspiracy ⚡ 40

A "conspiracy" under federal law is a corrupt agreement or combination between two or more persons to commit an offense or offenses against the United States followed by an overt act, and a common design and purpose is the essence of the crime. U.S. v. Thomas, E.D.Wash.1943, 52 F.Supp. 571. See, also, Di Bonaventura v. U.S., C.C.A.W.Va.1926, 15 F.2d 494. Conspiracy ⚡ 28(1)

58. Object of conspiracy, nature and elements of conspiracy--Generally

Conspiracy may have multiple objectives, and if one of its objectives, even though a minor one, is the evasion of federal taxes, the offense is made out, though the primary objective may be concealment of another crime. Ingram v. U.S., U.S.Ga.1959, 79 S.Ct. 1314, 360 U.S. 672, 3 L.Ed.2d 1503, rehearing denied 80 S.Ct. 42, 361 U.S. 856, 4 L.Ed.2d 96. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(7)

Object of conspiracy constitutes essential element of the conspiracy offense. U.S. v. Gallerani, C.A.2 (Vt.) 1995, 68 F.3d 611. Conspiracy ⚡ 25

Provision of conspiracy statute criminalizing conspiracy "to commit any offense against the United States" criminalizes those conspiracies that contemplate commission of offense that is made illegal by federal law. U.S. v. Loney, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1992, 959 F.2d 1332. Conspiracy ⚡ 28(3)

Agreement to burn victim's trailer home and agreement to manufacture and possess an unregistered firearm constituted one basic conspiracy; conspirators had the one basic objective of burning the trailer and the use of an explosive was merely one facet of the scheme. U.S. v. Buchanan, C.A.10 (Okla.) 1986, 787 F.2d 477, grant of post-conviction relief reversed on other grounds 891 F.2d 1436, certiorari denied 110 S.Ct. 1829, 494 U.S. 1088, 108 L.Ed.2d 958. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(2)

Count in indictment alleging that object of conspiracy to defraud United States was to deprive United States of honest and faithful services of United States senator stated offense despite defendant's contention that United States senator owes honest and faithful service only to citizens of his or her state and not to United States since numerous statutes enacted to punish criminal behavior by members of Congress demonstrated assertion of significant interest on part of national government in honest performance of duties by those elected to Congress. U.S. v. Williams, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1983, 705 F.2d 603, certiorari denied 104 S.Ct. 524, 464 U.S. 1007, 78 L.Ed.2d 708, certiorari denied 104 S.Ct. 525, 464 U.S. 1007, 78 L.Ed.2d 708. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(1)

Law of conspiracy requires agreement as to "object" of conspiracy; this does not mean that conspirators must be shown to have agreed on details of their criminal enterprise, but it does mean that "essential nature of the plan" must be shown. U. S. v. Rosenblatt, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1977, 554 F.2d 36. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1)

A single conspiracy may have a multiplicity of objects; all of the multifarious objects to the conspiracy need not be alleged to satisfy the statutory requirement for the criminal conspiracy; however, the objects alleged must be an offense against the United States. U. S. v. Clay, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1974, 495 F.2d 700, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 207, 419 U.S. 937, 42 L.Ed.2d 164. Conspiracy ↪ 43(6)

Requirement under this section of conspiring to commit an "offense against the United States" is not fulfilled by an offense which fails to meet constitutional muster even though that offense is only one of several alleged. U. S. v. Baranski, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1973, 484 F.2d 556. Conspiracy ↪ 28(1)

This section providing criminal sanctions if two or more persons conspire either to commit any offense against the United States, or to defraud the United States or any agency thereof in any manner or for any purpose prohibits conspiracies having as their object the commission of unlawful acts subject to criminal prosecution or suit for penalty and conspiracies having as their purpose the impairing, obstructing or defeating the lawful function of any department of government. U.S. v. Levinson, C.A.6 (Mich.) 1968, 405 F.2d 971, certiorari denied 89 S.Ct. 1746, 395 U.S. 906, 23 L.Ed.2d 219, certiorari denied 89 S.Ct. 2097, 395 U.S. 958, 23 L.Ed.2d 744, rehearing denied 90 S.Ct. 37, 396 U.S. 869, 24 L.Ed.2d 124, rehearing denied 90 S.Ct. 36, 396 U.S. 869, 24 L.Ed.2d 124. Conspiracy ↪ 28(1); Conspiracy ↪ 33(1)

Conspiracy to commit several offenses against United States was "offense" within former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U S v. Quigley, D.C.Mass.1925, 9 F.2d 411.

A "conspiracy" is a combination of two or more persons to effect an illegal object as an end or means, and joint purpose or intent need not be to commit a crime, or even unlawful act, if it is intended to accomplish the act by surreptitious or unlawful means, especially when object is to effect contract with government officer. U.S. v. Pan-American Petroleum Co., D.C.Cal.1925, 6 F.2d 43, affirmed in part, reversed in part and remanded 9 F.2d 761, certiorari granted 46 S.Ct. 356, 270 U.S. 640, 70 L.Ed. 775, affirmed 47 S.Ct. 416, 273 U.S. 456, 71 L.Ed. 734.

Though some of objects of conspiracy may have been innocent, if one of them was to commit offense against United States, case falls within condemnation of former § 88 of this title [now this section]. Allen v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ind.) 1924, 4 F.2d 688, certiorari denied 45 S.Ct. 352, 267 U.S. 597, 69 L.Ed. 806, certiorari denied 45 S.Ct. 353, 267 U.S. 598, 69 L.Ed. 806, certiorari denied 45 S.Ct. 509, 268 U.S. 689, 69 L.Ed. 1158. See, also, Johnson v. U.S., 1925, 45 S.Ct. 509, 268 U.S. 689, 69 L.Ed. 1158; Mullen v. U.S., 1925, 45 S.Ct. 353, 267 U.S. 598, 69 L.Ed. 806.

Persons conspire to commit an offense against the United States when they conspire to commit an offense which can be carried into effect only by violating the laws of the United States. Wilson v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1911, 190 F. 427, 111 C.C.A. 231.

It was not enough under former § 88 of this title [now this section] that the conspiracy was directed to the attainment of some unlawful object, or to the attainment of some unlawful object by unlawful means, and it must have been directed to the attainment of one of the objects specified. Lonabaugh v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Wyo.) 1910, 179 F. 476, 103 C.C.A. 56.

Under former § 88 of this title [now this section] it was sufficient that it was the conspirator's purpose to commit a willful fraud on the law, or some statutory requirement pertinent to be observed, in view of the present controlling conditions, and it was not necessary that there should have been a conspiracy to do an act that was an offense or crime by some statute of the general government, or to deprive the United States of its property or some property right. U.S. v. Raley, D.C.Or.1909, 173 F. 159.

Where a conspiracy was formed to defraud the United States in any manner, in violation of former § 88 of this title [now this section] the offense was complete when the conspiracy was formed, and the conspirators were subject to prosecution whenever one or more of them has done any act in the furtherance of the unlawful scheme devised and agreed on; it being, therefore, sufficient that the conspiracy, when formed, was attended with corrupt motives and was for a corrupt purpose. U.S. v. Moore, C.C.Or.1909, 173 F. 122. Conspiracy ↻ 33(1)

A conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States, if followed by an overt act, is a crime. Marrin v. U S, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1909, 167 F. 951, 93 C.C.A. 351, certiorari denied 32 S.Ct. 523, 223 U.S. 719, 56 L.Ed. 629.

To constitute a criminal offense under former § 88 of this title [now this section] the object of the conspiracy must have been to commit some offense against the United States, that is, to have done some act made a crime by the laws thereof, or to defraud the United States, and something must have been done by one or more of the conspirators to effect the object of the agreement. In re Wolf, W.D.Ark.1886, 27 F. 606.

It is immaterial to commission of crime of conspiracy whether object of conspiracy is achieved, and offense is punishable as a conspiracy even though intended object is also achieved. U. S. v. De Sapio, S.D.N.Y.1969, 299 F.Supp. 436. Conspiracy ↻ 25; Conspiracy ↻ 37

To constitute a crime against the United States, the acts alleged as a violation of this section must have as their purposes either a purpose to defraud the government of some property right or pecuniary interest, or a purpose to obstruct or defeat some lawful function of the government, or a department or agency thereof. U. S. v. Kaiser, S.D.Ill.1960, 179 F.Supp. 545. Conspiracy ↻ 33(1)

To constitute a conspiracy in violation of this section, which makes it an offense for two or more persons to commit an offense against United States, either the object of the conspiracy or the means of accomplishing it must be illegal. U.S. v. Cawthon, M.D.Ga.1954, 125 F.Supp. 419. Conspiracy ↻ 25; Conspiracy ↻ 26

"Conspiracy", as a federal offense, ordinarily consists in uniting to violate a statutory provision in this title or the regulatory statutes of the United States, or in conspiring to defraud the United States of money or property, or in conspiring merely to interfere with the proper functioning of an agency of the United States. U.S. v. Bell, S.D.Cal.1943, 48 F.Supp. 986. Conspiracy ↻ 28(1); Conspiracy ↻ 33(1); Conspiracy ↻ 34

Either the means or the end of a conspiracy must be evil. U.S. v. Rhoads, D.C.D.C.1942, 48 F.Supp. 175. Conspiracy ↻ 25

Under former § 88 of this title [now this section], the conspiracy need not contemplate that conspirators or some of them shall themselves directly break the law, but it is sufficient if conspiracy contemplates that that shall be done which does violate the law since word "commit" in said former section means no more than bring about. U. S. v. Hipsch, W.D.Mo.1940, 34 F.Supp. 270.

59. ---- Violation of statute, object of conspiracy, nature and elements of conspiracy

Clean Water Act did not provide criminal penalties for discharges from vessels, and therefore defendants who pumped sewage into a river from a towboat which had been moored and converted for use as a tavern were not guilty of knowingly discharging raw sewage and conspiring to discharge raw sewage, even though the towboat, which was attached to two spud poles by 18 bolts, had been advertised as a permanently moored facility; bolts could easily be removed, and towboat floated on its own and thus was a "vessel" inasmuch as it was capable of use as a means of transportation on water, albeit under tow. U.S. v. Templeton, C.A.8 (Mo.) 2004, 378 F.3d 845. Conspiracy ↻ 28(3); Environmental Law ↻ 743

Object of conspiracy need not implicate separate statutory violation, so long as conduct impairs government function. U.S. v. Tham, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1991, 960 F.2d 1391. Conspiracy ↻ 25

Conspiracy conviction was valid, notwithstanding fact that one of two underlying substantive offenses did not reach defendant's conduct in using cloned satellite television descramblers for purpose of allowing users to avoid payment for television broadcasts; jury indicated by special verdict that it had relied on both valid and invalid underlying statutes in finding defendant guilty of conspiracy; since intent to violate statute imposing criminal sanctions for intentional interception of "electronic communications" alone could support finding of conspiracy, jury's improper reliance on additional statute dealing with counterfeit access devices did not have substantial influence upon guilty verdict. U.S. v. McNutt, C.A.10 (Okla.) 1990, 908 F.2d 561, certiorari denied 111 S.Ct. 955, 498 U.S. 1084, 112 L.Ed.2d 1043. Conspiracy ↻ 28(3)

Statute prohibiting parties from conspiring to "defraud" the United States criminalizes any willful impairment of legitimate government function, whether or not conspirators' acts or objectives are criminal under other statute, and whether or not Government suffers any pecuniary loss by fraud. U.S. v. Tuohey, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1989, 867 F.2d 534. Conspiracy ↻ 33(1)

Former § 88 of this title [now this section] did not in terms require that contemplated offense shall of itself have been a criminal offense, but act intended to have been effected must have been prohibited by Act of Congress in interest of public policy of the United States. Fulbright v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1937, 91 F.2d 210. Conspiracy ↻ 25

Though a statute declaring an act to be a misdemeanor prescribes no penalty an indictment will lie for conspiracy to commit the forbidden act. U.S. v. Niroku Komai, S.D.Cal.1923, 286 F. 450.

A conspiracy against enforcement of the Draft Law of 1917, 50 App. former § 201 et seq., entered into before its passage, continuing up to and after the time it became effective, then became illegal, even if it was not before. Bryant v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Tex.) 1919, 257 F. 378, 168 C.C.A. 418, motion denied 40 S.Ct. 117. Conspiracy ↻ 28

There can be no punishable conspiracy to violate a penal statute which is unconstitutional. U S v. U S Brewers' Ass'n, W.D.Pa.1916, 239 F. 163.

The offense to be committed must be a statutory one. Heike v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1911, 192 F. 83, 112 C.C.A. 615, certiorari granted 32 S.Ct. 527, 223 U.S. 730, 56 L.Ed. 633, affirmed 33 S.Ct. 226, 227 U.S. 131, 57 L.Ed. 450. See, also, U S v. Haas, C.C.N.Y.1908, 163 F. 908.

To constitute conspiracy against the United States, the object of the unlawful agreement must be the commission of some offense against the United States in the sense only that it must be some act made an offense by the laws of the United States. U.S. v. Lyman, D.C.Or.1911, 190 F. 414. Conspiracy ↻ 25

The words "any offense against the United States" in former § 88 of this title [now this section] have been construed to include any offense made a crime by the laws of the United States. Radin v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1911, 189 F. 568, 111 C.C.A. 6. See, also, U.S. v. Thomas, D.C.Mo.1906, 145 F. 74.

The words "offenses against the United States" in former § 88 of this title [now this section] had the same meaning as the words "offenses against the laws of the United States" in the original Act of March 2, 1867, the change being merely one of phraseology made by the revision commission, and said former section denounced conspiracies to commit offenses created by any of the statutes of the United States. Thomas v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1907, 156 F. 897, 84 C.C.A. 477. Conspiracy ↻ 28

The commission of any act declared by law to be a crime may have been the object of a conspiracy under former § 88 of this title [now this section] whether it would have injured the government itself or would have been an infringement of private rights. *U.S. v. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Defendant must violate some duty to government in order to be culpable under statute prohibiting conspiracy to defraud United States; to convict, government needs to prove that conspirators' actions violated duty reasonably owed to the government. U.S. v. Barker Steel Co., Inc., D.Mass.1991, 774 F.Supp. 65, reversed 985 F.2d 1123, rehearing denied 985 F.2d 1136. Conspiracy ↪ 33(1)

Although plan for payoff for award of contract by city had its origin prior to enactment of § 1952 of this title prohibiting interstate commerce with intent to distribute proceeds of bribery, upon adoption of that section, plan contemplating use of interstate facilities and interstate travel became unlawful, membership of defendants in plan was converted into membership in unlawful conspiracy and that conspiracy continued until accomplishment of last of its objects. U. S. v. Kubacki, E.D.Pa.1965, 237 F.Supp. 638. Bribery ↪ 1(1); Conspiracy ↪ 33(6)

To violate this section, conspirators must conspire to violate federal statute. U. S. v. Smith, E.D.Tenn.1961, 200 F.Supp. 227.

To conspire to bring about a violation of § 2554 of Title 26 [I.R.C.1939] was to conspire to commit an offense against the United States within provision of former § 88 of this title [now this section] making it a crime for two or more persons to conspire to commit any "offense against the United States". U. S. v. Hipsch, W.D.Mo.1940, 34 F.Supp. 270. Conspiracy ↪ 28(3)

60. ---- Knowledge, object of conspiracy, nature and elements of conspiracy

The state of knowledge of the parties to an agreement is not always irrelevant in a proceeding on a charge of violation of conspiracy law; the knowledge of the parties is relevant to the same issues and to the same extent as it may be for conviction of the substantive offense. U. S. v. Feola, U.S.N.Y.1975, 95 S.Ct. 1255, 420 U.S. 671, 43 L.Ed.2d 541. Conspiracy ↪ 45

A seller's intent to further, promote, and cooperate in buyer's illegal use of narcotics is not identical with mere knowledge that buyer purposes unlawful action, but cannot exist without such knowledge. Direct Sales Co. v. U.S., U.S.S.C.1943, 63 S.Ct. 1265, 319 U.S. 703, 87 L.Ed. 1674. Conspiracy ↪ 28(3)

Conspirator need not know the identity of all other members of conspiracy or be privy to all means used to effectuate each aspect of conspiracy, and it is generally sufficient for purposes of single-conspiracy finding that conspirator knowingly participated with core conspirator in achieving common objective with knowledge of larger venture. U.S. v. Daily, C.A.10 (Kan.) 1990, 921 F.2d 994, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 405, 502 U.S. 952, 116 L.Ed.2d 354. Conspiracy ↪ 24(3)

In conspiracy case, Government must prove beyond reasonable doubt that conspiracy existed, that defendant knew about it, and that defendant voluntarily joined it with that knowledge. U.S. v. Valdez, C.A.5 (La.) 1988, 861 F.2d 427, rehearing denied 864 F.2d 791, certiorari denied 109 S.Ct. 1539, 489 U.S. 1083, 103 L.Ed.2d 844. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

While prosecution must show knowledge of an intent to join conspiracy beyond a reasonable doubt, it need not show that defendant knew all details of the conspiracy; moreover, defendant's knowledge and intent can be shown by circumstances. U.S. v. Wheeler, C.A.5 (Miss.) 1986, 802 F.2d 778, certiorari denied 107 S.Ct. 1354, 480 U.S. 908, 94 L.Ed.2d 524. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1); Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

A defendant may be found guilty of conspiracy if evidence demonstrates that he knew the essential objectives of conspiracy, and that rule stands even though the person may not know all of its details or played only a minor role in the overall scheme. U.S. v. Puerto, C.A.11 (Fla.) 1984, 730 F.2d 627, certiorari denied 105 S.Ct. 162, 469 U.S. 847, 83 L.Ed.2d 98. Conspiracy ↪ 40.1

An interdependence between participants and knowledge of scope of scheme or plan on part of participants is necessary in order for a single conspiratorial plan to exist. U. S. v. McMurray, C.A.10 (Utah) 1980, 656 F.2d 540, on rehearing 680 F.2d 695. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(2)

It is a cardinal rule of conspiracy law that one does not become a coconspirator simply by virtue of knowledge of the conspiracy and association with conspirators. U. S. v. Grassi, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 616 F.2d 1295, rehearing denied 624 F.2d 1098, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 363, 449 U.S. 956, 66 L.Ed.2d 220. Conspiracy ⚡ 40.1

As to each conspirator, prosecution must show existence of conspiracy and that accused knowingly participated in it. U. S. v. Lichenstein, C.A.5 (Ga.) 1980, 610 F.2d 1272, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 2991, 447 U.S. 907, 64 L.Ed.2d 856. Conspiracy ⚡ 40.1

Once the existence of a conspiracy is established, there must be substantial evidence that each alleged conspirator knew of, intended to join, and participated in the conspiracy. U. S. v. Avila-Dominguez, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1980, 610 F.2d 1266, rehearing denied 613 F.2d 314, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 242, 449 U.S. 887, 66 L.Ed.2d 113. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

A defendant does not join a conspiracy merely by participating in a substantive offense or by associating with persons who are members of a conspiracy; conspirator must knowingly agree to join others in concerted effort to bring about common end. U. S. v. Alvarez, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 610 F.2d 1250, on rehearing 625 F.2d 1196, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 2017, 451 U.S. 938, 68 L.Ed.2d 324. Conspiracy ⚡ 40.1

To sustain conspiracy conviction, it is not necessary for defendant to know each of other coconspirators or be privy to details of each enterprise comprising conspiracy so long as he knows of conspiracy and associates himself with it. U. S. v. Ochoa, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1980, 609 F.2d 198. Conspiracy ⚡ 40.1

In order to prove a single conspiracy, it is sufficient to show that each defendant knew or had reason to know of the scope of the conspiracy and that each defendant had reason to believe that his own benefits were dependent upon the success of the entire venture. U. S. v. Kostoff, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1978, 585 F.2d 378. Conspiracy ⚡ 40.1

Where knowledge of facts giving rise to federal jurisdiction is not necessary for the conviction of a substantive offense embodying a mens rea requirement, such knowledge is equally irrelevant to questions of responsibility for conspiring to commit such offense. U. S. v. Herrera, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1978, 584 F.2d 1137. Conspiracy ⚡ 28(1)

In conspiracy prosecution, Government was not compelled to prove that defendant was intimately familiar with each and every detail of conspiracy, but, rather, Government's showing that defendant had knowledge of agreement and associated with plan to promote its success was sufficient. U. S. v. Evans, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1978, 572 F.2d 455, rehearing denied 576 F.2d 931, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 200, 439 U.S. 870, 58 L.Ed.2d 182. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(3.1)

Conspiracy charge does not require proof that conspirators were aware of criminality of their objectives; however, it does require at least knowledge required in substantive offense itself. U. S. v. Muncy, C.A.5 (Ga.) 1976, 526 F.2d 1261. Conspiracy ⚡ 28(1)

Where a substantive offense requires specific knowledge, that same knowledge must be established before a defendant can be found to be a member of a conspiracy to commit the offense; this applies equally to an aider and abettor as to a conspirator, and the requisite knowledge cannot be imputed from one aider and abettor or conspirator to another. U. S. v. Tavoularis, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1975, 515 F.2d 1070. Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2

Without knowledge of some improper purpose, agreement to achieve some unlawful goal, the heart of any conspiracy indictment, cannot be inferred from acts, even acts which further purpose of the conspiracy. U. S. v.

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Klein, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1975, 515 F.2d 751. Conspiracy ↪ 44.2

A conspiracy to be criminal must encompass a crime, and a defendant may be found guilty of conspiracy or aiding and abetting only if he knew of the unlawful purpose of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Aloi, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1975, 511 F.2d 585, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 447, 423 U.S. 1015, 46 L.Ed.2d 386. Conspiracy ↪ 25; Conspiracy ↪ 40.1

Without knowledge, intent to participate in an established conspiracy cannot exist. Dennis v. U.S., C.A.10 (Colo.) 1962, 302 F.2d 5. Conspiracy ↪ 24.5

To establish intent, in conspiracy prosecution evidence of knowledge must be clear and not equivocal. Dennis v. U.S., C.A.10 (Colo.) 1962, 302 F.2d 5. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

Charge of conspiracy to violate a criminal law has implicit in it elements of knowledge and intent. Schnautz v. U.S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1959, 263 F.2d 525, certiorari denied 79 S.Ct. 1294, 360 U.S. 910, 3 L.Ed.2d 1260. Conspiracy ↪ 43(4)

The offenses proscribed by this section precluding payment of commissions or gratuities by or on behalf of subcontractor to any officer, employee or agent of prime government contractor operating under cost-reimbursable contract or receipt by such persons of commissions or gratuities and of conspiracy to commit such offenses do not have as a substantive element knowledge on part of defendants that contractor was operating under a cost-reimbursable contract. Hanis v. U. S., C.A.8 (Mo.) 1957, 246 F.2d 781. Bribery ↪ 1(1)

Where the substantive offense involves knowledge, knowledge is an element of conspiracy to commit that offense. U.S. v. Ausmeier, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1945, 152 F.2d 349. Conspiracy ↪ 24.5

The existence of a common undertaking, in which a defendant joined, merely to file statements in connection with application for defendant's registration as an alien, which statements were false but not known to defendant to be false, could not support conviction of conspiracy to file an application for registration containing statements known by him to be false. U.S. v. Ausmeier, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1945, 152 F.2d 349. Conspiracy ↪ 43(12)

Where corrupt motive of defendants charged with conspiracy to commit criminal offense is established, defendants' knowledge of existence of law defining offense is imputed. Cruz v. U S, C.C.A.10 (N.M.) 1939, 106 F.2d 828. Conspiracy ↪ 24.5

Knowledge of membership in conspiracy to violate federal law, part played by each member, and division of spoils is immaterial to guilt, but accused must know purpose of conspiracy. Marino v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1937, 91 F.2d 691, certiorari denied 58 S.Ct. 410, 302 U.S. 764, 82 L.Ed. 593. Conspiracy ↪ 24(3)

Defendant joins conspiracy if he or she agrees with coconspirator to one or more of the common criminal objectives set forth in indictments; it is immaterial whether defendant knows, has met with, or has agreed with every conspirator. U.S. v. Sims, N.D.Ill.1992, 808 F.Supp. 620. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1); Conspiracy ↪ 24(3)

Government need not prove that each conspirator knew identities of all his co-conspirators, or that he was aware of all details of alleged conspiracies; rather, each co-conspirator need only be aware of scheme's general scope. U.S. v. Law Firm of Zimmerman & Schwartz, P.C., D.Colo.1990, 738 F.Supp. 407, reversed 943 F.2d 1246. Conspiracy ↪ 24.5

61. ---- Intent to commit substantive offense, object of conspiracy, nature and elements of conspiracy

In order to sustain a judgment of conviction on a charge of conspiracy to violate a federal statute, government must prove at least the degree of criminal intent necessary for the substantive offense. U. S. v. Feola, U.S.N.Y.1975, 95

Conspiracy to commit particular substantive offense cannot exist without at least the degree of criminal intent necessary for substantive offense itself. Ingram v. U.S., U.S.Ga.1959, 79 S.Ct. 1314, 360 U.S. 672, 3 L.Ed.2d 1503, rehearing denied 80 S.Ct. 42, 361 U.S. 856, 4 L.Ed.2d 96. Conspiracy ↻ 28(1)

In order to establish conspiracy to defraud federally insured financial institution, defendants must have both intent to agree to participation in conspiracy and intent to commit underlying substantive offense. U.S. v. Brandon, C.A.1 (R.I.) 1994, 17 F.3d 409, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 80, 513 U.S. 820, 130 L.Ed.2d 34, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 81, 513 U.S. 820, 130 L.Ed.2d 34. Conspiracy ↻ 32

To prove conspiracy, government must show that defendants agreed to accomplish an illegal objective, defendants performed at least one overt act in furtherance of illegal objective, and the conspirators intended to commit the substantive offense. U.S. v. Scarbrough, C.A.7 (Ind.) 1993, 990 F.2d 296, certiorari denied 114 S.Ct. 121, 510 U.S. 839, 126 L.Ed.2d 85. Conspiracy ↻ 24(1)

To sustain a conviction for conspiracy, Government must prove the requisite intent to commit the substantive offense. U.S. v. Buford, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1989, 889 F.2d 1406. Conspiracy ↻ 44.2

Specific intent is an element of charge of conspiracy to export and attempt to export firearms on United States Munitions List without export license and to sustain conspiracy conviction; evidence must show that defendant agreed to export firearms without requisite licenses despite knowledge that exportation was unlawful. U.S. v. Adames, C.A.11 (Fla.) 1989, 878 F.2d 1374. Conspiracy ↻ 28(3)

Where defendants knew that in every count involving Farmers Home Administration borrowers the applicants misrepresented that they possessed the requisite farming or ranching experience to obtain such loan and in all counts loans were not utilized directly for purpose for which they were intended, finding of criminal intent necessary to support conviction for conspiring to convert and converting United States moneys in connection with FmHA loans was not based merely on defendants' possession of FmHA supervised funds. U.S. v. Barnes, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1985, 761 F.2d 1026. Larceny ↻ 3(1)

Despite defendant's claim that he was a dupe in alleged scheme to extort money from casino using highly sophisticated bomb, conclusion that defendant had requisite intent was supported by sufficient evidence, including physical appearance of bomb device, delivery involving peculiar circumstances, disguise of delivery van's license plate during delivery, defendant's registering in motel under fictitious name and address and defendant's wiping away all fingerprints in his motel room. U.S. v. Birges, C.A.9 (Nev.) 1984, 723 F.2d 666, certiorari denied 104 S.Ct. 1926, 466 U.S. 943, 80 L.Ed.2d 472, certiorari denied 105 S.Ct. 200, 469 U.S. 863, 83 L.Ed.2d 131. Extortion And Threats ↻ 32

In order to be convicted of conspiracy, one must have knowledge of the conspiracy and must intend to join or associate with the objective of conspiracy; one must be aware of the essential nature and scope of the enterprise and must intend to participate. U. S. v. Jordan, C.A.5 (Ala.) 1980, 627 F.2d 683. Conspiracy ↻ 40.1

For crime of conspiracy to be proved, there must be evidence sufficient to warrant belief beyond reasonable doubt that defendant intentionally entered into agreement to do illegal act with intention of consummating that act. U. S. v. Alvarez, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 610 F.2d 1250, on rehearing 625 F.2d 1196, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 2017, 451 U.S. 938, 68 L.Ed.2d 324. Conspiracy ↻ 47(1)

In order to sustain judgment of conviction on charge of conspiracy to violate federal statute, government must prove at least the degree of criminal intent necessary for the substantive offense itself. U. S. v. Wieschenberg, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1979, 604 F.2d 326. Conspiracy ↻ 28(1)

Mere knowledge, approval of or acquiescence in the object or purpose of conspiracy, without intention and agreement to cooperate in the crime, is not sufficient to make one a conspirator, but once the existence of a conspiracy is established, slight evidence may be sufficient to connect defendant with it, and requisite evidence connecting defendant to the conspiracy may all be circumstantial in nature. U. S. v. Richardson, C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1979, 596 F.2d 157. Conspiracy ↪ 40.1; Conspiracy ↪ 47(1); Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Conspiracy to commit a particular substantive offense cannot exist without at least that degree of criminal intent necessary for substantive offense itself. U. S. v. Malatesta, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1979, 590 F.2d 1379, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 1508, 440 U.S. 962, 59 L.Ed.2d 777, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 91, 444 U.S. 846, 62 L.Ed.2d 59. Conspiracy ↪ 28(1)

The words "any act to effect the object of the conspiracy" in this section require only that the act be intended to have the described effect, not that it actually succeed. U. S. v. Rose, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1978, 590 F.2d 232, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 2859, 442 U.S. 929, 61 L.Ed.2d 297. Conspiracy ↪ 27

A single act may be foundation for drawing the actor within the ambit of a conspiracy; however, since conviction of conspiracy requires an intent to participate in the unlawful enterprise the single act must be such that one may reasonably infer from it such an intent. U. S. v. Anderson, C.A.7 (Wis.) 1976, 542 F.2d 428. Conspiracy ↪ 40.1

Criminal intent required to satisfy a conviction of conspiracy to violate a statute is not greater than that necessary to commit substantive crime. U. S. v. Mauro, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1974, 501 F.2d 45, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 235, 419 U.S. 969, 42 L.Ed.2d 186. Conspiracy ↪ 28(1)

Where crime charged is conspiracy, conviction cannot be sustained unless Government establishes beyond reasonable doubt that defendant had specific intent to violate substantive statute. U. S. v. Cangiano, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1974, 491 F.2d 906, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 188, 419 U.S. 904, 42 L.Ed.2d 149, affirmed 95 S.Ct. 204, 419 U.S. 933, 42 L.Ed.2d 162. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

Conceptually, federal crime of conspiracy requires proof of intent, actual or implied, to violate federal law. U. S. v. Garafola, C.A.6 (Mich.) 1972, 471 F.2d 291. Conspiracy ↪ 24.5

Although a conspiracy may have multiple objectives, if one of its objectives even a minor one, be the evasion of federal taxes, offense of conspiring to commit any offense against United States or to defraud the United States is made out, irrespective of fact that primary objective was concealment of another crime. U.S. v. DeNiro, C.A.6 (Ohio) 1968, 392 F.2d 753, certiorari denied 89 S.Ct. 89, 393 U.S. 826, 21 L.Ed.2d 97. Conspiracy ↪ 33(7)

Under this section, all that is required is an intent to injure or defraud. U. S. v. Luxenberg, C.A.6 (Ohio) 1967, 374 F.2d 241.

While intent to commit substantive offense is an essential ingredient of crime of conspiracy, offenses are separate and distinct and proof of one is not necessarily proof of the other. Carter v. U. S., C.A.10 (Kan.) 1964, 333 F.2d 354. Conspiracy ↪ 28(2)

At least that degree of criminal intent necessary under substantive count must be proved to sustain conviction for conspiracy to commit substantive offense. Danielson v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1963, 321 F.2d 441. Conspiracy ↪ 24.5

While intent to defraud United States would be substantial element of conspiracy to utter forged instrument, mere showing of intent to defraud without evidence that purpose was to obtain or enable others to obtain sum from United States would not suffice to show conspiracy to forge savings bond, and accordingly instruction not requiring finding of such purpose was prejudicial and "plain error" which would require reversal of conviction

even in absence of compliance with rule 30, Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, 18 U.S.C.A., respecting instructions. Danielson v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1963, 321 F.2d 441. Conspiracy ↻ 33(5); Criminal Law ↻ 1038.1(4)

Parties to conspiracy to defraud, who did not intend to use mails in connection with the scheme, were not subject to conviction under former § 88 of this title [now this section]. Schwartzberg v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1917, 241 F. 348.

A conspiracy includes as an element, a corrupt motive. U.S. v. Moore, C.C.Or.1909, 173 F. 122.

In order to convict bank of conspiracy to defraud the United States, there had to be evidence from which jury could reasonably determine that at least one agent of the bank had specific intent to join the conspiracy to defraud the Government. U.S. v. LBS Bank-New York, Inc., E.D.Pa.1990, 757 F.Supp. 496. Conspiracy ↻ 33(2.1)

If with knowledge of a conspiracy and its essential plan a defendant at any point acted with intent to further the conspiracy he is guilty of aiding and abetting it and he need not know all the prior details or all its members, although knowledge of essential nature of plan can be relevant where scope of a coconspirator's assent serves as a basis for holding him responsible for substantive crimes committed by his confederates. U.S. v. Miller, N.D.Ill.1982, 552 F.Supp. 827, affirmed 729 F.2d 1464. Conspiracy ↻ 40.1

Intent required for the crime of conspiracy is the same degree of intent as required for the substantive offense alleged to be the object of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Koenig, S.D.N.Y.1974, 388 F.Supp. 670. Conspiracy ↻ 24.5

A specific intent to commit substantive offense is an inseparable element of crime of conspiring to defraud United States. U. S. v. Woll, E.D.Pa.1957, 157 F.Supp. 704. Conspiracy ↻ 33(1)

Evidence was sufficient to find defendant guilty of mail fraud and conspiracy to commit mail fraud; government was not required, in order to establish intent to defraud, to prove that victim lost money or that defendant wanted victim to lose money. *U.S. v. 62. Defrauding United States, nature and elements of conspiracy--Generally

That Congress relegated to the criminal law responsibility for dealing with false filings of non-Communist affidavits could not alter character or legal consequences of alleged conspiracy fraudulently to obtain services of National Labor Relations Board on behalf of union by filing false non-communist affidavits, and hence, such alleged conspiracy was fraudulent for purposes of indictment under this section. Dennis v. U. S., U.S.Colo.1966, 86 S.Ct. 1840, 384 U.S. 855, 16 L.Ed.2d 973. Conspiracy ↻ 33(2.1)

Charge of conspiracy to commit offense or to defraud United States requires proof of agreement among two or more persons to commit offense against United States, overt act in furtherance of conspiracy, and knowing participation in conspiracy by defendant. U.S. v. Hinkle, C.A.10 (Okla.) 1994, 37 F.3d 576. Conspiracy ↻ 28(1); Conspiracy ↻ 33(1)

"Defrauding" the government, within meaning of statute prohibiting conspiracies to defraud the United States or any agency thereof in any manner or for any purpose, means obstructing operation of any government agency by any deceit, craft or trickery, or at least by means that are dishonest. U.S. v. Caldwell, C.A.9 (Or.) 1993, 989 F.2d 1056. Conspiracy ↻ 33(1)

To convict defendant of conspiracy to defraud Government, Government must prove agreement to accomplish illegal objective against United States, one or more overt acts in furtherance of illegal purpose, and intent to commit substantive offense; Government, however, need not prove that defendant knew of details of conspiracy, but only that he knew of conspiracy's essential objective. *U.S. v. Agreement between various university officials that each would use his status as project director of job training programs at different state universities and agencies to insure that other entered into contracts financed by federal government and that their consulting fees would be set at amount which allowed them to skim profits fell within proscription of federal statute prohibiting conspiracies to "defraud the United States, or any agency thereof in any manner or for any purpose" [18 U.S.C.A. § 371]. U.S. v. Lane, C.A.9 (Mont.) 1985, 765 F.2d 1376. Conspiracy ↻ 33(2.1)

Term "defraud" as used in this section proscribing conspiracy to defraud the United States not only reaches financial or property loss through employment of a deceptive scheme, but also is designed and intended to protect integrity of the United States and its agencies, programs and policies. U. S. v. Burgin, C.A.5 (Miss.) 1980, 621 F.2d 1352, rehearing denied 627 F.2d 239, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 574, 449 U.S. 1015, 66 L.Ed.2d 474. Conspiracy ↻ 33(1)

To establish conspiracy to defraud the United States, prosecution must prove existence of agreement, overt act by one conspirator in furtherance of objectives of conspiracy, and intent on part of conspirators to agree, as well as to defraud the United States. U. S. v. Shoup, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1979, 608 F.2d 950. Conspiracy ↻ 33(1)

Agreement that might defraud the federal government in its functions at some time in the future, followed by an overt act, makes out conspiracy to defraud the United States in connection with the performance of its lawful government functions. U. S. v. Del Toro, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1975, 513 F.2d 656, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 41, 423 U.S. 826, 46 L.Ed.2d 42. Conspiracy ↻ 33(1)

Except under unusual circumstances, fraud is essential ingredient of offense of violation of this section by conspiring to defraud United States. U. S. v. Vazquez, C.A.3 (N.J.) 1963, 319 F.2d 381. Conspiracy ↻ 33(1)

Agreement to defraud government and overt acts in willing furtherance of it were necessary before agreement became a crime under former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U.S. v. Goldstein, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1943, 135 F.2d 359. Conspiracy ↻ 33(1)

"Conspiracy to defraud government" consists of unlawful scheme on which minds of conspirators have met, together with any act to effect object. Eddington v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Okla.) 1928, 24 F.2d 50. within former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U.S. v. Rhoads, D.C.D.C.1942, 48 F.Supp. 175. Conspiracy 33(2.1)

If the object of a conspiracy is to deprive the United States of its rights and privileges or proper functioning of any agency through which it acts, offense of conspiring to defraud the United States is complete. U.S. v. Furer, S.D.Cal.1942, 47 F.Supp. 402. Conspiracy 33(1)

65. ---- Importance of information, defrauding United States, nature and elements of conspiracy

In context of conspiracy to defraud United States or agency thereof, it is not necessary to prove that deceived agency was actually influenced, and defendant accused of seeking to deceive by means of false statement may not claim that statement was not influential or information not important. U.S. v. Smith, C.A.9 (Wash.) 1989, 891 F.2d 703, amended on other grounds 906 F.2d 385, certiorari denied 111 S.Ct. 47, 498 U.S. 811, 112 L.Ed.2d 23, denial of post-conviction relief affirmed 964 F.2d 885. Conspiracy 33(2.1)

66. ---- Pecuniary loss to government, defrauding United States, nature and elements of conspiracy

Defendant who conspired with others to gain control of federally insured bank in manner which circumvented the reporting requirements of the Change in Bank Control Act was guilty of conspiring to "defraud" the United States in violation of federal statute, notwithstanding that conspirators did not deprive Government of any money or property or engage in conduct recognized as criminal by any other statute. U.S. v. Tuohey, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1989, 867 F.2d 534. Conspiracy 33(2.1)

Conspiracy to commit offense or to defraud United States need not cause any monetary loss to the government, so long as it interferes with or obstructs the government's lawful functions. U.S. v. Puerto, C.A.11 (Fla.) 1984, 730 F.2d 627, certiorari denied 105 S.Ct. 162, 469 U.S. 847, 83 L.Ed.2d 98. Conspiracy 28(1); Conspiracy 33(1)

Conspiracy in violation of this section proscribing conspiracy to commit offense or to defraud United States need not cause any monetary loss to government, so long as defendants interfere with or obstruct its lawful functions. (Per J. Skelly Wright, Circuit Judge, with two Judges concurring in the result.) In re Sealed Case, C.A.D.C.1982, 676 F.2d 793, 219 U.S.App.D.C. 195. Conspiracy 33(1)

In order to sustain finding of conspiracy to defraud the United States in the performance of its lawful government functions, it is not necessary that the agreement be to defraud the government out of money; it need only impede its lawful functions. U. S. v. Del Toro, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1975, 513 F.2d 656, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 41, 423 U.S. 826, 46 L.Ed.2d 42. Conspiracy 33(1)

To support conviction of conspiring to defraud the United States, it is not necessary to show that the government was subjected to property or pecuniary loss by the fraud, but only that its legitimate official action and purpose had been defeated. U. S. v. Jacobs, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1973, 475 F.2d 270, certiorari denied 94 S.Ct. 116, 414 U.S. 821, 38 L.Ed.2d 53, certiorari denied 94 S.Ct. 131, 414 U.S. 821, 38 L.Ed.2d 53. Conspiracy 33(1)

Neither pecuniary loss to the United States nor receipt of consideration is essential to a finding of violation of this section relating to conspiracy to defraud United States. U. S. v. Peltz, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1970, 433 F.2d 48, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 974, 401 U.S. 955, 28 L.Ed.2d 238. Conspiracy 33(1)

In order to justify conviction for conspiracy to defraud United States, it is enough to show scheme whereby, through fraud, federal funds in normal course will be diverted from their true and lawful object. Harney v. U. S., C.A.1 (Mass.) 1962, 306 F.2d 523, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 254, 371 U.S. 911, 9 L.Ed.2d 171. Conspiracy

A scheme designed to interfere with or obstruct a department or an agency of the government in respect of one or more of its lawful functions, by deceit, craft, chicanery, or trickery, attended by an overt act of one or more of the conspirators, in furtherance of the purpose, was within former § 88 of this title [now this section] though pecuniary or property loss to the government was not contemplated and did not result. Heald v. U. S., C.A.10 (Colo.) 1949, 175 F.2d 878, certiorari denied 70 S.Ct. 101, 338 U.S. 859, 94 L.Ed. 526, certiorari denied 70 S.Ct. 102, 338 U.S. 859, 94 L.Ed. 526. See, also, Hammerschmidt v. U.S., C.C.A.Ohio 1923, 287 F. 817, reversed on other grounds 44 S.Ct. 511, 265 U.S. 182, 68 L.Ed. 968; U.S. v. Terranova, D.C.Cal.1934, 7 F.Supp. 989. Conspiracy ↪ 33(1)

Under former § 88 of this title [now this section] to conspire to "defraud the United States" meant among other things to interfere with or obstruct one of its lawful governmental functions by dishonest means, and it was not necessary that the government shall have been subjected to property or pecuniary loss by the fraud. Braatlien v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1945, 147 F.2d 888. See, also, U.S. v. Harding, 1936, 81 F.2d 563, 65 App.D.C. 161; Langer v. U.S., C.C.A.N.D.1935, 76 F.2d 817; U.S. v. Soeder, D.C.Mo.1935, 10 F.Supp. 944. Conspiracy ↪ 33(1)

That total value of cement allegedly lost to the government was $27 was no test of defendants' guilt to conspire to defraud the government by delivering underweight bags of cement to government project and obtaining payment of false and fraudulent claims. Mininsohn v. U.S., C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1939, 101 F.2d 477. Conspiracy ↪ 38

Money granted or loaned to state by Reconstruction Finance Corporation or by Federal Emergency Relief Administrator did not cease to constitute funds of federal agencies, and persons charged with conspiracy to obstruct use thereof were not relieved from application of former § 88 of this title [now this section]. Langer v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1935, 76 F.2d 817. Conspiracy ↪ 33(3)

Subjection of United States to financial loss is not essential to "conspiracy to defraud government." Wallenstein v. U.S., C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1928, 25 F.2d 708, certiorari denied 49 S.Ct. 13, 278 U.S. 608, 73 L.Ed. 534. Conspiracy ↪ 33(1)

The fact that war materials were not worth more than defendant bid therefor was not inconsistent with existence of fraud in bringing about a sale, and a conviction for conspiracy to defraud the government was not thereby rendered improper. Browne v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Mich.) 1923, 290 F. 870. Conspiracy ↪ 33(6)

Financial loss by the government is not a necessary element of the offense of conspiracy to defraud the United States. Wolf v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1922, 283 F. 885, certiorari denied 43 S.Ct. 164, 260 U.S. 743, 67 L.Ed. 492. See, also, U.S. v. Amster, D.C.N.Y.1921, 273 F. 532; Gouled v. U.S., C.C.A.N.Y.1921, 273 F. 506; Stager v. U.S., Ohio 1915, 223 F. 510, 147 C.C.A. 396. Conspiracy ↪ 33(1)

The federal government, while in control and management of the railroads in pursuance of law, was a bailee for hire thereof, and as such had a special ownership of the railroad property sufficient to sustain a conviction for conspiracy to defraud the government by taking such property, under former § 88 of this title [now this section]. Fowler v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1921, 273 F. 15. Conspiracy ↪ 33(3)

A conspiracy to secure for a person not duly elected to Congress the compensation payable to a congressman, was a conspiracy to inflict a property loss on the government, if such loss was necessary to the offense prohibited by former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U. S. v. Aczel, D.C.Ind.1915, 219 F. 917. Conspiracy ↪ 33(2.1)

It is not necessary that there should have been a purpose to defraud the United States of a thing of pecuniary value, or that the conspiracy should have been successful, or that the conspirators received pecuniary advantage therefrom. U.S. v. Bradford, C.C.E.D.La.1905, 148 F. 413, affirmed 152 F. 616, 81 C.C.A. 606, certiorari denied

It was not necessary, to sustain an indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] which made it an offense to conspire "to defraud the United States in any manner or for any purpose," that the consummation of the conspiracy would have caused pecuniary loss to the government, where the defendants were its officers or employé s. McGregor v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (Md.) 1904, 134 F. 187, 69 C.C.A. 477. Conspiracy ↪ 33(1)

To defraud the United States, within the meaning of former § 88 of this title [now this section], did not necessarily mean to do the United States a pecuniary injury, and any willful or corrupt misconduct on the part of an official of the Post Office Department, that operates to impair the administration of the affairs of that department, works a wrong to the United States and does them some substantial injury, within the meaning of said former section, and such injury may have been pecuniary in its nature, or one of general damage, not of a specific character, susceptible of certain ascertainment and pecuniary compensation. Tyner v. U.S., App.D.C.1904, 23 App.D.C. 324. Postal Service ↪ 36

Even absent proof of a governmental pecuniary loss from an alleged conspiracy to bribe General Services Administration employees, it was clear that defendant's activities undermined a lawful function of the Administration, and the Government thus proved a conspiracy to defraud it. U. S. v. Lowell, D.C.N.J.1980, 490 F.Supp. 897, affirmed 649 F.2d 950. Conspiracy ↪ 47(6)

Under this section making it a crime to conspire to defraud the United States, the fraud involved need not be pecuniary, and this section is broad enough to deal with unlawful means of interferences with governmental functions. U S v. Bonanno, S.D.N.Y.1959, 177 F.Supp. 106, on subsequent appeal 285 F.2d 408. Conspiracy ↪ 33(1)

That there was no profit accruing to defendants charged with conspiring to defraud the United States of money appropriated in connection with the National Industrial Recovery Act, Act of June 16, 1933, c. 90, 48 Stat. 195, or that there was no corrupt purpose would not necessarily relieve them to proper inferences of guilt if otherwise the testimony supported the charge. U.S. v. Haskins, W.D.Mo.1941, 40 F.Supp. 219. Conspiracy ↪ 33(2.1)

To make out case of conspiracy to defraud United States, any impairment of administration of governmental function will suffice without financial or property loss. U.S. v. Terranova, N.D.Cal.1934, 7 F.Supp. 989. Conspiracy ↪ 33(1)

A concert of action and of intent, though there was no pecuniary consideration or a definite absolute contract between the parties, was sufficient to constitute a conspiracy to defraud the United States, under former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U.S. v. Allen, C.C.N.Y.1868, 24 F.Cas. 772, No. 14432.

67. ---- Private benefits, defrauding United States, nature and elements of conspiracy

Fact that defendant received no money from conspiracy involving making of false statements to savings and loan to facilitate improper loan did not foreclose conviction inasmuch as defendant's participation in conspiracy resulted in his becoming head of savings and loan's wholly owned subsidiary and receiving significant salary. U.S. v. Smith, C.A.9 (Wash.) 1989, 891 F.2d 703, amended on other grounds 906 F.2d 385, certiorari denied 111 S.Ct. 47, 498 U.S. 811, 112 L.Ed.2d 23, denial of post-conviction relief affirmed 964 F.2d 885. Conspiracy ↪ 33(2.1)

An agreement whereby a federal employee will act to promote a private benefit in breach of his duty comes within this section relating to conspiracy to defraud United States if the proper functioning of the government is significantly affected thereby. U. S. v. Peltz, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1970, 433 F.2d 48, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 974, 401 U.S. 955, 28 L.Ed.2d 238. Conspiracy ↪ 33(1)

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

68. ---- Title to property, defrauding United States, nature and elements of conspiracy

Conspiracy to sell surplus army goods contrary to agreement or regulation not to do so, if entered into after title to goods had passed to defendants, would not constitute crime of conspiracy to defraud United States. U.S. v. Byers, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1934, 73 F.2d 419. Conspiracy ↪ 33(6)

In a prosecution for conspiracy to defraud the United States by retaining more than proper share of proceeds from selling astray railroad freight, it is immaterial whether the government had the right to sell the freight, since it was at least a bailee of the goods, and entitled to possession of the proceeds as against defendants. U.S. v. U.S. Brokerage & Trading Co., S.D.N.Y.1919, 262 F. 459. Conspiracy ↪ 33(6)

Under a contract between the United States and one of the defendants for the manufacture of leather jerkins, which required the United States to furnish the linings, title did not pass, so that the contractor and a confederate, who conspired to obtain linings from the United States in excess of needs and sell the same, etc., were guilty of violating former §§ 87 and 88 [now this section] of this title. Borman v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1919, 262 F. 26. Conspiracy ↪ 33(6)

69. ---- False representations, defrauding United States, nature and elements of conspiracy

Wrongfully obtaining possession of non-dutiable merchandise by withholding facts concerning bill of lading was not "defrauding" of government within meaning of former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U.S. v. Cohn, U.S.III.1926, 46 S.Ct. 251, 270 U.S. 339, 70 L.Ed. 616. United States ↪ 121

Where alien's wife entered into marriage in good faith and with no knowledge of his ulterior motive, his representation to immigration authorities that he was actually married was not a false representation and he could not be convicted for violation of false statement provisions and conspiracy on the basis of such representation. U. S. v. Diogo, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1963, 320 F.2d 898. Conspiracy ↪ 28(3); Fraud ↪ 68.10(1)

An agreement, accompanied by one or more overt acts, for concert of action by insurance agents to bring about the guarantee by Veterans Administration of premiums on policies procured by false representations constituted conspiracy to defraud the United States. Berenbeim v. U. S., C.C.A.10 (Colo.) 1947, 164 F.2d 679, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 454, 333 U.S. 827, 92 L.Ed. 1113. Conspiracy ↪ 33(6)

70. ---- False personation, defrauding United States, nature and elements of conspiracy

Conspiracy to have another plead guilty of violation of National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, and suffer penalty, instead of guilty persons, was punishable as conspiracy to defraud. Cendagarda v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Utah) 1933, 64 F.2d 182. Conspiracy ↪ 33(2.1)

Where defendant H., desiring to procure appointment as a letter carrier, a position in the classified civil service of the United States, unlawfully agreed with defendant C. that the latter should falsely impersonate H. at a civil service examination, and do all acts required by the examiners, and sign H.'s name to the examination papers to be delivered to C. for examination while he should impersonate H. and C., in pursuance of such conspiracy, gained entrance to the examination, and falsely signed H.'s name to a declaration sheet which was required to be in the handwriting and on the honor of the applicant, such acts constituted a conspiracy to defraud the United States, prohibited by former § 88 of this title [now this section]. Curley v. U S, C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1904, 130 F. 1, 64 C.C.A. 369, certiorari denied 25 S.Ct. 787, 195 U.S. 628, 49 L.Ed. 351.

Where an applicant for a government clerkship filed a sworn application in the form required for an examination by the civil service commission, and was afterwards notified by postal card to appear for examination at a time stated, and by previous arrangement, another person, impersonating the applicant, presented himself for examination, and filled out a paper known as the "Declaration Sheet," which contained questions concerning the applicant, and signed the applicant's name thereto, these two persons were indictable, under former §§ 72 and 88 [now this section] of this title, which denounced respectively the offense of conspiring to commit any offense against the United States or to defraud the United States, and the offense of falsely making, altering, or forging various enumerated papers, including affidavits or other writings, for the purpose of defrauding the United States. U S v. Bunting, E.D.Pa.1897, 82 F. 883.

Conspiring to commit a fraud upon the government, by forging papers and impersonating an applicant in an examination before civil service commissioner, was an offense under former § 88 of this title. U S v. Bunting, E.D.Pa.1897, 82 F. 883.

71. ---- Postal offenses, defrauding United States, nature and elements of conspiracy

A conspiracy to increase the gross receipts of a postoffice upon which the postmaster's salary is to be fixed by the unlawful sale and purchase at that office of large quantities of stamps for use in mailing matter outside the delivery of such office, is one to defraud the United States, especially when the postmaster of the office where the stamps are to be used receives a fixed salary. U.S. v. Foster, U.S.Mass.1914, 34 S.Ct. 666, 233 U.S. 515, 58 L.Ed. 1074. Conspiracy ↪ 33(2.1)

Defendant was improperly convicted of conspiracy to defraud the United States where government neither pled nor proved agreement on essential nature of fraud, and evidence showed that although defendant made false entries in accounts payable records at postal service head-quarters, thereby obtaining checks drawn on United States Treasury which were payable to individuals having no claim to payment from postal service, he did not reveal his true actions to coconspirator, but led him to believe that checks were valid and that purpose of having coconspirator "launder" such check was to help some payees evade taxes and to help other payees conceal kickbacks on government contracts. U. S. v. Rosenblatt, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1977, 554 F.2d 36. Conspiracy ↪ 43(12)

Where defendants, charged with conspiring to obstruct movement of mails, were shown to have conspired to stop railroad transportation in certain areas, those defendants in area in which railroad carried no mail were properly found guilty along with others under evidence that conspiracy would have failed if activities in any area had not occurred. U.S. v. Anderson, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1939, 101 F.2d 325, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 822, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1502, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 822, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1503, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 823, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1503, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 823, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1504, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 823, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1504, 86 L.Ed. 1504, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 824, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1505, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 824, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1506, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 825, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1506, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 825, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1507, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 825, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1508, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 826, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1508, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 826, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1509. Conspiracy ↪ 40

A scheme whereby the publishers of a newspaper attempted to procure the special rate to publishers of one cent a pound, instead of the transient rate of four cents a pound, by deceiving the postoffice employees as to the circulation of the paper, did not constitute a conspiracy to defraud the United States, where the paper was entitled under the law to the one cent a pound rate for its entire issue. U.S. v. Atlanta Journal Co., C.C.N.D.Ga.1911, 185 F. 656, error dismissed 33 S.Ct. 775, 229 U.S. 605, 57 L.Ed. 1348. Conspiracy ↪ 33(2.1)

On the trial of one indicted for conspiring to defraud the United States by mailing old newspapers for the purpose of fraudulently increasing the weight of mail matter (transported over a railway post route during a period fixed by the postal authorities for weighing such mail matter, as a basis for ascertaining the additional compensation to be paid the railway company), it is not necessary, to justify a verdict of guilty, that the conspiracy should have been formed and in full existence prior to the weighing of such fraudulent mail matter, and it is sufficient if the defendant and any other person at any time during the weighing formed a common design to defraud the government in connection with such weighing, and that then the defendant or such other person committed an overt act in connection therewith. U.S. v. Atlanta Journal Co., C.C.N.D.Ga.1911, 185 F. 656, error dismissed 33 S.Ct. 775, 229 U.S. 605, 57 L.Ed. 1348.

Government could charge defendants in connection with scheme to bribe federal employee to refer fellow employees to private hospital for which defendants worked under "defraud" clause of general conspiracy statute, rather than "offense" clause; facts alleged did not constitute only conspiracy to violate single statute, but, rather, violated at least two statutes, alleged conspiracy extended beyond statutory offenses and included efforts to conceal offensive conduct, and defendants' ability to prepare for trial was not prejudiced as government adequately delineated overt acts. U.S. v. Jackson, D.Kan.1994, 850 F.Supp. 1481. Conspiracy ↻ 43(6); Conspiracy ↻ 43(10); Criminal Law ↻ 29(3)

72. ---- Mail fraud, defrauding United States, nature and elements of conspiracy

Offense of conspiracy to commit mail fraud requires that fraudulent scheme be object of conspiracy and that it be reasonably foreseeable that mails will be used in furtherance of scheme. U. S. v. Shelton, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1982, 669 F.2d 446, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 1989, 456 U.S. 934, 72 L.Ed.2d 454. Conspiracy ↻ 28(3)

Where mails were necessarily used in interstate banking transactions in which defendants deposited as "currency" worthless checks usually drawn on out-of-state banks and then, after determining that currency credits had occurred, withdrew cash from accounts before check-clearing process returned original, now dishonored checks, use of mails by defendants, two of whom were experienced businessmen and the other a state university finance major, was foreseeable and relation of scheme, success of which depended on delay caused by use of mail in check-clearing process, and the mail was sufficiently close to justify application of this section and section 1341 of this title. U. S. v. Johnston, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1977, 547 F.2d 282, rehearing denied 550 F.2d 1285, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 2660, 431 U.S. 942, 53 L.Ed.2d 261, rehearing denied 98 S.Ct. 249, 434 U.S. 882, 54 L.Ed.2d 167, rehearing denied 98 S.Ct. 1288, 434 U.S. 1089, 55 L.Ed.2d 796. Postal Service ↻ 35(10)

Defendant's knowing participation in a scheme to defraud is an essential element of mail fraud and of conspiracy to commit mail fraud. Windsor v. U. S., C.A.9 (Idaho) 1967, 384 F.2d 535. Postal Service ↻ 35(5)

Acts innocent in themselves may in combination constitute a "fraud" or intention to commit fraud, as basis of conviction of violating Securities Act, § 77q of Title 15, of using the mails to defraud and of conspiracy to effect scheme to defraud. Holmes v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1943, 134 F.2d 125, certiorari denied 63 S.Ct. 1434, 319 U.S. 776, 87 L.Ed. 1722. Postal Service ↻ 35(10); Securities Regulation ↻ 193

The essence of the offense of "conspiracy" to use the mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud is two or more persons combining with the intent and purpose of committing a public offense by doing an unlawful act or doing a lawful act in an unlawful manner, and it is not essential that the agreement be in any specified form or that any particular words be used, but it is enough if the minds of the parties meet and unite in an understanding way to accomplish a common purpose. Pietch v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Okla.) 1940, 110 F.2d 817, certiorari denied 60 S.Ct. 1100, 310 U.S. 648, 84 L.Ed. 1414. Conspiracy ↻ 23.1

The offense of conspiracy to use the mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud consists of a scheme devised or intended to be devised to defraud and use of mails in execution or attempted execution thereof. U.S. v. McNamara, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1937, 91 F.2d 986. Conspiracy ↻ 32

To establish criminal liability of officers and directors of mortgage guaranty company for conspiracy to use mails to defraud in sale of mortgage participation certificates, proof of intentional combination to defraud public, although not expressly agreed on, would be sufficient to establish scheme to defraud if government showed that combination was willful and intentional, that defendants deliberately worked together to accomplish fraudulent purpose, and that overt acts were performed by one or more of conspirators in furtherance of common objective. U.S. v. McNamara, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1937, 91 F.2d 986. Conspiracy ↪ 47(5)

Scheme to use mails to defraud, criminally shared among several participating therein, becomes "conspiracy." U.S. v. Herzig, D.C.N.Y.1928, 26 F.2d 487. Conspiracy ↪ 32

That defendants, charged under this section with mailing letters pursuant to joint scheme to defraud, and with conspiracy, had no belief that stocks had the value ascribed to them by letters, was sufficient to constitute offense. Van Riper v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1926, 13 F.2d 961, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 102, 273 U.S. 702, 71 L.Ed. 848. Conspiracy ↪ 32; Postal Service ↪ 35(5)

Prosecution, for mailing letters pursuant to joint scheme to defraud and for conspiracy, did not involve separate schemes to defraud, because of continuance of same scheme by different defendants. Van Riper v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1926, 13 F.2d 961, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 102, 273 U.S. 702, 71 L.Ed. 848. Conspiracy ↪ 43(12); Postal Service ↪ 48(8)

A scheme to induce persons to purchase stock under the false representation that they were purchasing treasury stock was held within former §§ 88 [now this section] and 338 of this title. Myers v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1915, 223 F. 919, 139 C.C.A. 399, certiorari denied 37 S.Ct. 13, 242 U.S. 627, 61 L.Ed. 535. Postal Service ↪ 35(12)

The use of the mails in a scheme to defraud was made a crime by former § 338 of this title, and it was the depositing in or the taking out of a letter pursuant to such scheme that constituted the offense, and a conspiracy to commit the offense was a confederating together of two or more persons to carry out a scheme of that kind in that way. Marrin v. U S, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1909, 167 F. 951, 93 C.C.A. 351, certiorari denied 32 S.Ct. 523, 223 U.S. 719, 56 L.Ed. 629.

Where accused and others conspired to further a scheme to defraud through the Post Office Department, each overt act of mailing a letter pursuant to such scheme or withdrawing a letter from the post office warranted a charge of conspiracy to commit such offense, so that an indictment therefor would not shield from a subsequent indictment for another conspiracy of the same person to commit another and additional offense, though of the same kind. Francis v. U S, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1907, 152 F. 155, 81 C.C.A. 407, certiorari denied 27 S.Ct. 797, 206 U.S. 565, 51 L.Ed. 1191.

73. ---- Tax collection, defrauding United States, nature and elements of conspiracy

Defendants could be convicted of conspiracy to defraud the United States based on their attempt to frustrate collection of taxes on illegal gambling income despite their claims that they could be convicted only if they violated a specific tax provision and that they had no general duty to assist Internal Revenue Service (IRS) in its effort to collect taxes. U.S. v. Goulding, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1994, 26 F.3d 656, rehearing and suggestion for rehearing en banc denied, post-conviction relief denied 1994 WL 687458, affirmed 92 F.3d 1187, certiorari denied 117 S.Ct. 690, 519 U.S. 1059, 136 L.Ed.2d 614, rehearing denied 117 S.Ct. 1121, 520 U.S. 1111, 137 L.Ed.2d 321, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 673, 513 U.S. 1061, 130 L.Ed.2d 605, rehearing denied 115 S.Ct. 957, 513 U.S. 1136, 130 L.Ed.2d 899. Conspiracy ↪ 33(7)

Charged conspiracy against the United States whereby defendants set up complex system of foreign and domestic organizations, made transactions among corporations, and opened foreign bank accounts to prevent Internal Revenue Service (IRS) from performing its auditing and assessment functions, committed wide variety of income tax violations, and engaged in numerous acts to conceal income could be charged as conspiracy to defraud the United States, rather than as conspiracy to commit specific internal revenue offenses, considering totality and scope of conspiracy; only broad defraud clause of conspiracy statute could adequately cover all nuances of charged conspiracy. U.S. v. Sturman, C.A.6 (Ohio) 1991, 951 F.2d 1466, rehearing denied, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct.

Mere failure to disclose taxable income would not be sufficient to show crime of conspiring to defraud United States. U.S. v. Klein, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1957, 247 F.2d 908, certiorari denied 78 S.Ct. 365, 355 U.S. 924, 2 L.Ed.2d 354. Conspiracy ☞ 33(7)

Government could charge defendants with single conspiracy under "defraud" clause of federal conspiracy statute, rather than with multiple conspiracies under statute's "offense" clause, even though charge was based on specific alleged violations of internal revenue laws; government alleged conspiracy spanning 20 years and touching upon at least four provisions of Internal Revenue Code, Fair Labor Standards Act, and social security withholding requirements, and there was no danger of confusion over charges being brought. U.S. v. Gambone, E.D.Pa.2000, 125 F.Supp.2d 128. Conspiracy ☞ 43(10)

74. Lawful acts, nature and elements of conspiracy

An act lawful when done by one may become wrongful when done by many acting in concert, taking on the form of a conspiracy, which may be prohibited, if the result be hurtful to the public, or to the individual against whom the concerted action is directed. F. T. C. v. Raymond Bros.-Clark Co., U.S.Iowa 1924, 44 S.Ct. 162, 263 U.S. 565, 68 L.Ed. 448. See, also, U.S. v. Waltham Watch Co., D.C.N.Y.1942, 47 F.Supp. 524. Conspiracy ☞ 25

Fact that certain actions of either defendant, when viewed as separate occurrences, may not have been illegal did not eliminate their illegality when together they constituted a plan of influence for pay the result of which was to deprive the government of the unobstructed operations of its federally funded program. *U. 75. Overt acts, nature and elements of conspiracy--Generally

Mere association of two or more persons to accomplish legal and possibly illegal goals, accompanied by discussions to promote those goals, but with no discernible direction toward either the legal or illegal objectives does not amount to criminal conduct under conspiracy statute. U. S. v. Moschetta, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1982, 673 F.2d 96. Conspiracy ↻ 24(1)

To sustain conspiracy conviction there must be proof of agreement among two or more persons to accomplish something that constitutes offense against the United States, and an overt act by one of them in furtherance of conspiracy. *U. In addition to an agreement of two or more persons to combine their efforts to achieve an illegal purpose, an overt act by one person in favor of the agreement is necessary to establish a conspiracy. U. S. v. Anderson, C.A.7 (Wis.) 1976, 542 F.2d 428. Conspiracy ↻ 27

The "overt act" requirement for charging a conspiracy under the general conspiracy statute does not apply where a particular type of conspiracy has been made a specific, substantive offense, i.e., is permissible on the common-law footing. *U. In a criminal conspiracy, the conspiracy is the gist of the crime, and the function of the overt act is to show that agreeing or conspiring has progressed from field of thought and talk into action and it completes the offense. Hoffman v. Halden, C.A.9 (Or.) 1959, 268 F.2d 280. Conspiracy ↻ 27

The conspiracy alone cannot constitute offense of conspiracy to violate federal statute, but overt act required by this section must be added, so that such act is not merely evidence of conspiracy, but constitutes execution or part execution thereof, and successive overt acts are but steps toward accomplishment of conspiracy. *Huff v. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Conspiracy is made up of unlawful agreement and overt act to further it, and is not complete without the overt act. Hunnicut v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Ga.) 1945, 149 F.2d 888, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 99, 326 U.S. 757, 90 L.Ed. 455. See, also, *Blumenthal v. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

The gist of conspiracy is making illegal agreements, combinations, confederacy or conspiracy, and overt acts are simply steps along the route or movements in the direction of consummation. Takahashi v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1944, 143 F.2d 118. Conspiracy ↪ 27

The commission of the offense-object toward which an illegal agreement to commit an offense against the United States is directed can be an overt act. U.S. v. Offutt, App.D.C.1942, 127 F.2d 336, 75 U.S.App.D.C. 344. Conspiracy ↪ 27

An overt act is a part of the conspiracy itself, and not mere evidence of a conspiracy. Smith v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Hawai'i) 1937, 92 F.2d 460. Conspiracy ↪ 27

Purpose of requiring overt act is to afford a locus poenitentiae, when conspirators may abandon unlawful purpose. U.S. v. Olmstead, D.C.Wash.1925, 5 F.2d 712. Conspiracy ↪ 27

A conspiracy is not effective until an overt act is committed by one or more of the conspirators, and therefore no prosecution can be had until that time, and then only against those consciously participating at the time in the effectuation of the unlawful purpose. U.S. v. Eccles, C.C.Or.1910, 181 F. 906.

The conspiracy is the essence of the crime, while the act done is a mere concrete indication of the conspiracy. Daly v. U S, C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1909, 170 F. 321, 95 C.C.A. 107.

The agreement of combination was the offense, but performance of the act to effectuate it was necessary to make it indictable under former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U S v. Sacia, D.C.N.J.1880, 2 F. 754. Conspiracy ↪ 27

"Overt act" is any transaction or event, even one which may be entirely innocent when considered alone, which is knowingly committed by a conspirator in an effort to accomplish some object of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Masiello, D.C.S.C.1980, 491 F.Supp. 1154. Conspiracy ↪ 27

76. ---- Independent act, overt acts, nature and elements of conspiracy

To sustain a conviction under this section relating to a conspiracy to commit an offense against or to defraud the United States, the prosecution must demonstrate an unlawful agreement and at least one independent act in furtherance of the agreement, but it need not show that the conspirators committed the substantive crime which is charged in the indictment as the object of the conspiracy, nor is it necessary to substantiate each of the overt acts alleged in the indictment. U. S. v. Williams, C.A.5 (Ga.) 1973, 474 F.2d 1047. Conspiracy ↪ 43(12)

The "overt act" of a conspiracy must be a subsequent independent act following the conspiracy and done to carry into effect the object thereof, and cannot succeed the completion of the contemplated crime. Hall v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Okla.) 1940, 109 F.2d 976. See, also, U.S. v. McGee, D.C.Wyo.1952, 108 F.Supp. 909. Conspiracy ↪ 27

Overt act must be independent of conspiracy. U.S. v. Grossman, D.C.N.Y.1931, 55 F.2d 408. See, also, Joplin Mercantile Co. v. U.S., Mo.1915, 35 S.Ct. 291, 236 U.S. 531, 535, 59 L.Ed. 705. Conspiracy ↪ 27

An overt act, required to constitute conspiracy, must be a subsequent independent act, following the complete agreement or conspiracy, and done to carry into effect the object of the original combination. U.S. v. Richards, D.C.Neb.1906, 149 F. 443. Conspiracy ↪ 27

The unity essential to a conspiracy is derived from the assent of members to contribute to a common enterprise; seemingly independent transactions may be revealed as parts of a single conspiracy by their place in a pattern of regularized activity involving a significant continuity of membership. U.S. v. Fernandez, E.D.Tex.1983, 576 F.Supp. 397, affirmed 777 F.2d 248, certiorari denied 106 S.Ct. 1493, 475 U.S. 1096, 89 L.Ed.2d 895, certiorari denied 106 S.Ct. 2921, 476 U.S. 1184, 91 L.Ed.2d 549. Conspiracy ↪ 24(3)

Different acts and statements of each defendant relied upon to establish charges against him and his knowing participation in claimed conspiracy are not to be viewed in isolation; they are to be considered in their relation to his other acts and statements, and the totality of his conduct is to be viewed in its relation to totality of conduct of each other defendant. U. S. v. Beigel, S.D.N.Y.1966, 254 F.Supp. 923, affirmed 370 F.2d 751, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 2049, 387 U.S. 930, 18 L.Ed.2d 989, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 2053, 387 U.S. 930, 18 L.Ed.2d 989, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 2062, 387 U.S. 936, 18 L.Ed.2d 998. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

77. ---- Illegality or criminality, overt acts, nature and elements of conspiracy

In a prosecution for conspiracy, it is not necessary that an overt act be the substantive crime charged in the indictment as the object of the conspiracy nor that such an act, taken by itself, even be criminal in nature, since the function of the overt act in a conspiracy prosecution is simply to manifest that the conspiracy is at work. Yates v. U. S., U.S.Cal.1957, 77 S.Ct. 1064, 354 U.S. 298, 1 L.Ed.2d 1356. Conspiracy ↪ 5

The overt act, without proof of which a charge of "conspiracy" cannot be submitted to jury, may be that of only a single one of conspirators and need not be itself a crime. Braverman v. U.S., U.S.Mich.1942, 63 S.Ct. 99, 317 U.S. 49, 87 L.Ed. 23. Conspiracy ↪ 27

While an overt act, done to effect the object of a conspiracy, is essential to render a conspiracy punishable, such an act need not be a criminal act, much less an act constituting the crime that is the object of the conspiracy. U.S. v. Holte, U.S.Wis.1915, 35 S.Ct. 271, 236 U.S. 140, 59 L.Ed. 504. See, also, Newton v. U.S., 1922, 42 S.Ct. 589, 259 U.S. 586, 66 L.Ed. 1076; *U.S. v. In ordinary conspiracy cases, overt act proven need not have inherent criminal attributes or connotations, if it carries illegal design into field of action. Yates v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1955, 225 F.2d 146, certiorari granted 76 S.Ct. 104, 350 U.S. 860, 100 L.Ed. 763, certiorari granted 76 S.Ct. 105, 350 U.S. 860, 100 L.Ed. 763, reversed on other grounds 77 S.Ct. 1064, 354 U.S. 298, 1 L.Ed.2d 1356. Conspiracy ↻ 27

Overt acts need not be in themselves criminal, and still less need they constitute the crime that is the object of the conspiracy nor need it appear that all conspirators join in them or any one of them. U. S. v. Aderman, C.A.7 (Wis.) 1951, 191 F.2d 980, certiorari denied 72 S.Ct. 366, 342 U.S. 927, 96 L.Ed. 691, rehearing denied 72 S.Ct. 552, 342 U.S. 950, 96 L.Ed. 706. Conspiracy ↻ 15; Conspiracy ↻ 27

An "overt act in furtherance of conspiracy" need not necessarily be a criminal act; an innocent act by a third party, if caused by previous act or conduct of a conspirator, is sufficient. U. S. v. Johnson, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1947, 165 F.2d 42, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 355, 332 U.S. 852, 92 L.Ed. 421, motion granted 68 S.Ct. 357, rehearing denied 68 S.Ct. 457, 333 U.S. 834, 92 L.Ed. 1118, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 355, 332 U.S. 852, 92 L.Ed. 422. Conspiracy ↻ 27

Although to support charge of conspiracy there must be proof of an overt act, it need not be in itself a criminal act, but it must be an act done in furtherance of conspiracy. Rose v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1945, 149 F.2d 755. Conspiracy ↻ 27

An essential element of "conspiracy" against United States is intent to commit crime against United States or to defraud United States, and it is not necessary to conviction that accused perform any overt act or that conspiracy succeed, but conviction may rest on proof of doing of any overt act by any of accused's coconspirators to effect object of conspiracy, and it is not necessary that overt act in itself be prohibited by law. Bergen v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1944, 145 F.2d 181. Conspiracy ↻ 27; Conspiracy ↻ 28(3); Conspiracy ↻ 33(1)

The overt act need not in itself be criminal nor need it constitute the crime that is the subject of conspiracy, and acquittal of conspiracy is no bar to prosecution for substantive crime even when that was the overt act charged in conspiracy count. Holmes v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1943, 134 F.2d 125, certiorari denied 63 S.Ct. 1434, 319 U.S.

776, 87 L.Ed. 1722. Conspiracy ↪ 27; Double Jeopardy ↪ 151(3.1)

An "overt act" which completes crime of conspiracy to violate federal law is something apart from conspiracy and is an act to effect the object of the conspiracy, and need be neither a criminal act, nor crime that is object of conspiracy, but must accompany or follow agreement and must be done in furtherance of object of agreement. Marino v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1937, 91 F.2d 691, certiorari denied 58 S.Ct. 410, 302 U.S. 764, 82 L.Ed. 593. See, also, U.S. v. Schneiderman, D.C.Cal.1952, 106 F.Supp. 906. Conspiracy ↪ 27

To constitute "conspiracy," not more than one of the conspirators need take part in the overt act, and the overt act need not of itself be a crime. Tramp v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1936, 86 F.2d 82. Conspiracy ↪ 27

That overt acts charged under former § 88 of this title [now this section], did not constitute an offense or were insufficient to effect a crime was not an objection if they tended to effect the object of the conspiracy. U.S. v. Ault, W.D.Wash.1920, 263 F. 800. Conspiracy ↪ 27

The overt acts in execution or furtherance of the conspiracy, may be innocent or criminal. U.S. v. Rogers, N.D.N.Y.1915, 226 F. 512. See, also, Clark v. U.S., C.C.A.Mo.1920, 265 F. 104.

One cannot be held for conspiracy to do an act which is not a crime. Woo Wai v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1915, 223 F. 412, 137 C.C.A. 604.

The fact that the overt act charged to have been committed may constitute a substantive offense on the part of one or more of the accused under the statute which they conspired to violate does not relieve them from liability to prosecution for the conspiracy at least where such offense is also a misdemeanor. U.S. v. Thomas, W.D.Mo.1906, 145 F. 74. See, also, U.S. v. Britton, Mo.1883, 2 S.Ct. 531, 108 U.S. 199, 27 L.Ed. 698; U.S. v. Rogers, D.C.N.Y.1915, 226 F. 512; McConkey v. U.S., Minn.1909, 171 F. 829, 96 C.C.A. 501.

Overt act in support of conspiracy need not be, in and of itself, criminal. U.S. v. Brown, E.D.Va.1992, 784 F.Supp. 322. Conspiracy ↪ 27

Overt act need not itself be unlawful to warrant prosecution for conspiracy. U. S. v. Kane, S.D.N.Y.1965, 243 F.Supp. 746. Conspiracy ↪ 27

An overt act must be taken by at least one of the conspirators in pursuance of the agreement to effect object of conspiracy; such overt act need not itself be a crime; still less need it be the very crime that is object of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Anthony, M.D.Pa.1956, 145 F.Supp. 323. Conspiracy ↪ 27

"Overt act" is vital element when grounded in this section and mere conspiracy, without overt act done in pursuance thereof, is not criminally punishable, but overt act need not be of itself criminal act and still less need it constitute very crime which is object of conspiracy. U.S. v. Waldin, E.D.Pa.1956, 138 F.Supp. 791. Conspiracy ↪ 27

Under former § 88 of this title [now this section] requiring, in addition to the unlawful agreement, the commission of an overt act to effect the object of the conspiracy, the overt act was not a part of the conspiracy and may or may not have constituted a crime itself. U.S. v. Halbrook, E.D.Mo.1941, 36 F.Supp. 345. Conspiracy ↪ 27

An overt act need not be in itself criminal; it is the agreement which is punishable, not the overt act, which is the means of executing the crime of conspiracy. U S v. Stromberg, S.D.N.Y.1957, 22 F.R.D. 513. Conspiracy ↪ 27

78. ---- Furtherance of conspiracy, overt acts, nature and elements of conspiracy

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Conviction for conspiracy to commit money laundering does not require proof of an overt act in furtherance of the conspiracy; given the clarity of the statutory text, mere silence in the legislative history did not justify reading an overt-act requirement or a cross-reference to text of general conspiracy statute into the statute governing conspiracy to commit money laundering. Whitfield v. U.S., U.S.2005, 125 S.Ct. 687, 543 U.S. 209, 160 L.Ed.2d 611. Conspiracy ↻ 28(3)

Overt acts in prosecution for conspiracy to defraud the United States by operation of a tax fixing ring are meaningful only if they are within scope of conspiratorial agreement, and if such agreement did not, expressly or impliedly, contemplate that conspiracy would continue in its efforts to protect taxpayers in order to immunize them from tax prosecution, then scope of agreement could not be broadened retroactively by fact that conspirators took steps after conspiracy which incidentally had that effect. Grunewald v. U.S., U.S.N.Y.1957, 77 S.Ct. 963, 353 U.S. 391, 1 L.Ed.2d 931. Conspiracy ↻ 27

Evidence that son of defendant, a drug supplier, was transporting cocaine on defendant's behalf, and that he also transported aliens at the same time, was insufficient to demonstrate that son was transporting aliens on defendant's behalf in furtherance of conspiracy involving one of defendant's dealers to bribe a public official to aid in illegal green-card operation to pay for drugs; son testified that he was transporting aliens at request of the dealer, for which he was to be paid, and there was no evidence of any conversation between defendant and his son near the date of transport. U.S. v. Ceballos, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 2003, 340 F.3d 115. Conspiracy ↻ 47(6)

Finding defendant used her position in Department of Housing and Urban Development to facilitate funding for rehabilitation in project, thus committing overt act in furtherance of conspiracy to defraud the government, was supported by evidence that she was approached by representatives of developers and indicated that application would be looked upon favorably, that she later indicated that she was pleased with proposal and that it would have her support, and that the funding was provided. U.S. v. Dean, C.A.D.C.1995, 55 F.3d 640, 312 U.S.App.D.C. 75, rehearing in banc denied, certiorari denied 116 S.Ct. 1288, 516 U.S. 1184, 134 L.Ed.2d 232. Conspiracy ↻ 47(6)

Overt acts in furtherance of the conspiracy may be proved by evidence used to prove the substantive offense. U. S. v. Watson, C.A.8 (Ark.) 1982, 677 F.2d 689. Conspiracy ↻ 47(1)

After agreeing to unlawful plan to transport property worth more than $5,000 in interstate commerce, conspiracy was complete when first overt act was perpetrated to advance cause. U. S. v. Tombrello, C.A.11 (Ala.) 1982, 666 F.2d 485, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 2279, 456 U.S. 994, 73 L.Ed.2d 1291. Conspiracy ↻ 27

Overt act of conspiracy need not be a completed offense or ultimate goal of conspiracy and need only be an action taken in furtherance of conspiracy by one or more of the conspirators. U. S. v. Murzyn, C.A.7 (Ind.) 1980, 631 F.2d 525, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 1373, 450 U.S. 923, 67 L.Ed.2d 351. Conspiracy ↻ 27

This section requires proof both of an agreement and overt act in furtherance of it; however, overt act need not be criminal in nature or create a danger to victim or society; it suffices if, however innocent, act furthers criminal venture. U. S. v. Alvarez, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 610 F.2d 1250, on rehearing 625 F.2d 1196, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 2017, 451 U.S. 938, 68 L.Ed.2d 324. Conspiracy ↻ 27

If an accused's participation in conspiracy has been established, accused is culpable for everything said, written or done by any of other conspirators in furtherance of common purpose of conspiracy. U. S. v. Overshon, C.A.8 (Mo.) 1974, 494 F.2d 894, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 142, 419 U.S. 878, 42 L.Ed.2d 118, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 96, 419 U.S. 853, 42 L.Ed.2d 85. Conspiracy ↻ 41

To establish the essential elements of conspiracy to rob bank, proof had to show that defendant agreed with one or more other persons to combine their efforts to rob bank, and it also had to show an overt act by one conspirator in furtherance of that agreement. U. S. v. Edwards, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1974, 488 F.2d 1154. Conspiracy ↪ 28(3)

In prosecution for making wilful misrepresentations on claim forms for payment from United States for physical therapy services, and for conspiracy, conduct of defendant doctor subsequent to time that claims were filed by nonphysician defendant was germane only to extent that such conduct supported inference that he had planned with such nonphysician defendant to file the claims containing the misrepresentation, and physician's conduct upon receipt of checks in payment of claims could not constitute overt act in furtherance of conspiracy, which had run its course eo instante upon filing of the claims. U.S. v. Peterson, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1974, 488 F.2d 645, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 49, 419 U.S. 828, 42 L.Ed.2d 53. Conspiracy ↪ 27

A "conspiracy," in violation of this section making it unlawful to conspire to commit any offense against the United States or to defraud the United States, is an inchoate and distinct crime that requires proof of both an agreement to do some unlawful act and some act in furtherance of the agreement. U. S. v. Harvey, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1972, 464 F.2d 1286, certiorari denied 93 S.Ct. 1399, 410 U.S. 938, 35 L.Ed.2d 604. Conspiracy ↪ 28(1)

In prosecution for conspiracy to rob federally insured bank, there was sufficient proof of overt act in furtherance of conspiracy where, if jury believed government witness, her testimony proved first overt act, that conspirators had driven route to and from bank to make sure that they knew route and to check things out otherwise, and where circumstantial evidence proved that one conspirator had arranged to have automobile stolen and delivered. U.S. v. Bazinet, C.A.8 (Minn.) 1972, 462 F.2d 982, certiorari denied 93 S.Ct. 453, 409 U.S. 1010, 34 L.Ed.2d 303. Conspiracy ↪ 47(11)

It is necessary for conviction of conspiracy that conspirator be found to have committed one of overt acts in furtherance of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Goodwin, C.A.10 (Okla.) 1972, 455 F.2d 710, certiorari denied 93 S.Ct. 146, 409 U.S. 859, 34 L.Ed.2d 105. Conspiracy ↪ 27

Defendant in counterfeiting conspiracy prosecution could be found to have furthered continuing object of conspiracy, i.e., disposal of currency, by leaving his share of counterfeit money with another participant and permitting its storage, even if he otherwise had parted company with group. U. S. v. Gonzalez-Carta, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1969, 419 F.2d 548. Conspiracy ↪ 40.4

A particular defendant charged with conspiracy need not commit any specific alleged overt act as long as one of his coconspirators was involved in an overt act and in order to be guilty of conspiracy one need only knowingly contribute his efforts in furtherance of conspiracy. U. S. v. Francisco, C.A.8 (Minn.) 1969, 410 F.2d 1283. Conspiracy ↪ 41

This section does not require "mission accomplished", only "mission attempted", and an overt act by conspirators in effort to accomplish mission satisfies requirement of this section. Cross v. U. S., C.A.8 (Ark.) 1968, 392 F.2d 360.

Offense of conspiracy is complete when agreement is made to commit unlawful act and any overt act is made in furtherance of agreement whether or not contemplated crime is consummated. Cave v. U. S., C.A.8 (Iowa) 1968, 390 F.2d 58, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 2059, 392 U.S. 906, 20 L.Ed.2d 1365. Conspiracy ↪ 28(2)

Commission by one of conspirators of overt act to effect object of conspiracy is essential element of conspiring to transport forged securities in interstate commerce. Hansen v. U. S., C.A.9 (Wash.) 1963, 326 F.2d 152. Conspiracy ↪ 27

To constitute a conspiracy, an overt act must accompany or follow the agreement, and it must be done in furtherance of the object of it. Williams v. U.S., C.A.4 (N.C.) 1959, 271 F.2d 703. Conspiracy ↪ 27

Generally, an overt act must be one in furtherance of the conspiracy and not one which occurs after the conspiracy has ended, but the termination of the conspiracy need not coincide with the completion of the crime nor even with the arrest of a conspirator. Cleaver v. U. S., C.A.10 (Colo.) 1956, 238 F.2d 766. Conspiracy ↻ 27

Although innocent in itself, an overt act is sufficient to complete the crime of conspiracy if performed in furtherance thereof, for the overt act merely manifests that conspiracy is at work. Carlson v. U. S., C.A.10 (Kan.) 1951, 187 F.2d 366, certiorari denied 71 S.Ct. 1000, 341 U.S. 940, 95 L.Ed. 1367, rehearing denied 72 S.Ct. 22, 342 U.S. 843, 96 L.Ed. 637. Conspiracy ↻ 27

The "overt act" of a conspiracy must reach far enough toward the accomplishment of desired result to at least amount to commencement of the consummation, and if act of a conspirator be done with purpose of putting the unlawful agreement into effect, it is sufficient as an "overt act," though it has no tendency to accomplish its object. Hall v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Okla.) 1940, 109 F.2d 976. Conspiracy ↻ 27

It was enough that "any act" of one of the conspirators "to effect the object of the conspiracy," under former § 88 of this title [now this section], made an element of the offense of conspiracy against the United States, have been done with the purpose of putting the unlawful agreement into effect, though it had no tendency to accomplish its object. Collier v. U. S., C.C.A.5 (Ala.) 1918, 255 F. 328, 166 C.C.A. 498. Conspiracy ↻ 27

Acts alleged to have been done in furtherance of a conspiracy to defraud the United States were constituted overt acts committed within the jurisdiction of the court. U.S. v. Burke, S.D.N.Y.1914, 218 F. 83. Criminal Law ↻ 97(1); Conspiracy ↻ 27

The overt act must be directed to the attainment of the object which brings the conspiracy within the class made criminal. Lonabaugh v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Wyo.) 1910, 179 F. 476, 103 C.C.A. 56.

To constitute an indictable conspiracy there must be some overt act, which must tend to carry out the object of the conspiracy, or in some way effectuate it, and if the conspiracy ceases without an overt act it would not constitute an offense, though when consummated it is the conspiracy rather than the overt act which constitutes the crime. U.S. v. McLaughlin, D.C.Minn.1908, 169 F. 302. Conspiracy ↻ 27

In order to establish conspiracy to commit offense against United States in violation of former § 88 of this title [now this section], there had to be not only an agreement or combination to commit crime or unlawful purpose, but also an overt act apart from conspiracy, done to carry object of original combination into effect. U.S. v. Cole, W.D.Tex.1907, 153 F. 801. Conspiracy ↻ 27

"The words 'any act to effect the object of the conspiracy' apply as well to an act which of itself fully accomplishes that object as to an act merely in furtherance of it." Berkowitz v. U S, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1899, 93 F. 452, 35 C.C.A. 379.

In conspiracy prosecution under general conspiracy statute, government is required to allege and prove commission of at least one overt act in furtherance of conspiratorial agreement that occurred within five-year statute of limitations period. U.S. v. Treto, S.D.Fla.1995, 904 F.Supp. 1374. Conspiracy ↻ 27

Coconspirator's liability as participant in conspiracy does not depend on his awareness of total membership or full extent of conspiracy, so long as he understands and agrees to its common object and acts in furtherance of some conspiratorial purpose. U. S. v. Allied Asphalt Paving Co., N.D.Ill.1978, 451 F.Supp. 804. Conspiracy ↻ 40.1

"Overt act" need not be in and of itself of such character as to be integral part of conspiracy, such that failure of it would cause collapse of planned object, and act itself may be lawful and of no particular significance by itself, but if it is directed toward desired object which is unlawful, it is punishable. U.S. v. Waldin, E.D.Pa.1956, 138

F.Supp. 791. Conspiracy ↻ 27

An "overt act," required to be shown to warrant conviction of conspiracy, is any act committed by one of conspirators to effect an object or accomplish a purpose of conspiracy. U. S. v. Schneiderman, S.D.Cal.1952, 106 F.Supp. 906. Conspiracy ↻ 27

79. ---- Necessity for violation of other statutes, overt acts, nature and elements of conspiracy

Former § 83 of this title, so far as it declared that every person who enters into any agreement, combination, or conspiracy to defraud the government of the United States, or any department or officer thereof, by obtaining, or aiding to obtain, the payment or allowance of any false or fraudulent claim, shall be punished without requiring any act in furtherance of the conspiracy, was modified by former § 88 of this title [now this section], so that a mere conspiracy, without some overt act in execution of it, was not an indictable offense. U.S. v. Reichert, C.C.Cal.1887, 32 F. 142, 12 Sawy. 643. Conspiracy ↻ 27; Conspiracy ↻ 33(1)

Conspiracies under Sherman Act, §§ 1 to 7 of Title 15, are complete when formed and overt acts in furtherance of conspiracy, which were essential under former § 88 of this title [now this section], are no part of the offense. U.S. v. Safeway Stores, Maryland, D.C.Kan.1943, 51 F.Supp. 448, reversed 144 F.2d 824, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 121, 323 U.S. 768, 89 L.Ed. 615, certiorari granted 65 S.Ct. 132, 323 U.S. 699, 89 L.Ed. 564, certiorari granted 65 S.Ct. 133, 323 U.S. 699, 89 L.Ed. 564, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 188, 323 U.S. 777, 89 L.Ed. 621, reversed 65 S.Ct. 661, 324 U.S. 293, 89 L.Ed. 951. Monopolies ↻ 29

Under former § 1138d(f) of Title 12, making it an offense to conspire to accomplish any of the acts made unlawful by such former section an overt act need not have been shown as was necessary in a prosecution under former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U.S. v. Halbrook, E.D.Mo.1941, 36 F.Supp. 345. Conspiracy ↻ 27

80. ---- Telephone calls and telegrams, overt acts, nature and elements of conspiracy

Defendant's telephone conversations and meetings with undercover agent discussing and arranging sale of heroin constituted overt acts in furtherance of conspiracy to distribute heroin. U. S. v. Alvarez, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 610 F.2d 1250, on rehearing 625 F.2d 1196, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 2017, 451 U.S. 938, 68 L.Ed.2d 324.

Telephone call to coconspirator by defendants to inform him that they had obtained approval for stock swindler's participation in securities fraud was made for the purpose of "executing" the stock swindle scheme within meaning of section 1343 of this title governing wire fraud where approval of coconspirator was, to the conspirators, at least, a required part of the scheme. U. S. v. Aloi, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1975, 511 F.2d 585, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 447, 423 U.S. 1015, 46 L.Ed.2d 386. Telecommunications ↻ 1014(6)

Where party in Huntington, West Virginia, telephoned defendant in Chicago relative to possibility of obtaining counterfeit currency, and defendant telephoned the party in Huntington informing him that money could be obtained and party called third party in Huntington from Chicago and had him come to Chicago where defendant showed the parties samples of the bogus money, demonstrated ways it could be passed, sold it to them and showed them how to discolor bills to make them less susceptible to discovery, the telephone conversations were "overt acts" in Huntington, West Virginia, in furtherance of a conspiracy to foist bogus money on the public. Bartoli v. U.S., C.A.4 (W.Va.) 1951, 192 F.2d 130. Conspiracy ↻ 27

A telephone call in furtherance of a conspiracy to violate former § 398 of this title was a criminal act and sufficient to constitute an overt act under former § 88 of this title [now this section]. Smith v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Hawai'i) 1937, 92 F.2d 460. Conspiracy ↻ 27

Telegraphic orders by one conspirator to another directing shipment of intoxicating liquor to be made were overt acts under former § 88 of this title [now this section], to effect a conspiracy to violate former § 388 of this title. Witte v. Shelton, C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1917, 240 F. 265, 153 C.C.A. 191, certiorari denied 37 S.Ct. 745, 244 U.S. 660, 61 L.Ed. 1376. Conspiracy ↻ 27

81. ---- Time of commission, overt acts, nature and elements of conspiracy

Defendant could not properly be convicted of having conspired to transport stolen securities across state lines merely on proof that he helped to dispose of the stolen securities after the interstate shipment was concluded. Bollenbach v. U.S., U.S.N.Y.1946, 66 S.Ct. 402, 326 U.S. 607, 90 L.Ed. 350. Conspiracy ↻ 28(3)

Fact that federal agents did not discover codefendant's part in conspiracy to sell narcotics until near end of investigation did not negate codefendant's part in it. U. S. v. Quintana, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1975, 508 F.2d 867. Conspiracy ↻ 47(12)

Evidence indicating that everything done to carry out conspiracy in connection with counterfeiting operation was carried out by defendant and that acts committed by codefendant were not committed until the conspiracy had been consummated would not support conviction of codefendant for conspiracy. U. S. v. Keach, C.A.10 (Okla.) 1973, 480 F.2d 1274. Conspiracy ↻ 47(3.1)

Existence of conspiracy on or about a certain date may be proved by showing actions of person, who later perfected the conspiracy, leading up to the date on which the conspiracy was actually formed. *U. Filing of petition in bankruptcy was a sufficient overt act to support conviction of conspiracy to conceal property. Gretsch v. U.S., C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1917, 242 F. 897, 155 C.C.A. 485, certiorari denied 38 S.Ct. 12, 245 U.S. 654, 62 L.Ed. 532. Conspiracy ☞ 27

The overt act must be something more than evidence of a conspiracy and thus a complete confession of a conspiracy would not be equivalent to an overt act, which must constitute execution, or part execution. Tillinghast v. Richards, D.C.R.I.1915, 225 F. 226.

Where defendants conspired to obtain Umatilla reservation lands by procuring false applications to purchase, defendant's act in procuring some person to make an application to purchase, and a false oath accompanying it, would constitute a sufficient overt act. U.S. v. Raley, D.C.Or.1909, 173 F. 159. Conspiracy ☞ 27

Where defendants were charged with having conspired to defraud several corporations engaged in selling merchandise, etc., by mail, by means of catalogues, and it was alleged that the scheme to defraud was to be effected by the use of the post office by soliciting from such corporations catalogues and samples requesting price lists and estimates on spurious bills of lumber by falsely representing that defendants were desirous of purchasing such materials, etc., letters and postal cards sent through the mails by which defendants requested catalogues, prices, samples, and estimates, but in none of which was there any representation that the signer or any of the defendants intended to purchase such materials from the addressees, were insufficient to constitute an overt act required to make out a criminal conspiracy. U.S. v. McLaughlin, D.C.Minn.1908, 169 F. 302. Conspiracy ⚡ 27

85. Consummation of substantive offense, nature and elements of conspiracy

Nature of the crime of conspiracy is an agreement to commit a substantive crime, accompanied by an overt act in furtherance of the agreement; whether the substantive crime itself is, or is likely to be, committed is irrelevant. U. S. v. Rose, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1978, 590 F.2d 232, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 2859, 442 U.S. 929, 61 L.Ed.2d 297. Conspiracy ⚡ 28(2)

This section making it unlawful to conspire to commit an offense against or to defraud the United States does not require that the mission be accomplished but only that it be attempted, and any overt act by conspirators in an effort to accomplish the mission satisfies requirement of this section. U. S. v. Root, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1966, 366 F.2d 377, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 861, 386 U.S. 912, 17 L.Ed.2d 784. Conspiracy ⚡ 28(1); Conspiracy ⚡ 33(1)

Substantive crime is not necessary ingredient of conspiracy. U.S. v. J.R. Watkins Co., D.C.Minn.1954, 127 F.Supp. 97. Conspiracy ⚡ 28(2)

Mere fact that a party may be guilty of a substantive offense does not justify finding him guilty of a conspiracy to commit it. U. S. v. Boyer, E.D.Pa.1949, 84 F.Supp. 905.

86. Termination, nature and elements of conspiracy

Arrest of party involved in conspiracy does not necessarily terminate his participation in conspiracy as matter of law; conspiracy is presumed to continue unless defendant makes substantial affirmative showing of withdrawal, abandonment, or defeat of conspiratorial purpose. U.S. v. Branch, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1988, 850 F.2d 1080, certiorari denied 109 S.Ct. 816, 488 U.S. 1018, 102 L.Ed.2d 806. Conspiracy ⚡ 40.4; Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2

Criminal conspiracy continues until objects for which it was formed have been accomplished. U. S. v. James, C.A.D.C.1974, 494 F.2d 1007, 161 U.S.App.D.C. 88, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 495, 419 U.S. 1020, 42 L.Ed.2d 294. Conspiracy ⚡ 24.15

Generally, conspiracy terminates when its central objective is achieved, and no subsidiary conspiracy to conceal crime may be implied. U. S. v. Hickey, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1966, 360 F.2d 127, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 284, 385 U.S. 928, 17 L.Ed.2d 210. Conspiracy ⚡ 34

Persons conspiring to defraud United States continue criminally liable until conspiracy is ended or until they disassociate themselves therefrom. H. Wagner & Adler Co. v. Mali, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1935, 74 F.2d 666.

87. Parties, nature and elements of conspiracy

Conspiracy is determined by design of parties who originate it and when person joins, if purpose remains same, it continues to be the single venture which it was before, notwithstanding theoretical difficulty of reconciling such a result with definition of conspiracy as continuing act of agreement. U.S. v. Bletterman, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1960, 279 F.2d 320. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(2)

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Identity of conspiracy is not destroyed by the connection at a subsequent time of new parties therewith. U. S. v. Nunnemacher, C.C.Wis.1876, 27 F.Cas. 197, 7 Biss. 111, No. 15902. See, also, Hagen v. U.S., C.C.A.Wash.1920, 268 F. 344, certiorari denied 41 S.Ct. 323, 255 U.S. 569, 65 L.Ed. 790.

88. Informers, nature and elements of conspiracy

There can be no conspiracy involving only a defendant and government informer, because it takes two to conspire and government informer is not a true conspirator. U. S. v. Martino, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1981, 648 F.2d 367, on reconsideration in part 650 F.2d 651, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 2006, 456 U.S. 943, 72 L.Ed.2d 465, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 2007, 456 U.S. 943, 72 L.Ed.2d 465, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 2020, 456 U.S. 949, 72 L.Ed.2d 474, on rehearing 681 F.2d 952, certiorari granted 103 S.Ct. 721, 459 U.S. 1101, 74 L.Ed.2d 948, affirmed 104 S.Ct. 296, 464 U.S. 16, 78 L.Ed.2d 17. Conspiracy ↻ 24(7)

As it takes two to conspire, there can be no indictable conspiracy with a government informer who secretly intends to frustrate the conspiracy. Sears v. U. S., C.A.5 (Ga.) 1965, 343 F.2d 139. Conspiracy ↻ 24(7)

89. Withdrawal from conspiracy, nature and elements of conspiracy

Mere fact that coconspirator who withdraws becomes government informant unbeknownst to his former coconspirators, does not prevent continuation of conspiracy if at least two coconspirators remain. U.S. v. Miranda-Ortiz, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1991, 926 F.2d 172, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 347, 502 U.S. 928, 116 L.Ed.2d 287.

Conspiracy between defendants was not ended merely because coconspirator acted to frustrate objectives of conspiracy and was arrested and became government agent; it was necessary for defendants to show evidence of their own withdrawal from conspiracy, absent which their participation in conspiracy was presumed to continue until last overt act by any conspirator. U. S. v. Katz, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1979, 601 F.2d 66.

Fact that codefendants had told coconspirator that they would like to quit conspiracy prior to shipment of heroin did not constitute actual termination of the conspiracy. Granza v. U. S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1967, 381 F.2d 190.

Withdrawal of a conspirator does not terminate the conspiracy. U. S. v. Lester, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1960, 282 F.2d 750, certiorari denied 81 S.Ct. 385, 364 U.S. 937, 5 L.Ed.2d 368.

The addition of new members to a conspiracy or the withdrawal of old ones from it does not change the status of the other conspirators. Poliafico v. U. S., C.A.6 (Ohio) 1956, 237 F.2d 97, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 590, 352 U.S. 1025, 1 L.Ed.2d 597, rehearing denied 77 S.Ct. 718, 353 U.S. 931, 1 L.Ed.2d 725.

The withdrawal of a single conspirator, by arrest or otherwise, does not terminate the conspiracy or change the status of the remaining members. U.S. v. Cohen, C.A.3 (N.J.) 1952, 197 F.2d 26.

Where, after formation of conspiracy to violate federal law, one of conspirators withdraws, such withdrawal neither creates new conspiracy nor changes status of remaining members. Marino v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1937, 91 F.2d 691, certiorari denied 58 S.Ct. 410, 302 U.S. 764, 82 L.Ed. 593. Conspiracy ↻ 40.4

A voluntary withdrawal of one member of conspiracy does not terminate the unlawful combine as to other members who do not withdraw; at most it is a personal severance which affects and limits the responsibility of the withdrawing member alone. U. S. v. Labate, E.D.Pa.1958, 168 F.Supp. 531, affirmed 270 F.2d 122, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 211, 361 U.S. 900, 4 L.Ed.2d 157.

Where there has been no overt act in furtherance of conspiracy, policy of the law is to permit conspirators to withdraw. U.S. v. Belisle, W.D.Wash.1951, 107 F.Supp. 283.

90. Victim of conspiracy, nature and elements of conspiracy

In establishing conspiracy "to commit any offense against the United States," government need not allege or prove that United States or agency thereof was intended victim of conspiracy; overruling United States v. Hope, 861 F.2d 1574. U.S. v. Falcone, C.A.11 (Fla.) 1992, 960 F.2d 988, certiorari denied 113 S.Ct. 292, 506 U.S. 902, 121 L.Ed.2d 216. Conspiracy ↪ 33(1); Conspiracy ↪ 43(10)

United States was not required to be "target" of defendant's conspiracy for defendant to be convicted of conspiracy to commit wire fraud under provision of conspiracy statute criminalizing conspiracy "to commit any offense against the United States." U.S. v. Loney, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1992, 959 F.2d 1332. Conspiracy ↪ 33(2.1)

Substantive offense 144
Withdrawal from conspiracy 143

111. Generally, parties liable for conspiracy

Gist of criminal conspiracy, the agreement between coconspirators, may continue over extended period of time and involve numerous transactions; parties may join conspiracy after its inception and may withdraw and terminate their relationship with conspiracy prior to its completion. U. S. v. Boyd, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1978, 595 F.2d 120. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

Where defendant is charged with participation in one central conspiracy involving many transactions, evidence of mere participation in single transaction will not ordinarily justify conviction for conspiracy unless defendant knew that single transaction was in execution of larger venture which made up conspiracy. U. S. v. Kane, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1965, 351 F.2d 600. Conspiracy ↪ 47(11)

That defendant, charged with possessing and conspiring to possess counterfeit money, allegedly participated only in single transaction was not insufficient to draw him within ambit of conspiracy, where transaction in which he participated was raison d'être for conspiracy, and there was no larger venture. U. S. v. Kane, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1965, 351 F.2d 600. Conspiracy ↪ 40.1

Separate groups acting as conspirators among themselves may still constitute members of an overall conspiracy. Sigers v. U. S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1963, 321 F.2d 843. Conspiracy ↪ 40

One who is a part of a conspiracy is responsible for all that may be or has been done. U. S. v. Doran, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1962, 299 F.2d 511, certiorari denied 82 S.Ct. 1563, 370 U.S. 925, 8 L.Ed.2d 504, certiorari denied 82 S.Ct. 1565, 370 U.S. 925, 8 L.Ed.2d 505, rehearing denied 83 S.Ct. 17, 371 U.S. 854, 9 L.Ed.2d 92. Conspiracy ↪ 41

A defendant is not guilty of conspiracy by reason of his commission of an overt act, unless he was party to unlawful agreement. U. S. v. Cherry, C.A.4 (N.C.) 1961, 295 F.2d 842. Conspiracy ↪ 40

Each conspirator is a partner and agent of every other member of a conspiracy. U. S. v. Copeland, C.A.4 (N.C.) 1961, 295 F.2d 635, certiorari denied 82 S.Ct. 398, 368 U.S. 955, 7 L.Ed.2d 388. See, also, Braatelian v. U.S., C.C.A.N.D.1945, 147 F.2d 888. Conspiracy ↪ 40

Joint participants in a crime may be denominated "conspirators" and the joint act or scheme may be called a conspiracy, since such words do not lose all of their ordinary content merely because Congress separately created crime of conspiracy. Kumpe v. U. S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1957, 250 F.2d 125. Criminal Law ↪ 779

One may be prosecuted as principal and as conspirator to commit offense. Westfall v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Mich.) 1927, 20 F.2d 604, 5 Ohio Law Abs. 587. Double Jeopardy ↪ 151(3.1)

When men enter into an agreement for an unlawful end they become ad hoc agents for one another; what one does pursuant to their common objective all do. U. S. v. Gilboy, M.D.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 442. Conspiracy ↪ 41

In order to become a party to a crime, one must affirmatively unite oneself with the venture, or, in the case of a conspiracy, must agree to take some part therein. U.S. v. Corlin, S.D.Cal.1942, 44 F.Supp. 940. Conspiracy ↪ 40; Criminal Law ↪ 59(5)

Fact that one person's agreement is feigned should not prevent a conspiracy conviction when there are at least two others involved whose mutual adherence to the common plan is genuine. U. S. v. Rose, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1978, 590 F.2d 232, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 2859, 442 U.S. 929, 61 L.Ed.2d 297. Conspiracy ↻ 24(4.1)

A single defendant can be indicted and convicted of conspiracy providing an unlawful agreement with others can be proved. Kitchell v. U. S., C.A.1 (Mass.) 1966, 354 F.2d 715, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 1970, 384 U.S. 1011, 16 L.Ed.2d 1032. Conspiracy ↻ 24(4.1)

Two or more persons can enter into unlawful agreement to commit three substantive crimes either simultaneously or in succession. Shibley v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1956, 237 F.2d 327, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 94, 352 U.S. 873, 1 L.Ed.2d 77, rehearing denied 77 S.Ct. 212, 352 U.S. 919, 1 L.Ed.2d 124. Conspiracy ↻ 24(2)

A "conspiracy" may be established even though one of the two parties named is not a member of the conspiracy, if the evidence showed that there were other persons in existence one or more of whom were parties to the conspiracy. U. S. v. Fox, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1942, 130 F.2d 56, certiorari denied 63 S.Ct. 74, 317 U.S. 666, 87 L.Ed. 535. See, also, U.S. v. Weinberg, D.C.Pa.1955, 129 F.Supp. 514, affirmed 226 F.2d 161, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 305, 350 U.S. 933, 100 L.Ed. 815. Conspiracy ↻ 47(1)

One defendant alone cannot be convicted of conspiracy. Bartkus v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1927, 21 F.2d 425. See, also, Mackreth v. U.S., C.C.A. Ala.1939, 103 F.2d 495; De Camp v. U.S., App.D.C.1926, 10 F.2d 984; Cape Cod Food Products v. National Cranberry Ass'n, D.C.Mass.1954, 119 F.Supp. 900.

In the prosecution of the manager, officers, and salesmen of a concern for conspiring to use the mails in executing a scheme to defraud, in violation of former § 88 of this title [now this section], in which it was claimed that the defendants induced persons by means of fraud to enter into contracts appointing the concern their agent in the purchase of Indian lands, the manager could not have been convicted on evidence showing that he was the sole planner and actor. Van Tress v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1923, 292 F. 513, 2 Ohio Law Abs. 370. Conspiracy ↻ 24(4.1); Postal Service ↻ 35(2)

When a conviction for conspiracy to violate the White Slave Act, § 2421 et seq. of this title was set aside as to one defendant for insufficiency of the evidence, it must have been set aside as to the other, conspiracy being an offense which could have been committed only by two or more persons. Williams v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (S.C.) 1922, 282 F. 481. Conspiracy ↻ 24(6)

Former § 88 of this title [now this section] applied only to conspiracies, and did not cover the case of one, acting alone, who induced another to fail to register pursuant to the Selective Service Act of 1917, 50 App. former § 201 et seq. U.S. v. Prieth, D.C.N.J.1918, 251 F. 946. Armed Services ↻ 40(2); Conspiracy ↻ 24

A conspiracy to defraud an individual, even though the mails were made use of for the purpose, did not fall within the terms of former § 88 of this title [now this section], and what was there provided for was a conspiracy of two or more either to commit an offense against the United States or to defraud it. U S v. Clark, M.D.Pa.1903, 121 F. 190. Conspiracy ↻ 32

It is basic in law of conspiracy that you must have at least two persons or entities to have conspiracy. Colonial Penn Ins. Co. v. Value Rent-A-Car Inc., S.D.Fla.1992, 814 F.Supp. 1084. Conspiracy ↻ 2

Generally, if crime is such that participation of at least two persons is necessary and concert of action is essential to offense indictment will not lie charging conspiracy to commit such offense, but if offense could be committed by one of conspirators alone and the essential participants in the offense are not the only conspirators indictment may properly charge both substantive offense and conspiracy to commit such offense. U. S. v. Cogan, S.D.N.Y.1967, 266 F.Supp. 374. Conspiracy ↻ 28(1); Indictment And Information ↻ 129(1)

113. Husband and wife, parties liable for conspiracy

A husband and wife are legally capable of conspiring within condemnation of statute making it an offense for two persons to conspire, and a husband and wife would not be deemed outside the scope of the conspiracy statute on theory that a married woman is a person whose legal personality is merged in that of her husband making the two one. U. S. v. Dege, U.S.Cal.1960, 80 S.Ct. 1589, 364 U.S. 51, 4 L.Ed.2d 1563, rehearing denied 81 S.Ct. 29, 364 U.S. 854, 5 L.Ed.2d 77. Husband And Wife ↻ 107

Husband is legally capable of conspiracy with his wife. Pegram v. U. S., C.A.8 (Iowa) 1966, 361 F.2d 820. Husband And Wife ↻ 107

A woman can be found guilty of conspiracy with her husband to violate the white slavery statute, § 2421 of this title. Wright v. U.S., C.A.5 (Ga.) 1957, 243 F.2d 569, certiorari denied 78 S.Ct. 45, 355 U.S. 831, 2 L.Ed.2d 43. Husband And Wife ↻ 107

Relationship of husband and wife does not prevent two persons from being guilty of conspiring to commit an offense. Thompson v. U.S., C.A.5 (Ga.) 1955, 227 F.2d 671. Husband And Wife ↻ 107

Where two persons were charged with conspiracy to violate White Slave Traffic Act, § 2421 of this title, one of the persons alone could not be adjudged guilty of conspiracy. Thompson v. U.S., C.A.5 (Ga.) 1955, 227 F.2d 671. Conspiracy ↻ 24(6)

It was not legally possible for husband and wife to conspire to violate White Slave Act, § 2421 et seq. of this title, when there were no other parties to conspiracy. Dawson v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Idaho) 1926, 10 F.2d 106, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 638, 271 U.S. 687, 70 L.Ed. 1152.

A husband and wife could not conspire to violate § 1 et seq. of Title 11, where there were no other parties to the conspiracy. U. S. v. Shaddix, S.D.Miss.1942, 43 F.Supp. 330. Husband And Wife ↻ 107

114. Prostitutes, parties liable for conspiracy

A woman could conspire to commit an offense against the United States within former § 88 of this title [now this section] though the object of the conspiracy was her own transportation in interstate commerce for purposes of prostitution, contrary to former § 397 et seq. of this title. U.S. v. Holte, U.S.Wis.1915, 35 S.Ct. 271, 236 U.S. 140, 59 L.Ed. 504. Conspiracy ↻ 28(3)

Where woman merely consents to be transported from one state to another for purpose of prostitution she cannot be guilty of conspiracy to violate § 2421 of this title, prohibiting interstate transportation of women for purpose of prostitution. U. S. v. Holz, E.D.Ill.1950, 103 F.Supp. 191, reversed on other grounds 191 F.2d 569. Conspiracy ↻ 40

115. Partners, parties liable for conspiracy

In prosecution for conspiracy to defraud Government of floor stock tax on distilled spirits and wines by concealing and failure to inventory almost two-thirds of stock, absence of one partner when inventory was taken and testimony that he told other partner to check stock carefully did not absolve such partner in view of other evidence connecting him with conspiracy under rule that a conspiracy may be shown by inferences or by circumstances. Auerbach v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1943, 136 F.2d 882. Conspiracy ↻ 47(9)

Partners may be prosecuted for conspiracy to defraud government of income taxes by making false partnership return and individual returns based thereon. Lisansky v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (Md.) 1929, 31 F.2d 846, certiorari denied

116. Corporations, parties liable for conspiracy

Corporate defendant, a defense contractor, could be convicted of conspiracy to defraud or make false statements to federal government, notwithstanding its contention that, as it was vicariously liable for each of its employees, conspiracy between employees would necessitate finding that defendant conspired with itself; statute does not exclude criminal liability for corporation where its employees are actual coconspirators. U.S. v. Hughes Aircraft Co., Inc., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1994, 20 F.3d 974, as amended, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 482, 513 U.S. 987, 130 L.Ed.2d 395. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(5)

Defendant who was only person associated with corporation, could not conspire with corporation to defraud Government; although corporation could be party to conspiracy, two or more natural persons were required to be involved. U.S. v. Stevens, C.A.11 (Fla.) 1990, 909 F.2d 431.

Evidence was insufficient to establish conspiracy among the principal owners, officers and management employees of engineering firm in connection with various invoices and construction plans and specifications involved in substantive charges of making false statements in matters within the jurisdiction of a department or agency of the United States; it was not sufficient to prove conspiracy that firm was a small closely held family corporation in which all of the individual defendants were officers and primarily responsible for the operation of the business or that all of the individual defendants financially benefited from the operation of the firm. U.S. v. Richmond, C.A.8 (N.D.) 1983, 700 F.2d 1183.

A corporation may conspire with its own officers, agents and employees in violation of this section. U. S. v. Hartley, C.A.11 (Fla.) 1982, 678 F.2d 961, rehearing denied 688 F.2d 852, certiorari denied 103 S.Ct. 815, 459 U.S. 1170, 74 L.Ed.2d 1014, certiorari denied 103 S.Ct. 834, 459 U.S. 1183, 74 L.Ed.2d 1027.

Corporation is criminally responsible for acts of its officers and can be charged with their conspiracies. U. S. v. Sherpix, Inc., C.A.D.C.1975, 512 F.2d 1361, 168 U.S.App.D.C. 121.

The term "persons" in this section relating to conspiracy to commit offense against United States, or to defraud United States, or any agency, includes corporation. Alamo Fence Co. of Houston v. U.S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1957, 240 F.2d 179.

In prosecution of corporate money lender for conspiracy to cause to be made or passed statements which it knew to be false for purpose of influencing Federal Housing Administration to insure loans, money lender can not contend that area manager, who had sole authority to cause to be made credit statement applications in such area to be passed on for presentation to FHA for insurance had no corporate power to commit acts of bad faith with criminal intent imputable to money lender. C. I. T. Corp. v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1945, 150 F.2d 85.

In prosecution for conspiracy to cause to be made or passed statements, known to money lender to be false, for purpose of influencing Federal Housing Administration to insure certain loans, money lender is not relieved of guilt because its manager charged with duty of passing upon credit statements of applicants for FHA loans did not make a personal profit or because certain loan applications were not passed on to administration. C. I. T. Corp. v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1945, 150 F.2d 85.

The guilty intent of corporate officers to commit a crime may be imputed to corporation to prove corporation's guilt. Mininsohn v. U.S., C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1939, 101 F.2d 477.

Officers of corporation could have been indicted under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for conspiracy to conceal property from trustee in bankruptcy of corporation. Barron v. U.S., C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1925, 5 F.2d 799.

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

A corporation may be liable criminally for the crime of conspiracy. Joplin Mercantile Co. v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1914, 213 F. 926, 131 C.C.A. 160, Am. Ann. Cas. 1916C, 470, affirmed 35 S.Ct. 291, 236 U.S. 531, 59 L.Ed. 705. See, also, U.S. v. MacAndrews & Forbes Co., C.C.N.Y. 1906, 149 F. 823, error dismissed 29 S.Ct. 681, 212 U.S. 585, 53 L.Ed. 661.

Individuals could be guilty of conspiracy to conceal assets of a bankrupt corporation, even if it could not be charged as a conspirator. Roukous v. U.S., C.C.A.1 (R.I.) 1912, 195 F. 353, 115 C.C.A. 255, certiorari denied 32 S.Ct. 840, 225 U.S. 710, 56 L.Ed. 1267.

While conducting company business, officer or representative of corporation cannot conspire with corporation of which he forms indispensable part. Colonial Penn Ins. Co. v. Value Rent-A-Car Inc., S.D.Fla. 1992, 814 F.Supp. 1084.

Corporation generally cannot conspire with its own agents and employees. Williams v. Kansas Gas and Elec. Co., D.Kan. 1992, 805 F.Supp. 890.

Related corporations can be held to conspire. Finance Co. of America v. BankAmerica Corp., D.C.Md. 1980, 493 F.Supp. 895, 209 U.S.P.Q. 992.

Since corporation cannot conspire with itself, claim of corporate conspiracy could not be maintained against corporate defendants in products liability action whether one defendant was a division of where one defendant was a division of the other. Jagielski v. Package Mach. Co., E.D.Pa. 1980, 489 F.Supp. 232.

Corporation could be found guilty of criminal conspiracy under this section. U. S. v. Griffin, S.D.Ind. 1975, 401 F.Supp. 1222, affirmed 541 F.2d 284.

A corporation was capable of being a party to a conspiracy between corporation and its president and principal stockholder and its superintendent to commit an offense against the United States or to defraud United States. U. S. v. Kemmel, M.D.Pa. 1958, 160 F.Supp. 718.

It is necessary to have two persons or entities to have a conspiracy and a corporation cannot conspire with itself. Packaged Programs, Inc. v. Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., W.D.Pa. 1957, 156 F.Supp. 76, reversed on other grounds 255 F.2d 708. Conspiracy ↻ 1.1

Ordinarily, an officer of a corporation and his own corporation cannot conspire together, but if an officer of one corporation is also interested in another, and he acts both for the one corporation and for the other, or both for the one corporation and on his own account, it is possible to find a conspiracy, since such officer would then be acting in a dual role and would be, in contemplation of law, two persons. Cape Cod Food Products v. National Cranberry Ass'n, D.C.Mass. 1954, 119 F.Supp. 900.

117. Employees, parties liable for conspiracy

If employee has knowledge that government property purchased by his employer has been stolen and that his employer intends to convert it to his own use, and if he conspires with his employer and others to effectuate that plan and actively participates therein, he is guilty of engaging in unlawful conspiracy to commit offense against the United States. Baker v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1968, 393 F.2d 604, certiorari denied 89 S.Ct. 110, 393 U.S. 836, 21 L.Ed.2d 106.

An employee who assists his employer in receiving and concealing stolen government property purchased by the employer is not necessarily guilty of aiding and abetting, a violation of section 641 of this title making it unlawful to steal public property, or of conspiring to commit such an offense. Baker v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1968, 393 F.2d

604, certiorari denied 89 S.Ct. 110, 393 U.S. 836, 21 L.Ed.2d 106.

Mere fact that certain defendants charged with violations of the gambling tax laws might have been employees instead of proprietors of an establishment at which gambling operations were conducted did not necessarily exclude them as co-conspirators engaged in an attempt, among other things, to defeat their own tax liabilities, where such defendants accepted or received bets. U. S. v. Sams, W.D.Pa.1963, 219 F.Supp. 164, affirmed in part, vacated in part on other grounds 340 F.2d 1014, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 1336, 380 U.S. 974, 14 L.Ed.2d 270, on remand 241 F.Supp. 427.

118. Bankrupts and conspirators, parties liable for conspiracy

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate Bankruptcy Act, § 1 et seq. of Title 11, by concealing property of bankrupt from trustee, while conspiracy must comprehend participation of bankrupt, it is enough if it does though he never joins. Kaplan v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1925, 7 F.2d 594, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 107, 269 U.S. 582, 70 L.Ed. 423

Insolvent debtors may properly be convicted of a conspiracy to conceal their assets, so that their creditors cannot reach the assets through bankruptcy proceedings which the debtors are expecting to be instituted. Meyer v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1919, 258 F. 212, 169 C.C.A. 280.

Those conspiring before a petition in bankruptcy was filed to receive the property of the bankrupt, under an agreement which contemplated further action after the petition was filed, may be convicted of a conspiracy to receive the property after bankruptcy, and § 23 of Title 11 affords no protection to witnesses other than the bankrupt who testified in the bankruptcy proceedings, and who were subsequently charged with conspiring to receive property of the bankrupt. Knoell v. U S, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1917, 239 F. 16, 152 C.C.A. 66, error dismissed 38 S.Ct. 316, 246 U.S. 648, 62 L.Ed. 920.

119. Law enforcement officers, parties liable for conspiracy

The mere failure of county officers and their deputies to enforce state liquor laws or to prevent a conspiracy to violate them without more is insufficient to support conviction for conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States, but it is necessary to prove that the officers or their deputies consented in some affirmative way to become a party to the concert of action. Wilder v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Okla.) 1938, 100 F.2d 177.

Failure of officer to prevent carrying out of a conspiracy may make him a party to it but failure of sheriff to enforce state law does not make him party to conspiracy to violate federal law, unless inaction is with view of aiding conspiracy. Burkhardt v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1926, 13 F.2d 841.

120. Judicial officers, parties liable for conspiracy

The alleged fact that acts were committed by accused in his judicial capacity in performance of his duties as conciliation commissioner did not preclude prosecution of accused for conspiring to defraud the United States by corruptly administering and procuring the corrupt administration of the Frazier-Lemke Act, §§ 201-203 of Title 11. Braateliën v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1945, 147 F.2d 888.

A judge of city court of Beverly Hills, appointed by city council, while acting in his judicial capacity and within his jurisdiction in imposing sentence and probation upon a person who pleaded guilty to charge of vagrancy, was immune from prosecution under former § 88 of this title [now this section] and former § 52 of this title, making it a crime to deprive citizens of civil rights under color of state laws. U.S. v. Chaplin, S.D.Cal.1944, 54 F.Supp. 926.

An agreement of a commissioner by which he was to receive a contingent fee of $5,000 for services in taking testimony in an alleged false claim against the government is not necessarily a guilty agreement and he must have had knowledge of the falsity and fraudulent character of the claim to render him guilty as a conspirator. U.S. v. Noblom, C.C.La.1878, 27 F.Cas. 181, No. 15896.

121. Attorneys, parties liable for conspiracy

Attorney, who was served with subpoena, could validly assert privilege against self-incrimination in response to questions asked of her in proceedings before special master to determine whether attorney's former clients should be held in civil contempt of district court order and whether matter should be referred to prosecutor for criminal contempt, in that attorney, in her individual capacity, was at least a secondary target of the possible criminal contempt prosecution, and attorney's answers to master's interrogation could provide evidence, or link in chain of evidence, that could later be used against attorney not only in prosecution for criminal contempt but most likely also for criminal conspiracy. In re Kave, C.A.1 (Mass.) 1985, 760 F.2d 343.

It is appropriate to consider canons of professional responsibility as a factor in determining an attorney's willing participation in a crime. U. S. v. DeLucca, C.A.5 (Ala.) 1980, 630 F.2d 294, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 1520, 450 U.S. 983, 67 L.Ed.2d 819.

It is no defense to a criminal prosecution for conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States that defendant acted in his professional capacity as an attorney. Baird v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1912, 196 F. 778, 116 C.C.A. 73.

Fact that no clients of attorneys were charged with tax evasion did not preclude indictment of attorneys for conspiracy to defraud the Government as a result of a tax evasion scheme developed by the attorneys. U. S. v. Baskes, N.D.Ill.1977, 433 F.Supp. 799.

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate the Smith Act, § 2385 of this title, it is no defense that particular defendant was a member of the bar of federal court. U.S. v. Frankfeld, D.C.Md.1952, 103 F.Supp. 48.

If a client and his attorney enter into a conspiracy to resist an officer in performing his duty both are equally guilty. U. S. v. Smith, C.C.E.D.Ark.1870, 27 F.Cas. 1161, No. 16333.

122. Principal and agent, parties liable for conspiracy

Acquittal of principal did not preclude conviction of defendant on charge of aiding and abetting principal. U. S. v. Musgrave, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1973, 483 F.2d 327, certiorari denied 94 S.Ct. 447, 414 U.S. 1023, 38 L.Ed.2d 315, certiorari denied 94 S.Ct. 450, 414 U.S. 1025, 38 L.Ed.2d 316.

The acts of agents and employéés in furtherance of a conspiracy are the acts of the principal. Alaska S.S. Co. v. International Longshoremen's Ass'n of Puget Sound, W.D.Wash.1916, 236 F. 964.

An indictment would lie under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for conspiracy to commit an offense in violation of § 1 of Title 49, against an agent of a railroad company and others, to whom by agreement he issued interstate free passes, and who pursuant to such agreement sold the same in violation thereof, and the agent could not defend on the ground that his principal had no knowledge of the fact, and therefore committed no offense under said section. U.S. v. Clark, W.D.Mo.1908, 164 F. 75.

Where indictment charged a conspiracy to defraud the United States by mailing old newspapers for the purpose of fraudulently increasing the weight of mail matter, if such mailing was done by defendant's servants or agents, as such, and not as parties to, or members or abettors of, the common design, they will not be deemed co-conspirators,

nor will such mailing amount to an overt act. U.S. v. Newton, S.D.Iowa 1892, 52 F. 275. Conspiracy ↻ 40

Principal cannot conspire with his agent. Tobman v. Cottage Woodcraft Shop, S.D.Cal.1961, 194 F.Supp. 83.

123. Aiders and abettors, parties liable for conspiracy

Operator of photographic identification machine, who produced fraudulent photographic identification cards at request of members of conspiracy to correspond with names of payees of stolen checks, actively assisted and participated in conspiracy to receive and unlawfully possess stolen checks and could be convicted, where operator ordered recipient of false identification card to return share of illegally obtained funds and identification card, operator received payments totaling $280, and operator provided identification necessary for cashing of stolen checks. U.S. v. Collazo, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1987, 815 F.2d 1138.

A person can be convicted of aiding the filing of a false tax return even though he did not actually prepare it; all that is required is that he knowingly participated in providing information that results in a materially fraudulent tax return, whether or not taxpayer is aware of the false statements. U.S. v. Nealy, C.A.4 (W.Va.) 1984, 729 F.2d 961.

Evidence in counterfeiting prosecution that defendant initially asked third party to print counterfeit notes, obtained plates and ink necessary for printing, instructed third party on how to print the notes, was present when third party ran the printing machine, and cut the notes to the appropriate size established that defendant was guilty of exactly the conduct with which he was charged in the indictment, that is, aiding another in the violation of the federal counterfeiting statute, and fact that he was indicted for "aiding and abetting," while third party, the principal, was not convicted nor even indicted, did not compel a different result. U. S. v. Brunson, C.A.7 (Ind.) 1981, 657 F.2d 110, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 1019, 454 U.S. 1151, 71 L.Ed.2d 306.

A defendant may wittingly aid a criminal act and be liable as an aider and abettor, but not be liable for conspiracy, which requires knowledge of voluntary participation in agreement to do illegal act. U. S. v. Bright, C.A.5 (Miss.) 1980, 630 F.2d 804.

Conspiring to commit crime with another and aiding and abetting in its substantive commission were distinct crimes, and Government should not have been forced to choose between deleting the aiding and abetting element of second count of indictment or dropping conspiracy charge under third count. U.S. v. Townes, C.A.6 (Mich.) 1975, 512 F.2d 1057, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 84, 423 U.S. 846, 46 L.Ed.2d 67.

Defendant's acquittal of conspiracy to sell cocaine did not bar subsequent conviction for aiding and abetting the substantive offense on theory that the acquittal was an adjudication that defendant lacked the requisite criminal intent to sustain a conviction for conspiracy. Ottomano v. U. S., C.A.1 (Mass.) 1972, 468 F.2d 269, certiorari denied 93 S.Ct. 948, 409 U.S. 1128, 35 L.Ed.2d 260, rehearing denied 93 S.Ct. 1383, 410 U.S. 948, 35 L.Ed.2d 616.

Conspiracy to commit a substantive offense and aiding and abetting commission of same offense constitute separate and distinct crimes and a defendant may be convicted of both. U. S. v. Tropiano, C.A.2 (Conn.) 1969, 418 F.2d 1069, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 1258, 397 U.S. 1021, 25 L.Ed.2d 530, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 1262, 397 U.S. 1021, 25 L.Ed.2d 530.

Where defendant not only knew of intended illegal use of obscene film but also furthered, promoted, and cooperated in it by supplying merchandise banned from interstate commerce which he delivered in furtive and clandestine manner in order to avoid detection, he thus aided and abetted such transportation and conspired to so transport. U. S. v. Russo, C.A.2 (Conn.) 1960, 284 F.2d 539.

One does not become a party to conspiracy by aiding and abetting it, through sales of supplies or otherwise, unless he knows of the conspiracy, and the inference of such knowledge cannot be drawn merely from knowledge the buyer will use the goods illegally. Van Huss v. United States, C.A.10 (N.M.) 1952, 197 F.2d 120. See, also, U.S. v. Giuliano, C.A.N.J.1959, 263 F.2d 582. Conspiracy ↻ 47(2); Conspiracy ↻ 40.1

Where two persons act in concert to commit a wrong each is liable for entire injury resulting therefrom, and on who abets a wrongful act is equally liable with the perpetrator. International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union v. Juneau Spruce Corp., C.A.9 (Alaska) 1951, 189 F.2d 177, 13 Alaska 291, certiorari granted 72 S.Ct. 89, 342 U.S. 857, 13 Alaska 455, 96 L.Ed. 645, affirmed 72 S.Ct. 235, 342 U.S. 237, 13 Alaska 536, 96 L.Ed. 275.

A person does not become a "conspirator" nor is he chargeable as a "co-conspirator" simply because he sells material or merchandise knowing that it will be used for unlawful purpose. Bacon v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Okla.) 1942, 127 F.2d 985.

The seller of goods does not become a "conspirator" or an "abettor" merely because he does not refrain from selling goods which he knows the buyers intend to use in committing a crime, but he must in some sense promote their venture himself, make it his own, or have a stake in its outcome, before he is guilty as a "conspirator" or an "abettor". U.S. v. Falcone, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1940, 109 F.2d 579, certiorari granted 60 S.Ct. 1075, 310 U.S. 620, 84 L.Ed. 1393, affirmed 61 S.Ct. 204, 311 U.S. 205, 85 L.Ed. 128.

Jobber, wholesalers, and distributor, who supplied sugar, yeast, and cans out of which alcohol was illicitly distilled or in which it was sold, were not guilty of conspiring with buyers to operate illicit stills even if they knew of illegal use to which the products were being put, notwithstanding that distributor of yeast operated under a certificate taken out for him by a cousin who swore falsely that he was to do the business. U.S. v. Falcone, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1940, 109 F.2d 579, certiorari granted 60 S.Ct. 1075, 310 U.S. 620, 84 L.Ed. 1393, affirmed 61 S.Ct. 204, 311 U.S. 205, 85 L.Ed. 128.

Participation in formation of conspiracy is not essential to culpability, if, after it was formed, accused aided or abetted it with understanding of its purpose. Luteran v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1937, 93 F.2d 395, certiorari denied 58 S.Ct. 642, 303 U.S. 644, 82 L.Ed. 1103, rehearing denied 58 S.Ct. 756, 303 U.S. 668, 82 L.Ed. 1124, certiorari denied 58 S.Ct. 643, 303 U.S. 644, 82 L.Ed. 1104.

Defendant aiding in conspiracy to violate liquor law by selling materials after knowledge of such conspiracy is coconspirator. Pattis v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Idaho) 1927, 17 F.2d 562, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 764, 274 U.S. 750, 71 L.Ed. 1332.

One with knowledge of conspiracy, and aiding conspirators in carrying out unlawful design, is equally guilty with them. Di Bonaventura v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (W.Va.) 1926, 15 F.2d 494. See, also, Johnson v. U.S., 1925, 45 S.Ct. 509, 268 U.S. 689, 69 L.Ed. 1158; Mullen v. U.S., 1925, 45 S.Ct. 353, 267 U.S. 598, 69 L.Ed. 806; Burkhardt v. U.S., C.C.A. Ohio 1926, 13 F.2d 841; Simpson v. U.S., C.C.A.W.Va.1926, 11 F.2d 591, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 488, 271 U.S. 674, 70 L.Ed. 1145; Allen v. U.S., C.C.A.Ind.1925, 4 F.2d 688, certiorari denied 45 S.Ct. 352, 267 U.S. 597, 69 L.Ed. 806. Conspiracy ↻ 40.1

Where the evidence showed a continuing conspiracy for the illegal purchase and sale of liquor, persons who, with knowledge of the conspiracy, contributed to its carrying out by knowingly selling liquor to the initial conspirators, though at different times and without knowledge of each other became parties to the conspiracy. Rudner v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1922, 281 F. 516, 2 Ohio Law Abs. 242, certiorari denied 43 S.Ct. 95, 260 U.S. 734, 67 L.Ed. 487.

Courts are not authorized to hold as a matter of law that one who aids and abets another in the commission of an offense is a conspirator. Louie v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1914, 218 F. 36, 134 C.C.A. 58.

Defendant, even if not "agreeing" member of conspiracy, may be found guilty of conspiracy if he knew of conspiracy's existence at time of his acts, and his acts knowingly aided or abetted business of conspiracy. U.S. v. Sims, N.D.Ill.1992, 808 F.Supp. 620.

Defendant's role as knowing aider and abetter to conspiracy offense provided basis upon which to find him liable as a coconspirator where he actually enabled the agreement itself to come into being by communicating between the other coconspirators the messages by which their conspiracy was formed. U.S. v. Ammons, W.D.N.C.1988, 682 F.Supp. 1332.

Conviction of one indicted as principal will stand even though evidence shows he was aider or an abettor, and government is not required to explicitly allege that defendant was aider or abettor, nor is government required to refer to section 2 of this title in the indictment. Murzyn v. U.S., N.D.Ind.1984, 578 F.Supp. 254, affirmed 753 F.2d 1076.

An aider and abettor is punished for assisting in commission of a crime whereas a conspirator is punished for joining with one or more others in a plan to commit a crime regardless of whether the planned crime is actually committed. U.S. v. Miller, N.D.Ill.1982, 552 F.Supp. 827, affirmed 729 F.2d 1464.

Conspiracy and aiding and abetting are distinct offenses; finding of insufficiency of the evidence to establish that defendants aided and abetted one another in the commission of specific offenses is not necessarily inconsistent with existence of conspiracy with both of the defendants as knowing and willful participants. U. S. v. Talbott, S.D.Ohio 1978, 460 F.Supp. 253, affirmed 590 F.2d 192.

The conspiracy doctrine will incriminate persons on fringe of offending who would not be guilty of aiding and abetting, or of becoming an accessory, for those charges only lie where an act which is a crime has already been committed. U. S. v. Anthony, M.D.Pa.1956, 145 F.Supp. 323.

Aiding and abetting in commission of crime is distinct from conspiracy to commit crime, and neither conviction nor acquittal of one is per se bar to prosecution for other. U.S. v. J.R. Watkins Co., D.C.Minn.1954, 127 F.Supp. 97.

Aiding and abetting is not independent crime, and acts constituting basis of charge of aiding and abetting must be acts which tend to commission of some substantive offense, while overt act necessary to conspiracy may itself be innocent. U.S. v. J.R. Watkins Co., D.C.Minn.1954, 127 F.Supp. 97.

To be a party to a conspiracy, whether criminal or civil, one must actually participate therein by aiding or abetting it in some way, and mere acquiescence or standing by and watching others conspire does not suffice to impose either criminal or civil conspiratorial responsibility. U.S. v. American Precision Products Corp., D.C.N.J.1953, 115 F.Supp. 823.

124. Nonfeasors, parties liable for conspiracy

The failure to prevent carrying out of conspiracy to violate federal law, though accused has power to do so, will not make him guilty of offense without further proof that he has in some affirmative way consented to be a party thereto. Marino v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1937, 91 F.2d 691, certiorari denied 58 S.Ct. 410, 302 U.S. 764, 82 L.Ed. 593.

125. Prisoners, parties liable for conspiracy

Prisoners paying for privilege of leaving jail were parties to conspiracies to disobey writs of commitment, and violate statute as to escapes. U.S. v. Hoffman, D.C.Ill.1925, 13 F.2d 269, affirmed 13 F.2d 278, affirmed 13 F.2d 280, certiorari dismissed 57 S.Ct. 755, 296 U.S. 666. See, also, Westbrook v. U.S., C.C.A.1926, 13 F.2d 280.

Conspiracy ↪ 40

126. Persons beyond territorial jurisdiction, parties liable for conspiracy

Officers and crew of liquor-laden vessel were subject to prosecution for conspiracy to violate laws of United States, though corporeally at all times outside jurisdiction of United States. Ford v. U.S., U.S.Cal.1927, 47 S.Ct. 531, 273 U.S. 593, 71 L.Ed. 793.

Though a foreign naval commander is safe from arrest under federal warrant while on his foreign vessel, his status does not sanctify a conspiracy with him to violate United States laws. Farnsworth v. Zerbst, C.C.A.5 (Ga.) 1938, 98 F.2d 541.

Citizens or subjects of foreign nation beyond territorial jurisdiction may commit offense of conspiracy against United States. Woitte v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Or.) 1927, 19 F.2d 506, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 84, 275 U.S. 545, 72 L.Ed. 417.

127. Foreign officials, parties liable for conspiracy

Foreign officials may not be prosecuted under the general conspiracy statute for conspiring to violate the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA). U.S. v. Castle, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1991, 925 F.2d 831.

Canadian officials, whom Government conceded it could not prosecute for violation of Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, could not be prosecuted under general conspiracy statute for conspiring to violate Act; evidence of Congressional intent to exempt foreign officials from prosecution for receiving bribes from Americans was overwhelming, and allowing conspiracy prosecution would permit executive branch to override such intent. U.S. v. Bloudek, N.D.Tex.1990, 741 F.Supp. 116, affirmed 925 F.2d 831.

128. Immunity, parties liable for conspiracy

Where attention given in evidence is to substance of defendant congressman's speech on floor of House and his motivation in making it was not incidental part of government's prosecution under charge of conspiracy to defraud United States, since conspiracy theory depended on showing that speech was made solely or primarily to serve private interests and that defendant was not acting in good faith, the judicial inquiry was in violation of language of constitutional provision of U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 1, § 6, cl. 1, stating that for any speech or debate in either house the senators and representatives shall not be questioned in any other place and the policies underlying it. U. S. v. Johnson, U.S.Md.1966, 86 S.Ct. 749, 383 U.S. 169, 15 L.Ed.2d 681.

If there was a real agreement between defendant and agents of Iraqi Intelligence Service (IIS) for defendant to act in United States as agent of Iraq without notifying Attorney General, diplomatic titles held by those IIS agents could not save defendant from being prosecuted for conspiracy to act as agent. U.S. v. Dumeisi, C.A.7 (Ill.) 2005, 424 F.3d 566, certiorari denied 126 S.Ct. 1570, 164 L.Ed.2d 305. Ambassadors And Consuls ↪ 3

The immunity from prosecution of a foreign diplomat who conspires with United States citizen to commit crime will not excuse the citizen. Farnsworth v. Zerbst, C.C.A.5 (Ga.) 1938, 98 F.2d 541.

A United States citizen was not, by virtue of alleged immunity from prosecution of his coconspirators, immune from prosecution for conspiring with Japanese diplomats and naval commander to deliver to Japan information, concerning the national defense. Farnsworth v. Zerbst, C.C.A.5 (Ga.) 1938, 98 F.2d 541.

Defendant's agreement with state officials guaranteeing him immunity from prosecution was not binding on federal government under equitable immunity doctrine, in prosecution for conspiracy to commit bribery, where federal government knew or should have known that defendant was cooperating witness, but there was no evidence federal government's decisions were made with deliberate intention of distorting judicial fact finding process. U.S. v. Roberts, D.Del.2003, 280 F.Supp.2d 325. Criminal Law ↪ 42

129. Knowledge, parties liable for conspiracy--Generally

Government was not required to prove that defendant had knowledge of all details of conspiracy or each of its members, provided that prosecution established his knowledge of the essentials of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Alvarez, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 625 F.2d 1196, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 2017, 451 U.S. 938, 68 L.Ed.2d 324.

To establish culpability of each individual defendant in a conspiracy to defraud, government must prove beyond reasonable doubt that each defendant knew of conspiracy and had the deliberate knowing and specific intent to join the conspiracy. U.S. v. Becker, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1978, 569 F.2d 951, rehearing denied 576 F.2d 931, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 188, 439 U.S. 865, 58 L.Ed.2d 174, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 726, 439 U.S. 1048, 58 L.Ed.2d 708.

Person can be convicted of guilty participation in conspiracy on basis of acts innocent in themselves only if he had guilty knowledge that what he did was in furtherance of corrupt enterprise. U. S. v. Rappaport, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1961, 292 F.2d 261, certiorari denied 82 S.Ct. 48, 368 U.S. 827, 7 L.Ed.2d 31.

One who has no knowledge of the object of a conspiracy cannot be a conspirator for the intent to participate is lacking. Stanley v. U. S., C.A.6 (Ky.) 1957, 245 F.2d 427, motion denied 249 F.2d 64.

Fact that defendant committed illegal acts which furthered the object of conspiracy did not constitute him a conspirator unless he did so with some knowledge of conspiracy. Henderson v. U.S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1956, 237 F.2d 169.

It is not necessary that conspirators should know in advance precisely what contingencies will arise, in order to agree as to how they will deal with all possible contingencies which appear likely to have the results which the conspirators seek to avoid. United States v. Grunewald, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1956, 233 F.2d 556, certiorari granted 77 S.Ct. 91, 352 U.S. 866, 1 L.Ed.2d 74, reversed on other grounds 77 S.Ct. 963, 353 U.S. 391, 1 L.Ed.2d 931.

Mere knowledge that coconspirator is engaged in other criminal conspiracies, with other persons, of the same general nature, is not sufficient to make conspirator a party thereto. Canella v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1946, 157 F.2d 470.

If one's intent is to defraud when he joins a dishonest scheme, he becomes a part of the scheme, although he may know nothing but his own share in the aggregate wrongdoing. Blue v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1943, 138 F.2d 351, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 1046, 322 U.S. 736, 88 L.Ed. 1570, rehearing denied 64 S.Ct. 1259, 322 U.S. 771, 88 L.Ed. 1596, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 1046, 322 U.S. 737, 88 L.Ed. 1570.

A party who, without more, furnishes supplies to an illicit distiller is not guilty of "conspiracy" even though his sale may have furthered the object of a conspiracy to which the distiller was a party but of which the party furnishing supplies had no knowledge. U.S. v. Harrison, C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1941, 121 F.2d 930, certiorari denied 62 S.Ct. 124, 314 U.S. 661, 86 L.Ed. 530.

Knowledge of existence of a conspiracy is not alone enough to constitute one a party to it, so as to sustain conspiracy conviction. U.S. v. Potash, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1941, 118 F.2d 54, certiorari denied 61 S.Ct. 1103, 313 U.S. 584, 85 L.Ed. 1540. See, also, McDaniel v. U.S., C.C.A.Fla.1928, 24 F.2d 303; *U.S. v. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

In prosecution for selling securities in violation of the Securities Act, §§ 77e(a)(1) and 77q(a)(1) of Title 15, for using mails to promote fraud, and for conspiracy, if any particular defendant were ignorant of facts from the knowledge of which, alone, fraudulent intent could be inferred, such defendant could not be convicted unless his ignorance resulted from failure to exercise such discretion in ascertaining the facts as would be expected of a reasonably prudent person. Stone v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1940, 113 F.2d 70.

A charge of engaging in a far-reaching conspiracy cannot be avoided by showing that what the accused conceived to be a limited conspiracy turned out to be a conspiracy of wider range of which the supposed smaller one was in fact but a segment, and it is enough that accused knew he had connected himself with a criminal conspiracy, even though he was unaware of its full extent. U.S. v. Manton, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1939, 107 F.2d 834, certiorari denied 60 S.Ct. 590, 309 U.S. 664, 84 L.Ed. 1012.

Knowledge on part of individual conspirator is a matter of inference from facts proved, and it is unnecessary that he be fully informed concerning scope of conspiracy to justify inference of knowledge on his part. U.S. v. Anderson, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1939, 101 F.2d 325, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 822, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1502, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 822, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1503, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 823, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1503, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 823, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1504, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 824, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1505, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 824, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1506, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 825, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1506, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 825, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1507, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 825, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1508, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 826, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1508, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 826, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1509.

To constitute a "conspiracy," it is not necessary that all of the parties be personally acquainted with each other, nor that one has direct contact with all others, it being sufficient if, with knowledge that others have combined to violate the law, one knowingly co-operates in some affirmative manner to further the purpose of the conspiracy. Martin v. U. S., C.C.A.10 (Colo.) 1938, 100 F.2d 490, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 590, 306 U.S. 649, 83 L.Ed. 104, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 590, 306 U.S. 649, 83 L.Ed. 1047, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 590, 306 U.S. 649, 83 L.Ed. 1048, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 591, 306 U.S. 649, 83 L.Ed. 1048, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 642, 306 U.S. 651, 83 L.Ed. 1050.

Guilt of conspirator is not dependent on knowledge of entire scope of conspiracy or as to who all members of conspiracy were. U.S. v. Wilson, D.C.W.Va.1927, 23 F.2d 112.

Persons having knowledge of purpose in interstate transportation of prize fight films and furthering such undertaking may be found guilty of conspiracy. U.S. v. Wilson, D.C.W.Va.1927, 23 F.2d 112.

Guilt of conspirator is not dependent on his knowledge of entire scope of conspiracy. McDonnell v. U.S., C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1927, 19 F.2d 801, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 114, 275 U.S. 551, 72 L.Ed. 421.

It is not necessary that each coconspirator have knowledge of all details of conspiracy or means to be used. U.S. v. Olmstead, D.C.Wash.1925, 5 F.2d 712.

One could not be convicted of conspiracy to defraud the United States, consisting in exercising, under a certain circular issued by the Treasury Department, the privilege of converting First Liberty Loan 4 per cent. bonds into Third Liberty Loan 4 1/2 per cent. bonds after the time limit set out in the circular had expired, using for that purpose bonds of the United States deposited with the Federal Reserve Bank, unless it was shown that the accused had knowledge of the terms of the circular or of the time within which the conversion privilege could be exercised. U S v. Jenks, E.D.Pa.1919, 258 F. 763.

Knowledge by an alleged co-conspirator that the other defendants are attempting to defraud is not sufficient to involve him in the conspiracy, nor is mere suspicion that he is a party to the conspiracy. Marrash v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1909, 168 F. 225, 93 C.C.A. 511.

In order to convict a defendant of conspiracy, government need not prove that defendant knew of all of the facts of the scheme, or knew of identity of each of the coconspirators, or played parts of equal importance or activity with other persons within conspiracy; evidence need merely show that each defendant possessed full knowledge of conspiracy's general scope and purpose. U. S. v. Simms, W.D.La.1980, 508 F.Supp. 1188.

To be included as a coconspirator, the individual need only know the general purpose of the conspiracy and not the part played by each of the members of the conspiracy. U.S. v. Vigi, E.D.Mich.1973, 363 F.Supp. 314.

Person does not become liable as a conspirator unless he knows of the existence of the conspiracy, agrees to become a party, and with that knowledge commits some act in furtherance thereof, and such knowledge and participation may be inferred from circumstances and acts and conduct of the parties. U. S. v. Kensil, E.D.Pa.1961, 195 F.Supp. 115, affirmed 295 F.2d 489, certiorari denied 82 S.Ct. 439, 368 U.S. 967, 7 L.Ed.2d 396 . See, also, Jones v. U.S., C.A.Okla.1958, 251 F.2d 288, certiorari denied, 78 S.Ct. 703, 356 U.S. 919, 2 L.Ed.2d 715. Conspiracy ⚡ 24.5; Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

Some degree of knowledge and consent to conspiracy, or some kind of knowing assistance given in furtherance of it, is usually required to impose liability. Riss & Co. v. Association of American Railroads, D.C.D.C.1959, 170 F.Supp. 354, certiorari denied 267 F.2d 659, 105 U.S.App.D.C. 382, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 108, 361 U.S. 804, 4 L.Ed.2d 57.

Persons having no knowledge of conspiracy are not conspirators. U. S. v. Gilboy, M.D.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 442.

An intention to become a party to an illegal enterprise must be predicated on some affirmative action and a person having no knowledge of a conspiracy cannot be a conspirator. U. S. v. Weinberg, M.D.Pa.1955, 129 F.Supp. 514, affirmed 226 F.2d 161, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 305, 350 U.S. 933, 100 L.Ed. 815.

To participate "wilfully" in conspiracy means to participate voluntarily and purposely, with specific intent to violate law or reckless disregard as to whether participant's act is violation of law, so that person intentionally encouraging, advising or assisting other conspirators for purpose of furthering their enterprise or scheme, with understanding of its unlawful character, becomes a willful participant in conspiracy. U. S. v. Schneiderman, S.D.Cal.1952, 106 F.Supp. 906.

Where the substantive offense requires the mutual cooperation of one seller and one buyer for its commission, the seller must know of the existence of the conspiracy charged in the indictment and that he is furthering its purpose before he can be convicted as a co-conspirator, otherwise venture terminates with sale and seller can have no intention of helping conspirators obtain the fruits of their labors. U. S. v. Boyer, E.D.Pa.1949, 84 F.Supp. 905.

Where a charge of conspiracy is limited to two persons, the guilty knowledge must have been shared by both to warrant conviction of either. U.S. v. Cunningham, M.D.Ga.1941, 40 F.Supp. 399.

130. ---- Object of conspiracy, knowledge, parties liable for conspiracy

Defendants could be convicted of conspiracy to defraud bank, to misapply its funds, to transport fraudulently obtained money in interstate commerce, to make false entries in bank's records, to make false representations to bank in connection with loan application, and to use interstate wire or telephone communications system to further those wrongs, in light of evidence they had knowledge of two of conspiracy's primary objectives, even though they did not know exact scope of conspiracy. U.S. v. Rapp, C.A.11 (Fla.) 1989, 871 F.2d 957, certiorari denied 110 S.Ct. 233, 493 U.S. 890, 107 L.Ed.2d 184.

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

A person may be guilty of the conspiracy even though he has limited knowledge as to the scope of the conspiracy and no knowledge of details of the plan or operation in furtherance thereof or of the membership in the conspiracy or of the part played by each member and the division of the spoils, however, to sustain a conviction, the defendant must know the purpose of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Chambers, C.A.6 (Ohio) 1967, 382 F.2d 910.

Knowledge on the accused's part of the object of conspiracy after the conspiracy has ended and the offense is committed is not sufficient to convict him as member of conspiracy. Stanley v. U. S., C.A.6 (Ky.) 1957, 245 F.2d 427, motion denied 249 F.2d 64.

While it is not necessary to prove that each participant in conspiracy knows exact parameters of plan, they must at least share general conspiratorial objective. Haupt v. Dillard, D.Nev.1992, 794 F.Supp. 1480, affirmed in part, reversed in part 17 F.3d 285, as amended.

One who knowingly and intentionally joins a going conspiracy, aware of its objectives, may be held, whether his role was minor or major and whether or not he knew all alleged members of claimed conspiracy. U. S. v. Nomura Trading Co., S.D.N.Y.1963, 213 F.Supp. 704.

131. ---- Illegal purpose, knowledge, parties liable for conspiracy

Jobbers and distributors who sold sugar, yeast, and cans, with knowledge that the materials would be used in illicit distilling operations, but without knowledge that buyers were parties to a conspiracy, were not guilty of "conspiracy" with buyers to operate illicit stills, even if the sales furthered object of the conspiracy to which buyers were parties. United States v. Falcone, U.S.N.Y.1940, 61 S.Ct. 204, 311 U.S. 205, 85 L.Ed. 128.

In order to connect a defendant to a conspiracy, prosecution must demonstrate that defendant entered into an agreement with others knowingly and for purpose of achieving an illegal objective. U. S. v. DeLucca, C.A.5 (Ala.) 1980, 630 F.2d 294, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 1520, 450 U.S. 983, 67 L.Ed.2d 819.

A conspirator must agree to and participate in a scheme which he knows to have an illegal objective. U.S. v. Gleason, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1979, 616 F.2d 2, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 1037, 444 U.S. 1082, 62 L.Ed.2d 767, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 1320, 445 U.S. 931, 63 L.Ed.2d 764.

It is not necessary that all of persons taking part in conspiracy should play parts of equal importance or activity; it is sufficient to convict defendant of conspiracy if he knows in a general way of purpose of other persons to violate the law and then assists in any way to accomplish such purpose no matter how great or small his activities may be. U. S. v. Bryant, C.A.4 (S.C.) 1966, 364 F.2d 598.

Where original conspiracy to steal and transport goods in interstate commerce contemplates eventual sale of goods to innocent purchaser, goods continue in interstate commerce until they reach that destination and anyone who purchases goods from one in conspiracy knowing that they were stolen and transported in interstate commerce becomes part of conspiracy. U. S. v. Cardillo, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1963, 316 F.2d 606, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 123, 375 U.S. 857, 11 L.Ed.2d 84, rehearing denied 84 S.Ct. 203, 375 U.S. 917, 11 L.Ed.2d 158, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 60, 375 U.S. 822, 11 L.Ed.2d 55, rehearing denied 84 S.Ct. 263, 375 U.S. 926, 11 L.Ed.2d 169.

One who sells materials with knowledge that they are intended for use in distilling illicit spirits does not thereby become party to conspiracy. U. S. v. Cherry, C.A.4 (N.C.) 1961, 295 F.2d 842.

Even if defendant, who, in Texas, purchased maps stolen from Pittsburgh office of oil company, did not expressly agree to transport the maps across state lines, where maps had to be taken from Pittsburgh and placed in his hands and had to be taken to areas they depicted in order to exploit them, agreement on his part to so transport them was inherent part of scheme and he could be convicted of conspiracy to transport the maps in interstate commerce, knowing them to have been stolen. U. S. v. Lester, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1960, 282 F.2d 750, certiorari denied 81 S.Ct. 385, 364 U.S. 937, 5 L.Ed.2d 368.

If there be knowledge by an individual defendant that he is a participant in a general plan designed to place narcotics in hands of ultimate users, such person may be deemed to be regarded as an accredited member of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Rich, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1959, 262 F.2d 415.

Conspirators are held to have intended consequences of their act, and by purposely engaging in a conspiracy which necessarily and directly produces a prohibited result, they are, in contemplation of law, chargeable with intending that result. Ingram v. U. S., C.A.5 (Ga.) 1958, 259 F.2d 886, certiorari granted 79 S.Ct. 234, 358 U.S. 905, 3 L.Ed.2d 227, affirmed in part, reversed in part on other grounds 79 S.Ct. 1314, 360 U.S. 672, 3 L.Ed.2d 1503, rehearing denied 80 S.Ct. 42, 361 U.S. 856, 4 L.Ed.2d 96.

Mere knowledge of illegal purpose on part of buyer may be sufficient to convict seller of engaging in conspiracy with buyer. Quirk v. U. S., C.A.1 (Mass.) 1957, 250 F.2d 909, certiorari denied 78 S.Ct. 669, 356 U.S. 913, 2 L.Ed.2d 585.

Mere association with conspirators in matters not connected with the unlawful undertaking does not make one a conspirator, even though he may know that an unlawful undertaking is in the making by those with whom he associates. Butler v. U. S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1952, 197 F.2d 561.

Rule that sale of sugar and yeast with knowledge that materials are to be used in illicit distilling operations but without knowledge that buyers were parties to a conspiracy does not make sellers guilty of conspiracy, did not preclude convicting of conspiracy sellers who knew that buyers had formed a conspiracy to violate internal revenue laws. U S v. Mule, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1944, 141 F.2d 487.

Where evidence shows continuing conspiracy for illegal purchase and sale of liquor, persons contributing to effectuation of such conspiracy, with knowledge thereof, by knowingly selling liquor to initial conspirators, though at different times and without knowledge of each other, become parties to conspiracy. Braverman v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Mich.) 1942, 125 F.2d 283, certiorari granted 62 S.Ct. 1037, 316 U.S. 653, 86 L.Ed. 1733, reversed on other grounds 63 S.Ct. 99, 317 U.S. 49, 87 L.Ed. 23.

A defendant who sold counterfeit bills to second party who sold same bills to third person who was arrested while trying to pass them, all three parties having knowledge that bills were counterfeit, was not a party to a "conspiracy" by which third person should possess the bills, where defendant had no concern with bills after second party paid for them. U.S. v. Peoni, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1938, 100 F.2d 401.

One who commits an overt act with knowledge of conspiracy to violate federal law is guilty, though he is absent when crime which is object of conspiracy is committed, and though his knowledge as to scope of conspiracy is limited and he does not know all details of plan or operations. Marino v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1937, 91 F.2d 691, certiorari denied 58 S.Ct. 410, 302 U.S. 764, 82 L.Ed. 593.

That each of several defendants acted illegally or maliciously with same end in view will not establish conspiracy, unless it appears that such acts were done pursuant to mutual agreement. Asgill v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (Va.) 1932, 60 F.2d 780.

Person selling liquor with knowledge that it is to be transported actively participates in plan to transport, as affects liability of purchaser on charge of conspiracy. Anstess v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ind.) 1927, 22 F.2d 594.

Landlord knowing of the manufacture of liquor on premises, and failing to stop it, is not necessarily guilty of conspiracy to violate National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27. Di Bonaventura v. U.S., C.C.A.4

(W.Va.) 1926, 15 F.2d 494.

Sellers of liquor with knowledge that the purchasers intended to illegally transport and sell the same are chargeable with conspiracy, though after the sale they had no interest in it. Costal v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1926, 13 F.2d 843.

Defendants, conspiring to sell denatured alcohol for conversion into beverage alcohol, were guilty of conspiracy to violate Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27. Jones v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (Md.) 1926, 11 F.2d 98, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 633, 271 U.S. 682, 70 L.Ed. 1149.

Wholesale druggists selling intoxicating liquor for nonbeverage purposes, in purported pursuance of National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq., Title 27, without corrupt intent to violate the regulations of the Treasury Department limiting sales, were not guilty of conspiracy under former § 88 of this title [now this section]. Landen v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1924, 299 F. 75.

Before court can sustain conspiracy conviction there must be evidence tending to show that defendant entered into agreement and knew that agreement had specific unlawful purpose charged in indictment; inferences arising from merely "keeping bad company" are not enough to convict defendant of conspiracy. U.S. v. Bevans, E.D.Pa.1990, 728 F.Supp. 340, affirmed 914 F.2d 244.

To constitute criminal conspiracy, all conspirators need not be acquainted with each other nor have previously associated together, but party knowingly cooperating with one member of conspiracy to further object thereof, with knowledge that others have combined to violate law, becomes party to conspiracy. U. S. v. Schneiderman, S.D.Cal.1952, 106 F.Supp. 892.

If a person join an association in ignorance of its illegal purposes, he would be guilty as a conspirator if, after he became a member, he had reason to know that the true object of the conspiracy was illegal and still remained a member. U.S. v. Mitchell, C.C.S.C.1871, 26 F.Cas. 1283, No. 15790.

132. ---- Identity of conspirators, knowledge, parties liable for conspiracy

At least two persons are required to constitute a conspiracy but the identity of the other members of the conspiracy need not be shown, inasmuch as one person may be convicted of conspiracy with persons whose names are unknown. Rogers v. U.S., U.S.Colo.1951, 71 S.Ct. 438, 340 U.S. 367, 95 L.Ed. 344, rehearing denied 71 S.Ct. 619, 341 U.S. 912, 95 L.Ed. 1348.

Proof that party knew that he could not alone accomplish unlawful object permits the inference of a conspiracy between the party and those persons foreseeably required to effect the object, whether or not the party knows the identity or specific activities of the others. U.S. v. Fernandez, C.A.11 (Fla.) 1989, 892 F.2d 976, certiorari dismissed 110 S.Ct. 2201, 495 U.S. 944, 109 L.Ed.2d 527.

That all participants did not know each other did not prevent existence of conspiracy, but, rather, it is enough that each one knew of conspiracy and voluntarily participated in it. U.S. v. Capo, C.A.11 (Fla.) 1982, 693 F.2d 1330, certiorari denied 103 S.Ct. 1793, 460 U.S. 1092, 76 L.Ed.2d 359, on rehearing 716 F.2d 1355.

In prosecution charging defendants with stealing and purloining money from federally insured bank and with interstate transportation of falsely made and forged checks, there was sufficient evidence to prove that defendants were involved in a single conspiracy, even if each coconspirator did not know all of the participants in the conspiracy. U. S. v. Simmons, C.A.3 (N.J.) 1982, 679 F.2d 1042, certiorari denied 103 S.Ct. 3117, 462 U.S. 1134, 77 L.Ed.2d 1370.

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

An alleged coconspirator may be included in an overall agreement without knowing all the participants in the conspiracy. U. S. v. Castro, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1980, 629 F.2d 456.

It is not necessary for each conspirator to have knowledge of the identity and role of each of his coconspirators. U. S. v. Grassi, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 616 F.2d 1295, rehearing denied 624 F.2d 1098, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 363, 449 U.S. 956, 66 L.Ed.2d 220.

Identity of other members of a conspiracy is not needed, inasmuch as one person can be convicted of conspiring with persons whose names are unknown. U. S. v. Allen, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1980, 613 F.2d 1248.

Defendants need not know each other or be privy to details of each enterprise comprising conspiracy to defraud as long as evidence is sufficient to show that each defendant possessed full knowledge of conspiracy's general purpose and scope. U.S. v. Becker, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1978, 569 F.2d 951, rehearing denied 576 F.2d 931, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 188, 439 U.S. 865, 58 L.Ed.2d 174, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 726, 439 U.S. 1048, 58 L.Ed.2d 708.

That defendant did not know each of the other coconspirators and was not aware of each part of the unlawful plan was entirely compatible with jury's conclusion that defendant was nevertheless a coconspirator. U. S. v. Avalos, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1976, 541 F.2d 1100, rehearing denied 545 F.2d 168, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 1656, 430 U.S. 970, 52 L.Ed.2d 363.

A conspirator need not know the identity or even the number of his confederates. U. S. v. Braverman, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1975, 522 F.2d 218, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 392, 423 U.S. 985, 46 L.Ed.2d 302.

It was not necessary that defendant know each of other coconspirators or be aware of each part of unlawful plan in order to warrant conviction of conspiracy to import cocaine; it was only necessary that defendant know of conspiracy and associate himself with it. U. S. v. Rodriguez, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1975, 509 F.2d 1342.

Even where a number of defendants are charged with having conspired together, government need not prove that defendants knew each other's identity or had direct contact with each other, although they must have known of each other's existence. U. S. v. Wilson, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1974, 506 F.2d 1252.

It is not necessary that each coconspirator know all the other conspirators or that each be involved throughout the entire conspiracy; likewise, it is not essential that each conspirator participate in all activities in furtherance of the conspiracy or have knowledge of them. U.S. v. Wilson, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1974, 500 F.2d 715, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 1403, 420 U.S. 977, 43 L.Ed.2d 658, post-conviction relief denied 916 F.2d 984, rehearing en banc granted 925 F.2d 827, on rehearing 937 F.2d 228, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 978, 502 U.S. 1076, 117 L.Ed.2d 141.

One can be party to conspiracy even though he does not know of existence or identity of all his coconspirators, and even though he does not participate in all of their acts. U. S. v. Friedman, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1971, 445 F.2d 1076, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 326, 404 U.S. 958, 30 L.Ed.2d 275.

Proof that defendant and associates arranged to have two members of their group put counterfeit money into circulation established single conspiracy and it was immaterial that defendant may not have known the persons recruited to help in uttering money or that such persons were not among group which originally planned illegal enterprise. U. S. v. Wenzel, C.A.4 (Md.) 1962, 311 F.2d 164.

It is not necessary to support finding of existence of overall scheme or conspiracy that each participant knew others involved therein or precise part each was playing. Isaacs v. U. S., C.A.8 (Minn.) 1962, 301 F.2d 706, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 32, 371 U.S. 818, 9 L.Ed.2d 58, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 33, 371 U.S. 818, 9 L.Ed.2d 58. See, also, Sears v. U.S., C.A.Ga.1965, 343 F.2d 139. Conspiracy ↻ 47(1)

A person who acts in concert with original conspirators, with knowledge of criminal design and with a purpose to effect objects of conspiracy, can be held liable if he joins conspiracy while it is still in effect and its purposes and objects have not yet been attained and he need not know all of members or the part played by them and his knowledge as to the scope of the conspiracy, details of the plan and operations thereof may be limited. Lile v. United States, C.A.9 (Alaska) 1958, 264 F.2d 278.

In order to participate in an unlawful combination, one need not know the description or identity of the principal conspirators or the number or names of the other associates in kind, although one must know the illegal nature of the enterprise and its general purposes and implications, and voluntarily and willfully act in concert with the others in the criminal activities. Leyvas v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1958, 264 F.2d 272.

If one joins in criminal acts with intent willfully to carry out the illegal design shared in common with others, he need not know the extent of the operations or the number of confederates in order to be guilty of conspiracy. Leyvas v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1958, 264 F.2d 272.

Persons can be involved in a conspiracy even though they do not know all of the members of conspiracy or participate in each phase of conspiracy. U. S. v. Rich, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1959, 262 F.2d 415.

That those who assisted accused in purchasing field corn above ceiling price were not personally acquainted with purchaser of the corn and had no particular knowledge of his part in conspiracy to violate Emergency Price Control Act, 50 App., former § 901 et seq., was immaterial in determining accused's guilt since to constitute a "conspiracy" it is not necessary that all of the parties be personally acquainted with each other nor that one have direct contact with all others. Quirk v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Iowa) 1947, 161 F.2d 138.

That some participants in conspiracy to defraud the United States did not know all their fellow participants or did not all participate at the same time was unimportant. McGunnigal v. U. S., C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1945, 151 F.2d 162, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 267, 326 U.S. 776, 90 L.Ed. 469.

An individual conspirator knowing of conspiracy and its objects adopts as his own the past and future acts of other conspirators, even though he does not know all of them, and subsequent activities are extended beyond his original intent. U.S. v. Anderson, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1939, 101 F.2d 325, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 822, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1502, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 822, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1503, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 823, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1503, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 823, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1504, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 823, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1504, 86 L.Ed. 1504, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 824, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1505, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 824, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1506, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 825, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1506, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 825, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1507, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 825, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1508, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 826, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1508, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 826, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1509.

Conspirators need not have been acquainted and working in each other's presence, provided each knowingly cooperates with knowledge that other coconspirators have combined to violate law. Capriola v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1932, 61 F.2d 5, certiorari denied 53 S.Ct. 315, 287 U.S. 671, 77 L.Ed. 579.

Knowledge of membership in conspiracy or division of spoils is immaterial. Coates v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1932, 59 F.2d 173. See, also, U.S. v. Boyer, D.C.Pa.1949, 84 F.Supp. 905. Conspiracy ↪ 24.5

Where saloon keeper, police officer, and manufacturers and distributors of beer, charged with conspiracy, were each engaged in common unlawful purpose to manufacture and sell beer, and each did his part in furtherance thereof, it was immaterial that the different groups were wholly or partly strangers to each other, some not knowing where the distributors got the beer, and the manufacturers not knowing to whom the distributors were selling. Jezewski v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Mich.) 1926, 13 F.2d 599, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 243, 273 U.S. 735, 71 L.Ed. 865.

"It is not necessary that the conspirators should meet together in order to constitute the unlawful combination. If they have a mutual understanding, and act through one or more individuals, as a consequence of such mutual understanding, the conspiracy may be complete. * * * It is, indeed, not necessary that all the conspirators should be acquainted even with each other. If they conspire to accomplish the illegal purpose through one common acquaintance or go-between, the conspiracy may be complete." U.S. v. Lancaster, C.C.S.D.Ga.1891, 44 F. 896.

A defendant furnishing sugar to operate an illegal still could be convicted of conspiracy notwithstanding he did not know the identity or even the number of all his confederates. U. S. v. Kensil, E.D.Pa.1961, 195 F.Supp. 115, affirmed 295 F.2d 489, certiorari denied 82 S.Ct. 439, 368 U.S. 967, 7 L.Ed.2d 396.

Individual member of combination need not be aware of all of its ramifications or be cognizant of number or identity of all of other participants but if he knows of its existence and intentionally takes some part in furthering it, he becomes member of conspiracy. U.S. v. Speed, D.C.D.C.1948, 78 F.Supp. 366.

A party to conspiracy need not know identity or even number of his confederates, and when he embarks upon a definite criminal venture he takes his chances as to its contents and membership if they fall within common purposes as he understands them; but he must be aware of purposes and accept them if he is to be charged with what others may do in execution of them. U. S. v. Johnson, M.D.Pa.1946, 65 F.Supp. 42.

Where some of defendants had been engaged over ten-year period in conspiracy to obstruct administration of justice in various court proceedings, fact that another defendant may have conspired with them to obstruct administration of justice in a particular case would not make him a party to general conspiracy in absence of conscious participation therein. U. S. v. Johnson, M.D.Pa.1946, 65 F.Supp. 42.

To constitute a "conspiracy" it is not necessary that all conspirators meet together or agree simultaneously or know exact part which every other participant is playing or know all other participants therein, nor is it necessary that simultaneous action be had for those who come on later and cooperate in common effort to obtain unlawful result to become parties thereto and assume responsibility for all that has been done before. U. S. v. Empire Hat & Cap Mfg. Co., E.D.Pa.1942, 47 F.Supp. 395.

The guilt of a conspirator is not dependent on his knowledge of entire scope of conspiracy, and one conspirator need not know who all the other conspirators are. U.S. v. Direct Sales Co., W.D.S.C.1942, 44 F.Supp. 623, affirmed 131 F.2d 835, certiorari granted 63 S.Ct. 758, 318 U.S. 749, 87 L.Ed. 1125, affirmed 63 S.Ct. 1265, 319 U.S. 703, 87 L.Ed. 1674.

In conspiracy case, it is not necessary that one of defendants be acquainted with all other defendants. U.S. v. Lang, E.D.N.Y.1941, 40 F.Supp. 414.

133. Association, parties liable for conspiracy

Association with a conspirator, without more, is insufficient to establish the requisite degree of participation in a conspiratorial venture. U. S. v. Steinberg, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1975, 525 F.2d 1126, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 2167, 425 U.S. 971, 48 L.Ed.2d 794.

It takes more than close and repeated association with those who are proved to be operating an illegal enterprise to make one a coconspirator. U. S. v. Anderson, C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1965, 352 F.2d 500, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 1576, 384 U.S. 955, 16 L.Ed.2d 550.

In order to convict defendant of being a participant in a conspiracy it was necessary to government's evidence that defendant knew of conspiracy and associated himself with it. United States v. Aviles, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1960, 274 F.2d 179, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 1057, 362 U.S. 974, 4 L.Ed.2d 1009, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 1057, 362 U.S. 974,

Mere casual association is not proof of participation in a conspiracy, and presumptions of guilt are not lightly to be indulged from mere meetings. U.S. v. Moloney, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1952, 200 F.2d 344.

134. Agreement, parties liable for conspiracy

Once a conspiracy is shown to exist, evidence sufficient to link another defendant to it need not be overwhelming; however, evidence must show that defendant, even if unaware of contours of broader conspiracy, at least had knowledge that a common unlawful endeavor existed, and that defendant agreed to join that endeavor. U.S. v. Casamento, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1989, 887 F.2d 1141, certiorari denied 110 S.Ct. 1138, 493 U.S. 1081, 107 L.Ed.2d 1043, certiorari denied 110 S.Ct. 2175, 495 U.S. 933, 109 L.Ed.2d 504, certiorari denied 110 S.Ct. 2564, 495 U.S. 958, 109 L.Ed.2d 746, post-conviction relief denied 926 F.2d 1311, post-conviction relief dismissed, denial of post-conviction relief affirmed in part, vacated in part 47 F.3d 72.

To be liable as a conspirator, one must be voluntary participant in a common venture although one need not have agreed on details of conspiratorial scheme or even know who the other conspirators are; it is enough if one understands general objectives of the scheme, accepts them, and agrees, either explicitly or implicitly, to participate and further the objectives. Jones v. City of Chicago, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1988, 856 F.2d 985, rehearing denied.

To be convicted as a member of a conspiracy, a defendant need not know every objective of the conspiracy, every detail of its operation or means employed to achieve the agreed-upon criminal objective or even the identity of every coconspirator; however, there must be agreement on the essential nature of the plan and on the kind of criminal conduct in fact contemplated. U.S. v. Gleason, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1979, 616 F.2d 2, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 1037, 444 U.S. 1082, 62 L.Ed.2d 767, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 1320, 445 U.S. 931, 63 L.Ed.2d 764.

Mere knowledge or approval of or acquiescence in object and purpose of conspiracy without agreement to cooperate to accomplish such object or purpose is not sufficient to constitute one a party to conspiracy. Jones v. U. S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1966, 365 F.2d 87.

A defendant accused of conspiracy can be held only for an agreement reasonably inferable as to him. U. S. v. Borelli, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1964, 336 F.2d 376, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 647, 379 U.S. 960, 13 L.Ed.2d 555.

A defendant must join in illegal scheme, design, or agreement to be guilty of violation of this section. U. S. v. Ford, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1963, 324 F.2d 950.

Mere knowledge, approval of or acquiescence in the object or the purpose of a conspiracy, without an intention and agreement to cooperate in the crime, is insufficient to constitute one a "conspirator." Cleaver v. U. S., C.A.10 (Colo.) 1956, 238 F.2d 766. See, also, Dennis v. U.S., C.A.Colo.1962, 302 F.2d 5; Lucadamo v. U.S., C.C.A.N.Y.1922, 280 F. 653; U.S. v. Thomas, D.C.Wash.1943, 52 F.Supp. 571. Conspiracy ↻ 24(1)

The fact that A makes a criminal agreement with B does not cause A to become a party to the conspiracy into which B may enter or may have entered with third persons, but scope of agreement actually made measures conspiracy. U.S. v. Andolschek, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1944, 142 F.2d 503.

It is not essential that each member of conspiracy know all details of agreement or events planned nor is it necessary that conspiracy be successfully concluded; it is agreement, and defendant's participation in it, which constitutes the crime. U.S. v. Cuervelo, S.D.N.Y.1989, 726 F.Supp. 103, affirmed 930 F.2d 911.

An intention to become a party to a conspiracy must be predicated upon some affirmative action. U. S. v. Gilboy, M.D.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 442.

135. Participation, parties liable for conspiracy

Where defendant knew of coconspirator's misrepresentations to State Beverage Department, yet helped conceal such misrepresentations, evidence was sufficient to support finding that defendant participated in conspiracy to commit mail fraud. U.S. v. Haimowitz, C.A.11 (Fla.) 1984, 725 F.2d 1561, certiorari denied 105 S.Ct. 563, 469 U.S. 1072, 83 L.Ed.2d 504.

An individual becomes a member of conspiracy when a person knowingly contributes his or her efforts in furtherance of objective of a conspiracy. U. S. v. Burchinal, C.A.8 (Mo.) 1981, 657 F.2d 985, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 646, 454 U.S. 1086, 70 L.Ed.2d 622.

To establish that each individual defendant was a culpable member of a conspiracy, government must prove that defendant knew of the agreement and, with that knowledge, voluntarily participated in the agreement. U. S. v. Michel, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1979, 588 F.2d 986, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 47, 444 U.S. 825, 62 L.Ed.2d 32.

In a conspiracy prosecution, government must show that each member participated in conspiracy with knowledge of its illegal purpose and not merely that a member associated with a bad person. U. S. v. Frick, C.A.5 (La.) 1979, 588 F.2d 531, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 2013, 441 U.S. 913, 60 L.Ed.2d 385.

To sustain federal conspiracy conviction, it need only be shown that defendant participated in conspiracy and committed one overt act with knowledge that it was in furtherance of some object or purpose of conspiracy. Sanders v. U. S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1969, 416 F.2d 194, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 978, 397 U.S. 952, 25 L.Ed.2d 135.

Active participation in alleged conspiracy must be established, mere knowledge of others' illegal acts being insufficient. Turcott v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1927, 21 F.2d 829.

It requires more than proof of mere passive cognizance of a crime on the part of a defendant to sustain a charge of conspiracy to commit it, and the jury must find that such prisoner did some act or made some agreement showing an intention to participate in some way in such conspiracy. U.S. v. Lancaster, C.C.S.D.Ga.1891, 44 F. 896. Conspiracy ☞ 47(1)

Co-defendants who had overlapping relationships and a shared interest in jihad, who attended a terrorist training camp in Pakistan, and who were part of the trusted circle of a suspected terrorist supporter, and who were each guilty of conspiring to commit at least one object of the conspiracy, were guilty of conspiracy offense. U.S. v. Khan, E.D.Va.2004, 309 F.Supp.2d 789. Conspiracy ☞ 41

136. Extent of participation, parties liable for conspiracy

It is not crucial to existence of a conspiracy that each conspirator participate in every phase of the criminal venture. U. S. v. Grassi, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 616 F.2d 1295, rehearing denied 624 F.2d 1098, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 363, 449 U.S. 956, 66 L.Ed.2d 220.

It was not necessary in conspiracy prosecution to show that particular defendant was a "driving force" in the conspiracy; it was sufficient that evidence sustained determination that defendant joined the conspiracy. U. S. v. Morrow, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1976, 537 F.2d 120, rehearing denied 541 F.2d 282, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 1602, 430

U.S. 956, 51 L.Ed.2d 806. Conspiracy ↻ 47(1)

It is not necessary for each defendant in conspiracy prosecution to participate in all of overt acts alleged in indictment; even though each defendant plays different role and may have had dissimilar motives for participating in transaction, this does not mean that single conspiracy did not exist. U. S. v. Camacho, C.A.9 (Ariz.) 1976, 528 F.2d 464, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 2208, 425 U.S. 995, 48 L.Ed.2d 819.

Fact that defendant may not have participated in all prior sales of narcotics did not necessarily mean that more than one conspiracy was involved, as problem was essentially one of agreement, the essence of conspiracy. U. S. v. Quintana, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1975, 508 F.2d 867.

Conspirator need not participate in all activities of conspiracy in order to be held liable for the unlawful scheme. U. S. v. Flaxman, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1974, 495 F.2d 344, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 512, 419 U.S. 1031, 42 L.Ed.2d 306.

Fact that different defendants may have had somewhat different roles and were present on different occasions with respect to conspiracy did not preclude conviction of all defendants for participation in the general conspiracy. U. S. v. Kellerman, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1970, 431 F.2d 319, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 356, 400 U.S. 957, 27 L.Ed.2d 266, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 871, 401 U.S. 909, 27 L.Ed.2d 808.

Where one of the defendants was present at meetings among alleged conspirators at which details of scheme were planned and carried out, and he received substantial shares of proceeds of fraudulently obtained advance fees, and he presented himself, or was presented, to various victims under aliases and in false capacities and made a variety of misrepresentations to victims about corporation, he was properly convicted of seven counts of wire and mail fraud, interstate travel in execution of a fraud and conspiracy. U. S. v. Crisona, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1969, 416 F.2d 107, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 991, 397 U.S. 961, 25 L.Ed.2d 253, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 993, 397 U.S. 961, 25 L.Ed.2d 253.

Where defendants who acted as purchasers of silver on first shipment of hijacked truck load entered into a further agreement to dispose of future silver shipments from hijackings, such defendants by their further agreement became part of conspiracy in that they agreed to assume a primary role in distributing further silver shipments so that such defendants were more than purchasers who had knowledge of character of the goods. U. S. v. Varelli, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1969, 407 F.2d 735.

Conspirator need not participate in all activities of conspiracy, nor is it necessary that he become member of conspiracy at its inception, and it is only necessary that he knowingly contribute his efforts in furtherance of it. U. S. v. Hickey, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1966, 360 F.2d 127, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 284, 385 U.S. 928, 17 L.Ed.2d 210.

Codefendant who was on scene of events which positively or by fair inference could be deemed part of moonshine liquor distribution conspiracy but who was not linked to any integral element of the plan except by presence and association was not guilty of conspiracy to possess and transport nontax-paid whiskey. U. S. v. Webb, C.A.6 (Ky.) 1966, 359 F.2d 558, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 55, 385 U.S. 824, 17 L.Ed.2d 61.

Where several acts or transactions are alleged to constitute single conspiracy, there must be proof of common purpose of all defendants connecting all acts or transactions, but this does not mean that each defendant must have participated in each act or that each knew identity or function of all alleged conspirators or that all worked together consciously nor does it mean that single defendant can join continuing conspiracy long after others have commenced it and claim immunity for actions taking place before or after his active participation, as long as he remains active participant. Esco Corp. v. U. S., C.A.9 (Or.) 1965, 340 F.2d 1000.

One participating in a criminal conspiracy is no less liable because his part is minor and subordinate. Sabari v. U. S., C.A.9 (Nev.) 1964, 333 F.2d 1019. See, also, U.S. v. Wilson, C.A.Tex.1974, 500 F.2d 715, certiorari denied

It was not necessary that each coconspirator should have known all others or each witness mention all, or that each one be involved throughout entire conspiracy span of seven years, but convictions were properly sustained on evidence showing one conspiracy with one defendant at the center and several codefendant conspirators radiating from him. U.S. v. Green, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1964, 327 F.2d 715, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 1350, 377 U.S. 944, 12 L.Ed.2d 306, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 1360, 377 U.S. 944, 12 L.Ed.2d 307.

It is not essential that each conspirator participate in all activities in furtherance of conspiracy or have knowledge of them, and it is sufficient if conspiracy is established and that convicted persons knowingly contributed their efforts in furtherance of it. McManaman v. U. S., C.A.10 (Kan.) 1964, 327 F.2d 21, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 1351, 377 U.S. 945, 12 L.Ed.2d 307.

It is not necessary that every act undertaken in carrying out of conspiracy be participated in by every member of conspiring group and to unite different groups playing different parts in carrying out purpose of conspiracy in single conspiracy it is only necessary that activities of each individual or group be directed toward accomplishing single criminal objective. U. S. v. Wenzel, C.A.4 (Md.) 1962, 311 F.2d 164.

Mere fact that certain members of a conspiracy dealt recurrently with only one or two others did not exclude finding that they were bound together in one conspiracy. U.S. v. Agueci, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1962, 310 F.2d 817, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 1013, 372 U.S. 959, 10 L.Ed.2d 11, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 1016, 372 U.S. 959, 10 L.Ed.2d 12, post-conviction relief dismissed 741 F.Supp. 409, reconsideration denied, affirmed 930 F.2d 910. See, also, U.S. v. Vega, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1972, 458 F.2d 1234, certiorari denied 93 S.Ct. 1506, 410 U.S. 982, 36 L.Ed.2d 177, affirmed 487 F.2d 170. Conspiracy ↪ 40

Merely because the government did not show that each defendant in a "chain conspiracy" knew each and every conspirator and every step taken by them did not place such conspirators outside the scope of the single conspiracy charged, and each defendant could be found to have contributed to the success of the overall conspiracy notwithstanding that he operated on only one level. U.S. v. Agueci, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1962, 310 F.2d 817, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 1013, 372 U.S. 959, 10 L.Ed.2d 11, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 1016, 372 U.S. 959, 10 L.Ed.2d 12, post-conviction relief dismissed 741 F.Supp. 409, reconsideration denied, affirmed 930 F.2d 910. See, also, U.S. v. Vega, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1972, 458 F.2d 1234, certiorari denied 93 S.Ct. 1506, 410 U.S. 982, 36 L.Ed.2d 177, affirmed 487 F.2d 170. Conspiracy ↪ 40.1

That defendant who had committed overt act in connection with planned bank robbery did not participate in ultimate robbery of bank would not free him from guilt of conspiracy. Collins v. U.S., C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1960, 284 F.2d 517, certiorari denied 81 S.Ct. 753, 365 U.S. 837, 5 L.Ed.2d 746.

Defendants' purchases of narcotics for resale from one or more of the central conspirators on numerous occasions was enough to make them participants in the conspiracy since they knew the nature of the operation, regardless of whether they knew its full extent and all of its activities. United States v. Aviles, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1960, 274 F.2d 179, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 1057, 362 U.S. 974, 4 L.Ed.2d 1009, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 1057, 362 U.S. 974, 4 L.Ed.2d 1010, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 1058, 362 U.S. 974, 4 L.Ed.2d 1010, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 1059, 362 U.S. 974, 4 L.Ed.2d 1010, rehearing denied 80 S.Ct. 1610, 363 U.S. 858, 4 L.Ed.2d 1739, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 1068, 362 U.S. 982, 4 L.Ed.2d 1015, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 1071, 362 U.S. 982, 4 L.Ed.2d 1016, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 1073, 362 U.S. 982, 4 L.Ed.2d 1016.

It is not necessary that all conspirators participate to same degree in fulfillment of conspiracy. U. S. v. Phillips, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1959, 270 F.2d 175.

Each conspirator need not participate in or have knowledge of all the operations of the conspiracy, but it is sufficient if a conspiracy is formed and several persons convicted knowingly contributed their efforts in furtherance of it. Young v. U. S., C.C.A.10 (Kan.) 1948, 168 F.2d 242.

Where accused have a legal responsibility in the premises with some interest in the accomplishment of plan of action, if they are aware of steps taken by others to attain their purpose, and if they know that such activities are illegal, and if such activities are so numerous as to constitute a course of business, or so related as to constitute a system of unlawful conduct continuing over a period of time, a jury on evidence of such facts is warranted in finding accused guilty as conspirators. Braatelen v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1945, 147 F.2d 888.

If transaction was itself within general scope of a scheme to use mails to defraud on which all defendants had embarked, those not immediately concerned in any particular fraud would none the less be liable, so long as that fraud was within kind on which all had agreed. U.S. v. Cohen, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1944, 145 F.2d 82, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 553, 323 U.S. 799, 89 L.Ed. 637, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 553, 323 U.S. 799, 89 L.Ed. 638, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 554, 323 U.S. 800, 89 L.Ed. 638.

Where accused is not in some beneficial, responsible, or interested relation to alleged conspirators, and their activities, and alleged activities of the conspirators consist of but a few transactions, mere knowledge, acquiescence, and indifference will be insufficient, in absence of some word or deed, to connect accused with the conspiracy. Egan v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1943, 137 F.2d 369, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 195, 320 U.S. 788, 88 L.Ed. 474.

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate the internal revenue laws relating to stills and intoxicating liquors, it was not necessary that defendant or any other member of the group participate in all the acts. U.S. v. Valenti, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1943, 134 F.2d 362, certiorari denied 63 S.Ct. 1317, 319 U.S. 761, 87 L.Ed. 1712, rehearing denied 64 S.Ct. 29, 320 U.S. 809, 88 L.Ed. 489.

In prosecution for use of mails to defraud insurance companies by filing false claims and for conspiracy, conviction of physician could be affirmed even though testimony showed that physician was participant in limited conspiracy instead of a conspiracy with all defendants, in view of charge of court and evidence. U S v. Weiss, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1939, 103 F.2d 348, certiorari granted 59 S.Ct. 1043, 307 U.S. 621, 83 L.Ed. 1500, reversed on other grounds 60 S.Ct. 269, 308 U.S. 321, 84 L.Ed. 298.

Where there is a concert of purpose, it is not necessary to constitute conspiracy that each conspirator participate in every detail of its execution. Ryan v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1938, 99 F.2d 864, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 484, 306 U.S. 635, 83 L.Ed. 1037, rehearing denied 59 S.Ct. 586, 306 U.S. 668, 83 L.Ed. 1063. See, also, Marx v. U.S., C.C.A.Minn.1936, 86 F.2d 245. Conspiracy ↪ 24(3)

Defendant, if proved party to conspiracy, though individual conspirators performed acts in furtherance of common unlawful design unknown to others, is guilty of conspiracy. U.S. v. Grossman, D.C.N.Y.1931, 55 F.2d 408.

If defendants participated in conspiracy, it was immaterial whether either committed overt act. Babb v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Iowa) 1928, 27 F.2d 80, certiorari denied 49 S.Ct. 26, 278 U.S. 624, 73 L.Ed. 544.

Where offenses are being committed, of such character that they are necessarily the result of concert of action, all who participated in the things which are done resulting in such offenses may, if the inference fairly arises out of everything which has been done, be found guilty of conspiracy to commit the offenses. U S v. Stilson, E.D.Pa.1918, 254 F. 120, affirmed 40 S.Ct. 28, 250 U.S. 583, 63 L.Ed. 1154.

Defendant, indicted with H. for conspiring with employés of a carrier to have the employés deliver intoxicants to defendant and H. under a fictitious name, in violation of former § 388 of this title, may be convicted of conspiracy, notwithstanding delivery to H., defendant taking no part therein, the doctrine of agency not being available to show defendant's participation in the completed offense. McKnight v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Okla.) 1918, 252 F. 687, 164 C.C.A. 527, certiorari denied 39 S.Ct. 388, 249 U.S. 614, 63 L.Ed. 802.

"It is not necessary that each conspirator participate in each step or stage of the common general design. One of them may do one thing; another, another. Some may take major parts, while the participation of others may be in a minor degree." Lew Moy v. U S, C.C.A.8 (N.M.) 1916, 237 F. 50, 150 C.C.A. 252.

All persons working together in furtherance of the common design are members of the conspiracy, although the part any one is to take is subordinate, or is to be executed at a remote distance. U.S. v. Cassidy, N.D.Cal.1895, 67 F. 698. Conspiracy ↪ 40.1

It is not necessary that the conspiracy should originate with the person charged. U S v. Sacia, D.C.N.J.1880, 2 F. 754. Conspiracy ↪ 40

Co-defendants who had overlapping relationships and a shared interest in jihad, who attended a terrorist training camp in Pakistan, and who were part of the trusted circle of a suspected terrorist supporter, and who were each guilty of conspiring to commit at least one object of the conspiracy, were guilty of conspiracy offense. U.S. v. Khan, E.D.Va.2004, 309 F.Supp.2d 789. Conspiracy ↪ 41

A defendant may be held fully liable for consequences of conspiracy even though its degree of participation was less than that of other defendants. Riss & Co. v. Association of American Railroads, D.C.D.C.1959, 170 F.Supp. 354, certiorari denied 267 F.2d 659, 105 U.S.App.D.C. 382, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 108, 361 U.S. 804, 4 L.Ed.2d 57.

137. Overt acts, parties liable for conspiracy

All the conspirators need not join in the overt act. U.S. v. Rabinowich, U.S.N.Y.1915, 35 S.Ct. 682, 238 U.S. 78, 59 L.Ed. 1211. See, also, Joplin Mercantile Co. v. U.S., Mo.1915, 35 S.Ct. 291, 236 U.S. 531, 59 L.Ed. 705; U.S. v. Anderson, C.C.A.Wash.1929, 31 F.2d 436; Grayson v. U.S., C.C.A.Tenn.1921, 272 F. 553, certiorari denied 42 S.Ct. 49, 257 U.S. 637, 66 L.Ed. 409; U.S. v. Bergdoll, D.C.Pa.1921, 272 F. 498, error dismissed 279 F. 404, certiorari denied 42 S.Ct. 589, 259 U.S. 585, 66 L.Ed. 1076; U.S. v. Phillips, D.C.N.Y.1920, 270 F. 281; Hamburg-American Steam Packet Co. v. U.S., C.C.A.N.Y.1918, 250 F. 747, certiorari denied 38 S.Ct. 333, 246 U.S. 662, 62 L.Ed. 927.

It is impossible to conspire with government agents; however, it is only necessary for one coconspirator to participate in an overt act with the government agents. U. S. v. Enstam, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1980, 622 F.2d 857, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 1351, 450 U.S. 912, 67 L.Ed.2d 336, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 1974, 451 U.S. 907, 68 L.Ed.2d 294.

Fact that a conspirator is not present at, or does not participate in, the commission of any of the overt acts does not, by itself, exonerate him. U. S. v. James, C.A.5 (Miss.) 1976, 528 F.2d 999, rehearing denied 532 F.2d 1054, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 382, 429 U.S. 959, 50 L.Ed.2d 326, rehearing denied 97 S.Ct. 770, 429 U.S. 1055, 50 L.Ed.2d 772, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 383, 429 U.S. 959, 50 L.Ed.2d 326.

It is not necessary that all or more than one of the conspirators participate in a particular overt act of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Robinson, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1974, 503 F.2d 208, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 1333, 420 U.S. 949, 43 L.Ed.2d 427.

One defendant's own failure to perform more than a few overt acts would be immaterial to his guilt of conspiracy, so long as he had joined therein. U. S. v. Kahaner, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1963, 317 F.2d 459, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 62, 375 U.S. 835, 11 L.Ed.2d 65, rehearing denied 84 S.Ct. 478, 375 U.S. 982, 11 L.Ed.2d 429, certiorari denied 84

S.Ct. 73, 375 U.S. 836, 11 L.Ed.2d 65, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 74, 375 U.S. 836, 11 L.Ed.2d 65, rehearing denied 84 S.Ct. 263, 375 U.S. 926, 11 L.Ed.2d 169.

One who commits an overt act with the knowledge of the conspiracy is guilty of crime of conspiracy even though he is absent when the criminal object of the conspiracy is committed. Poliafico v. U. S., C.A.6 (Ohio) 1956, 237 F.2d 97, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 590, 352 U.S. 1025, 1 L.Ed.2d 597, rehearing denied 77 S.Ct. 718, 353 U.S. 931, 1 L.Ed.2d 725.

So long as conspiracy to defraud United States in the sale of eggs, butter and cheese exists, members act for one another in carrying it forward and the criminal intent to file false claims with a government agency is established by the formation of the conspiracy. Nye & Nissen v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1948, 168 F.2d 846, certiorari granted 69 S.Ct. 81, 335 U.S. 852, 93 L.Ed. 400, affirmed 69 S.Ct. 766, 336 U.S. 613, 93 L.Ed. 919.

An essential element of "conspiracy" against United States is intent to commit crime against United States or to defraud United States, and it is not necessary to conviction that accused perform any overt act or that conspiracy succeed, but conviction may rest on proof of doing of any overt act by any of accused's coconspirators to effect object of conspiracy, and it is not necessary that overt act in itself be prohibited by law. Bergen v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1944, 145 F.2d 181.

That accused's employees allegedly entered into conspiracy with third person to violate former § 223 of Title 27 would not render employer liable as "conspirator" unless he knew of existence of conspiracy and with knowledge thereof committed some act in furtherance thereof. Bacon v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Okla.) 1942, 127 F.2d 985.

Persons who conspire together to obstruct justice in proceedings before United States Commissioner or in a federal district court, which they expect or fear will be instituted, may be prosecuted for conspiracy to endeavor to obstruct the due administration of justice even if it be assumed that they could not be found guilty of the substantive crime of obstructing justice, provided one of them does an overt act designed to consummate their purpose and the commission of that act affects a pending proceeding. U.S. v. Perlstein, C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1942, 126 F.2d 789, certiorari denied 62 S.Ct. 1106, 316 U.S. 678, 86 L.Ed. 1752.

Where conspiracy is charged, it is not essential that all of the conspirators take part in an overt act or acts arising from the conspiracy, but it is enough if an overt act was committed by one of the conspirators in furtherance of the conspiracy. Brock v. Hudspeth, C.C.A.10 (Kan.) 1940, 111 F.2d 447. See, also, Curtis v. U.S., C.C.A.Colo.1933, 67 F.2d 943. Conspiracy ↪ 41

So long as a party charged with conspiring with others to commit the offense of harboring a federal fugitive took part in the conspiracy, it was immaterial whether he committed an overt act, or knew of it, provided an overt act was committed by one of conspirators. Brock v. Hudspeth, C.C.A.10 (Kan.) 1940, 111 F.2d 447.

The particular manner or means by which the overt act of a conspiracy is done is immaterial nor is it necessary that all conspirators join in the overt act or in every one of the several overt acts of the conspiracy. Hall v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Okla.) 1940, 109 F.2d 976.

A person committing an overt act with knowledge of conspiracy is guilty if he knows purpose of conspiracy. Lee v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1939, 106 F.2d 906.

The breadth of conspiracy is not limited by effective limitations of overt act committed by one of conspirators, and, if one participates in conspiracy, it is immaterial that he has committed no overt act. U.S. v. Anderson, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1939, 101 F.2d 325, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 822, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1502, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 822, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1503, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 823, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1503, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 823, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1504, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 823, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1504, 86 L.Ed.

1504, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 824, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1505, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 824, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1506, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 825, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1506, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 825, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1507, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 825, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1508, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 826, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1508, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 826, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1509.

An accused did not violate former § 88 of this title [now this section] if he did not join in agreement made, even if he committed an overt act. Marino v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1937, 91 F.2d 691, certiorari denied 58 S.Ct. 410, 302 U.S. 764, 82 L.Ed. 593.

Persons entering into agreement, tacit or otherwise, to commit unlawful act are guilty of conspiracy, if one of them does some act in pursuance thereof. Chaplin v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (S.C.) 1928, 28 F.2d 567.

Former § 88 of this title [now this section] did not make it crime to conspire that some person other than conspirators shall commit crime. Bartkus v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1927, 21 F.2d 425.

It is no bar to the existence of a conspiracy that it is to be executed entirely by one conspirator. Ferguson v. U S, C.C.A.8 (N.M.) 1923, 293 F. 361.

It is not necessary that all conspirators take part in the overt act though "they, the said defendants," generally were alleged to have committed such acts. Bullock v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Ky.) 1923, 289 F. 29.

To bring a case within former § 88 of this title [now this section], making it a crime to conspire to commit an offense against the United States where one or more of the parties "do any act to effect the object of the conspiracy", the conspirator must himself have done the act or have authorized it to be done, and a mere failure on his part to prevent another from doing it was not sufficient. U.S. v. McClarty, W.D.Ky.1911, 191 F. 518.

If defendants were parties to conspiracy to defraud the United States by manufacturing and otherwise handling non-tax-paid distilled spirits, neither their knowledge nor their participation in alleged overt acts was necessary to make them guilty. U. S. v. Turner, E.D.Tenn.1967, 274 F.Supp. 412.

A particular defendant accused of conspiracy need not commit an overt act within the district. U. S. v. Gilboy, M.D.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 442.

138. Acts of others attributable to all, parties liable for conspiracy

So long as a partnership in crime continues, the partners act for each other in carrying it forward. Pinkerton v. U. S., U.S.Ala.1946, 66 S.Ct. 1180, 328 U.S. 640, 90 L.Ed. 1489, rehearing denied 67 S.Ct. 26, 329 U.S. 818, 91 L.Ed. 697.

An overt act of one partner in crime may be the act of all without any new agreement specifically directed to that act. Pinkerton v. U. S., U.S.Ala.1946, 66 S.Ct. 1180, 328 U.S. 640, 90 L.Ed. 1489, rehearing denied 67 S.Ct. 26, 329 U.S. 818, 91 L.Ed. 697.

Pinkerton doctrine of coconspirator liability for crimes committed by coconspirators was extended to include reasonably foreseeable but originally unintended substantive crimes; however, extension of Pinkerton doctrine is limited to conspirators who played more than minor role in conspiracy or who had actual knowledge of at least some of circumstances and events culminating in reasonably foreseeable but unintended substantive crime. U.S. v. Mothersill, C.A.11 (Fla.) 1996, 87 F.3d 1214, certiorari denied 117 S.Ct. 531, 519 U.S. 1017, 136 L.Ed.2d 416, certiorari denied 117 S.Ct. 1109, 520 U.S. 1105, 137 L.Ed.2d 311, certiorari denied 117 S.Ct. 1328, 520 U.S. 1151, 137 L.Ed.2d 489. Conspiracy ↪ 41

Given that defendants conspired to operate farmers' cooperative scheme, it was not necessary that each defendant have committed fraudulent act with respect to each count, but, rather, each defendant was vicariously liable for overt acts committed by other conspirators to further overall scheme. U. S. v. Shelton, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1982, 669 F.2d 446, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 1989, 456 U.S. 934, 72 L.Ed.2d 454.

As coconspirator, defendant was chargeable with crimes of his fellow coconspirators committed in furtherance of the conspiracy, and thus defendant was properly convicted on assault charges brought in connection with shots another defendant fired from van at pursuing police even though defendant merely drove the van. Government of Virgin Islands v. Dowling, C.A.3 (Virgin Islands) 1980, 633 F.2d 660, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 374, 449 U.S. 960, 66 L.Ed.2d 228.

Party to a continuing conspiracy can be held responsible for substantive offenses committed by coconspirators if such acts were committed in furtherance of a conspiracy even though the defendant neither participated in the acts of the coconspirators nor actually knew about them. U. S. v. Tilton, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 610 F.2d 302.

While each conspirator is part of the conspiracy, he is responsible for his coconspirators' acts committed pursuant to and in furtherance of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Beecroft, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1979, 608 F.2d 753.

Once found to be a member of a conspiracy, a defendant may be held criminally liable for acts of other conspirators if such acts are done as part of a general scheme or plan. U. S. v. Molina, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1978, 581 F.2d 56.

It is immaterial that each of conspirators did not participate in all activities or even know all the details of conspiracy; they are bound as long as the results fall within the common purposes of the conspiracy and conspirators knowingly contributed towards its furtherance. U. S. v. Fitzgerald, C.A.7 (Ind.) 1978, 579 F.2d 1014, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 610, 439 U.S. 1002, 58 L.Ed.2d 677, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 611, 439 U.S. 1002, 58 L.Ed.2d 677.

Once defendant becomes associated with conspiracy, he is responsible for all acts of it, even though acts occurred before or after his association with it. U. S. v. Netterville, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1977, 553 F.2d 903, certiorari denied 98 S.Ct. 189, 434 U.S. 861, 54 L.Ed.2d 135, certiorari denied 98 S.Ct. 719, 434 U.S. 1009, 54 L.Ed.2d 752.

Defendant was responsible for the substantive illegal acts of his coconspirators, done in furtherance of the conspiracy, even though he may not have participated directly in them. U. S. v. Head, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1976, 546 F.2d 6, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 1551, 430 U.S. 931, 51 L.Ed.2d 775.

Once defendant was implicated in fraudulent scheme his participation in specific acts was irrelevant, since acts of other parties were attributable to him. U. S. v. Pollack, C.A.D.C.1976, 534 F.2d 964, 175 U.S.App.D.C. 227, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 324, 429 U.S. 924, 50 L.Ed.2d 292.

Once it is shown that conspiracy existed and that defendant participated in it, acts of coconspirators done in furtherance of the conspiracy are attributable to defendant and he becomes equally liable for them. U. S. v. Pearson, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1975, 508 F.2d 595, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 82, 423 U.S. 845, 46 L.Ed.2d 66; U.S. v. Sanchez, C.A.Tex.1975, 508 F.2d 388, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 45, 423 U.S. 827, 46 L.Ed.2d 44; U.S. v. Warner, C.A.Tex.1971, 441 F.2d 821, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 65, 404 U.S. 829, 30 L.Ed.2d 58. Conspiracy

Each conspirator is responsible for the acts of his coconspirators committed pursuant to and in furtherance of the conspiracy, even if the conspirator charged is not aware of the performance of those acts or the existence of the actors. U. S. v. Murray, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1973, 492 F.2d 178, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 98, 419 U.S. 854, 42 L.Ed.2d 87, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 210, 419 U.S. 942, 42 L.Ed.2d 166.

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

In "wheel conspiracy" in which members of a "core" group deal with number of contacts who are connected with each other only through the core conspirators, whether the contacts may be found to be members along with the core conspirators depends on whether or not the contacts knew or had reason to know the existence of but not necessarily the identity, of one or more of the other contacts in the conspiracy. U. S. v. Manarite, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1971, 448 F.2d 583, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 281, 404 U.S. 947, 30 L.Ed.2d 264, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 285, 404 U.S. 947, 30 L.Ed.2d 264, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 287, 404 U.S. 947, 30 L.Ed.2d 264, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 298, 404 U.S. 947, 30 L.Ed.2d 264.

Once connected with conspiracy, defendant was chargeable with whatever was said or done previously by his coconspirators. U. S. v. Cerrito, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1969, 413 F.2d 1270, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 554, 396 U.S. 1004, 24 L.Ed.2d 495.

A conspirator is liable for all the crimes of his co-conspirators. Wangrow v. U. S., C.A.8 (Minn.) 1968, 399 F.2d 106, certiorari denied 89 S.Ct. 292, 393 U.S. 933, 21 L.Ed.2d 270.

Each member of conspiracy is chargeable with acts performed by other members in furtherance of conspiracy. U. S. v. Wechsler, C.A.4 (Va.) 1968, 392 F.2d 344, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 2283, 392 U.S. 932, 20 L.Ed.2d 1389, rehearing denied 89 S.Ct. 71, 393 U.S. 902, 21 L.Ed.2d 191, rehearing denied 408 F.2d 1184, certiorari denied 89 S.Ct. 2130, 395 U.S. 978, 23 L.Ed.2d 766, certiorari denied 89 S.Ct. 2131, 395 U.S. 978, 23 L.Ed.2d 766, rehearing denied 90 S.Ct. 40, 396 U.S. 870, 24 L.Ed.2d 126, certiorari denied 89 S.Ct. 2150, 395 U.S. 984, 23 L.Ed.2d 773.

Once a criminal agreement becomes operative and a defendant has joined a conspiracy, the acts of any member are attributable to each partner to the conspiracy and the partners act for each other in carrying out its objective. Grimes v. U. S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1967, 379 F.2d 791, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 104, 389 U.S. 846, 19 L.Ed.2d 113.

Once existence of common scheme is established, very little is required to show that defendant became a party and once it is found that defendant was connected with conspiracy, he is equally liable with those who originated it and dominated common scheme, though he joined in it after its inception and his part was minor, and he is responsible not only for acts of conspirators in furtherance of conspiracy following his joinder, but also for those that preceded it and he is liable for acts of his co-conspirators though he was not aware of performance of those acts, nor even of existence of actors. Hernandez v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1962, 300 F.2d 114.

Every overt act of each co-conspirator is the act of all. U. S. v. Vittoria, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1960, 284 F.2d 451. See, also, Palmero v. U.S., C.C.A.Mass.1940, 112 F.2d 922; Jung Quey v. U.S., Cal.1915, 222 F. 766, 138 C.C.A. 314; U.S. v. Richards, D.C.Neb.1906, 149 F. 443. Conspiracy ↻ 41

Proof of an overt act by any one of conspirators is sufficient to satisfy requirement as to all; since act of one conspirator is imputed to the other conspirators. United States v. Piampiano, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1959, 271 F.2d 273.

In joint prosecutions for conspiring to wilfully or maliciously injure or destroy means of communication controlled or operated by United States, two defendants during conspiracy were bound by knowledge of remaining defendants that many of the circuits to be destroyed were operated and controlled by the Government, and all defendants were bound by what would have been the natural consequences of their conspiracy. Abbate v. U.S., C.A.5 (Miss.) 1957, 247 F.2d 410, certiorari granted 78 S.Ct. 330, 355 U.S. 902, 2 L.Ed.2d 258, affirmed 79 S.Ct. 666, 359 U.S. 187, 3 L.Ed.2d 729.

Once a conspiracy is established, a substantive offense committed by one conspirator pursuant to conspiracy is attributable to all other conspirators, even though they were not present when the substantive offense was committed. Poliastico v. U. S., C.A.6 (Ohio) 1956, 237 F.2d 97, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 590, 352 U.S. 1025, 1 L.Ed.2d 597, rehearing denied 77 S.Ct. 718, 353 U.S. 931, 1 L.Ed.2d 725.

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Common purpose makes acts of one conspirator acts of all, and each conspirator is liable for acts of every other conspirator done in pursuance of conspiracy. United States v. Sansone, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1956, 231 F.2d 887, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 1055, 351 U.S. 987, 100 L.Ed. 1500. See, also, U.S. v. Cryan, D.C.N.J.1980, 490 F.Supp. 1234, affirmed 636 F.2d 1211. Conspiracy ↪ 41

Acts of one conspirator in pursuance of conspiracy to possess stolen sheet steel moving as part of interstate shipment were, in contemplation of law, the acts of the other conspirator. Singer v. U.S., C.A.6 (Mich.) 1953, 208 F.2d 477.

The liability of a coconspirator for crimes in furtherance of the conspiracy does not depend upon the scope or existence of a conspiracy count, and the act of one or more defendants in furtherance of common plan shown to exist is the act of all. Nye & Nissen v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1948, 168 F.2d 846, certiorari granted 69 S.Ct. 81, 335 U.S. 852, 93 L.Ed. 400, affirmed 69 S.Ct. 766, 336 U.S. 613, 93 L.Ed. 919. See, also, Bogy v. U.S., C.C.A.Tenn.1938, 96 F.2d 734, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 68, 305 U.S. 608, 83 L.Ed. 387; U.S. v. Olmstead, D.C.Wash.1925, 5 F.2d 712; McGinniss v. U.S., C.C.A.N.Y.1919, 256 F. 621. Conspiracy ↪ 41

In law of conspiracy, the overt act of one of several prisoners in shooting prison guard while an attempt to escape from prison was under way in carrying out a conspiracy between prisoners, was attributable to all participants in the attempt to escape. Shockley v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1948, 166 F.2d 704, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 1502, 334 U.S. 850, 92 L.Ed. 1773.

A party to a criminal conspiracy becomes bound by all acts of any of the conspirators performed in furthering the scheme or purpose of the conspiracy during its existence. Harper v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1944, 143 F.2d 795.

A party to a conspiracy need not know identity or even know the number of his confederates, but when he embarks on a criminal venture of indefinite outline, he takes his chances as to its content and membership, if they fall within the common purpose as he understands them, but he must be aware of those purposes and must accept them and their implications if he is to be charged with what others may do in execution of them. U.S. v. Andolschek, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1944, 142 F.2d 503.

Defendant is bound by acts of his fellow conspirators done within scope of the conspiracy. Kann v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (Md.) 1944, 140 F.2d 380, certiorari granted 64 S.Ct. 938, 321 U.S. 761, 88 L.Ed. 1059, reversed on other grounds 65 S.Ct. 148, 323 U.S. 88, 89 L.Ed. 88. See, also, Burns v. U.S., C.C.A.Okl.1922, 279 F. 982. Conspiracy ↪ 41

Where scheme continues over a long period of time, and conspiracy is proved, acts and declarations of one of the conspirators toward the accomplishment of the unlawful scheme are the acts of all. Blue v. U.S., C.C.A.Ohio 1943, 138 F.2d 351, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 1046 (3 cases), 322 U.S. 736, 88 L.Ed. 1570, rehearing denied 64 S.Ct. 1259 (3 cases), 322 U.S. 771, 88 L.Ed. 1596. Blue v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1943, 138 F.2d 351, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 1046, 322 U.S. 736, 88 L.Ed. 1570, rehearing denied 64 S.Ct. 1259, 322 U.S. 771, 88 L.Ed. 1596, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 1046, 322 U.S. 737, 88 L.Ed. 1570.

The gist of offense of "conspiracy" is an unlawful combination, which must be proven against all conspirators, each of whom is them held responsible for acts of all, but an overt act need not be proven against each conspirator. Braverman v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Mich.) 1942, 125 F.2d 283, certiorari granted 62 S.Ct. 1037, 316 U.S. 653, 86 L.Ed. 1733, reversed on other grounds 63 S.Ct. 99, 317 U.S. 49, 87 L.Ed. 23.

The rule that each conspirator is chargeable with acts of his fellows done in furtherance of the joint venture requires that acts so imputed must be in execution of the venture as all understood it so far as concerns those terms which constitute the substantive crime. U S v. Crimmins, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1941, 123 F.2d 271.

A conspirator is liable though he was never in the state where the overt act was committed. Ferracane v. U. S.,

C.C.A.7 (Ind.) 1928, 29 F.2d 691.

Defendant was chargeable with acts of co-conspirators in scheme to defraud insurance companies by using mails to falsely represent that loss was accidental. Spirou v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1928, 24 F.2d 796, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 559, 277 U.S. 596, 72 L.Ed. 1006.

Defendant is responsible for acts of co-conspirators committed before as well as after he joined conspiracy and overt act need not be proved against all conspirators. Baker v. U. S., C.C.A.4 (Va.) 1927, 21 F.2d 903, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 301, 276 U.S. 621, 72 L.Ed. 736.

Erection of still, or manufacture or keeping of liquor for sale, by one pursuant to agreement renders all conspirators guilty of conspiracy. Liberato v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1926, 13 F.2d 564.

In prosecution under former § 88 of this title [now this section], for conspiracy to misuse mails contrary to former § 338 of this title, it was not necessary that accused himself should commit overt act charged, since, if conspiracy was established, and any one or more of the parties thereto acted in furtherance of common design, such act of one conspirator was overt act of all. Morris v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Ark.) 1925, 7 F.2d 785, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 205, 270 U.S. 640, 70 L.Ed. 775.

In a prosecution for conspiracy to purchase intoxicating liquors for transportation in interstate commerce, which alleged as one overt act joint purchase by two defendants, the act of either in pursuance of the conspiracy would have been the act of both. Tacon v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (La.) 1921, 270 F. 88.

If several defendants were associated in a scheme to defraud by use of the mails, the act of one in receiving a letter in the course of the scheme was the act of the other defendants also. Grant v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Ky.) 1920, 268 F. 443, certiorari denied 41 S.Ct. 538, 256 U.S. 700, 65 L.Ed. 1178.

Where defendant and others conspired to receive, conceal, etc., opium prepared for smoking imported from a foreign country, the commission of an overt act by any of the conspirators fixed the crime upon all. Proffitt v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1920, 264 F. 299.

It is not essential to prove that scheme contemplated use of mails, if mails were in fact used, and, where execution of scheme would have been utterly impossible without use of mails, all who participated would be guilty, although not actually using mails. Preeman v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1917, 244 F. 1, 156 C.C.A. 429, certiorari denied 38 S.Ct. 12, 245 U.S. 654, 62 L.Ed. 533.

Where the existence of an unlawful conspiracy is proved, an overt act by one of the parties thereto becomes the act of all, and they are all alike guilty. Jung Quey v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1915, 222 F. 766, 138 C.C.A. 314. See, also, Pinkerton v. U.S., C.C.A. Ala.1945, 151 F.2d 499, affirmed 66 S.Ct. 1180, 328 U.S. 640, 90 L.Ed. 1489, rehearing denied 67 S.Ct. 26, 329 U.S. 818, 91 L.Ed. 697; U.S. v. Beck, C.C.A. Ill.1941, 118 F.2d 178, certiorari denied 61 S.Ct. 1121, 313 U.S. 587, 85 L.Ed. 1542; Davis v. U.S., C.C.A. Fla.1926, 12 F.2d 253, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 639, 271 U.S. 688, 70 L.Ed. 1153; Chew v. U.S., C.C.A. Ark.1925, 9 F.2d 348; Vannata v. U.S., C.C.A. N.Y.1923, 289 F. 424; Shaffman v. U.S., N.Y.1918, 250 F. 747, 163 C.C.A. 79, certiorari denied 38 S.Ct. 333, 246 U.S. 662, 62 L.Ed. 927.

"If the defendants and others conspired to defraud the United States of the possession and use of its lands by fraudulent entries, made with intent of the entrymen not to comply with the law, the act and procurement of one conspirator in furtherance thereof is imputable to the others, though they might be ignorant of a particular entry so induced and the fraudulent intent of the particular entryman. And if the conspiracy existed, and the details of its execution were intrusted to agents who procured such entries to be made, the illegal intent of the entrymen would be material for consideration, though actually unknown to the defendants. If the conspiracy contemplated false, fictitious, or fraudulent entries of the kind in question, a party to it is chargeable with the acts consummating it, though not personally cognizant with all the details. Indeed, he might be guilty, though no entries were made at all." Richards v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1909, 175 F. 911, 99 C.C.A. 401.

Where two or more persons combine with the intent to do an unlawful thing, and, in the prosecution of the unlawful enterprise, commit some crime not originally contemplated, all are equally guilty, under the law. U.S. v. Sweeney, C.C.W.D.Ark.1899, 95 F. 434. Conspiracy ↪ 24.5

Where a party of men combine with intent to do an unlawful thing, and in the prosecution of that unlawful intent one of the party goes a step further than the others and does acts which the others do not themselves perform, all are responsible for what the one does, but it is essential, however, that there should be a concert of action,--and an agreement to do some unlawful thing. U.S. v. Kane, C.C.Colo.1885, 23 F. 748. Conspiracy ↪ 41

All parties to conspiracy are chargeable with any act done by any one of them in furtherance of conspiracy, and during its existence, and before its termination, if act is reasonably related to carrying out the crime. U. S. v. Molin, D.C.Mass.1965, 244 F.Supp. 1015. Conspiracy ↪ 41

A conspirator who has admitted his participation in the conspiracy is liable for all overt acts of his coconspirators whether he participated in them or not. U S v. Gelb, S.D.N.Y.1959, 175 F.Supp. 267, affirmed 269 F.2d 675, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 66, 361 U.S. 822, 4 L.Ed.2d 66.

In civil antitrust suit brought by common carrier by motor vehicle in interstate commerce seeking an injunction against, and treble damages from, railroads which had allegedly conspired in unreasonable restraint of trade and commerce to injure or destroy motor carrier's business and to acquire monopoly of land transportation to property, even if certain of defendants had only taken a small part in alleged conspiracy, they would have to assume equal responsibility for acts of all of conspirators if they had done so with knowledge of conspiracy and had consented to take part in it. Riss & Co. v. Association of American Railroads, D.C.D.C.1959, 170 F.Supp. 354, certiorari denied 267 F.2d 659, 105 U.S.App.D.C. 382, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 108, 361 U.S. 804, 4 L.Ed.2d 57.

The activities of certain members of conspiracy are binding upon all members of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Labate, E.D.Pa.1958, 168 F.Supp. 531, affirmed 270 F.2d 122, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 211, 361 U.S. 900, 4 L.Ed.2d 157

An overt act of one conspirator may be the act of all without any new agreements specifically directed to that act; it must however be done in furtherance of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Gilboy, M.D.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 442.

If one has knowledge of conspiracy and with that knowledge intentionally does some act or thing in furtherance thereof he may be held liable; if so, he adopts as his own the past and future acts of all his conspirators. U. S. v. Gilboy, M.D.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 442.

One overt act by one of the conspirators to effect the object of the conspiracy is sufficient; it then becomes the act of all. U. S. v. Gilboy, M.D.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 442.

Conspirator is criminally liable for acts of his coconspirators committed within any federal judicial district if such acts were in furtherance of the common design. U. S. v. Brandt, N.D.Ohio 1955, 139 F.Supp. 367.

Guilt is personal, but personal guilt may be incurred by joining conspiracy, and in such case "guilt by association" makes one responsible for acts of others committed in pursuance of such association. U. S. v. Schneiderman, S.D.Cal.1951, 102 F.Supp. 52, reversed on other grounds 193 F.2d 875.

Generally, coconspirators are vicariously responsible for acts committed in furtherance of joint venture, subject to limitation that acts so imputed must be in execution of venture as all understand it. Winkler-Koch Engineering Co. v. Universal Oil Products Co. (Del.), S.D.N.Y.1947, 79 F.Supp. 1013, 79 U.S.P.Q. 328.

Where a continuing conspiracy is proved which involves several defendants and an overt act was done by some defendants but not participated in by all, all defendants would be bound as members of the conspiracy though they had no direct part in the particular transaction. *U. S. v. Johnson, M.D.Pa.*1947, 76 F.Supp. 542, affirmed 165 F.2d 42, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 355, 332 U.S. 852, 92 L.Ed. 421, motion granted 68 S.Ct. 357, rehearing denied 68 S.Ct. 457, 333 U.S. 834, 92 L.Ed. 1118, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 355, 332 U.S. 852, 92 L.Ed. 422.

A coconspirator whose connection with alleged conspiracy was limited to a particular case was not chargeable with unlawful conduct of his codefendants unless that conduct was within reasonable intentment of their unlawful agreement as he understood it. *U. S. v. Johnson, M.D.Pa.*1946, 65 F.Supp. 46.

Each member of a conspiracy is responsible for every act of every other member, done by common consent in furtherance of the illegal purposes, and also for such acts, though not consented to beforehand, if assented to afterwards. *U.S. v. Mitchell, C.C.S.C.*1871, 26 F.Cas. 1283, No. 15790. Conspiracy § 41; Criminal Law § 59(3)

When two or more persons combined for the purpose of interfering with the passage of a train carrying the mail, and one or more of the parties did any act to effect such object, all of the parties were liable to a criminal prosecution for conspiracy under former § 83 of this title. 1894, 21 Op.Atty.Gen. 9.

139. Stake in success of conspiracy, parties liable for conspiracy

A party's stake in alleged conspiracy is relevant to question whether he participated therein, though not essential. Direct Sales Co. v. U.S., U.S.S.C.1943, 63 S.Ct. 1265, 319 U.S. 703, 87 L.Ed. 1674.

A party's stake in a conspiracy is relevant to the question of his or her participation. U. S. v. Hawes, C.A.5 (Ga.) 1976, 529 F.2d 472.

Knowledge of existence and goals of conspiracy does not of itself make one a co-conspirator; one must also have a stake in the venture. U. S. v. Cianchetti, C.A.2 (Conn.) 1963, 315 F.2d 584.

One must have a stake in the success of the conspiracy in order that he may be considered a party to it. U.S. v. Di Re, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1947, 159 F.2d 818, certiorari granted 67 S.Ct. 1348, 331 U.S. 800, 91 L.Ed. 1824, affirmed 68 S.Ct. 222, 332 U.S. 581, 92 L.Ed. 210.

Where wrongful object of a conspiracy is charged against all defendants, crime is not excused because some defendants have different benefits from others and to that extent may be acting in legal opposition to others charged with the wrong. *U.S. v. Rhoads, D.C.D.C.*1942, 48 F.Supp. 175.

140. Compensation, parties liable for conspiracy

Fact that defendant received no pay for his aid in distribution of cocaine did not preclude finding that defendant conspired to distribute cocaine. U. S. v. Yaniz-Cremata, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1974, 503 F.2d 963.

141. Persons incapable of substantive offense, parties liable for conspiracy

A person may be guilty of conspiring although incapable of committing the objective offense. U. S. v. Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., U.S.Wis.1940, 60 S.Ct. 811, 310 U.S. 150, 84 L.Ed. 1129, rehearing denied 60 S.Ct.

1091, 310 U.S. 658, 84 L.Ed. 1421. See, also, U.S. v. Rabinowich, N.Y.1915, 35 S.Ct. 682, 238 U.S. 80, 59 L.Ed. 1211; Farnsworth v. Zerbst, C.C.A.Ga.1938, 98 F.2d 541; Israel v. U.S., C.C.A.Ohio 1925, 3 F.2d 743; Jelke v. U.S., Ill.1918, 255 F. 264, 166 C.C.A. 434; U.S. v. Lyman, D.C.Or.1911, 190 F. 414; U.S. v. Stevens, D.C.Minn.1890, 44 F. 132; U.S. v. Holz, D.C.Ill.1950, 103 F.Supp. 191, reversed on other grounds 191 F.2d 569; U.S. v. Sweet, D.C.Me.1879, 2 Hask. 310, 28 Fed.Cas. No. 16,427; U.S. v. Bayer, C.C.Minn.1876, 4 Dill. 407, 24 Fed.Cas. No. 14,547; U.S. v. Martin, C.C.Mass.1870, 4 Cliff 156, 26 Fed.Cas. No. 15,728. Conspiracy ↪ 40.2

Conviction under this section was not precluded on theory that only alleged conspirators were defendant and government agent, although defendant had no direct dealings with anyone other than with government agent, where agent was "link" between defendant and real conspirators, it was obvious and known to defendant that in order to obtain weapons to be sold it was necessary to procure cooperation of other participants in enterprise or conspiracy, and defendant, to time of his forced withdrawal from deal, was au courant with progress of negotiations agent was conducting with other coconspirators engaged in furtherance of criminal enterprise. U.S. v. Fincher, C.A.11 (Ga.) 1984, 723 F.2d 862, rehearing denied 729 F.2d 1468.

If the only coconspirators were government agents, conviction under this section could not stand. Brown v. U. S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1966, 367 F.2d 145, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 2082, 387 U.S. 947, 18 L.Ed.2d 1334.

Private persons could be convicted of conspiring to deprive victim of civil rights, on allegation of collaboration with police officers, despite private persons' incapacity to act under color of law. U. S. v. Lester, C.A.6 (Ky.) 1966, 363 F.2d 68, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 705, 385 U.S. 1002, 17 L.Ed.2d 542, rehearing denied 87 S.Ct. 951, 386 U.S. 938, 17 L.Ed.2d 813.

Fact that defendant's only connection with and knowledge of unknown coconspirators was through a government informer did not vitiate the conspiracy, but defendant, by agreeing to furnish protection to operation of an illicit still by government informer and his co-conspirators was chargeable as a conspirator even though no conspiracy could have existed between defendant and government informer alone. Sears v. U. S., C.A.5 (Ga.) 1965, 343 F.2d 139.

Fact that neither defendant nor his alleged conspirator were taxpayers or revenue agents had no bearing upon their capacity to conspire to evade and defeat income taxes due and owing United States by third parties in violation of provision of § 7201 of Title 26 making it unlawful to willfully attempt to evade or defeat any tax. U.S. v. Gordon, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1957, 242 F.2d 122, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 1378, 354 U.S. 921, 1 L.Ed.2d 1436.

It is sufficient for conviction under this section if any one of the parties to a conspiracy is legally capable of committing the substantive offense to which the conspiracy relates. Brown v. U. S., C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1953, 204 F.2d 247.

Conspiracy is a separate and different offense from the crime which is the object of the conspiracy, and addicts and others may be guilty of a conspiracy to effect a violation of § 2550 et seq. of Title 26 even though they could not be guilty of a substantive offense under such sections. Richards v. U. S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1951, 193 F.2d 554, certiorari denied 72 S.Ct. 764, 343 U.S. 930, 96 L.Ed. 1340.

Though county treasurer could not have committed objective offense of making false entries in books and reports of national bank as principal, he could conspire with bank cashier to commit such offense. Curtis v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Colo.) 1933, 67 F.2d 943.

There may be an unlawful conspiracy that one shall give and an officer shall receive a bribe, though neither can be guilty of the offense which it is contemplated the other shall commit. Ex parte O'Leary, C.C.A.7 (Wis.) 1931, 56 F.2d 515.

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Persons not bankrupts may conspire to conceal property from trustee. Carter v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1927, 19 F.2d 431. See, also, Israel v. U.S., C.C.A.Ohio 1925, 3 F.2d 743; U.S. v. Young, etc., Co., C.C.R.I.1909, 170 F. 110, modified on other grounds 195 F. 353, certiorari denied 32 S.Ct. 840, 225 U.S. 710, 56 L.Ed. 1267; Ohen v. U.S., N.Y.1907, 157 F. 651, 85 C.C.A. 113, certiorari denied 28 S.Ct. 261, 207 U.S. 596, 52 L.Ed. 357. Conspiracy ↪
28

Persons who were not government officers could have been convicted, under former § 88 of this title [now this section] of conspiracy with officers in asking for and receiving bribe for not reporting liquor found in search under warrant. Downs v. U.S., C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1925, 3 F.2d 855, certiorari denied 45 S.Ct. 509, 268 U.S. 689, 69 L.Ed. 1158.

Other persons than a bankrupt may commit an offense by conspiring with him that he shall conceal his goods. Tapack v. US, C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1915, 220 F. 445, 137 C.C.A. 39, certiorari denied 35 S.Ct. 664, 238 U.S. 627, 59 L.Ed. 1495. See, also, U.S. v. Holte, Wis.1915, 35 S.Ct. 271, 236 U.S. 140, 59 L.Ed. 504, L.R.A.1915D, 281.

Although an indictment for conspiracy will not lie where a plurality of agents is logically necessary to complete the crime which it was the object of the conspiracy to commit, it is, on the other hand, sufficient if one of the parties to a conspiracy is legally capable of committing the offense, while the other party or parties may not have had that capacity. Chadwick v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1905, 141 F. 225, 72 C.C.A. 343.

142. Entering conspiracy after formation, parties liable for conspiracy

Where indictment charged that defendants conspired to obstruct due administration of justice in prosecution of another, alleged fact that the other entered conspiracy after it was formed by defendants did not affect existence of general scheme. Craig v. U. S., U.S.Cal.1936, 56 S.Ct. 670, 298 U.S. 637, 80 L.Ed. 1371.

Prior actions of coconspirators in furtherance of conspiracy are attributable to one who later joins conspiracy. U. S. v. Davis, C.A.5 (Ga.) 1982, 666 F.2d 195.

Under general conspiracy law where a conspirator is held responsible for acts of the conspiracy before he joined, it is necessary to show an overt act of one of the conspirators thereafter. U. S. v. Peraino, C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1981, 645 F.2d 548.

New conspirators may join the criminal agreement after its inception and others may terminate their membership in the conspiracy after its inception. U. S. v. Castro, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1980, 629 F.2d 456.

Defendant may not escape criminal responsibility on grounds that he did not join conspiracy until well after its inception or because he played only a minor role in total scheme. U. S. v. Alvarez, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 625 F.2d 1196, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 2017, 451 U.S. 938, 68 L.Ed.2d 324.

Defendant's relatively late entry into the marijuana-smuggling operation did not preclude his conviction as a participant in the conspiracy. U. S. v. Bates, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1979, 600 F.2d 505.

Fact that new members joined conspiracy as time went on and old members might have dropped out did not preclude a finding that a single, ongoing conspiracy existed. U. S. v. Green, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1975, 523 F.2d 229, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 858, 423 U.S. 1074, 47 L.Ed.2d 84.

Where there was evidence from which reasonable men could conclude that defendant joined conspiracy to import cocaine with knowledge of unlawful enterprise and acted to further it, defendant was liable for acts of other conspirators even if those acts occurred prior to his joining in conspiracy. U. S. v. Reynolds, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1975, 511 F.2d 603.

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

One who joins an existing conspiracy takes it as it is, and is therefore accountable for the prior conduct of the coconspirators. U. S. v. Torres, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1974, 503 F.2d 1120. Conspiracy ↪ 41

An individual cannot be held criminally liable for substantive offenses committed by members of conspiracy before that individual had joined or after he had withdrawn from conspiracy. U. S. v. Knippenberg, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1974, 502 F.2d 1056.

If there was only one continuing conspiracy manifesting itself in different forms, party who joined conspiracy would be responsible for acts occurring prior to his joining conspiracy. U. S. v. Brown, C.A.1 (Mass.) 1974, 495 F.2d 593, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 226, 419 U.S. 965, 42 L.Ed.2d 179.

While a conspiracy may have small core of conspirators, other parties who join and terminate their relationships at various times in order to participate with core conspirators to achieve a common goal may be members of the overall conspiracy. U. S. v. Cervantes, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1972, 466 F.2d 736, certiorari denied 93 S.Ct. 108, 409 U.S. 886, 34 L.Ed.2d 143.

Fact that one has adhered to criminal scheme after it has been initiated and partly carried out and without knowing all of the details does not prevent his knowing participation in the enterprise from making him member of overall conspiracy. U. S. v. Barone, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1972, 458 F.2d 1027.

Person who joins already formed conspiracy knowing of unlawful purpose may be held responsible for acts done in furtherance of conspiracy both prior and subsequent to his joinder. U. S. v. McGann, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1970, 431 F.2d 1104, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 904, 401 U.S. 919, 27 L.Ed.2d 821.

Where conspiracy is already in progress, latecomer who knowingly joins it takes it as he finds it and may be held responsible for acts committed in furtherance of conspiracy before he joined it. U.S. v. Cimini, C.A.6 (Mich.) 1970, 427 F.2d 129, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 137, 400 U.S. 911, 27 L.Ed.2d 151, rehearing denied 91 S.Ct. 364, 400 U.S. 984, 27 L.Ed.2d 396.

Party to conspiracy is liable as a principal for all offenses committed in furtherance of conspiracy while he is a member of it, but a latecomer cannot be convicted as principal for substantive offenses which were committed in furtherance of conspiracy before he joined it or after he withdrew from it. Gradsy v. U.S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1967, 376 F.2d 993, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 224, 389 U.S. 908, 19 L.Ed.2d 224, rehearing denied 88 S.Ct. 488, 389 U.S. 998, 19 L.Ed.2d 505.

Nobody is liable in conspiracy except for fair import of concerted purpose or agreement as he understands it; if later comer changed that, he is not liable for the change; his liability is limited to the common purposes while he remains in it. U. S. v. Borelli, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1964, 336 F.2d 376, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 647, 379 U.S. 960, 13 L.Ed.2d 555.

A defendant need not be a member of the conspiracy from its inception to its termination; defendant coconspirators in many instances need not even know their fellow conspirators or the particular part they are playing. U.S. v. Dardi, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1964, 330 F.2d 316, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 117, 379 U.S. 869, 13 L.Ed.2d 73, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 50, 379 U.S. 845, 13 L.Ed.2d 50, rehearing denied 85 S.Ct. 640, 379 U.S. 986, 13 L.Ed.2d 579, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 51, 379 U.S. 845, 13 L.Ed.2d 50.

Defendant who joined conspiracy to transport in interstate commerce geophysical maps knowing them to have been stolen was responsible for acts occurring prior to his joining conspiracy. U. S. v. Lester, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1960, 282 F.2d 750, certiorari denied 81 S.Ct. 385, 364 U.S. 937, 5 L.Ed.2d 368.

It is not necessary that all conspirators be acquainted with each other or have originally conceived or participated in conception of conspiracy, but those who come on later and cooperate in the common effort to obtain the unlawful results become parties thereto and assume responsibility for all done before, nor does mere fact that conspirators individually or in groups perform different tasks to common end split up conspiracy into several different conspiracies. U. S. v. Lester, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1960, 282 F.2d 750, certiorari denied 81 S.Ct. 385, 364 U.S. 937, 5 L.Ed.2d 368.

If a person joins a criminal concert later, knowing of the criminal design, and acts in concert with the original conspirators, he may be held responsible, not only for everything which may be done thereafter, but also for everything which has been done prior to his adherence to the criminal design. Lile v. United States, C.A.9 (Alaska) 1958, 264 F.2d 278.

After a conspiracy has been formed, adherence to criminal design by a new confederate does not constitute a different conspiracy and original members who conceived and formulated original design and who performed original overt act which made it punishable are not relieved from responsibility. Lile v. United States, C.A.9 (Alaska) 1958, 264 F.2d 278.

Defendant who joined a functioning conspiracy was bound by it. United States v. Kessler, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1958, 253 F.2d 290.

A conspirator may join at any point in the progress of the conspiracy and be held responsible for all that may be done or has been done. Poliafico v. U. S., C.A.6 (Ohio) 1956, 237 F.2d 97, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 590, 352 U.S. 1025, 1 L.Ed.2d 597, rehearing denied 77 S.Ct. 718, 353 U.S. 931, 1 L.Ed.2d 725. See, also, Braverman v. U.S., C.C.A.Mich.1942, 125 F.2d 283, reversed on other grounds 63 S.Ct. 99, 317 U.S. 49, 87 L.Ed. 23; U.S. v. Olmstead, D.C.Wash.1925, 5 F.2d 712; Samara v. U.S., C.C.A.N.Y.1920, 263 F. 12; U.S. v. Jackson, 1979, 627 F.2d 1198, 201 U.S.App.D.C. 212. Conspiracy ↪ 41

One who joins an existing conspiracy takes it as it is, and is accountable for prior conduct of co-conspirators. United States v. Sansone, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1956, 231 F.2d 887, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 1055, 351 U.S. 987, 100 L.Ed. 1500. See, also, U.S. v. Greater Blouse, Skirt & Neckwear Contractors' Ass'n, Inc., D.C.N.Y.1959, 177 F.Supp. 213. Conspiracy ↪ 41

All members of conspiracy were liable for any acts whatsoever done in furtherance of conspiracy, even if done before one of conspirators joined conspiracy. U.S. v. McKee, C.A.2 (Vt.) 1955, 220 F.2d 266.

All who subsequently join a conspiracy are accountable for, and adopt as their own, all prior conduct of their coconspirators. U.S. v. Bucur, C.A.7 (Ind.) 1952, 194 F.2d 297.

One who joins a conspiracy previously formed and assists in its execution becomes liable with the others not only for the acts done thereafter but also for the original conspiracy and acts done in furtherance thereof. U.S. v. Spadafora, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1950, 181 F.2d 957, certiorari denied 71 S.Ct. 234, 340 U.S. 897, 95 L.Ed. 650, rehearing denied 71 S.Ct. 283, 340 U.S. 916, 95 L.Ed. 662.

A defendant can join a conspiracy at any time and may be found to have done so when with knowledge of its existence, he has undertaken to further its design. Phelps v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Minn.) 1947, 160 F.2d 858, rehearing denied 161 F.2d 940, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 1525, 334 U.S. 860, 92 L.Ed. 1780.

The circumstances of an individual defendant's participation in an established conspiracy can become substantial from their weight in position and context, though in abstraction they may seem only slight. Phelps v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Minn.) 1947, 160 F.2d 858, rehearing denied 161 F.2d 940, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 1525, 334 U.S. 860, 92 L.Ed. 1780.

A person joining an existing group engaged in commission of joint crimes assumes responsibility for all done theretofore. Deacon v. U. S., C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1941, 124 F.2d 352. See, also, Van Riper v. U.S., C.C.A.N.Y.1926, 13 F.2d 961; Rudner v. U.S., C.C.A.Ohio 1922, 281 F. 516, certiorari denied 43 S.Ct. 95, 260 U.S. 734, 67 L.Ed. 487; U.S. v. Lang, D.C.N.Y.1941, 40 F.Supp. 414. Criminal Law ↪ 59(1)

Where there was a general plan to violate narcotic laws in which plan all of defendants participated, it was immaterial when any of parties entered or whether some of those participating were strangers to each other, since they were all engaged in a common unlawful purpose and each and all contributed their part to the "conspiracy". U. S. v. Feinberg, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1941, 123 F.2d 425, certiorari denied 62 S.Ct. 626, 315 U.S. 801, 86 L.Ed. 1201.

It is not necessary that each of the conspirators participate in or have knowledge of all of the operations of a conspiracy, but a conspirator may join at any point in its progress and be held responsible for all that may be or has been done. U.S. v. Manton, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1939, 107 F.2d 834, certiorari denied 60 S.Ct. 590, 309 U.S. 664, 84 L.Ed. 1012.

A "conspiracy" imports a concert of purpose, and nobody is liable in conspiracy except for fair import of concerted purpose, or agreement as conspirator understands it, and if later comers change that, he is not liable for the change, his liability being limited to common purposes while he remains in it. U.S. v. Peoni, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1938, 100 F.2d 401.

Where conspiracy has been formed to violate federal law, joinder thereof by new member does not create new conspiracy or change status of other conspirators, and new member is as guilty as though he was an original conspirator. Marino v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1937, 91 F.2d 691, certiorari denied 58 S.Ct. 410, 302 U.S. 764, 82 L.Ed. 593. See, also, Calcutt v. Gerig, C.C.A.Tenn.1921, 271 F. 220. Conspiracy ↪ 40.3

All conspirators need not have been acquainted, and need not have originally conceived or participated in conception of conspiracy, and parties coming in later and co-operating in common effort to obtain unlawful results become parties thereto and assume responsibility for all done before. Lefco v. U S, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1934, 74 F.2d 66 . See, also, Hagen v. U.S., C.C.A.Wash.1920, 268 F. 344, certiorari denied 41 S.Ct. 323, 255 U.S. 569, 65 L.Ed. 790; U.S. v. Cassidy, D.C.Cal.1895, 67 F. 698; U.S. v. Barrett, C.C.S.C.1894, 65 F. 62; U.S. v. Howell, D.C.Mo.1892, 56 F. 21; U.S. v. Sacia, D.C.N.J.1880, 2 F. 754. Conspiracy ↪ 40.3

One purposely taking part in carrying conspiracy into effect is party thereto, though he joined at later stage or took minor part, or may not have known all conspirators. Mendelson v. U.S., App.D.C.1932, 58 F.2d 532, 61 App.D.C. 127.

If defendant, after becoming police chief, became party to conspiracy formed before, he would be guilty of conspiracy if overt act was done in furtherance thereof. U.S. v. Grossman, D.C.N.Y.1931, 55 F.2d 408.

Persons joining and participating in conspiracy after formation are equally guilty with originators. U.S. v. Wilson, D.C.W.Va.1927, 23 F.2d 112. See, also, Johnson v. U.S., 1925, 45 S.Ct. 509, 268 U.S. 689, 69 L.Ed. 1158; Mullen v. U.S., 1925, 45 S.Ct. 353, 267 U.S. 598, 69 L.Ed. 806; Dowdy v. U.S., C.C.A.N.C.1931, 46 F.2d 417; Allen v. U.S., C.C.A.Ind.1925, 4 F.2d 688, certiorari denied 45 S.Ct. 352, 267 U.S. 597, 69 L.Ed. 806; Nyquist v. U.S., C.C.A.Mich.1924, 2 F.2d 504, certiorari denied 45 S.Ct. 508, 267 U.S. 606, 69 L.Ed. 810; Thomas v. U.S., Mo.1907, 156 F. 897, 84 C.C.A. 477, 17 L.R.A.,N.S., 720; U.S. v. Boyer, D.C.Pa.1949, 84 F.Supp. 905. Conspiracy ↪ 40.3

It is immaterial at what time a defendant joined a criminal conspiracy, where it is shown that he joined with others in carrying out the common design. U S v. Schenck, E.D.Pa.1918, 253 F. 212, affirmed 39 S.Ct. 247, 249 U.S. 47, 63 L.Ed. 470, 17 Ohio Law Rep. 149.

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

One who joins existing conspiracy takes it as it is and is accountable for prior conduct of co-conspirators. U. S. v. Sobell, S.D.N.Y.1962, 204 F.Supp. 225, affirmed 314 F.2d 314, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 1906, 374 U.S. 857, 10 L.Ed.2d 1077.

If a person knowingly joins an existing conspiracy, he accepts as binding upon him, whatever conspirators have already said or done to carry out the conspiracy, but if a person does not know of the purposes of the conspiracy and does not share such purposes, he is not bound. U. S. v. Palladino, D.C.Mass.1962, 203 F.Supp. 35.

When one enters after inception of continuing conspiracy he becomes liable for acts of all conspirators, since conspiracy is, in effect, renewed each day of its existence. Riss & Co. v. Association of American Railroads, D.C.D.C.1959, 170 F.Supp. 354, certiorari denied 267 F.2d 659, 105 U.S.App.D.C. 382, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 108, 361 U.S. 804, 4 L.Ed.2d 57.

As soon as a person joins in a conspiracy, he is equally as guilty as he would have been if he had joined the conspiracy when it began, and he assumes responsibility for all that has been done before he joins, and fact that person plays a lesser or even a minor part in conspiracy, and is not the dominant member, in no way lessens his guilt. U. S. v. Nedley, W.D.Pa.1957, 153 F.Supp. 887, reversed on other grounds 255 F.2d 350. Conspiracy 40

Any one who joins a conspiracy at any time during its life, knowing that such conspiracy is going on, and who makes himself a party to it, is as liable as if he were one of the original members. U.S. v. Belisle, W.D.Wash.1951, 107 F.Supp. 283.

A "conspiracy" is a partnership in criminal purposes and gist of offense is combination or agreement to violate law, so that one knowingly and willfully joining existing conspiracy is charged with same responsibility as if he had been one of instigators or originators thereof. U. S. v. Schneiderman, S.D.Cal.1952, 106 F.Supp. 906.

143. Withdrawal from conspiracy, parties liable for conspiracy

Some affirmative action to defeat the purpose of a continuing conspiracy to defraud the United States, contrary to former § 88 of this title [now this section] must have been taken by a conspirator to prevent the overt act of an associate from continuing him in the conspiracy. Hyde v. U.S., U.S.Dist.Col.1912, 32 S.Ct. 793, 225 U.S. 347, 56 L.Ed. 1114, Am. Ann. Cas. 1914A, 614.

Defendant did not withdraw from conspiracy prior to the enactment of new sentencing guidelines, and thus application of amended sentencing guidelines was proper; although many goals of the conspiracy had already been accomplished at the time of the enactment of the new guidelines, following the enactment, defendant recruited another accomplice and continued to receive treasury checks from his co-conspirators. U.S. v. Vaughn, C.A.7 (Wis.) 2006, 433 F.3d 917. Sentencing And Punishment 664(6)

There was sufficient evidence for reasonable jury to conclude that even if defendant had told other members of conspiracy that he renounced scheme and ceased contact with conspiracy, his subsequent acts neutralized his withdrawal and indicated his continued acquiescence; therefore, defendant was liable for continuing acts in furtherance of conspiracy by other conspirators, including those acts which accrued within statute of limitations period. U.S. v. Lash, C.A.6 (Mich.) 1991, 937 F.2d 1077, rehearing denied, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 397, 502 U.S. 949, 116 L.Ed.2d 347, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 943, 502 U.S. 1061, 117 L.Ed.2d 113.

In order to avoid complicity in a conspiracy, one must withdraw before any overt act is taken in furtherance of the agreement. U.S. v. Luttrell, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1989, 889 F.2d 806, rehearing granted 906 F.2d 1384, opinion vacated in part on other grounds and amended on other grounds on rehearing 923 F.2d 764, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 1558, 503 U.S. 959, 118 L.Ed.2d 207.

"Withdrawal" marks a conspirator's disapproval or abandonment of the conspiratorial agreement and after defendant withdraws he is no longer a member of the conspiracy and later acts of the conspirators do not bind him but defendant is still liable for his previous agreement and for prior acts of his coconspirators in pursuit of the conspiracy. U.S. v. Read, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1981, 658 F.2d 1225.

In conspiracy prosecution, defendant, who was shown to have committed overt act required to establish his participation in conspiracy, did not establish that he withdrew from the conspiracy so as to be entitled to acquittal. U. S. v. Boyd, C.A.8 (Minn.) 1979, 610 F.2d 521, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 1052, 444 U.S. 1089, 62 L.Ed.2d 777

Withdrawal from a conspiracy requires affirmative action to disavow or defeat the purpose of a conspiracy. U. S. v. James, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1979, 609 F.2d 36, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 1082, 445 U.S. 905, 63 L.Ed.2d 321.

In order to withdraw from a conspiracy, an individual must take affirmative action, either making a clean breast to the authorities or communicating his withdrawal in a manner reasonably calculated to reach coconspirators. U. S. v. Parnell, C.A.10 (Okla.) 1978, 581 F.2d 1374, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 852, 439 U.S. 1076, 59 L.Ed.2d 44; U.S. v. Mardian, 1976, 546 F.2d 973, 178 U.S.App.D.C. 207. Conspiracy ¶ 40.4

Although the arrest or incarceration of a conspirator may constitute a withdrawal from the conspiracy, it does not constitute a withdrawal as a matter of law. U. S. v. Harris, C.A.7 (Ind.) 1976, 542 F.2d 1283, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 1558, 430 U.S. 934, 51 L.Ed.2d 779.

Participation in a conspiracy may continue beyond the performance of an overt act by the alleged conspirator, if the conspiracy continues in existence thereafter; affirmative proof of withdrawal is generally required to terminate liability. U. S. v. Cirillo, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1972, 468 F.2d 1233, certiorari denied 93 S.Ct. 1501, 410 U.S. 989, 36 L.Ed.2d 188.

In order to sustain a claim of withdrawal from a conspiracy a defendant must prove an affirmative action to disavow or defeat the purpose of the conspiracy, or some definite, decisive and positive step which shows that his disassociation is full, decisive and complete. U. S. v. Chester, C.A.3 (N.J.) 1969, 407 F.2d 53, certiorari denied 89 S.Ct. 1642, 394 U.S. 1020, 23 L.Ed.2d 45.

Convictions of defendant for substantive offenses committed by members of conspiracy after time that defendant had left his employment and the conspiracy must be vacated, but his convictions of substantive offenses of which there was no doubt as to his guilt must be affirmed. Meadors v. U.S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1967, 376 F.2d 998. Criminal Law ¶ 1182; Criminal Law ¶ 1186.1

Imprisonment of defendant does not necessarily show his withdrawal from conspiracy. U. S. v. Borelli, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1964, 336 F.2d 376, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 647, 379 U.S. 960, 13 L.Ed.2d 555.

Participation in a conspiracy may continue beyond performance of overt act by alleged conspirator, if conspiracy continues in existence thereafter; affirmative proof of withdrawal is generally required. U. S. v. Cianchetti, C.A.2 (Conn.) 1963, 315 F.2d 584.

While arrest or incarceration may constitute a withdrawal from a conspiracy it does not necessarily follow that in every instance it must. U.S. v. Agueci, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1962, 310 F.2d 817, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 1013, 372 U.S. 959, 10 L.Ed.2d 11, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 1016, 372 U.S. 959, 10 L.Ed.2d 12, post-conviction relief dismissed 741 F.Supp. 409, reconsideration denied, affirmed 930 F.2d 910.

A defendant once shown to have been a member of conspiracy which lasts until beginning of limitation period must satisfy jury by affirmative proof that he disconnected himself from conspiracy before that period began to assert defense of limitations. U.S. v. Compagna, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1944, 146 F.2d 524, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 912, 324 U.S. 867, 89 L.Ed. 1422, rehearing denied 65 S.Ct. 1084, 325 U.S. 892, 89 L.Ed. 2004, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 913, 324 U.S. 867, 89 L.Ed. 1423.

If, as contended by accused, he became involved innocently in conspiracy to transport lottery tickets in interstate commerce by entering into agreement with codefendant for codefendant to conduct contests for benefit of hospital of which accused was head, it was accused's duty, after learning of criminal nature of scheme, to take some definite and positive step of withdrawal from venture in order to escape criminal liability. Deacon v. U. S., C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1941, 124 F.2d 352.

Generally, where overt act is essential to conspiracy, conspirator may avoid guilt by withdrawing from the conspiracy before commission of an overt act, but when once a conspiracy is shown to exist, which is not ended merely by lapse of time, it continues to exist as to all persons involved until some affirmative act of withdrawal is shown. U. S. v. Beck, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1941, 118 F.2d 178, certiorari denied 61 S.Ct. 1121, 313 U.S. 587, 85 L.Ed. 1542.

Conviction for use of mails to defraud insurance companies by filing false claims and for conspiracy could not be reversed on ground that defendant had dropped out of conspiracy after giving disability certificate in one instance, in absence of proof that defendant took any affirmative step to withdraw from the conspiracy. U S v. Weiss, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1939, 103 F.2d 348, certiorari granted 59 S.Ct. 1043, 307 U.S. 621, 83 L.Ed. 1500, reversed on other grounds 60 S.Ct. 269, 308 U.S. 321, 84 L.Ed. 298.

A conspirator to violate federal law may avoid guilt by withdrawing from conspiracy prior to commission of overt act, but affirmative action is required to show withdrawal, for conspiracy once established is presumed to continue until contrary is established. Marino v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1937, 91 F.2d 691, certiorari denied 58 S.Ct. 410, 302 U.S. 764, 82 L.Ed. 593. See, also, Miller v. U.S., C.C.A.S.C.1921, 277 F. 721. Conspiracy ↪ 40.4; Conspiracy ↪ 44.2

Absent any affirmative withdrawal from conspiracy, defendant remains part of ongoing criminal enterprise notwithstanding absence of any overt acts. U.S. v. Burger, D.Kan.1991, 770 F.Supp. 598, affirmed 968 F.2d 21, certiorari denied 113 S.Ct. 1382, 507 U.S. 959, 122 L.Ed.2d 758, on remand.

A conspirator may withdraw from a continuing conspiracy and thereby avoid prosecution for acts committed by remaining members at a later date if he proves that he performed affirmative acts inconsistent with the object of the conspiracy and communicated in a manner reasonably calculated to reach coconspirators. U. S. v. Lowell, D.C.N.J.1980, 490 F.Supp. 897, affirmed 649 F.2d 950.

A conspiracy, if any, to commit an offense against United States terminated, so far as defendant was concerned, when defendant affirmatively withdrew from conspiracy, and prosecution for alleged conspiracy was barred by former § 582 of this title, where defendant withdrew more than three years before filing of indictment. U S v. Ames, S.D.N.Y.1941, 39 F.Supp. 885.

A person who has joined a conspiracy may abandon it and thereby escape liability for subsequent acts of coconspirators, but he cannot escape such liability unless he informs them of his purpose to abandon them and he must show affirmatively that he has withdrawn, which is a question of fact for jury under proper instructions. U. S. v. Gilbert, S.D.Ohio 1939, 31 F.Supp. 195.

144. Substantive offense, parties liable for conspiracy

Where sufficient evidence is adduced to support finding that conspiracy existed and that defendant was part of that conspiracy, jury may find defendant guilty not only of conspiracy but of substantive crime committed by coconspirators in furtherance of conspiracy, even though he does not participate in commission of substantive offense. U.S. v. Casperson, C.A.8 (S.D.) 1985, 773 F.2d 216.

Party to a continuing conspiracy may be held responsible for a substantive offense committed with a coconspirator in furtherance of the conspiracy even though that party does not participate in the substantive offense or have any knowledge of it. U. S. v. Diaz, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1981, 655 F.2d 580, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 1257, 455 U.S. 910, 71 L.Ed.2d 448.

Conspirator can be found guilty of a substantive offense committed by a coconspirator in furtherance of the conspiracy so long as the coconspirator's acts are within the reasonably foreseeable scope of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Hodges, C.A.5 (Ala.) 1979, 606 F.2d 520, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 708, 444 U.S. 1035, 62 L.Ed.2d 671.

Once a conspiracy and a particular defendant's knowing participation in it has been established beyond a reasonable doubt, that defendant is guilty of substantive acts committed in furtherance of the conspiracy by any of his criminal partners. U. S. v. Michel, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1979, 588 F.2d 986, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 47, 444 U.S. 825, 62 L.Ed.2d 32.

Where at least one of appealing defendants performed one or more of illegal acts charged, and acts charged were in furtherance of conspiracy, all of them became guilty of substantive acts by virtue of their participation in the conspiracy. U. S. v. Kaplan, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1977, 554 F.2d 958, certiorari denied 98 S.Ct. 483, 434 U.S. 956, 54 L.Ed.2d 315, rehearing denied 98 S.Ct. 755, 434 U.S. 1026, 54 L.Ed.2d 774.

A defendant may be convicted of a substantive offense which he did not himself commit if it is clear that the offense was committed in furtherance of a conspiracy of which defendant was a member. U. S. v. Trotter, C.A.3 (N.J.) 1976, 529 F.2d 806.

Charge, in effect, that conspirator was liable for reasonably foreseeable crimes committed by coconspirator in furtherance of and during venture was not improper on ground that such charge is warranted only if substantive count includes reference to this section. U. S. v. Carroll, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1975, 510 F.2d 507, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 2633, 426 U.S. 923, 49 L.Ed.2d 378.

Defendant as party to continuing conspiracy was accountable for a substantive offense committed by coconspirator in furtherance of the conspiracy, even though defendant did not directly participate in the substantive offense. U. S. v. Falco, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1974, 496 F.2d 1359.

Where defendant arranged through intermediary to supply gasoline ration coupons to service station operator, who paid intermediary, who turned over payment to defendant who rewarded intermediary with food ration stamps, and each person involved in carrying out the conspiracy learned who the other participants were, there was no such cooperation in the commission of the substantive offense that defendant could not be convicted of conspiracy to commit such misdemeanor. U.S. v. Simonds, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1945, 148 F.2d 177.

Although accused was not guilty of conspiracy to import intoxicating liquor into Oklahoma in violation of former § 223 of Title 27, if facts warranted he would be guilty of substantive offense of aiding and abetting in violation of said former section. Bacon v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Okla.) 1942, 127 F.2d 985.

Where a defendant does not physically participate in substantive offense, his association with such an act depends exclusively upon charge of conspiracy and should evidence fail to establish defendant's participation in the conspiracy, his conviction on both the conspiracy count and count charging underlying substantive offense must be set aside. U. S. v. Simms, W.D.La.1980, 508 F.Supp. 1188.

Where alleged conspiracy to carry on an illegal gambling business involved agreement on part of more participants than the five which were necessary for the commission of the substantive offense, defendants could be convicted of both conspiracy and of the substantive offense. U. S. v. Mainello, E.D.N.Y.1972, 345 F.Supp. 863.

171. Agriculture, particular frauds and offenses

An agreement between a clerk or employé in the Department of Agriculture and others pursuant to which such clerk furnished to the others advance information of the contents of a report to be afterward made public by the department regarding the condition of the cotton crop, based on which information the outsiders speculated in the market for the benefit of all parties to the agreement, did not constitute a conspiracy to defraud the United States within the meaning of former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U.S. v. Haas, S.D.N.Y.1906, 167 F. 211. Conspiracy ↪ 33(2.1)

A conspiracy to cause the publication of incorrect monthly agricultural reports concerning the cotton crop of the current year constituted a "conspiracy to defraud" prohibited by former § 88 of this title. Haas v. Henkel, C.C.S.D.N.Y.1909, 166 F. 621, affirmed 30 S.Ct. 249, 216 U.S. 462, 54 L.Ed. 569, 17 Am. Ann. Cas. 1112. See, also, U.S. v. Haas, C.C.N.Y.1908, 163 F. 908. Conspiracy ↪ 33(2.1)

A conspiracy to obtain advance information of government agricultural reports and statistics before official publication did not constitute a "conspiracy to defraud" prohibited by former § 88 of this title [now this section]. Haas v. Henkel, C.C.S.D.N.Y.1909, 166 F. 621, affirmed 30 S.Ct. 249, 216 U.S. 462, 54 L.Ed. 569, 17 Am. Ann. Cas. 1112. Conspiracy ↪ 33(2.1)

172. Attempt, particular frauds and offenses

It is permitted to charge violation of this section for plan to violate specific statutory prohibition defining attempt offense against United States. U. S. v. Dearmore, C.A.9 (Or.) 1982, 672 F.2d 738. Conspiracy ↪ 43(6)

Indictment alleging conspiracy to attempt to enter savings and loan association was not insufficient, on ground that an attempt is an inchoate offense and cannot properly be the object of a conspiracy, since while entering a savings and loan was obviously an object of the conspiracy and a federal crime, the defendants necessarily contemplated their attempt to gain entry in the building and such attempts are expressly prescribed by section 2113 of this title. U. S. v. Clay, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1974, 495 F.2d 700, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 207, 419 U.S. 937, 42 L.Ed.2d 164. Conspiracy ↪ 43(6)

173. Bankruptcy, particular frauds and offenses

Where bankrupt alone removed and secreted assets prior to bankruptcy, the offense of concealment within federal statute was a continuing one, and defendant who entered into conspiracy with bankrupt after bankruptcy to conceal such assets was guilty of conspiracy to conceal assets even though defendant's actions in aid of such conspiracy took place two months after bankrupt had first removed and secreted the assets. Sultan v. U. S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1957, 249 F.2d 385. Conspiracy ↪ 40.3

The crime of conspiracy to defraud the United States by corruptly administering or procuring the corrupt administration of the Frazier-Lemke Act, §§ 201 to 203 of Title 11, was complete when unlawful agreement was made and an overt act was consummated by any one of the conspirators, even though such overt act was not one laid in the indictment. Braatelen v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1945, 147 F.2d 888. Conspiracy ↪ 33(1)

Concealment of bankrupt's assets, to constitute overt act, must have occurred after conspiracy was formed. Morrow v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1926, 11 F.2d 256. Conspiracy ↪ 27

Whether bankruptcy was voluntary or involuntary is immaterial, in prosecution for conspiracy to violate Bankruptcy Act, § 1 et seq. of Title 11. Morrow v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1926, 11 F.2d 256. Criminal Law ↪ 25

Conspiracy to violate Bankruptcy Act by concealing property of bankrupt from trustee, was separate crime from that of concealment. Kaplan v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1925, 7 F.2d 594, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 107, 269 U.S. 582, 70 L.Ed. 423. Conspiracy ↪ 32

Persons could have been indicted under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for a conspiracy to conceal assets. Wolff v. U S, C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1924, 299 F. 90.

It was an offense for bankrupts to conspire to conceal their assets from their trustee, and others who conspired with them to effectuate that purpose could be indicted and convicted for conspiracy, though it was not an offense for them to conceal the assets of the bankrupts. Jollit v. U. S., C.C.A.5 (Ala.) 1922, 285 F. 209, certiorari denied 43

To support charge of conspiracy to conceal bankrupt's assets, actual commission of crime, or verbal expression of purpose to have bankrupt become such, was not necessary, nor was it material whether the proceedings were voluntary or involuntary. U S v. Fischer, E.D.Pa.1917, 245 F. 477, affirmed 250 F. 793, 163 C.C.A. 125. Conspiracy ⚡ 28

Under former § 88 of this title [now this section] persons could commit an offense by conspiring with a bankrupt to conceal his goods. Tapack v. US, C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1915, 220 F. 445, 137 C.C.A. 39, certiorari denied 35 S.Ct. 664, 238 U.S. 627, 59 L.Ed. 1495. Conspiracy ⚡ 28

Conspirators for a fraudulent concealment of assets in future bankruptcy proceedings were liable as for concealment from the trustee, whether the particular injury was intended or not. Roukous v. U.S., C.C.A.1 (R.I.) 1912, 195 F. 353, 115 C.C.A. 255, certiorari denied 32 S.Ct. 840, 225 U.S. 710, 56 L.Ed. 1267. Conspiracy ⚡ 25

An indictment would not lie under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for a conspiracy to effect the concealment by a bankrupt of property from his trustee, in violation of Bankruptcy Act, Title 11, where the trustee himself was charged as one of the conspirators, and the averments of the indictment showed that there was, in fact, no concealment of property from him, and no purpose that there should be such concealment. Johnson v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Tex.) 1907, 158 F. 69, 85 C.C.A. 399, 14 Am. Ann. Cas. 153. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

Agreement between bidders at bankruptcy auction not to competitively bid, to hold later auction between themselves, and to split profits was conspiracy to defraud United States; in light of bankruptcy court and bankruptcy trustee's position between debtor and creditor, Government was target of the fraud. U.S. v. Seville Indus. Machinery Corp., D.N.J.1988, 696 F.Supp. 986. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(2.1)

174. Banks and banking, particular frauds and offenses

A conspiracy between the directors of a banking association to misapply its moneys by procuring the declaration of a dividend greater than the net profits, in violation of § 56 of Title 12 was not a criminal offense. U.S. v. Britton, U.S.Mo.1883, 2 S.Ct. 531, 108 U.S. 199, 27 L.Ed. 698. Conspiracy ⚡ 31; Conspiracy ⚡ 32

Evidence permitted finding that defendant knew he was deceiving bank in arranging nominal loan transactions and intended to do so, and thus supported convictions for bank fraud and conspiracy to commit bank fraud, when loan documents contained no information that loan proceeds were actually flowing to defendant or his companies, pledged collateral actually belonged to defendant or to entity controlled by him, rather than to nominal borrower, which substantially increased bank's risk, bank officer testified that defendant came up with nominal loan scheme after being told that bank would no longer loan him money and bullied officer into participating, and one nominal borrower testified that defendant suggested that nominal borrower sign loan applications so that defendant could get more credit. U.S. v. Waldroop, C.A.10 (Okla.) 2005, 431 F.3d 736. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(4)

Actions of defendant within perimeters of his legal rights to assert claims of his corporation against admittedly invalid mortgage on corporation's property were insufficient to support conviction for conspiracy to commit bank fraud; absent some scheme of deceit or material misrepresentation, defendant was entitled to act as he did in pursuing available legal remedies to regain control of property for corporation. U.S. v. Campbell, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1995, 64 F.3d 967. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(2.1)

Defendants could be convicted of conspiring to defraud federally insured financial institution, through implementation of fraudulent scheme creating impressions that down payments had been made on sales of condominium units for which loans were issued covering balance of purchase price, without prosecution establishing that defendants knew creditor bank was federally insured. U.S. v. Brandon, C.A.1 (R.I.) 1994, 17 F.3d 409, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 80, 513 U.S. 820, 130 L.Ed.2d 34, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 81, 513 U.S. 820, 130 L.Ed.2d 34. Conspiracy ⚡ 32

Defendant could be convicted of conspiring to willfully and knowingly avoid filing currency transaction reports on basis of his agreement with bank branch manager to willfully conceal bank's duty to file currency transaction reports, even though defendant himself could not have been held liable for failure to file those reports. U.S. v. Donahue, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1989, 885 F.2d 45, 113 A.L.R. Fed. 883, rehearing denied. Conspiracy ⚡ 40.2

Where bank, as defendants knew, was national bank, required by law to be federally insured, it had once been insured, it continued to represent to public that it was insured, and for all anyone knew at time of offense it still was insured, proof that bank was insured during period of conspiracy was not required to sustain convictions of conspiracy to violate sections 656 and 1014 of this title. U.S. v. Shively, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1983, 715 F.2d 260, certiorari denied 104 S.Ct. 1001, 465 U.S. 1007, 79 L.Ed.2d 233. Conspiracy ⚡ 32

In prosecution for conspiring to make and making false statements to bank insured by Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, proof that financial institution involved is insured by FDIC is not mere formality, but, rather, it is essential element of federal offense and federal jurisdiction depends on that status. U. S. v. Platenburg, C.A.5 (La.) 1981, 657 F.2d 797. Banks And Banking ⚡ 509.20

On an indictment for conspiracy to obstruct and misapply the funds of a national bank in violation of § 592 of Title 12, if the defendants conspired to get the moneys of the bank and committed an overt act in furtherance of such conspiracy, they would be guilty even if they believed the moneys received from a co-conspirator, who was an employee of the bank, were his own moneys. Oppenheim v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1917, 241 F. 625, 154 C.C.A. 383.

While it is a settled rule of criminal law that an indictment for conspiracy will not lie where a plurality of agents is logically necessary to complete the crime which it was the object of the conspiracy to commit, such rule did not apply to an indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for a conspiracy between the defendant, who had no official connection with a national bank, and an officer of such bank to violate §§ 501 and 591 of Title 12, by causing a check of defendant drawn on the bank to be certified by such officer when defendant did not have a sufficient amount of deposit to pay the same. Chadwick v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1905, 141 F. 225, 72 C.C.A. 343. Banks And Banking ⚡ 256(2); Conspiracy ⚡ 28(1)

Something more than a mere certification of a check in excess of a deposit was necessary to make the offense punishable under former § 88 of this title [now this section], as a wrongful intent was of the essence, and the act of certification must have been willful, and there must have been an evil design, and a wrongful purpose. Chadwick v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1905, 141 F. 225, 72 C.C.A. 343.

A conspiracy to violate § 592 of Title 12 by causing false entries to be made in the books of a national bank by an officer or agent thereof for the purpose of defrauding the bank or others, or deceiving an agent appointed to examine the affairs of the bank, was one to commit "an offense against the United States." Scott v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1904, 130 F. 429, 64 C.C.A. 631. Banks And Banking ⚡ 256(1); Conspiracy ⚡ 28(3)

No conspiracy or bank fraud resulted from participation in "yield program" designed to improve capital positions of troubled banks by selling high yield packaged notes to banks and purchasing troubled assets from those same banks given that transactions involved willing participants and were made with adequate consideration; transactions were properly documented and records were available to bank regulators, disputed document changes were not material to permanent records of bank, and there was no evidence that relevant documents were forged, backdated, or destroyed. U.S. v. Ramming, S.D.Tex.1996, 915 F.Supp. 854. Banks And Banking ⚡ 509.10; Conspiracy ⚡ 33(2.1)

National banks directors and borrower who knowingly made loans in excess of 10 per cent. of bank's authorized capital contrary to §§ 84 and 93 of Title 12 were not indictable for conspiracy to commit an "offense" against laws of the United States. U.S. v. Brown, W.D.Ky.1933, 6 F.Supp. 331, appeal dismissed 54 S.Ct. 531, 291 U.S. 686, 78 L.Ed. 1073. Conspiracy ↪ 28(3)

Under former § 88 of this title [now this section] it was an offense for an officer of a national bank to conspire with another, not an officer, to abstract or embezzle the funds thereof, and an indictment charging the two with a conspiracy to commit such offense was good. U S v. Martin, C.C.Mass.1870, 26 F.Cas. 1175, No. 15728.

175. Bribery, particular frauds and offenses

Evidence was sufficient to support defendant's conviction for conspiracy to obtain FICA recovery contracts from state and local entities through bribery; there was evidence that defendant had incorporated California corporation and sent stock in corporation to Pennsylvania officials, and coconspirator had testified that defendant was aware of reason for sending stock, stock options and check to Pennsylvania officials. U.S. v. Smith, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1986, 789 F.2d 196, certiorari denied 107 S.Ct. 668, 479 U.S. 1017, 93 L.Ed.2d 720. Conspiracy ↪ 47(13)

Local draft board, under its duty to assist War Department with information and recommendations consistent with facts pertaining to inductees, has sufficient jurisdiction with respect to recommending furlough of an inductee and consulting its appeal agent concerning such recommendation, to support a charge against appeal agent and another of conspiracy to ask a bribe within requirement of former § 207 of this title that person so charged must have been acting for or on behalf of the United States in an official capacity. Cohen v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1944, 144 F.2d 984, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 440, 323 U.S. 797, 89 L.Ed. 636, order withheld 65 S.Ct. 441, rehearing denied 65 S.Ct. 586, 324 U.S. 885, 89 L.Ed. 1435. Conspiracy ↪ 28(3)

Agreement between persons not officers and officers to give and receive a bribe may be prosecuted as conspiracy though substantive offenses of giver and receiver of bribe are defined by different statutes. Ex parte O'Leary, C.C.A.7 (Wis.) 1931, 53 F.2d 956.

An agreement to bribe officer encountered may be sufficiently definite to constitute conspiracy. U.S. v. Frank, D.C.R.I.1926, 12 F.2d 796. Conspiracy ↪ 25

An agreement between a member of Congress and another, the one to receive a bribe for aiding to procure an office and the other to pay the same, constituted a substantive offense under former § 202 of this title by each of the parties thereto, and could not have been made the basis of an indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for a conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States. U.S. v. Dietrich, C.C.Neb.1904, 126 F. 664.

A conspiracy to procure, by bribery, the making of a false certificate by the board of examining surgeons, whereby the commissioner of pensions may be induced to allow a fraudulent increase of pension, was a conspiracy to defraud the United States, within the meaning of former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U. S. v. Van Leuven, N.D.Iowa 1894, 62 F. 62.

Conspiracy to bribe a public official can be equated with concept of conspiracy to defraud the United States. U. S. v. Greenberg, S.D.N.Y.1963, 223 F.Supp. 350. Conspiracy ↪ 34

The United States government is entitled to honest and uncorrupted services of its agents and employees, and when a person conspires to corrupt an agent or employee of the Internal Revenue Service, he thereby conspires to defraud the United States. U.S. v. Waldin, E.D.Pa.1957, 149 F.Supp. 912, affirmed 253 F.2d 551, rehearing denied, certiorari denied 78 S.Ct. 1136, 356 U.S. 973, 2 L.Ed.2d 1147. Conspiracy ↪ 33(1)

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

176. Counterfeiting, particular frauds and offenses

Conviction of a criminal conspiracy to utter and possess counterfeit securities involved an "aggravated felony" under INA removal statute where substantive crime that was conspiratorial objective qualified as an aggravated felony "relating to counterfeiting." Kamagate v. Ashcroft, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 2004, 385 F.3d 144. Aliens ⤴ 53.2(3)

Evidence was sufficient for jury to find that a single overall conspiracy to make and pass counterfeit money did exist and that each defendant was a knowing member of it notwithstanding claim of defendants that the government failed to prove a single conspiracy but rather introduced evidence as to at least two separate and distinct conspiracies to pass $20 counterfeit bills and to pass $10 counterfeit bills. U. S. v. Cervantes, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1972, 466 F.2d 736, certiorari denied 93 S.Ct. 108, 409 U.S. 886, 34 L.Ed.2d 143. Conspiracy ⤴ 48.1(2.1)

Imitating or counterfeiting mark or device of patentee was "offense against United States," within this section. Winner v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1929, 33 F.2d 507. Conspiracy ⤴ 28

A conspiracy to commit a crime denounced by the District of Columbia Code or against the common law of the District is a conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States, and a conspiracy to violate the District of Columbia gambling laws was punishable under the federal conspiracy statute. U.S. v. Manuel, D.C.D.C.1955, 126 F.Supp. 618. Conspiracy ⤴ 28(3)

177. Elections, particular frauds and offenses

Former § 88 of this title [now this section] was never intended to apply to congressional elections, and a conspiracy to bribe voters to vote at such an election was not such a fraud upon the United States or upon candidates or the laws of a state as fell within either the terms or purposes of said former section. U.S. v. Gradwell, U.S.R.I.1917, 37 S.Ct. 407, 243 U.S. 476, 61 L.Ed. 857. See, also, U.S. v. Bathgate, Ohio 1918, 38 S.Ct. 269, 246 U.S. 220, 62 L.Ed. 676; U.S. v. O'Toole, D.C.W.Va.1916, 236 F. 993.

Under former § 88 of this title [now this section] an indictment would lie against state election officials for a conspiracy to omit the returns from certain precincts at an election for member of Congress from their count and return to the state election board, as former § 51 of this title applied to such acts. U. S. v. Mosley, U.S.Okla.1915, 35 S.Ct. 904, 238 U.S. 383, 59 L.Ed. 1355.

Former § 88 of this title [now this section] conferred authority to punish a conspiracy to prevent or interfere with the security and protection of elections held for representatives and delegates to Congress, by proceedings in the federal courts, and it was a criminal offense for an inspector of elections or other election officer at an election for a member of Congress, to whom is committed the safe-keeping and delivery to the board of canvassers of the poll books, tally sheets, and certificates of votes, to fail or omit to perform the duty of safe-keeping and delivery. Ex parte Coy, U.S.Ind.1888, 8 S.Ct. 1263, 127 U.S. 731, 32 L.Ed. 274.

The alteration, by officers of an election, of the statement upon the tally sheets of the vote for certain local officers, in pursuance of a conspiracy, was not an offense against the United States. Ex parte Perkins, C.C.Ind.1887, 29 F. 900.

Defendants could be prosecuted, under general conspiracy statute, for alleged concerted violation of reporting obligations under Federal Election Campaign Act (FECA), even though some charged activity involved "soft money" contributions other than to candidates for federal office to which FECA was inapplicable; there was also activity related to "hard money" contributions to candidates for federal office to which FECA applied, and scope of applicable claims could be established at trial. U.S. v. Kanchanalak, D.D.C.1999, 41 F.Supp.2d 1, reversed 192 F.3d 1037, 338 U.S.App.D.C. 200. Conspiracy ⤴ 33(2.1); Conspiracy ⤴ 43(10)

178. Escape, particular frauds and offenses

Any prisoner in jail who perceived that an escape would be attempted during disorder and who decided to leave his cell and act in furtherance of that objective could properly be deemed as joining the larger conspiracy to escape which was being carried out while rebellious inmates tortured and hid behind hostages in an unlawful attempt to obtain their freedom. U. S. v. Bridgeman, C.A.D.C.1975, 523 F.2d 1099, 173 U.S.App.D.C. 150, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 1743, 425 U.S. 961, 48 L.Ed.2d 206, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 1744, 425 U.S. 961, 48 L.Ed.2d 206. Conspiracy ↪ 40.1

Conspiracy to aid convict to escape from hospital was "conspiracy" to aid escape within former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U.S. ex rel. Silverstein v. Hecht, D.C.N.Y.1923, 10 F.2d 370, affirmed 10 F.2d 371. Conspiracy ↪ 28

179. Espionage, particular frauds and offenses

Fact that defendant had been forcibly returned to United States authorities by Mexican security police did not impair power of federal District Court to try defendant for espionage conspiracy. United States v. Sobell, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1957, 244 F.2d 520, certiorari denied 78 S.Ct. 120, 355 U.S. 873, 2 L.Ed.2d 77, rehearing denied 78 S.Ct. 338, 355 U.S. 920, 2 L.Ed.2d 280, certiorari denied 78 S.Ct. 121, 355 U.S. 873, 2 L.Ed.2d 77. Criminal Law ↪ 99

In prosecution for conspiracy to commit espionage, fact that the defendant might have had to take the stand to present his story does not mean he was denied his constitutional rights of due process. U S v. Sobell, S.D.N.Y.1956, 142 F.Supp. 515, affirmed 244 F.2d 520, certiorari denied 78 S.Ct. 120, 355 U.S. 873, 2 L.Ed.2d 77, rehearing denied 78 S.Ct. 338, 355 U.S. 920, 2 L.Ed.2d 280, certiorari denied 78 S.Ct. 121, 355 U.S. 873, 2 L.Ed.2d 77. Constitutional Law ↪ 266(2)

Pamphlets, printed following the outbreak of war between the United States and Japan and denouncing the entry of the United States into the war, which were patently seditious, and any other documents which showed participation of persons indicted and arrested for conspiracy to violate the Espionage Act, former § 31 et seq. of Title 50, in the circulation and distribution of the pamphlets, constituted "instrumentalities of the crime" and tended to connect such persons with the commission of a crime, and seizure of the pamphlets and other documents in connection with the arrests was legal though made without a search warrant. U.S. v. Bell, S.D.Cal.1943, 48 F.Supp. 986. Arrest ↪ 71.1(5)

180. Extortion, particular frauds and offenses

Where government's basic contention in prosecution on charges of violating section 1952 of this title and this section was that defendants, who allegedly controlled a numbers operation in New York, forced one of its messengers to travel to Puerto Rico to secure funds to be paid to defendants pursuant to an extortion conspiracy, question was not whether person in acting as messenger for numbers operation had himself obtained money illegally but rather whether he was ordered to Puerto Rico to obtain proceeds of what was clearly an illegal operation carried on by defendants. U. S. v. Marquez, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1971, 449 F.2d 89, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 1167, 405 U.S. 963, 31 L.Ed.2d 239, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 1173, 405 U.S. 963, 31 L.Ed.2d 239. Commerce ↪ 82.10; Lotteries ↪ 28

An agreement between state law enforcement officers and others to extort money from inhabitants of the United States by causing their arrest and imprisonment, without justification, by such officers and under color of state law, constituted a "conspiracy" to commit an offense against the United States in violation of this section of which federal district court had jurisdiction. Culp v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Ark.) 1942, 131 F.2d 93. Conspiracy ↪ 43(8)

That dockets of local magistrates' indicated victims of alleged conspiracy by local officers acting under color of law to deprive citizens of the United States of rights and immunities protected by the due process of law clause of U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 14 had entered pleas of guilty to charges of violating local laws or ordinances did not preclude conviction of the officers for conspiracy on proof that proceedings before local magistrates were a mere pretense brought about by the unlawful acts of the officers in furtherance of the conspiracy charged. Culp v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Ark.) 1942, 131 F.2d 93. Conspiracy ⚡ 29

Fact that defendant is not a public official does not preclude an "official right" extortion prosecution, if defendant aided, abetted, or conspired with public official to commit extortion; further, if victim reasonably perceives defendant as exercising control over official decision making, "official right" charge is also proper. U.S. v. Marcy, N.D.Ill.1991, 777 F.Supp. 1393, reconsideration denied 777 F.Supp. 1398. Extortion And Threats ⚡ 4; Extortion And Threats ⚡ 10

181. Gambling, particular frauds and offenses

Knowing use of interstate facilities was not essential element of either substantive offense of use of wire facilities in interstate commerce for transmission of wagering information or of the conspiracy to commit the offense. U. S. v. Swank, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1971, 441 F.2d 264. Conspiracy ⚡ 28(3); Gaming ⚡ 62

Absent a clear legislative intent to contrary, persons conspiring with members of an established illegal gambling business and committing an overt act not amounting to a substantive violation, but facilitating such a business or aimed at eventual criminal participation therein, can be held responsible under this section. *U. 182. Harboring fugitives, particular frauds and offenses

In order to establish conspiracy to harbor or conceal fugitive, Government had to prove: defendants entered in agreement; agreement had as its objective a violation of the laws; and that one of those in agreement committed an act in furtherance of the objective. U.S. v. Udey, C.A.8 (Ark.) 1984, 748 F.2d 1231, certiorari denied 105 S.Ct. 3477, 472 U.S. 1017, 87 L.Ed.2d 613, certiorari denied 105 S.Ct. 3478, 472 U.S. 1017, 87 L.Ed.2d 613. Conspiracy ⚡ 28(3)

Knowledge of existence of federal warrant is essential element of federal crime of harboring and is equally essential element of conspiring to harbor. U. S. v. Hogg, C.A.4 (S.C.) 1982, 670 F.2d 1358. Compounding Offenses ⚡ 3.5; Conspiracy ⚡ 28(3)

Fugitive's spouse did not aid fugitive in avoiding detection and apprehension and did not engage in conspiracy to harbor or conceal fugitive by obtaining prescription medications for him, repackaging the pills to send to him, placing a credit card in fugitive's name in a bag to be sent to fugitive, and having knowledge of wire transfer to him; supplying financial assistance alone was not an act of harboring or concealing, and nothing indicated that providing the medication was intended to assist fugitive to avoid apprehension or detection. U.S. v. Bahna, C.D.Cal.2005, 413 F.Supp.2d 1095. Conspiracy ⚡ 34

183. Immigration offenses, particular frauds and offenses

Where aliens and veterans did not understand at the time of their marriage ceremonies that they were undertaking to establish a life together and assume certain duties and obligations and their purpose was to gain admission of aliens to United States under the War Brides Act, former § 180a of Title 8, validity of marriages was immaterial in determining whether defendants conspired to defraud United States and to commit offenses against United States by illegally obtaining entry of aliens as spouses of veterans. *Lutwak v. Assisting the importation of alien contract laborers was an "offense against the United States," within the meaning of former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U.S. v. Stevenson, U.S.Mass.1909, 30 S.Ct. 37, 215 U.S. 200, 54 L.Ed. 157. See, also, U.S. v. Tsokas, C.C.N.Y.1908, 163 F. 129.

Fact that aliens were acting as informants for the Immigration and Naturalization Service and neither alien was remaining illegally in United States at time of defendant's involvement in attempting to transport them into United States did not prevent defendant from being prosecuted for conspiracy or attempt to unlawfully transport illegal aliens into United States; crime of conspiracy was complete upon agreement to do unlawful act as implemented by one or more overt acts, and factual impossibility was no defense to charge of either conspiracy or attempt. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Conviction for conspiracy to defraud the United States was valid, although there was no evidence that defendant grape broker intended to defraud the United States and its agency, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (BATF), when it sold wine which was not packaged in conformity with Treasury regulations, where there was sufficient evidence of a second object of charged conspiracy, i.e., defrauding a buyer and others by selling them cheaper grapes than ordered. U.S. v. Licciardi, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1994, 30 F.3d 1127. Conspiracy ↻ 47(6)

Although, in prosecution for conspiracy to violate liquor laws, there was substantial evidence of governmental inducement, defendant's entrapment defense was vitiated by other evidence, such as testimony as to moonshine liquor supplier's remark that he would only do business with the defendant, tending to show readiness and willingness to commit the act without persuasion. U. S. v. Jones, C.A.5 (Ala.) 1973, 473 F.2d 293, certiorari denied 93 S.Ct. 2280, 411 U.S. 984, 36 L.Ed.2d 961. Criminal Law ↻ 569

Though defendant had not joined in original conspiracy to take truck load of whiskey, he could properly be convicted of conspiracy to receive and have possession of chattels, moving as part of interstate shipment, known to have been stolen where after original conspirators discovered that truck contained gin instead of whiskey defendant joined conspiracy and where the gin was brought to place of planned delivery by two of original conspirators. *U. Where defendant admitted that her sister had received from "connection" the bundle of narcotics sold to informer, that while sale was in progress sister had told both defendant and informer that sister was well aware that narcotics were being transferred, and wanted to taste some, such admissions served to show that sister, the alleged coconspirator, had guilty knowledge of unlawful activity and knowingly committed an act in furtherance of its perpetration, and by passing narcotics from connection to defendant and by tasting some of cocaine which passed through her hands, sister demonstrated a clear intent to work in concert with defendant to achieve unlawful ends and crime of conspiracy was established. *Buford v. It is not essential to conspiracy to traffic in narcotics that each member know all of the detailed ramifications of the conspiracy or participate in every sale. U S v. De Fillo, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1958, 257 F.2d 835, certiorari denied 79 S.Ct. 591, 359 U.S. 915, 3 L.Ed.2d 577. Conspiracy ↻ 28(3)

Unlawful importation of narcotics was accomplished when heroin, in coconspirator's custody, was brought within territorial waters of United States, and fact of importation was not affected by fact that herein was removed from ship by narcotic agent rather than a coconspirator. U. S. v. Morello, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1957, 250 F.2d 631. Controlled Substances ↻ 39

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate narcotic laws against defendant who, though not present at time of arrangements for sale, or subsequent delivery of narcotics to government agent, was present and participated in subsequent discussions following which second sale to agent was refused on suspicion of his identity, evidence warranted finding that defendant was member of conspiracy. *United States v. because their sales were illegal and clandestine, each supplier, through them, became himself a part of the conspiracy for their intended resale. U. S. v. Tramaglino, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1952, 197 F.2d 928, certiorari denied 73 S.Ct. 105, 344 U.S. 864, 97 L.Ed. 670. Conspiracy ↻ 40.1

Where object of alleged conspiracy was to smuggle narcotics into port of New York and to distribute them to addicts both in New York City and in Texas and Louisiana, contention that there were two conspiracies, one including the smugglers, middlemen and New York retailers, and the other the smugglers, middlemen and Texas and Louisiana retailers, could not be sustained, since it was of no moment to smugglers whether middlemen sold to one or more groups of retailers and each retailer knew that he was a necessary link in a scheme of distribution and the others, whom he knew to be convenient to its execution, were a part of a single undertaking. U S v. Bruno, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1939, 105 F.2d 921, certiorari granted 60 S.Ct. 112, 308 U.S. 536, 84 L.Ed. 451, reversed on other grounds 60 S.Ct. 198, 308 U.S. 287, 84 L.Ed. 257. Conspiracy ↻ 43(12)

War savings certificates with stamps attached are "obligations of the United States," so as to support an indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States and alter obligations of the United States. Rossi v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Or.) 1922, 278 F. 349. Conspiracy ↻ 33(5)

The possession of stolen war savings stamps, or a conspiracy to have such possession, is not an offense against the United States, unless the stamps are the property of the government. Rossi v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Or.) 1922, 278 F. 349 . Conspiracy ↻ 33(5)

190. Obstruction of justice, particular frauds and offenses

Evidence did not support convictions for conspiracy to obstruct justice, even if defendants knowingly entered into agreement to impede potential grand jury proceeding or to obstruct justice in connection with their roles in two shootings, given absence of showing that, at time of alleged agreement, defendants reasonably could have foreseen grand jury investigation, and of evidence that either defendant or alleged coconspirator specifically intended that statements which they made to their relatives, denying involvement in shootings, would eventually be passed along to grand jury, or asked such relatives to lie to grand jury. U.S. v. Bruno, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 2004, 383 F.3d 65. Conspiracy ↻ 47(13)

To convict defendant of conspiracy to obstruct justice, government was required to prove that there was an agreement whose object was to obstruct justice, that defendant knowingly and voluntarily joined in the agreement, and that at least one overt act was committed in furtherance of object of agreement. *U.S. v. A conspiracy to induce the Land Department of the United States by fraudulent means to dispose of public lands in a way not authorized by the statutes was one to defraud the United States, within the meaning of former § 88 of this title [now this section], although it received payment for the lands and suffered no pecuniary loss, and, if accompanied by an overt act, was indictable thereunder. U S v. Lonabaugh, D.C.Wyo.1907, 158 F. 314, reversed on other grounds 179 F. 476, 103 C.C.A. 56. Conspiracy ↪ 33(4); Mines And Minerals ↪ 8

Where defendants entered into a conspiracy to defraud the United States of title to and the possession of large tracts of coal land by procuring others to enter the land in separate parcels as cash purchasers, defendants furnishing the money, and the entrymen holding the land in secret trust for defendants, the gist of the conspiracy being the intent to give such entries a false appearance for the purpose of misleading the United States, it constituted a conspiracy to defraud the United States, prohibited by former § 88 of this title [now this section], though defendants did not stand in such a position to the government as to require a disclosure of the true facts. U.S. v. Robbins, D.C.Utah 1907, 157 F. 999. Conspiracy ↪ 33(4)

A conspiracy to defraud the United States of the possession of public lands by means of fraudulent homestead entries was within former § 88 of this title [now this section], although there was no purpose to carry the preliminary entries to final entry and patent. Stearns v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Minn.) 1907, 152 F. 900, 82 C.C.A. 48. Conspiracy ↪ 33(4)

Where a timber culture entry under Act June 14, 1878, § 2 (repealed) was not forfeited by the Land Department for the entryman's failure to make final proof within five years next succeeding the expiration of eight years after the entry, it did not become absolutely void, but was merely suspended, and was therefore sufficient to sustain a prosecution for conspiracy for combining to obtain title to the land by false and fraudulent proof. U. S. v. Burkett, D.C.Kan.1907, 150 F. 208.

Persons may be guilty of conspiracy to defraud the United States by obtaining title to public mineral lands by means of a homestead entry, since a patent to such lands so obtained would not be void. U.S. v. Peuschel, S.D.Cal.1902, 116 F. 642. Conspiracy ↪ 33(4)

A conspiracy by two persons to enter a certain tract of land in the name of one of them, under the former timber-culture act (repealed) with the money of the other, for the purpose of selling and disposing of the location, for the benefit of the party furnishing the money, to any one who might desire to enter the same, was not a conspiracy to defraud the United States of its title to or dominion over said land, but it might be a conspiracy to defraud the United States of the possession thereof for an indefinite period. U.S. v. Thompson, C.C.Or.1886, 29 F. 86, 12 Sawy. 151. Conspiracy ↪ 33(4)

Alleged scheme not to provide required information to Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) and to generate tax losses and false claims for deductions could be prosecuted as conspiracy to defraud SEC and Internal Revenue Service (IRS). U.S. v. Bilzerian, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1991, 926 F.2d 1285, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 63, 502 U.S. 813, 116 L.Ed.2d 39, post-conviction relief granted, post-conviction relief denied, affirmed 125 F.3d 843, affirmed 127 F.3d 237, certiorari denied 119 S.Ct. 2365, 527 U.S. 1021, 144 L.Ed.2d 770. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(2.1); Conspiracy ⚡ 33(7)

Where codefendants conspired with securities swindler and gave him a carte blanche to conceive, manage and carry out securities fraud, defendants became liable for use of false and misleading offering circular made by swindler in furtherance of conspiracy. U. S. v. Aloi, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1975, 511 F.2d 585, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 447, 423 U.S. 1015, 46 L.Ed.2d 386. Securities Regulation ⚡ 193

Representations as to value, soundness and worth of securities may go so far beyond what may be considered the proper limits of exaggerating enthusiasm of normal salesman, or the mistaken judgment of the honest man, as to impress them with badge of "fraud" as basis of prosecution for violating Securities Act, § 77q of Title 15, using the mails to defraud, and conspiring to effect scheme to defraud. Holmes v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1943, 134 F.2d 125, certiorari denied 63 S.Ct. 1434, 319 U.S. 776, 87 L.Ed. 1722. Postal Service ⚡ 35(12); Securities Regulation ⚡ 193

Alleged efforts of defendants to influence lawful functions of the Securities and Exchange Commission, while concealing the purported motive for those efforts, were within range of activities proscribed by this section prohibiting a conspiracy to defraud the United States. U. S. v. Mitchell, S.D.N.Y.1973, 372 F.Supp. 1239, appeal dismissed 485 F.2d 1290. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(2.1)

Conspiracy to violate securities laws was one to defraud United States, within this section, where part of agreement was that Securities and Exchange Commission should be denied. U. S. v. McGuire, S.D.N.Y.1965, 249 F.Supp. 43, affirmed 381 F.2d 306, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 800, 389 U.S. 1053, 19 L.Ed.2d 848, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 801, 389 U.S. 1053, 19 L.Ed.2d 848. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(2.1)

In prosecution for using the mails to sell and to deliver after sale unregistered securities and for conspiring to violate § 77c of Title 15 it was sufficient to establish that defendants willfully and intentionally sold or delivered unregistered securities by use of the mails, since actual knowledge that security was being sold in violation of said section was not an element of the crime charged. U. S. v. Sussman, E.D.Pa.1941, 37 F.Supp. 294. Securities Regulation ⚡ 192; Conspiracy ⚡ 47(5); Postal Service ⚡ 49(8.1)

196. Selective service offenses, particular frauds and offenses

Conspiracy to defeat the purpose of the Selective Draft Act, 50 App., former § 201 et seq., by inducing persons to refuse to register under it was not a conspiracy to defraud the United States within former § 88 of this title [now this section]. Hammerschmidt v. U.S., U.S.Ohio 1924, 44 S.Ct. 511, 265 U.S. 182, 68 L.Ed. 968.

Evidence sustained conviction of conspiracy to fire bomb selective service state headquarters, to hinder and interfere with administration of Military Selective Service Act, section 451 et seq. of Title 50 App., and to possess unregistered firearm, i.e., a Molotov cocktail. *U. offense was punishable as a conspiracy to commit "any offense against the United States" under former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U.S. v. Galleanni, D.C.Mass.1917, 245 F. 977. See, also, Firth v. U.S., C.C.A.W.Va.1918, 253 F. 36.

Conspiracy to resist raising of army by conscription was a conspiracy denounced by former § 88 of this title [now this section] though the scheme was chimerical and impossible of success. U.S. v. Bryant, N.D.Tex.1917, 245 F. 682. Conspiracy ↻ 28

197. Shipping offenses, particular frauds and offenses

A conspiracy to obtain a clearance by false manifests and false statement of destination is one to "defraud" the United States. Hamburg-American Steam Packet Co. v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1918, 250 F. 747, 163 C.C.A. 79, certiorari denied 38 S.Ct. 333, 246 U.S. 662, 62 L.Ed. 927.

A conspiracy to obtain a clearance by presenting to the collector of customs sworn manifests falsely stating the destination was with "corrupt intent," though the purpose for which the clearance was desired, viz., the avoidance of capture by the vessels of a belligerent, was not of itself unlawful, and it was not necessary that the parties should know of the illegality of their acts and it was immaterial that the agents who swore to the manifests believed them to be true. Hamburg-American Steam Packet Co. v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1918, 250 F. 747, 163 C.C.A. 79, certiorari denied 38 S.Ct. 333, 246 U.S. 662, 62 L.Ed. 927.

A conspiracy to plunder a wrecked vessel within the admiralty and maritime jurisdiction of the United States was an offense against the United States, within the meaning of former § 88 of this title [now this section], that act being a crime within former § 488 of this title. U.S. v. Sanche, C.C.W.D.Tenn.1881, 7 F. 715.

For purposes of this section, the term "offense against the United States" is not limited to crimes, and encompasses conduct prohibited by a Federal statute and made punishable only by a civil suit for a statutory penalty; thus, a violation of paragraph Second of section 815 of Title 46, Shipping, is an offense within the meaning of this section. 1978 (Counsel-Inf.Op.) 2 Op.O.L.C. 5.

198. Stolen property, particular frauds and offenses

Although section 2314 of this title pertaining to transportation of stolen goods in interstate or foreign commerce cannot be violated unless there are in fact stolen goods, a conspiracy to violate section 2314 of this title occurs when two or more persons agree to attempt to commit acts which include all the elements of a crime under that statute and any overt act is done pursuant to the agreement. U. S. v. Rose, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1978, 590 F.2d 232, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 2859, 442 U.S. 929, 61 L.Ed.2d 297. Conspiracy ↻ 28(3)

Defendant could be convicted of conspiracy to receive stolen goods although evidence showed that he in fact stole them. U. S. v. Anderson, C.A.8 (Minn.) 1977, 552 F.2d 1296. Conspiracy ↻ 28(3)

Where two defendant knowingly purchased stolen vehicles from members of conspiracy with knowledge of the conspiracy and its purposes and had prior or contemporaneous understanding of the conspiracy beyond the mere sales agreements, they could be convicted of conspiracy to violate the Dyer Act, section 2313 of this title. U. S. v. Mayes, C.A.6 (Ky.) 1975, 512 F.2d 637, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 2629, 422 U.S. 1008, 45 L.Ed.2d 670, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 69, 423 U.S. 840, 46 L.Ed.2d 59. Conspiracy ↻ 40.1

It was not necessary in prosecution for conspiracy to receive and conceal stolen goods moving in interstate commerce to establish formal agreement between defendants, but it was sufficient if unlawful agreement could be inferred from all circumstances. U. S. v. Hearn, C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1974, 496 F.2d 236, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 622, 419 U.S. 1048, 42 L.Ed.2d 642. Conspiracy ↻ 47(11)

Where defendants planned to sell stolen securities, regardless of whether they had an interstate or intrastate character, scope of the conspiracy could be found broad enough to imply intent to commit a federal crime. U. S. v. Iacovetti, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1972, 466 F.2d 1147, certiorari denied 93 S.Ct. 963, 410 U.S. 908, 35 L.Ed.2d 270, certiorari denied 93 S.Ct. 973, 410 U.S. 908, 35 L.Ed.2d 270. Conspiracy ↪ 28(3)

Conspiracy to violate Motor Vehicle Theft Act, § 2312 of this title, in transportation of stolen automobile in interstate commerce is not ended by illegal transportation of stolen automobile when fruits of such transportation are yet to be obtained and divided by conspirators. Koury v. U.S., C.A.6 (Mich.) 1954, 217 F.2d 387. Conspiracy ↪ 28(3)

There could have been no conviction of a conspiracy to violate National Stolen Property Act, former § 415 of this title, without knowledge that the checks had been forged and counterfeited. U.S. v. Gardner, C.A.7 (Ind.) 1948, 171 F.2d 753.

In prosecution for receiving and having possession of stolen goods moving in foreign commerce and for conspiracy to steal and conceal the goods, so far as respects receiving, it was enough that defendants knew that the goods had been stolen, and it was not necessary that they should also know them to have been stolen from foreign commerce, but such a scienter was necessary as respects prosecution for conspiracy. U.S. v. Sherman, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1948, 171 F.2d 619, certiorari denied 69 S.Ct. 1484, 337 U.S. 931, 93 L.Ed. 1738. Conspiracy ↪ 24.5; Receiving Stolen Goods ↪ 3

In prosecution charging transportation in interstate commerce of stolen goods and conspiracy to transport stolen goods in interstate commerce, record showed that slot machines forming basis of charge were taken from defendants' premises by state officers under a valid search warrant and turned over to sheriff, so that subsequent removal of the machines by defendants constituted a theft. Reynolds v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Ala.) 1945, 152 F.2d 586, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 959, 327 U.S. 803, 90 L.Ed. 1028. Receiving Stolen Goods ↪ 2

Interstate transportation must be involved in conspiracy to support a conviction of conspiracy to transport in interstate commerce stolen money of the value of $5,000 or more. Crain v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Fla.) 1945, 148 F.2d 615. Conspiracy ↪ 28(3)

That one of three alleged conspirators had left the state, and that the other two were on the point of leaving for points outside the state when arrested, did not show unlawful agreement to transport or cause to be transported in interstate commerce stolen money of the value of $5,000 or more in violation of former § 418a of this title. Crain v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Fla.) 1945, 148 F.2d 615. Conspiracy ↪ 28(3)

Knowledge that securities are being moved in interstate commerce is necessary to a conviction for conspiring to transport them. United States v. Bollenbach, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1944, 147 F.2d 199, certiorari granted 65 S.Ct. 915, 324 U.S. 837, 89 L.Ed. 1401, reversed on other grounds 66 S.Ct. 402, 326 U.S. 607, 90 L.Ed. 350. Conspiracy ↪ 24.5

A conspiracy to cause stolen securities to be transported in interstate commerce does not exist unless it is understood to be a part of the project that the securities shall cross state lines. U S v. Crimmins, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1941, 123 F.2d 271. Conspiracy ↪ 34

Receipt of stolen automobile for personal use, without knowledge of interstate transportation or participation in general plan did not warrant conviction of conspiracy to violate National Motor Vehicle Theft Act, § 2312 of this title. *Linde v. interest, in violation of former § 88 of this title [now this section], whether the automobile had been obtained by legal or illegal seizure. Cagle v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1925, 3 F.2d 746.

Defendant, who offered to pay other persons certain amount if they would get possession of automobile, which had been seized by United States marshal, and deliver it to certain place, was guilty of conspiracy to defraud the United States, under former § 88 of this title [now this section], when offerees acted on offer, though, after taking possession of automobile, they abandoned it without delivery at such place. Cagle v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1925, 3 F.2d 746.

Custody of garage keeper, holding by direction of marshal, was sufficient possession by United States to sustain prosecution, under former § 88 of this title [now this section], for conspiracy to defraud the United States of title and possession of automobile, seized by marshal because used in transportation of intoxicating liquor. Cagle v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1925, 3 F.2d 746.

A conspiracy under Smith Act, § 2385 of this title, is proved only if the government can show a conspiracy to teach people to take concrete action toward the violent overthrow of existing government as soon as possible. U. S. v. Kuzma, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1957, 249 F.2d 619. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(3.1)

An individual defendant cannot be convicted of wilful and knowing adherence to a Smith Act conspiracy, § 2385 of this title, unless something said by him or communicated to him shows his understanding that, beyond endorsing the idea and objective of violent overthrow of the existing government, particular action to that end is projected and is to be advocated. U. S. v. Kuzma, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1957, 249 F.2d 619. Conspiracy ⚡ 28(3)

In prosecution for conspiracy for advocacy of overthrow of government by force or violence and to organize Communist Party as group advocating overthrow by force and violence, trial court could determine as a matter of law that a near and present danger existed that the government would be overthrown by force or violence due to the acts of the defendants arising out of statements, utterances and teachings of defendants which justified the application of the Smith Act, § 2385 of this title, and such application did not violate U.S.C.A. Amend. 1, and trial court's refusal to hold hearing for presentation of evidence upon issue of existence of near and present danger was not error. Bary v. U. S., C.A.10 (Colo.) 1957, 248 F.2d 201. Conspiracy ⚡ 45; Constitutional Law ⚡ 90.1(2)

In prosecution for conspiracy for advocacy of overthrow of the government by force and violence and to organize Communist Party as group advocating such overthrow by force and violence, existence of clear and present danger that government would be overthrown by force and violence arising out of acts and conduct of defendants was not an essential element of the crime charged in the indictment but was merely judicial yardstick to be used in determining whether U.S.C.A. Amend. 1 immunized from punishment the statements, utterances, and teachings of defendants, and failure of indictment to charge that defendants' conduct constituted such clear and present danger did not render indictment void. Bary v. U. S., C.A.10 (Colo.) 1957, 248 F.2d 201. Conspiracy ⚡ 28(3); Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate the Smith Act, § 2385 of this title, making it an offense to advocate forcible overthrow of the government, trial court was not required to find that alleged conspirators had agreed on a precise set of circumstances under which they would attempt to strike down the government and the existence or likely existence of those particular circumstances in order to determine that there was a "clear and present danger" within meaning of rule that one has no constitutional right of free speech to advocate that which constitutes a "clear and present danger" to the government. United States v. Flynn, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1954, 216 F.2d 354, certiorari denied 75 S.Ct. 295, 348 U.S. 909, 99 L.Ed. 713, order withheld 75 S.Ct. 285, 99 L.Ed. 1298, rehearing denied 75 S.Ct. 436, 348 U.S. 956, 99 L.Ed. 747. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

The district court has jurisdiction over a conspiracy and all those proved to be conspirators if the conspiracy is designed to have criminal effects within the United States and if there is sufficient proof that at least one of the conspirators committed an overt act in furtherance of the conspiracy within the territorial jurisdiction of the district court. U. S. v. Winter, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1975, 509 F.2d 975, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 39, 423 U.S. 825, 46 L.Ed.2d 41. Criminal Law ☞ 97(.5)

If venue is proper, Texas Federal District Court would have jurisdiction to try case involving unlawful transportation in interstate commerce of falsely made and forged checks and of conspiracy to unlawfully transport such. Downing v. U. S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1965, 348 F.2d 594, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 235, 382 U.S. 901, 15 L.Ed.2d 155. Criminal Law ☞ 93

Federal District Court did not lose jurisdiction of prosecution for conspiracy to violate former section 123 of Title 27, prohibiting importation of liquor into dry state, where after completion of conspiracy and overt acts in furtherance thereof state prohibition law was repealed. Barker v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Ark.) 1936, 86 F.2d 284. Criminal Law ☞ 15

Where an indictment charges a conspiracy formed in each of two federal districts to commit a crime and overt acts committed in each district, it is not essential to jurisdiction in one district that all defendants should have participated in overt acts in that district, but it is sufficient if some of them did. Rudner v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1922, 281 F. 516, 2 Ohio Law Abs. 242, certiorari denied 43 S.Ct. 95, 260 U.S. 734, 67 L.Ed. 487. Criminal Law ☞ 113

Agency expertise and policymaking abilities were not needed to decide whether any organizations referenced in indictment charging defendant with health care fraud and related conspiracy were "related organizations" with respect to defendant's home health agencies, insofar as that determination affected whether defendant knowingly concealed organizations' related status in submitting Medicare cost reports, and no statute or regulation unambiguously required that question of whether organizations involved were related be referred to administrative body, and therefore doctrine of primary jurisdiction did not apply to warrant stay or dismissal of defendant's prosecution. U.S. v. Seibert, S.D.Iowa 2005, 403 F.Supp.2d 904. Health ☞ 987

The mere fact that one of persons charged with conspiracy, in indictment clearly alleging venue and commission of overt acts in district, participated outside district in conspiracy, does not affect district court's jurisdiction of such person or offense. Kranz v. Hiatt, M.D.Pa.1948, 79 F.Supp. 436, affirmed 174 F.2d 741, certiorari denied 69 S.Ct. 1508, 337 U.S. 948, 93 L.Ed. 1750. Criminal Law ☞ 113

232. ---- Place of formation of conspiracy, jurisdiction, jurisdiction and preliminary matters

If a conspiracy is entered into within the jurisdiction of the trial court, the indictment will lie there, though an overt act is shown to have been committed in another jurisdiction, or even in a foreign country. Hyde v. Shine, U.S.Cal.1905, 25 S.Ct. 760, 199 U.S. 62, 50 L.Ed. 90. See, also, Baker v. U.S., C.C.A.Va.1927, 21 F.2d 903, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 301, 276 U.S. 621, 72 L.Ed. 736; U.S. v. Wells, N.Y.1912, 192 F. 870, 113 C.C.A. 194, certiorari denied 32 S.Ct. 842, 225 U.S. 714, 56 L.Ed. 1269.

Conspiracy indictment may be prosecuted either at place where conspiracy was formed or where any of overt acts were committed. U. S. v. Boswell, C.A.4 (S.C.) 1967, 372 F.2d 781, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 2033, 387 U.S. 919, 18 L.Ed.2d 972. Criminal Law ☞ 113

Conspiracy may be prosecuted either at place where conspiracy was formed or at place where any of the overt acts were submitted. Finley v. U.S., C.A.5 (Ga.) 1959, 271 F.2d 777, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 1065, 362 U.S. 979, 4 L.Ed.2d 1014. Criminal Law ☞ 112(3)

The federal district court for district from which persons charged with conspiracy to transport women in interstate commerce for purpose of prostitution set out on their interstate journeys had jurisdiction of prosecution, and venue thereof in such district was proper. Dodson v. U. S., C.A.6 (Ky.) 1954, 215 F.2d 196. Criminal Law ↻ 113

In conspiracy prosecution, overt acts need not have been committed within jurisdiction of court where defendants conspired at a point within jurisdiction of the court. Chew v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Ark.) 1925, 9 F.2d 348.

Court for federal district wherein a conspiracy was entered into to prepare a military expedition against a country with which the United States was at peace, in violation of former § 25 of this title had jurisdiction of prosecution, though supplies for expedition were shipped and stored outside district. De Orozco v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Tex.) 1916, 237 F. 1008, 151 C.C.A. 70. Criminal Law ↻ 113

Where conspirators had been doing business together in the judicial district in which they were tried prior to and at the time of the crime, and there was no evidence that they had been together outside of the district, the jury could find the conspiracy to have been in that district. Marrash v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1909, 168 F. 225, 93 C.C.A. 511 . Criminal Law ↻ 564(3)

It is not necessary to the conviction of persons charged with a conspiracy that they should have resided within the jurisdiction of the court trying the indictment at the time the conspiracy was formed, if the conspiracy was entered into, and had its headquarters, in that jurisdiction. U.S. v. Howell, W.D.Mo.1892, 56 F. 21. Criminal Law ↻ 97(1)

A conspiracy may be prosecuted either in the district where the conspiracy was formed or at any place where any of the overt acts were committed. U. S. v. Brandom, W.D.Mo.1970, 320 F.Supp. 520. Criminal Law ↻ 113

All members of a conspiracy may be prosecuted where conspiracy was formed or where any overt act was committed. U. S. v. Boyance, E.D.Pa.1963, 215 F.Supp. 390. Criminal Law ↻ 113

Place of conspiracy is immaterial if jurisdiction is fixed by averment of commission of overt act within district. U. S. v. Merrick, W.D.Mo.1962, 207 F.Supp. 929. Conspiracy ↻ 23.1

A conspiracy to do an unlawful act, formed in one district, and in part executed there, is punishable in that district, though it was consummated in other parts of the United States. U.S. v. Noblom, C.C.La.1878, 27 F.Cas. 181, No. 15896. Criminal Law ↻ 113

233. ---- Place where overt act committed, jurisdiction, jurisdiction and preliminary matters

Jurisdiction for prosecution of federal conspiracy charge exists in any district where overt acts have been committed. U. S. v. Phillips, C.A.8 (Mo.) 1970, 433 F.2d 1364, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 900, 401 U.S. 917, 27 L.Ed.2d 819. Criminal Law ↻ 113

Defendant charged with unlawful transportation in interstate commerce of falsely made and forged checks and with conspiracy to unlawfully transport such was subject to prosecution in district for any criminal conduct of his coconspirators committed there in furtherance of conspiracy as partner in crime and as an aider and abettor even though defendant never was present in the district. Downing v. U. S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1965, 348 F.2d 594, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 235, 382 U.S. 901, 15 L.Ed.2d 155. Criminal Law ↻ 113

Pennsylvania federal district court did not lack jurisdiction over conspirator whose criminal activity was confined to New Jersey, where several overt acts of the other conspirators occurred within the federal district in Pennsylvania. U. S. v. Boyance, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1964, 329 F.2d 372, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 1645, 377 U.S. 965, 12 L.Ed.2d 736. Criminal Law ↻ 113

Where other defendants had formed conspiracy and committed overt acts within territorial jurisdiction of court, and appealing defendant knowingly joined such conspiracy and committed overt acts in furtherance of conspiracy outside territorial limits of court, and later other defendants committed additional overt acts in furtherance of conspiracy within territorial limits of court, court had jurisdiction to try appealing defendant for offense of conspiracy. Dedmore v. U. S., C.A.9 (Wash.) 1963, 322 F.2d 938. Criminal Law ☞ 113

Where overt acts, which were pleaded and proved in prosecution in the United States district court for the Southern District of New York for conspiracy to take possession of merchandise stolen while moving in interstate commerce, occurred in New York City, jurisdictional requirements were satisfied. U. S. v. Patrisso, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1958, 262 F.2d 194. Criminal Law ☞ 113

A court has jurisdiction over a conspiracy prosecution if any overt act in furtherance of conspiracy is committed within territorial jurisdiction of court, even though other overt acts may be alleged to have occurred elsewhere. McDonough v. U.S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1955, 227 F.2d 402. Criminal Law ☞ 113

Where one of the specifically alleged overt acts in furtherance of conspiracy was allegedly committed in district in which conspiracy prosecution was laid, that District Court had jurisdiction, even though conspiracy was formed in another district. McDonough v. U.S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1955, 227 F.2d 402. Criminal Law ☞ 113

Proof that alleged conspiracy to transport women in interstate commerce for purpose of prostitution was formed in federal district wherein defendants were indicted and tried was unnecessary to invest district court for such district with jurisdiction of prosecution, as prosecution for conspiracy may be maintained in any federal district wherein an overt act was committed in furtherance of conspiracy. Dodson v. U. S., C.A.6 (Ky.) 1954, 215 F.2d 196. Criminal Law ☞ 113

In prosecution for conspiracy to commit offenses against the United States relating to the purchase, sale, receipt, and transportation of narcotics, evidence was sufficient to establish that federal District Court in New Jersey had jurisdiction, though some of the activities occurred beyond the borders of New Jersey. U.S. v. Cohen, C.A.3 (N.J.) 1952, 197 F.2d 26. Criminal Law ☞ 564(1)

If any overt act in furtherance of conspiracy occurred within jurisdiction of trial court, then that court has jurisdiction of conspiracy prosecution, even though other overt acts may have been committed or conspiracy may have been entered into in a different district or state. U.S. v. Bazzell, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1951, 187 F.2d 878, certiorari denied 72 S.Ct. 73, 342 U.S. 849, 96 L.Ed. 641, rehearing denied 72 S.Ct. 171, 342 U.S. 889, 96 L.Ed. 667. Criminal Law ☞ 113

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate former §§ 31 to 42 of Title 50, by unlawfully disclosing information affecting national defense, fact that defendant's participation in conspiracy may have been outside the district of New Jersey where prosecution was had was of no consequence, where six of the overt acts set forth in indictment were clearly alleged to have taken place in New Jersey and there was evidence to sustain allegation as to some of them. U. S. ex rel. Kranz v. Humphrey, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1949, 174 F.2d 741, certiorari denied 69 S.Ct. 1508, 337 U.S. 948, 93 L.Ed. 1750. Criminal Law ☞ 113

Proof that alleged conspiracy to transport in interstate commerce more than $5,000 of stolen money knowing it to be stolen or alleged overt act to effect the object of such conspiracy, or both, occurred in Arkansas, was required to establish jurisdiction of federal court in Arkansas. Buchanan v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Ark.) 1947, 164 F.2d 15. Criminal Law ☞ 113

A prosecution for conspiracy may be maintained in any federal district where an overt act is committed in furtherance thereof even though some conspirators never entered that state or district. *Davis v. Though court in proceedings for removal of accused to another district may hear competent evidence rebutting prima facie showing made by indictment, merits of accused's guilt or innocence were not triable in such proceedings, where accused failed to appear for trial under indictment charging use of mails to defraud and conspiracy under former §§ 88 [now this section] and 338 of this title and capias was issued for his arrest, and other joint defendants had been convicted. Hawkins v. Borthwick, C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1925, 5 F.2d 564.

An indictment for conspiracy, under former § 88 of this title [now this section] though insufficient as a criminal pleading to charge conspiracy to commit the offense denounced by Bankruptcy Act, former § 52 of Title 11, alleged as its object, in that defendants were incapable of committing such offense, contained sufficient to show that they were charged with acts which would amount to a criminal offense, and warranted their removal for trial. Simon v. Keville, D.C.Mass.1925, 4 F.2d 575, affirmed 7 F.2d 1021.

An indictment charging a criminal conspiracy introduced in evidence in proceedings before a United States commissioner for removal of defendant, to another district for trial is itself prima facie evidence of probable cause, and evidence was sufficient to show probable cause that defendant was guilty of a conspiracy to cause an agent of an interstate carrier to deliver intoxicating liquors to a fictitious person. Witte v. Shelton, C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1917, 240 F. 265, 153 C.C.A. 191, certiorari denied 37 S.Ct. 745, 244 U.S. 660, 61 L.Ed. 1376. Habeas Corpus ↪ 729

Persons who had not been in Wyoming until after consummation of an alleged conspiracy to defraud the government by unlawfully obtaining public coal lands, and who had not been in direct or indirect communication with any one there, should not be removed to that state for trial on that charge, since any offense by them was committed elsewhere. Ireland v. Henkle, C.C.S.D.N.Y.1910, 179 F. 993. Criminal Law ↪ 113

On an application to remove persons to another federal district where they were charged with conspiring to defraud the United States of public lands, certified copies of general land office records showing that all the entries of public lands mentioned in the indictment were perfected and issued therefor prior to all the alleged overt acts under the alleged conspiracy, and more than three years before the indictment was filed, were admissible on the question of probable cause for the charge. *U. The fact that codefendant, an attorney, appeared as attorney for a Georgia sheriff in Illinois extradition proceedings regarding return of farm hands, who had been employed on defendant's Georgia farm, to Georgia for prosecution on indictments charging burglary was not sufficient to make a question of fact as to whether codefendant was participating in defendant's alleged purpose to return farm hands to a condition of slavery, as regards application by United States to remove defendant and codefendant from Middle District of Georgia to Northern District of Illinois for trial on indictment charging conspiracy to injure farm hands in enjoyment of their right to be free from slavery. U.S. v. Cunningham, M.D.Ga.1941, 40 F.Supp. 399. Criminal Law ↪ 242(7)

Where, on application by United States for removal of defendants charged with conspiracy from one federal district to another for trial, evidence for codefendant established conclusively, that codefendant was not a party to any alleged conspiracy with defendant, the application would be denied and defendants discharged. U.S. v. S. v. Kelly, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1965, 349 F.2d 720, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 1467, 384 U.S. 947, 16 L.Ed.2d 544. Criminal Law ↪ 627.2

In prosecution for conspiracy to defraud United States Government, where two of the defendants claimed reversible error because of trial court's refusal to order government to produce for inspection statement made by government witness to agents of Senate Investigating Committee, since recently enacted § 3500 of this title which would govern new trial did not require production of such statement, which was only a summary of interview, rather than verified copy, error was harmless. U S v. Lev, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1958, 258 F.2d 9, certiorari granted 79 S.Ct. 231, 358 U.S. 903, 3 L.Ed.2d 226, affirmed 79 S.Ct. 1431, 360 U.S. 470, 36 L.Ed.2d 1531, rehearing denied 80 S.Ct. 41, 361 U.S. 856, 4 L.Ed.2d 95. Criminal Law ↪ 1166(10.10)

Where subpoena was directed against one, as manager of corporation charged with making defective war materials and with conspiracy to defraud federal government in its war effort, to compel him to produce books of corporation, fact that one against whom subpoena was directed might no longer have held office of manager at time of service of the subpoena would not make issuance of the subpoena improper if the books were actually in his control. U.S. v. Antonelli Fireworks Co., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1946, 155 F.2d 631, certiorari denied 67 S.Ct. 49, 329 U.S. 742, 91 L.Ed. 640, rehearing denied 67 S.Ct. 182, 329 U.S. 826, 91 L.Ed. 701. Witnesses ↪ 298

Where government investigator testified for prosecution concerning a corporation's financial condition, trial judge stated that investigator "can" produce the original work-sheets from which reports to his superiors were compiled, and investigator said that he had "them all available," it was too late at the close of the prosecution's case for the defense to demand opportunity to examine such work-sheets. U.S. v. Dilliard, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1938, 101 F.2d 829, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 484, 306 U.S. 635, 83 L.Ed. 1036. Criminal Law ↪ 627.6(4)

Denying possession to defendants of memoranda used by witnesses to refresh recollection, or separation of portions, was not erroneous, in view of opportunity for inspection. Green v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1927, 19 F.2d 850, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 117, 275 U.S. 557, 72 L.Ed. 424, 72 L.Ed. 729, rehearing granted 48 S.Ct. 207, 276 U.S. 609, 72 L.Ed. 729, affirmed 48 S.Ct. 564, 277 U.S. 438, 72 L.Ed. 944. Refusal to require government to produce affidavit and search warrant on file in office of issuing justice was not error. Marin v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Mich.) 1926, 10 F.2d 271. Criminal Law ↪ 441 asbestos-contaminated materials, medical records underlying federal agency's study of alleged victims were material, warranting pretrial disclosure order; indictment charged that "nearly 1,200" persons had suffered effects of contamination, not just the 16 victim-witnesses for government, and government intended to rely on agency's study in its case-in-chief, to prove allegations of risk of harm and attendant health effects of asbestos exposure. U.S. v. W. R. Grace, D.Mont.2005, 401 F.Supp.2d 1093. Criminal Law ⚡ 627.6(6)

Defendants charged with conspiracy to defraud the United States by impeding collection of income taxes were entitled to list of names and addresses of government witnesses, since offense charged was not crime of violence, bulk of evidence would likely involve documents, defense counsel represented that defendants would not seek to intimidate witnesses, and supplying witnesses' names prior to trial would not increase likelihood that witnesses would not appear or would refuse to testify at trial. U. S. v. Turkish, S.D.N.Y.1978, 458 F.Supp. 874. Criminal Law ⚡ 629(5)

Defendants were not entitled, in absence of showing of materiality and reasonableness, to inspection and copying of all books, papers, documents or tangible objects which had any relation to conspiracy indictments. U. S. v. McCarthy, S.D.N.Y.1968, 292 F.Supp. 937. Criminal Law ⚡ 627.6(2); Criminal Law ⚡ 627.6(3)

Defendant accused of conspiring with others to defraud the United States by manufacturing and otherwise handling nontax-paid distilled spirits was not entitled to discover a list of all persons interviewed by federal agents in the course of their investigation nor to discover copies of all statements or reports of interview of coconspirators not named in the indictment and the transcripts or statements of their grand jury testimony under rule 16, Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, 18 U.S.C.A. U. S. v. Turner, E.D.Tenn.1967, 274 F.Supp. 412. Criminal Law ⚡ 627.6(2)

Defendants charged with, inter alia, mail fraud and conspiracy should be permitted to inspect seized materials in Government's possession for purpose of designating, without copying, those records represented to be needed by defendants for trial preparation purposes, upon receipt of a written representation by defendants that such records were needed by them to prepare for trial and that, pending trial, they would not use the records to engage in any of the activities alleged in the indictments, including requests of or demands upon any persons for payment of money. U. S. v. Zovluck, S.D.N.Y.1967, 274 F.Supp. 385. Criminal Law ⚡ 627.6(2); Criminal Law ⚡ 627.8(3)

Defendant in prosecution for conspiracy to violate mail fraud and wire fraud statutes and for scheme to defraud by use of the mails was entitled to inspect and copy all statements made by defendant which were in the hands of the government, all books of account in government's possession and which it intended to offer in evidence upon trial and recorded testimony of defendant before grand jury. U. S. v. Pilnick, S.D.N.Y.1967, 267 F.Supp. 791. Criminal Law ⚡ 627.6(1); Criminal Law ⚡ 627.7(2); Criminal Law ⚡ 627.9(1)

Where conspiracy for which defendant was convicted was committed prior to his sentencing on a charge of unlawful transportation of stolen treasury bonds, prior crimes of defendant were not merged in probationary period nor did sentence on treasury bond charge bar prosecution for prior crimes, and there was no requirement on government to disclose to judge in treasury bond prosecution of any pending investigations against defendant which might ultimately result in an indictment, and government's failure to do so, if such an investigation was pending, did not affect in any way government's right to obtain indictment on conspiracy charge. U S v. Gelb, S.D.N.Y.1959, 175 F.Supp. 267, affirmed 269 F.2d 675, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 66, 361 U.S. 822, 4 L.Ed.2d 66. Double Jeopardy ⚡ 152; Criminal Law ⚡ 700(3)

In prosecution for conspiracy to defraud United States, request for return of certain books, documents and records in possession of government as result of subpoena duces tecum or a request and voluntary surrender, during course of grand jury investigation, would be denied where all of such materials were necessary for complying with defendants' request for inspection, the government's preparation for and use at the trial, which would be shortly forthcoming. U. S. v. Gilboy, M.D.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 442. Criminal Law ⚡ 627.6(2)

In prosecution of defendant, division manager of company working on government contracts under a cost redeterminable clause, for conspiracy to defraud the United States because of defendant's alleged use of company employees for private work on company time, failure of court to allow defendant to inspect classified contracts was not error where the cost redeterminable clauses had been made part of record. U. S. v. Woll, E.D.Pa.1957, 157 F.Supp. 704. Criminal Law ⚡ 627.5(5)

In prosecution for conspiring to teach and advocate the overthrow of United States Government by force and violence, defendants were not entitled to production of F.B.I. reports made by a government witness, where defendants requested production of all reports which dealt with matters concerning which such witness testified without specifying the particular reports desired, and testimony of such witness covered a period of approximately 9 years. U. S. v. Mesarosh, W.D.Pa.1953, 116 F.Supp. 345, affirmed 223 F.2d 449, certiorari granted 76 S.Ct. 218, 350 U.S. 922, 100 L.Ed. 807, reversed on other grounds 77 S.Ct. 1, 352 U.S. 1, 1 L.Ed.2d 1. Criminal Law ⚡ 627.6(5)

Where defendants in prosecution for conspiracy to violate this section and § 2385 of this title moved for order directing the government to produce for inspection and use by defense on cross-examination of government's witness reports which witness had made to FBI, and the government conceded that no secrets of state or other confidential information of importance was involved, but contended that reports would reveal identity of confidential informants who had attended Communist Party gatherings, but on direct examination of government's witness government asked witness to name persons present at gatherings, government would be deemed to have waived right to invoke public policy favoring protection from disclosure of identity of any informant. U. S. v. Schneiderman, S.D.Cal.1952, 106 F.Supp. 731. Witnesses ⚡ 219(1)

In prosecution under indictment charging conspiracy to commit offenses against the United States prohibited by this section and § 2385 of this title, by organizing and helping to organize the Communist Party, both contention of defendants that notwithstanding regulations of Attorney General dealing with custody, use, and preservation of records of Department of Justice, defendants were entitled as of right to inspect reports of FBI, and contention of Attorney General that he was entitled as of right to withhold production and inspection and use of reports, were both unsound, and matter was one resting within discretion of court. U. S. v. Schneiderman, S.D.Cal.1952, 106 F.Supp. 731. Witnesses ⚡ 223

Proper exercise of discretion in determining whether documents identifying confidential informers should be produced and inspected prior to trial upon charges of conspiracy to violate Smith Act, § 2385 of this title, required that public policy favoring protection of identity of informers be weighed against defendants' interest in inspection of document preparatory to trial. U. S. v. Schneiderman, S.D.Cal.1952, 104 F.Supp. 405. Criminal Law ⚡ 627.5(2)

Even if informants were certain to be used as prosecution witnesses in trial of defendants for conspiracy to violate Smith Act, § 2385 of this title, weighing of public policy favoring protection of identity of confidential informants against defendants' interest in inspection of documents which revealed identity of informants prior to trial required that defendants' motion for the production and inspection of such documents be denied, in view of fact that government might elect not to use documents rather than reveal identity of informers. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

In prosecution for conspiracy to file and for filing with National Labor Relations Board false affidavits of non-Communist union officer, motions for inspection and copying of all books, etc. obtained or belonging to defendants or obtained from others by seizure or by process would be denied when defendants did not specify and documents or papers in their motions, there was no showing that they were material to preparation of defense or that defendants' request was reasonable, and United States Attorney had stated that Government had obtained no documents from defendants or others by seizure or process. U. S. v. Haug, N.D.Ohio 1957, 21 F.R.D. 22. Criminal Law ⚡ 627.8(3)

Where case involved conspiracy charge against 21 defendants, it was essential that each have an opportunity to examine, before trial, documents which might be introduced against him but which he had not seen before. U S v. Cohen, S.D.N.Y.1953, 15 F.R.D. 269. Criminal Law ⚡ 627.6(2)

248. Transcripts, jurisdiction and preliminary matters

In prosecution for using mails to defraud and for conspiracy, motions for copies of testimony given by defendants before Securities and Exchange Commission, sought on ground that testimony was a necessary part of their defense, were denied without prejudice to subsequent application if need for such testimony arose. U.S. v. Feinberg, E.D.N.Y.1943, 50 F.Supp. 976, affirmed 140 F.2d 592, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 943, 322 U.S. 726, 88 L.Ed. 1562. Criminal Law ⚡ 627.7(2)

249. Injunctions, jurisdiction and preliminary matters

Defendants seeking to enjoin issuance of warrant of removal to New York, seeking to obtain a three-judge United States district court to hear and declare the execution of the removal unconstitutional, and seeking a declaratory judgment that this section and section 1465 of this title relating to conspiracy to transport interstate obscene materials and to interstate transportation of obscene materials were unconstitutional, were not entitled to relief. Alexander v. Zimpfer, C.A.8 (Minn.) 1970, 431 F.2d 704. Declaratory Judgment ⚡ 124.1; Federal Courts ⚡ 1004.1; Injunction ⚡ 27

Injunction will lie to restrain employees of telegraph company engaged in interstate business from conspiring to prevent plaintiff from performing its contracts by compelling it to discharge its employees who are not members of labor unions with which defendant employees are affiliated. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local Union No. 134, N.D.Ill.1924, 2 F.2d 993, affirmed 6 F.2d 444.

Threatened offenses under former § 88 of this title [now this section], in the nature of conspiracies to violate the provisions of interstate commerce law, may have been met by orders issuing from a court of equity in the nature of temporary restraining orders or temporary mandatory injunctions. Toledo, A. A. & N. M. Ry. Co. v. Pennsylvania Co., C.C.N.D.Ohio 1893, 54 F. 730, appeal dismissed 14 S.Ct. 123, 150 U.S. 393, 37 L.Ed. 1120. 250. Severance of defendants, jurisdiction and preliminary matters

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying alleged coconspirator's motion for severance; defense strategies of the respective defendants were not irreconcilable, and jury could reasonably be expected to be able to compartmentalize the evidence against movant and independently determine his guilt or innocence. U.S. v. Reda, C.A.8 (Iowa) 1985, 765 F.2d 715. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(6); Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(8)

Where defendant and codefendant both mounted same defense to embezzlement conspiracy charges, namely, that third party did it, their defenses were not of antagonistic nature such as would require severance, notwithstanding possibility that joint trial forced codefendant to choose between supporting defendant's story and defending herself at defendant's expense by holding to her original claim that defendant's questions about her work at bank suggested his involvement in the crime. U.S. v. Archer, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1984, 733 F.2d 354, certiorari denied 105 S.Ct. 196, 469 U.S. 861, 83 L.Ed.2d 128, certiorari denied 105 S.Ct. 198, 469 U.S. 862, 83 L.Ed.2d 130. Criminal Law ⤴ 622.7(6)

Defenses of codefendants in conspiracy prosecution were not antagonistic such as would have permitted granting of severance. U. S. v. Horton, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1981, 646 F.2d 181, rehearing denied 655 F.2d 1131, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 516, 454 U.S. 970, 70 L.Ed.2d 388, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 1274, 455 U.S. 919, 71 L.Ed.2d 459. Criminal Law ⤴ 622.7(6)

Denial of motion for severance in prosecution for conspiring to commit extortion and bribery and substantive bribery offenses was not shown to have prejudiced defendant since evidence of codefendant's participation in earlier conspiracy and pretrial publicity indicating codefendant was underworld character did not have the slightest tendency to prove defendant's participation in crimes charged in indictment, since judge made it crystal clear to jury that defendant was not involved in earlier conspiracy, since there was no suggestion or evidence that defendant had ever met or spoken to codefendant, and since it is not an abuse of discretion to deny severance because of the remote possibility that the jury might draw so irrational an inference. U. S. v. DeSapio, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1970, 435 F.2d 272, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 2170, 402 U.S. 999, 29 L.Ed.2d 166, rehearing denied 91 S.Ct. 2249, 403 U.S. 941, 29 L.Ed.2d 722. Criminal Law ⤴ 1166(6)

Where it was not self-evident that codefendant was the only source of exculpatory evidence as to defendant's conduct at one particular meeting, court would deny defendant's motion for severance with leave to reassert the motion following presentation of evidence at trial. U. S. v. Baskes, N.D.Ill.1977, 433 F.Supp. 799. Criminal Law ⤴ 622.7(10)

In prosecution on charge that defendants, while simultaneously holding offices in bank and another company, conspired to misapply bank funds and make false entries in bank records, defendant's motion for severance would be granted, as the Government intended to offer as evidence an agreement signed by codefendants but not by defendant, as the agreement was inculpatory of defendant, as the references to past transactions were not too indefinite to be inculpatory, and as, irrespective of whether the Government would rely "primarily" on other evidence, the relevant "Bruton" issue was whether the jury should be allowed to consider the agreement at all against defendant. 271. Infamous crime, indictment or information

Conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States, or to defraud the United States punishable under former § 88 of this title [now this section] was an infamous crime, within U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 5, providing that no person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury. Mackin v. U.S., U.S.Ill.1886, 6 S.Ct. 777, 117 U.S. 348, 29 L.Ed. 909. Indictment And Information ☞ 3

272. Defrauding United States, indictment or information

Indictment properly charged, and with required specificity, a conspiracy under this section, against those who allegedly had filed false non-Communist affidavits and against others who were equally interested in conspiratorial purpose and were directly and culpably involved in alleged scheme fraudulently to obtain services of National Labor Relations Board on behalf of union by filing false non-Communist affidavits. Dennis v. U. S., U.S.Colo.1966, 86 S.Ct. 1840, 384 U.S. 855, 16 L.Ed.2d 973. Conspiracy ☞ 43(10)

An information sufficiently alleged conspiracy to defraud United States where government alleged that Minority Business Enterprise (MBE) programs of federal agencies were target of defendants' conspiracy to defraud. U.S. v. Barker Steel Co., Inc., C.A.1 (Mass.) 1993, 985 F.2d 1123, rehearing denied 985 F.2d 1136. Conspiracy ☞ 33(6)

Indictment did not have to specify substantive offense that defendant conspired to commit, but could charge defendant with generic conspiracy to defraud United States. U.S. v. Reynolds, C.A.7 (Wis.) 1990, 919 F.2d 435, certiorari denied 111 S.Ct. 1402, 499 U.S. 942, 113 L.Ed.2d 457. Conspiracy ↪ 43(10)

Indictment, which charged that state senator and chairman of appropriations committee and his associate, a former state senator, were involved in a silent scheme whereby the state senator, in exchange for remuneration, was to use his political influence as an elected official to insure that state funds would be appropriated or to exert influence in his official capacity on various state officials in order to enable another to enter into or maintain contracts financed by federal funds, charged a violation of this section proscribing conspiracies to defraud the United States in any manner or for any purpose. U. S. v. Burgin, C.A.5 (Miss.) 1980, 621 F.2d 1352, rehearing denied 627 F.2d 239, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 574, 449 U.S. 1015, 66 L.Ed.2d 474. Conspiracy ↪ 43(10)

Conspiracy to defraud government must be sufficiently charged under statute, and cannot be aided by averments of acts done by one or more of conspirators in furtherance of object of conspiracy. Asgill v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (Va.) 1932, 60 F.2d 780. Conspiracy ↪ 43(10)

273. Offense against the United States, indictment or information

Indictment was not defective on theory it charged defendant with a conspiracy to defraud, when the government was in fact trying to prosecute him for conspiring to commit a specific offense, that is, aiding and assisting in the preparation or presentation of false income tax returns, where the government steadfastly asserted that defendant participated in a far-ranging Klein conspiracy to prevent the internal Revenue Service (IRS) from determining clients' income and tax liabilities by both creating and inflating expenses. U.S. v. Fletcher, C.A.8 (Ark.) 2003, 322 F.3d 508. Conspiracy ↪ 43(10)

Indictment claiming that defendants had conspired to commit offense against United States was not required to contain allegation that United States or one of its agencies was target of conspiracy; conspiracy could involve violation of United States laws. U.S. v. Brandon, C.A.1 (R.I.) 1994, 17 F.3d 409, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 80, 513 U.S. 820, 130 L.Ed.2d 34, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 81, 513 U.S. 820, 130 L.Ed.2d 34. Conspiracy ↪ 43(6)

Where a count of an indictment charged that defendants, their codefendants and others conspired to commit offenses against the United States, namely, violations of section 545 of this title providing penalties for knowingly, and with intent to defraud, introducing into the United States certain birds contrary to law, and that defendants and their coconspirators did thirty-five acts to effect the object of the conspiracy, the count charged an offense against the United States, namely, a conspiracy to commit any offense against the United States. Steiner v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1956, 229 F.2d 745, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 845, 351 U.S. 953, 100 L.Ed. 1476, rehearing denied 77 S.Ct. 24, 352 U.S. 860, 1 L.Ed.2d 70, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 847, 351 U.S. 953, 100 L.Ed. 1476. Conspiracy ↪ 43(6)

Indictment charging that defendant "knowingly and intentionally conspired to defraud the United states by impeding, impairing, obstructing and defeating the lawful Government functions of the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) of the Treasury Department, an agency and department of the United States, in the ascertainment, computation, assessment and collection of revenue, to wit, income taxes," was sufficient, as a matter of law; it fully informed defendant of the elements of the crime, including the dishonesty or deceit element, indictment tracked statutory language, and defendant admitted at plea allocation that he agreed with others to defraud the government by impairing the ability of IRS to ascertain income taxes. Coluccio v. U.S., E.D.N.Y.2004, 313 F.Supp.2d 150. Conspiracy ↪ 43(10)

274. Elements of offense, indictment or information

Indictment for conspiring to commit offense need not allege all elements essential to commission of offense which is object of conspiracy. Wong Tai v. U.S., U.S.Cal.1927, 47 S.Ct. 300, 273 U.S. 77, 71 L.Ed. 545. See, also, Hartson v. U.S., C.C.A.N.Y.1926, 14 F.2d 561; U.S. v. Kendzierski, D.C.N.Y.1944, 54 F.Supp. 164. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

Indictment sufficiently alleged the elements of the mail and wire fraud offenses underlying charge of conspiracy to commit mail and wire fraud in connection with an illegal kickback scheme between defendant, a personal injury attorney, and a chiropractor; the indictment stated the fiduciary relationship between the attorney and his clients, clearly alleged attorney's misuse of the fiduciary relationship by stating that the kickback arrangement was concealed from attorney's clients in violation of fiduciary duty, alleged that attorney gained over $70,000 in kickback payments, and plainly stated that defendants used interstate mails or wire communications systems in furtherance of the scheme. U.S. v. Hausmann, C.A.7 (Wis.) 2003, 345 F.3d 952, rehearing and suggestion for rehearing en banc denied, certiorari denied 124 S.Ct. 2412, 541 U.S. 1072, 158 L.Ed.2d 981. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(9)

Conspiracy indictment need not allege every element of underlying offense, but need only put defendants on notice that they are being charged with conspiracy to violate underlying substantive offense. U.S. v. Werme, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1991, 939 F.2d 108, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 1165, 502 U.S. 1092, 117 L.Ed.2d 412. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(1)

In conspiracy charge, illegality charge need not be alleged as precisely as would be necessary in a substantive count. U. S. v. Clark, C.A.7 (Ind.) 1981, 649 F.2d 534. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(1)

Conspiracy indictment need not allege essential elements of underlying offense which is object of conspiracy, a requirement of indictment charging a substantive offense. U. S. v. Wander, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1979, 601 F.2d 1251. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

Since the essence of conspiracy is unlawful agreement rather than accomplishment of the unlawful objective, it is not necessary that conspiracy indictment allege with technical precision all elements essential to commission of the offense which is the object of the conspiracy, or that the indictment state such object with the detail that would be required in an indictment for the substantive offense. U. S. v. Cuesta, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1979, 597 F.2d 903, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 451, 444 U.S. 964, 62 L.Ed.2d 377, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 452, 444 U.S. 964, 62 L.Ed.2d 377. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

All that is necessary in charging conspiracy is that there be certainty sufficient to identify the offense which the defendants allegedly conspired to commit. U. S. v. Cuesta, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1979, 597 F.2d 903, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 451, 444 U.S. 964, 62 L.Ed.2d 377, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 452, 444 U.S. 964, 62 L.Ed.2d 377. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

It is not necessary in a conspiracy count that the object of the conspiracy be described in detail required in an indictment for substantive offense itself. U. S. v. Mendoza, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1972, 473 F.2d 692. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(1)

While an indictment charging conspiracy to transport altered securities in interstate commerce need not allege underlying offense with same degree of specificity that is required to charge offense itself, indictments under broad language of this section must be scrutinized carefully to insure that they at least aver essential elements upon which underlying offense rests. Nelson v. U. S., C.A.10 (Colo.) 1969, 406 F.2d 1136. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

It is not necessary in conspiracy indictment to allege with precision all elements essential to the offense which is the object of conspiracy, and allegations clearly identifying the offense defendants conspired to commit are sufficient. U. S. v. Kahn, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1967, 381 F.2d 824, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 591, 389 U.S. 1015, 19 L.Ed.2d 661, rehearing denied 88 S.Ct. 2272, 392 U.S. 948, 20 L.Ed.2d 1413, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 592, 389 U.S. 1015, 19 L.Ed.2d 661, rehearing denied 88 S.Ct. 2272, 392 U.S. 948, 20 L.Ed.2d 1414. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

A conspiracy count need not plead the substantive offense letter-perfect because purpose of conspiracy may have been accomplished even though such activity fell short of completing a substantive offense. U.S. v. Knox Coal Co., C.A.3 (Pa.) 1965, 347 F.2d 33, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 239, 382 U.S. 904, 15 L.Ed.2d 157. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

An indictment charging a conspiracy to commit a crime need not allege with technical precision all elements essential to commission of the offense which is the object of the conspiracy, nor must it state such object with detail required of an indictment charging the substantive offense. Lott v. U.S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1962, 309 F.2d 115, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 504, 371 U.S. 950, 9 L.Ed.2d 498. See, also, U.S. v. Patterson, D.C.La.1964, 235 F.Supp. 233; U.S. v. Schneiderman, D.C.Cal.1951, 102 F.Supp. 87. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

It is not necessary that substantive offense, which is aim and object of conspiracy, should be described with same particularity in conspiracy count as in indictment for substantive offense itself. Beitel v. U.S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1962, 306 F.2d 665. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

Sufficiency of an indictment is to be determined on basis of practical rather than technical considerations, and it is not necessary to charge a conspiracy to commit an offense that all the elements be alleged. Medrano v. United States, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1960, 285 F.2d 23, certiorari denied 81 S.Ct. 1931, 366 U.S. 968, 6 L.Ed.2d 1258, rehearing denied 82 S.Ct. 64, 368 U.S. 872, 7 L.Ed.2d 73. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

It is not necessary to allege with particularity offenses which are objects of conspiracy or to state such objects with detail that would be required in an indictment for committing the substantive offense. Schnautz v. U.S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1959, 263 F.2d 525, certiorari denied 79 S.Ct. 1294, 360 U.S. 910, 3 L.Ed.2d 1260. See, also, Walker v. U.S., C.A.Ga.1965, 342 F.2d 22. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

A conspiracy indictment need not describe substantive crime with particularity of an indictment for that offense. U.S. v. Switzer, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1958, 252 F.2d 139, certiorari denied 78 S.Ct. 1363, 357 U.S. 922, 2 L.Ed.2d 1366, rehearing denied 79 S.Ct. 16, 358 U.S. 859, 3 L.Ed.2d 93.

To charge conspiracy to commit an offense, all elements need not be precisely alleged. Rose v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1945, 149 F.2d 755. See, also, U.S. v. Liss, D.C.N.Y.1942, 43 F.Supp. 203. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(1)

The details need not be described in an indictment charging a conspiracy with same particularity as is required in charging commission of a substantive offense. Old Monastery Co. v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (S.C.) 1945, 147 F.2d 905, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 44, 326 U.S. 734, 90 L.Ed. 437. See, also, Braatelian v. U.S., C.C.A.N.D.1945, 147 F.2d 888; *Miller v. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

An indictment for conspiracy to commit an offense need not describe offense with the same certainty as would be required in an indictment for the offense. Center v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (S.C.) 1938, 96 F.2d 127. See, also, U.S. v. Eisenminger, D.C.Del.1926, 16 F.2d 816; U.S. v. Dwyer, D.C.N.Y.1926, 13 F.2d 427; *Belvin v. Indictment for conspiracy should state essential elements of substantive offense constituting object of conspiracy. Bartkus v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1927, 21 F.2d 425. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

Indictment for conspiracy must show that act intended embraced all elements essential to constitute offense. U.S. v. Eisenminger, D.C.Del.1926, 16 F.2d 816. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

An indictment for conspiracy need not charge substantive crime which is object of conspiracy with same particularity as if substantive crime were charged, but crime may not be charged by way of inference, and indictment must set forth accurately every ingredient of which offense is composed, to enable court to say whether facts are sufficient in law to support conviction, and must set forth facts and not law. U.S. v. Olmstead, D.C.Wash.1925, 5 F.2d 712.

A conspiracy to commit a crime is a different offense from the crime that is the object of the conspiracy, and the distinction in the rules of pleading is well settled. U.S. v. Downey, D.C.R.I.1919, 257 F. 364. Conspiracy ⚡ 28(2); Conspiracy ⚡ 37

While an indictment charging a conspiracy to commit an offense need not describe the offense which defendants conspired to commit with all the particularity required in an indictment charging its commission as a substantive offense, it does not follow that no particulars whatever need be given. U.S. v. Bopp, N.D.Cal.1916, 230 F. 723.

While it was usual to charge that the defendants did "conspire, combine, confederate and agree between and among themselves," the use of the words "did conspire to defraud" was sufficient, under former § 556 of this title to put the defendant upon notice of the offense with which he was charged. Wright v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (La.) 1901, 108 F. 805, 48 C.C.A. 37, certiorari denied 21 S.Ct. 924, 181 U.S. 620, 45 L.Ed. 1031.

The elements of federal criminal conspiracy are identical to those of a civil conspiracy under § 1983. Pizzuto v. County of Nassau, E.D.N.Y.2003, 239 F.Supp.2d 301. Conspiracy ⚡ 7.5(1); Conspiracy ⚡ 23.1

An offense alleged as an object of a conspiracy need not be as perfectly pleaded as a substantive offense; in addition, it need not be charged with the same completeness as is required for the substantive offense. U. S. v. Balistrieri, E.D.Wis.1972, 346 F.Supp. 341. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

It is necessary for some indication in the indictment of scheme alleged to have been devised by defendant although the offense-object in conspiracy charge need not be as perfectly pleaded as required if it were being alleged as a substantive offense. U. S. v. De Sapio, S.D.N.Y.1969, 299 F.Supp. 436. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(1)

Conspiracy indictment does not require the detail necessary in an indictment charging commission of substantive offense and need only sufficiently identify offense which defendants are alleged to have conspired to commit. U. S. v. Barrow, E.D.Pa.1962, 212 F.Supp. 837. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

An indictment charging conspiracy to commit crime need not set out that crime with all particularity necessary in indictment charging that crime as substantive offense. U.S. v. Devine's Milk Laboratories, Inc., D.C.Mass.1960, 179 F.Supp. 799. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

Conspiracy indictment which did not describe with particularity offense which defendants were charged with conspiring to commit could not be sustained by supplying by inference, from overt acts alleged, general description of such specific crime not otherwise designated. U.S. v. Devine's Milk Laboratories, Inc., D.C.Mass.1960, 179 F.Supp. 799. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

Indictment for conspiracy to commit offense need not allege with technical precision all the elements essential to commission of offense which is object of conspiracy, or to state such object in detail; the indictment need only identify the offense. U. S. v. Gilboy, M.D.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 442. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

Rule that where object of a conspiracy is to commit a crime, the crime to be committed need not be described with the same degree of particularity that might be required in an indictment charging its commission as a substantive offense, does not mean that no particulars whatever as to such crime need be given, especially where statute employs broad and comprehensive language descriptive of the general nature of the offense denounced. U. S. v. Apex Distributing Co., D.C.R.I.1957, 148 F.Supp. 365. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

An indictment for conspiracy should state essential elements of substantive offense constituting conspiracy, though it need not be stated with same particularity as in substantive charge. U.S. v. Cawthon, M.D.Ga.1954, 125 F.Supp. 419. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

The gist of crime of conspiracy is unlawful agreement, and where conspiracy is alleged, it is not necessary to set out criminal object of conspiracy with as great certainty as is required in cases where such object is charged as a substantive offense. U.S. v. Westbrook, W.D.Ark.1953, 114 F.Supp. 192. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1); Conspiracy ⚡ 43(1)

275. Allegations, indictment or information--Generally

Permitting jury, in prosecution for crossing state borders to further unlawful activity, conspiracy to do same, and interstate transportation of gambling paraphernalia, to see entire indictment including name of person, who was listed as codefendant, and such person's pen name, did not prejudice defendant where letter admitted at trial proved that someone had used such pen name. U. S. v. Marquez, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1970, 424 F.2d 236, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 56, 400 U.S. 828, 27 L.Ed.2d 58. Criminal Law ⚡ 1174(6)

To charge an offense under former § 88 of this title [now this section] an indictment must charge a conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States or to defraud the United States. Fuller v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1940, 114 F.2d 698. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6); Conspiracy ⚡ 43(10)

An indictment for conspiracy alone, instead of for conspiracy and for substantive crime in separate counts, is proper. Weiss v. U. S., C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1939, 103 F.2d 759. Conspiracy ⚡ 37

Fact that conspiracy as charged encompassed commission of many substantive crimes, some of which constituted other conspiracies, did not make indictment bad. Capriola v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1932, 61 F.2d 5, certiorari denied

53 S.Ct. 315, 287 U.S. 671, 77 L.Ed. 579. Indictment And Information ⚡ 125(5.5)

Indictment for conspiracy need only allege conspiracy to commit offense and overt act to effect its object. Bellande v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (La.) 1928, 25 F.2d 1, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 602, 277 U.S. 607, 72 L.Ed. 1012. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

Indictment charging that certain persons conspired together with certain other persons sufficiently charged that persons in first group conspired with those in second group, and that all conspired to commit offenses charged. A Guckenheimer & Bros Co v. U S, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1925, 3 F.2d 786, certiorari denied 45 S.Ct. 509, 268 U.S. 688, 69 L.Ed. 1157.

An indictment charging a conspiracy to do two things was good, under former § 88 of this title [now this section] if one of such things constituted an offense against the United States. U.S. v. Drawdy, S.D.Fla.1923, 288 F. 567. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

An indictment for conspiracy, which sets forth the names of the conspirators and alleges that the conspiracy was to commit an offense against the United States, the nature of the offense, the time and place, and the overt acts committed to execute the conspiracy, is sufficient. U S v. Pennsylvania Central Coal Co, W.D.Pa.1918, 256 F. 703 . Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

"In an indictment for conspiracy the omission of an essential element of the offense cannot be cured by the statement of the acts done to effect it, though it may be looked at to ascertain the sense in which terms are used. Stearns v. U.S., Minn.1907, 152 F. 900, 82 C.C.A. 48. This is so because the offense is the conspiracy alone, and overt acts are not a part of it, but simply a requirement to show it was not a mere evil conception of the mind, without move to accomplishment. See U.S. v. Britton, Mo.1883, 2 S.Ct. 531, 108 U.S. 199, 204, 27 L.Ed. 698. As to most conspiracies the statutes require an overt act; but where none is required, as in a conspiracy to deprive a citizen of a right under the Constitution and laws of the United States (Rev. Stat. § 5508 [former section 51 of this title]) it is held not necessary to aver one, and that when averments of that character are made they are referable to the conspiracy as describing or particularizing it. Smith v. U.S., Mo.1907, 157 F. 721, 85 C.C.A. 353." Spear v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Ark.) 1915, 228 F. 485, 143 C.C.A. 67.

An indictment must be free from ambiguity, uncertainty, and repugnance, and clearly state every ingredient of the offense charged. It is not necessary, however, to set out the means by which a conspiracy is to be carried out; nor that they are a part of the agreement or confederation; nor what part each conspirator is to play; nor the character of the acts to be performed to effectuate the purpose. It is the conspiracy to do the unlawful thing that is the gravamen of the offense. U.S. v. Dahl, W.D.Wash.1915, 225 F. 909, affirmed 234 F. 618, 148 C.C.A. 384.

The indictment must charge the act constituting the offense with reasonable certainty, and not by mere inference. U.S. v. Atlanta Journal Co., C.C.N.D.Ga.1911, 185 F. 656, error dismissed 33 S.Ct. 775, 229 U.S. 605, 57 L.Ed. 1348.

Conspiracy must be charged "with that degree of certainty requisite in all indictments under the laws of the United States." Tyner v. U.S., App.D.C.1904, 23 App.D.C. 324.

Breadth of this section requires that any indictment returned thereunder must be carefully drawn to ensure that offense charged is clearly stated. U. S. v. Heinze, D.C.Del.1973, 361 F.Supp. 46. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(1)

Indictment charging conspiracy must allege only that conspiracy was in existence and that at least one overt act was committed by one of conspirators in district trying case during period of limitations. *U. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Indictment naming defendants and others as alleged coconspirators, specifying the nature of their illegal agreement, and describing the stated objective of the conspiracy, and specifying acts in furtherance of the conspiracy to effect its objects, was sufficient. U. S. v. Pope, S.D.N.Y.1960, 189 F.Supp. 12. Conspiracy ↻ 43(1)

Indictments in conspiracy cases do not have to set forth the description of the manner in which defendants joined the conspiracy. U S v. Bitz, S.D.N.Y.1959, 179 F.Supp. 80, reversed 282 F.2d 465. Conspiracy ↻ 43(1)

An indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States may include the known and the unknown. U. S. v. Gilboy, M.D.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 442. Indictment And Information ↻ 69

Where one allegation of indictment set forth a conspiracy that was subject to criminal prosecution, indictment was sufficient, without regard to whether additional allegations were sufficient if they stood alone. U.S. v. Bryan, D.C.D.C.1947, 72 F.Supp. 58, affirmed 167 F.2d 241, 83 U.S.App.D.C. 127, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 1511, 334 U.S. 843, 92 L.Ed. 1767, rehearing denied 70 S.Ct. 1001, 339 U.S. 971, 94 L.Ed. 1379. Conspiracy ↻ 43(1)

Rule for charging substantive offenses, that every element of crime must have been alleged, does not apply to indictments for conspiracy. U.S. v. Noble, W.D.N.Y.1937, 18 F.Supp. 808. Conspiracy ↻ 43(1)

Conspiracy indictment was not defective because period of conspiracy was alleged to be in excess of six years, because of number of conspirators, because of the geographical area of conspiracy's operation, because of the number of its objects, nor the number of acts done in its furtherance. *U S v. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

"It is the general rule that an indictment attempting to charge conspiracy to commit a crime is sufficient if it follows the language of the statute and contains a sufficient statement of an overt act to effect the object of the conspiracy, unless the conspiracy involves its carrying out in such a manner that the defendants would not be fairly and reasonably informed of the character of the offense without detailed statement of the means, the time and the place." Rudner v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1922, 281 F. 516, 2 Ohio Law Abs. 242, certiorari denied 43 S.Ct. 95, 260 U.S. 734, 67 L.Ed. 487.

It is no objection to an indictment for conspiracy that the agreement constituting the conspiracy is laid in the words of the statute. U.S. v. White, C.C.S.D.N.Y.1909, 171 F. 775. Indictment And Information ↻ 110(10)

All that is required for indictment charging conspiracy is that it be laid in language of this section. U. S. v. Wolfson, D.C.Del.1968, 294 F.Supp. 267. Indictment And Information ↻ 110(10)

Count of indictment charging, in language of statute, conspiracy to violate statute to obtain defense information was not fatally defective for failure to allege that information concerned was guarded or secret but count was sufficient. U. S. v. Melekh, N.D.Ill.1961, 193 F.Supp. 586. Indictment And Information ↻ 110(10)

Indictment charging violation of the National Firearms Act, § 5801 et seq. of Title 26, and the Federal Firearms Act, § 901 et seq. of Title 15, and a conspiracy to do so essentially in the language of the statutes, and in addition revealing means by which conspiracy was to be carried on and detailing what the defendants did to constitute the substantive offenses was not subject to objection that it failed to inform defendants of nature of the accusations. U. S. v. Bachman, D.C.D.C.1958, 164 F.Supp. 898. Indictment And Information ↻ 110(38)

An indictment charging a conspiracy ordinarily is sufficient if it follows the language of the statute and contains a sufficient description of the object of the conspiracy and a sufficient statement of an overt act to effect the object of the conspiracy. *U. Though indictment charging theft of government property and retention of the same knowing that it was stolen and conspiracy to commit that offense would have been subject to objection on the ground that it was improper to include an alleged agreement to conceal as part of the original conspiracy, where no such objection was made and where the indictment was fully sufficient to state an actionable conspiracy in other respects, it was not plain error to proceed with the trial under this indictment as drawn. U. S. v. Green, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1979, 594 F.2d 1227, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 108, 444 U.S. 853, 62 L.Ed.2d 70. Criminal Law ↪ 1032(5)

An indictment for a conspiracy to violate the Mann Act, § 2422 of this title, was not defective because it did not set out an agreement on the defendant's part. U. S. v. Frank, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1961, 290 F.2d 195, certiorari denied 82 S.Ct. 38, 368 U.S. 821, 7 L.Ed.2d 26. Conspiracy ↻ 43(6)

In prosecution for conspiracy to commit offenses against United States in connection with bankruptcy proceeding, indictment was insufficient for failure to allege conspiratorial agreement to violate bankruptcy laws during time when bankruptcy was pending. *U. Although what was done is often good evidence of what was agreed to be done, an allegation of such evidence in indictment for conspiracy is not an allowable substitute for a clear statement of the agreement which is proposed to be proven. *Hamner v. "To allege that the defendants conspired is, at least, to allege that they agreed to do the matters which are set forth as the substance of their conspiracy. I do not mean to say that the mere fact that a conspiracy is alleged is sufficient to show that the conspiracy was unlawful, but that, taken at its lowest terms, to allege a conspiracy is to allege an agreement." *U.S. v. Indictment alleging that defendants and certain other named individual from on or about Dec. 1, 1965, until Jan. 16, 1969, willfully conspired with each other and with diverse other persons to violate certain statutes sufficiently alleged, as an element of offense of conspiring to commit offense against United States, an "agreement" between defendants during specified period of time. *U. 419. Conspiracy ⚡ 23.1

Conspiracy indictment adequately alleged as object of conspiracy obstruction of customs service, despite claims that none of alleged overt acts related to obstruction of customs service and that Government improperly "pyramided" offenses. *U. Conspiracy, rather than accomplishment of its underlying objectives, is gravamen of offense of conspiracy, and, therefore, it is not necessary that object of conspiracy be described in detail in indictment in manner which would be required in charging violation of substantive offense. U. S. v. Evans, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1978, 572 F.2d 455, rehearing denied 576 F.2d 931, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 200, 439 U.S. 870, 58 L.Ed.2d 182. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(1)

A statement in indictment as to the alleged objects, motives, purposes, and acts of the conspirators was no part of the charge of conspiracy to defraud the United States and served only to advise defendants of the scope of the government's evidence and to limit the inquiry at the trial. Joyce v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1946, 153 F.2d 364, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 1349, 328 U.S. 860, 90 L.Ed. 1631. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

Indictment charging conspiracy to commit offense against United States must show purpose to contravene statute creating substantive offense. U. S. v. Goldman, D.C.Conn.1928, 28 F.2d 424. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

Count of conspiracy indictment is demurrable, if failing to show object of conspiracy to be offense against United States. Brown v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Ga.) 1927, 21 F.2d 827. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

An indictment for conspiracy is not bad for indefiniteness, where it alleges the purpose of the conspiracy, and describes the precise methods taken for carrying it out. Firth v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (W.Va.) 1918, 253 F. 36, 165 C.C.A. 56. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(1)

An indictment merely charging a conspiracy to do a thing, but not alleging the thing was done, does not show the completed offense within principle that indictment for conspiracy does not lie when it makes that showing. *Grant v. It is essential in an indictment for conspiracy to commit a crime against the United States to charge acts sufficient to show that the design of the conspiracy was to commit an offense against the United States. Stanley v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Okla.) 1912, 195 F. 896, 115 C.C.A. 584. Indictment And Information ⚡ 125(5.5)

"An indictment for conspiracy, to be good under the statute, must charge that the conspiracy was to do some act made criminal by the laws of the United States, and must state with sufficient certainty the facts to show that such a criminal act was the object of the conspiracy. It is unusual to set out the overt acts, those acts which may have been done by any one or more of the conspirators in pursuance of the conspiracy, and in order to effect the common purpose; but this is not requisite if the indictment charges what is in itself an unlawful conspiracy. The offense is complete on the consummation of the conspiracy, and the overt acts may be either regarded as matters of aggravation or disregarded as surplusage. Where an indictment for a conspiracy does not set forth the object specifically, and show that such object is a legal crime, it should particularly set forth the means to be used by the conspirators, and show that these means are criminal". U.S. v. Gardner, C.C.N.D.N.Y.1890, 42 F. 829.

that the conspiracy was to do some act made a crime by the laws of the United States, and must state with sufficient certainty the offense intended to be committed, and must then state some act done by one of the conspirators towards effecting the object of the conspiracy. In re Wolf, W.D.Ark.1886, 27 F. 606. See, also, U.S. v. Wupperman, D.C.N.Y.1914, 215 F. 135; U.S. v. Watson, D.C.Miss.1883, 17 F. 145.

If the indictment is to be valid, the object alleged in a charge of conspiracy based on violation of this section must be an offense against the United States. U. S. v. Fine, W.D.Wis.1976, 413 F.Supp. 728. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

282. ---- Multiple objects of conspiracy, allegations, indictment or information

Conspiracy count which alleged multiple objects of conspiracy did not violate rule requiring indictments to be plain, concise, and definite, in light of rule's specific approval of enumerating multiple objects. U.S. v. Linn, C.A.10 (Wyo.) 1994, 31 F.3d 987. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(1)

Single conspiracy, utilizing the facilities of interstate commerce, to obtain kickback from contractors doing business with city and county government violated section 1952 of this title, proscribing conspiracies utilizing facilities of interstate commerce, as well as this section, each of which statutes permits a different range of sentence; thus, it was proper to charge both violations as separate counts of the indictment. U. S. v. Kenny, C.A.3 (N.J.) 1972, 462 F.2d 1205, certiorari denied 93 S.Ct. 233, 409 U.S. 914, 34 L.Ed.2d 176, certiorari denied 93 S.Ct. 234, 409 U.S. 914, 34 L.Ed.2d 176. 283. ---- Certainty as to a common intent, allegations, indictment or information

An indictment showing certainty to a common intent was sufficiently definite to inform defendants of the charges against them. *Glasser v. The act of conspiracy is the gist of the crime and only certainty to a common intent is necessary. Williamson v. U.S., U.S.Or.1908, 28 S.Ct. 163, 207 U.S. 425, 52 L.Ed. 278. See, also, *Crawford v. In charging conspiracy it is not law that all elements of offense be charged with technical precision but, as gist of offense is conspiracy, only certainty to common intent, sufficient to identify offense which defendants conspired to commit, is necessary. Danielson v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1963, 321 F.2d 441. See, also, Beitel v. U.S., C.A.Tex.1962, 306 F.2d 665; Williamson v. U.S., C.A.Cal.1962, 310 F.2d 192; *U.S. v. It is unnecessary in count for conspiracy to allege with technical precision all elements essential to commission of offense which is object of conspiracy, or to state such object in detail as required by indictment for committing substantive offense, and certainty to common intent, sufficient to identify offense which defendants conspired to commit, is all that is necessary. *Stein v. Where conspiracy to commit an offense is charged, conspiracy is gist of crime, and certainty, to a common intent, sufficient to identify offense which defendants conspired to commit, is all that is requisite in stating object of conspiracy. *U. 284. ---- Knowledge and intent, allegations, indictment or information

An indictment charging a defendant with a conspiracy to "commit an offense against the United States" must state an agreement to do acts which, if done, would constitute a specific offense, and where an intent is an essential part of such offense, as defined by the statute, such intent must be averred. Green v. MacDougall, U.S.N.Y.1905, 26 S.Ct. 748, 199 U.S. 601, 50 L.Ed. 328. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

An indictment for conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States need not allege that defendants "feloniously" conspired, as felonious intent is not a part of the description of the offense in the statute, and the infamous character of the punishment affixed does not of itself render the offense a felony. Bannon v. U.S., U.S.Or.1895, 15 S.Ct. 467, 156 U.S. 464, 39 L.Ed. 494. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(1); Indictment And Information ⚡ 91(2)

Disconnect in indictment charging mail fraud defendant with mailing to rental unit owners' statements that knowingly withheld information concerning rental dates and amount of money received from rentals, and charging defendant with having stayed or having allowed others to stay in rental units without notice and payment to the owners was, at most, a non-fatal variance; the omitted information from the owners' statements was relevant to the same charge, namely, mail fraud, and the grand jury indicted defendants for unauthorized stays without notice or payment to the owners. *U.S. v. Indictment charging that defendants "unlawfully, wickedly, corruptly, and feloniously conspired" sufficiently charged conspiracy, and was not defective because of failure to charge that conspiracy was "knowingly" entered into. *Waldeck v. In a charge of conspiracy, the conspiracy is the gist of the offense, and an indictment charging a "willful" conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States was not insufficient because the word "willfully" was not again used in describing the offense intended to be committed, though willfulness is an element of such offense as defined in the statute. *Rumely v. "It is contended that the first count is fatally defective for the reason that the conspiracy and the overt acts set forth are not alleged to have been willful. To this it is sufficient to say that the definition of the offense of conspiracy under which the defendants were indicted does not contain the word 'willful,' or any provision to indicate that it was the intention of Congress to make willfulness an ingredient of the offense. The indictment in the first count does, however, charge that the conspiracy was entered into unlawfully and feloniously, and each of the overt acts is alleged to have been done in pursuance of said unlawful and felonious conspiracy, and it is charged that the conspiracy was to commit the offense of unlawfully, feloniously and willfully causing and attempting to cause insubordination, etc. It is the general rule that it is not necessary to charge that the offense was done willfully, unless the statute defining the same makes willfulness an element thereof; and it is also generally held that words which import an exercise of the will, such as 'feloniously' and 'unlawfully,' will supply the place of the word 'willfully.'" Howenstine v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1920, 263 F. 1.

An indictment charging a conspiracy to violate the Harrison Drug Act, § 2550 et seq. of Title 26, sufficiently averred accused's knowledge of unlawfulness of his co-conspirator's act. Wallace v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1917, 243 F. 300, 156 C.C.A. 80, certiorari denied 38 S.Ct. 11, 245 U.S. 650, 62 L.Ed. 531. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(4)

Where it is alleged that certain persons confederated to do a lawful act by criminal means, the indictment must charge that the means employed were attended by a corrupt motive. U.S. v. Moore, C.C.Or.1909, 173 F. 122. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(4)

In an indictment for conspiracy, the corrupt motive may be alleged, by charging that the object was to accomplish an unlawful act, in which case the intent is made to appear by the charge of a combination to do the unlawful act, or by charging a combination to do the lawful act, or the act innocent in itself by unlawful means, where the intent must appear by allegation of the means. U.S. v. Moore, C.C.Or.1909, 173 F. 122. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(4)

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for conspiracy to defraud, which set out the unlawful agreement, need not have averred an intent upon the part of the accused to defraud the United States. U.S. v. Stone, D.C.N.J.1905, 135 F. 392. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(4)

A charge that the object of the conspiracy was the procuring of false evidence for use in a certain named case then pending, is a sufficient averment that the defendants had knowledge of that case. Fletcher v. U.S., App.D.C.1914, 42 App.D.C. 53, certiorari denied 35 S.Ct. 283, 235 U.S. 706, 59 L.Ed. 434.

Even if indictment charging defendants with conspiracy to distribute obscene materials failed to allege that each defendant had actual knowledge of shipment of sexually explicit materials into judicial district in which they were tried, indictment was not defective on that basis, since indictment sufficiently notified each defendant of their role in furthering scheme to distribute sexually explicit material; conspiracy did not require proof that all defendants had knowledge of all details of conspiracy or its participants. U.S. v. Krasner, M.D.Pa.1993, 841 F.Supp. 649. Indictment And Information ⚡ 86(3)

Conspiracy indictment was not rendered defective for failure to state defendant's knowledge of interstate commerce in which stolen goods allegedly moved. U. S. v. Wilson, D.C.Md.1973, 356 F.Supp. 463. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

Mere allegation that defendants conspired to commit statutory offense would denote willfulness. U. S. v. Schneiderman, S.D.Cal.1951, 102 F.Supp. 87. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

Indictment charging defendants with unlawfully conspiring to commit offenses against the United States was not defective for failure to allege that conspiracy was feloniously entered into since felonious intent was no part of statutory description of conspiracy charged. U.S. v. O'Toole, D.C.R.I.1951, 101 F.Supp. 123. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

In an indictment against a distiller for conspiracy to defraud the United States, it is not essential to state, in addition to an intent to defraud, the facts showing such intent. U.S. v. Ulrici, C.C.Mo.1875, Fed.Cas. No. 16,594.

285. ---- Means of accomplishing conspiracy, allegations, indictment or information

Indictment charging formation of a conspiracy to deprive an individual under color or pretext of state authority of the rights, privileges, and immunities guaranteed him by U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 14 by assaulting and torturing him to force him to confess the commission of a criminal offense and charging the substantive offense thereof charged an offense under the laws of the United States. Apodaca v. U. S., C.A.10 (N.M.) 1951, 188 F.2d 932. Civil Rights ☞ 1809

An indictment charging continuing conspiracy to defraud United States by delivering, grading, selling, etc., inferior products to different general departments, by obstructing inspection, false grading and weighing sufficiently shows what governmental functions the defendants conspired to impede and what means the defendants planned to use. Nye & Nissen v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1948, 168 F.2d 846, certiorari granted 69 S.Ct. 81, 335 U.S. 852, 93 L.Ed. 400, affirmed 69 S.Ct. 766, 336 U.S. 613, 93 L.Ed. 919. Conspiracy ☞ 43(10)

Indictment charging defendant with violating former §§ 88 [now this section] and 338 of this title, as result of use of mails in connection with the development, promotion and sale of burial lots, which enumerated fraudulent representations by which customers were induced to part with their money and property and which charged that mails were used in furtherance of the promotion plan was sufficient without charging that there was any fraudulent failure to convey title to land sold or to account for moneys or securities received from customers. Deaver v. U.S., App.D.C.1946, 155 F.2d 740, 81 U.S.App.D.C. 148, certiorari denied 67 S.Ct. 121, 329 U.S. 766, 91 L.Ed. 659. Indictment And Information ☞ 71.4(9)

The essence of conspiracy is the unlawful combination, and if object of conspiracy is accomplishment of some unlawful act means by which unlawful act is to be accomplished need not be set forth in indictment. Rose v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1945, 149 F.2d 755. See, also, Pollock v. U.S., C.C.A.Md.1929, 35 F.2d 174; U.S. v. Weiss, D.C.Ill.1923, 293 F. 992. Conspiracy ☞ 26; Conspiracy ☞ 43(3)

An indictment for conspiracy to violate Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, 50 App. former § 901 et seq., and regulations thereunder, which alleged a conspiracy of a number of people "that they would in the course of trade or business buy, sell and deliver packaged distilled spirits at prices in excess of the maximum price established by said Maximum Price Regulations", and which set out in detail the various overt acts by parties to the conspiracy, was not defective on ground that it omitted to plead any facts showing the scheme by which alleged conspiracy was to be consummated. Old Monastery Co. v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (S.C.) 1945, 147 F.2d 905, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 44, 326 U.S. 734, 90 L.Ed. 437. Conspiracy ☞ 43(6)

An indictment which charged violation of Securities Act, § 77q of Title 15, use of mails to defraud and conspiracy to effect scheme to defraud, which contained detailed description of scheme, named persons to be defrauded, and means devised and used to that end, and which stated facts constituting scheme to defraud, and charged use of mails for purpose of promoting it, was not demurrable. Holmes v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1943, 134 F.2d 125, certiorari denied 63 S.Ct. 1434, 319 U.S. 776, 87 L.Ed. 1722. Securities Regulation ☞ 195; Postal Service ☞ 48(4.1)

An indictment charging a conspiracy to obstruct justice and to defraud the United States was not bad as charging a conspiracy to accept and secure bribes which is not an indictable conspiracy, where scheme of resorting to bribery was averred only to be a way of consummating the conspiracy as purely ancillary to the substantive offense. U.S. v. Manton, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1939, 107 F.2d 834, certiorari denied 60 S.Ct. 590, 309 U.S. 664, 84 L.Ed. 1012. Conspiracy ☞ 43(10); Conspiracy ☞ 43(11)

Conspiracy indictment charging that defendants were to represent that defendants could corruptly influence action of government officials in accused's favor by means of political influence, things of value, sums of money, or "gratuitously," was not objectionable on ground that it merely charged that defendants conspired to bring about dismissal of prosecution, but without unlawful means. Craig v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1936, 81 F.2d 816, certiorari dismissed 56 S.Ct. 670, 298 U.S. 637, 80 L.Ed. 1371, certiorari dismissed 56 S.Ct. 671, 298 U.S. 637, 80 L.Ed.

Indictment charging that government's engineer-examiner on irrigation projects had duty to pass on plans and make recommendations to Administrator of Public Works, and was induced, by codefendants' offer of position at increased salary, to recommend substitute plan for constructing irrigation project, and that codefendants, in order to obtain excessive profit, had secured exclusive control of redwood to be used under substitute plan, was sufficient to charge conspiracy to defraud United States. U.S. v. Harding, App.D.C.1936, 81 F.2d 563, 65 App.D.C. 161. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(6)

Merely alleging means intended to be used or that were used cannot be taken inferentially to support conspiracy indictment, unless essential elements of unlawful agreement and purpose have been fully and clearly stated. Asgill v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (Va.) 1932, 60 F.2d 780. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(3)

Indictment for conspiracy is sufficient if it contains general description of means by which object is to be attained. Enrique Rivera v. U.S., C.C.A.1 (Puerto Rico) 1932, 57 F.2d 816. See, also, U.S. v. Raley, D.C.Or.1909, 173 F. 159. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(3)

An indictment for conspiracy to violate a law of the United States need not set out the means to be used, or that they were a part of the agreement, or what each conspirator was to do, or the character of the acts to be performed. U.S. v. Dahl, W.D.Wash.1915, 225 F. 909, affirmed 234 F. 618, 148 C.C.A. 384. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(3)

Where the first part of a count in an indictment set forth that certain persons "unlawfully did conspire" to defraud the United States, the conspiracy "to be effected in the manner following; that is to say"--and the following part stated the details of the alleged conspiracy, the latter part was not to be construed as a videlicet separate from the charge of the indictment, but the whole sentence may be considered as the charging part. Browne v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1905, 145 F. 1, 76 C.C.A. 31, certiorari denied 26 S.Ct. 755, 200 U.S. 618, 50 L.Ed. 623. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(10)

According to the settled practice on indictments for conspiracy, whether the means to be employed are in themselves lawful, or unlawful, it is not sufficient to merely allege in such general terms that the defendants have conspired to defraud. The indictment must allege, to some extent at least, the means intended to be used in defending." U.S. v. Grunberg, C.C.Mass.1904, 131 F. 137.

"Allegation of an agreement to do an act by the employment of certain means sufficiently alleges an agreement not only to do such act but to employ such means." U.S. v. Wilson, D.C.Or.1894, 60 F. 890.

Indictment charging defendant with conspiracy to defraud government in connection with creation of warehouse banking system allegedly designed to impede Internal Revenue Service (IRS) in assessing taxes was facially invalid, in that it failed to allege essential element that obstruction was to be accomplished by deceitful or dishonest means, which permitted grand jury to issue indictment upon erroneous assumption that any attempt to impair or impede IRS could constitute attempt to defraud IRS. 286. ---- Time and place, allegations, indictment or information

An indictment charging a conspiracy to defraud the United States, in stating manner and means of effecting object of conspiracy, was not required to state with particularity time, place, circumstances, and causes, but such specificity of detail fell rather within the scope of a bill of particulars which defendants requested and received. Glasser v. U.S., U.S.Ill.1942, 62 S.Ct. 457, 315 U.S. 60, 86 L.Ed. 680, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 629, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 637, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222. Although, ordinarily, charge of conspiracy is not circumscribed or limited by averments as to time when, or place where, conspiracy was formed, it is limited by terms of indictment itself. Terry v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1925, 7 F.2d 28. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(12); Indictment And Information ⚡ 176

A charge of conspiracy in an indictment is made definite as to time by allegations of the time of overt acts. Fisher v. U. S., C.C.A.4 (W.Va.) 1924, 2 F.2d 843, certiorari denied 45 S.Ct. 128, 266 U.S. 629, 69 L.Ed. 476.

Where an indictment for conspiracy charged that the overt act alleged was committed in pursuance of and to effect the object of the conspiracy, it sufficiently appeared that it was committed subsequent to the formation of the conspiracy, and the exact date was not material to the allegation. Goldberg v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Hawai'i) 1922, 281 F. 525, certiorari denied 43 S.Ct. 92, 260 U.S. 729, 67 L.Ed. 485.

An averment in an indictment that the conspiracy charged was formed "on the ___ day of May, 1917," was sufficiently definite, where the statute charged to have been violated was enacted on May 18, 1917. Firth v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (W.Va.) 1918, 253 F. 36, 165 C.C.A. 56. Indictment And Information ⚡ 87(8)

An indictment for conspiracy, which alleged that conspiracy extended between January 1, 1913, and September 20, 1913, was insufficient on demurrer, the overt act occurring on September 20th, this being true though averments as to time were preceded by a videlicet. U.S. v. Baker, D.C.R.I.1917, 243 F. 746. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

"It is claimed that this is sufficiently uncertain to make the indictment bad, for two reasons: First, it is claimed that the indictment does not show that the crime is not barred by the statute of limitations. This, however, cannot be maintained, because the charge in the indictment is certain as to the year. The phrase 'on or about' does not qualify the allegation that the conspiracy was formed in 1914. There is an authority that a similar expression does not qualify the month, but only qualifies the particular day of the month. U.S. v. McKinley (C.C.Or.1903) 127 F. 169. It is well established that an allegation of a date in an indictment does not confine the prosecution to the proof of that particular date; therefore a certain date is not a necessary allegation in an indictment. Section 1025 R.S. [former section 556 of this title] * * * provides that the indictment shall not be held insufficient in matter of form only which shall not tend to the prejudice of the defendant. Under similar statutes, in some states, it has been held that an indictment charging on or before a particular date is sufficient. Many courts have held that the date is a matter of form only. The Supreme Court of the United States has held that an indictment which alleged the day of the month as follows: 'on the ___ day of April, 1906,' was a sufficient allegation of the date. Ledbetter v. U.S., Iowa 1898, 18 S.Ct. 774, 170 U.S. 606, 42 L.Ed. 1162." U.S. v. Aviles, S.D.Cal.1915, 222 F. 474.

"It would be requiring much too exact a standard * * * to compel specific statement as to just when every defendant in a conspiracy where the utmost secrecy was necessary actually came in." U. S. v. Reddin, E.D.Wis.1912, 193 F. 798.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for conspiracy to defraud the United States was not insufficient because it charged that the conspiracy was formed on a date more than three years prior to the time it was found, and set out overt acts at different times thereafter up to and within the three years, where it was also charged that the conspiracy was in continuous operation and continuously in process of execution at all times down to that of the last overt act specified. *U.S. v. Where an indictment for conspiracy in violation of former § 88 of this title [now this section] alleged the formation of the conspiracy on September 1, 1901, and that on April 10, 1905, within the period of limitation, defendants, in furtherance of the conspiracy and to carry out and effect its object, performed certain overt acts specified, each being alleged to have taken place within three years prior to the indictment, the indictment sufficiently charged that the original conspiracy was continuously in existence, and was not defective as indicating that the overt acts only, and not the conspiracy, had been committed within three years, though it did not in terms allege a new or renewed conspiracy. *U. of the formation or beginning of the conspiracy, nor, if the date was alleged, need it have been proved as laid, but it was sufficient if the conspiracy was proved to have existed prior to the commission of the overt act charged, and that it continued to exist at that time. Bradford v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (La.) 1907, 152 F. 617, 81 C.C.A. 607. Conspiracy ↻ 43(12)

The indictment must allege the time and place of the act done to effect the object of the conspiracy, so as to identify the act, and show that it postdated the conspiracy, and was not merely a part of it. U. S. v. Milner, C.C.N.D.Ala.1888, 36 F. 890. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

Overt act alleged in conspiracy prosecution must be alleged to have occurred within limitation period. U. S. v. Stein, E.D.Pa.1966, 249 F.Supp. 873. Indictment And Information ↻ 87(2)

Indictment alleging conspiracy of several years' duration was not defective for failure to allege date on which government claims defendant joined conspiracy. U. S. v. Nomura Trading Co., S.D.N.Y.1963, 213 F.Supp. 704. Indictment And Information ↻ 87(2); Indictment And Information ↻ 87(1)

When count of indictment charged essential elements of conspiracy to defraud the United States and sufficiently informed defendants of charge against them, indictment was sufficient despite lack of particularity of time, place, and circumstances in stating manner and means of effecting object of conspiracy. U.S. v. Albanese, S.D.N.Y.1954, 123 F.Supp. 732, affirmed 224 F.2d 879, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 87, 350 U.S. 845, 100 L.Ed. 753. Indictment And Information ↻ 71.4(3)

Failure to allege dates with respect to overt act allegedly committed in furtherance of criminal conspiracy is not material. U.S. v. Westbrook, W.D.Ark.1953, 114 F.Supp. 192. Indictment And Information ↻ 87(1)

The particularity of time, place, circumstances, causes, etc., in stating manner and means of effecting object of a conspiracy is not essential to an indictment charging conspiracy. U S v. Kendzierski, E.D.N.Y.1944, 54 F.Supp. 164. Indictment And Information ↻ 71.4(3); Indictment And Information ↻ 86(2); Indictment And Information ↻ 87(1)

Government in indictment for conspiracy should not be required to specify particular time and place of formation of conspiracy, or to be specific with reference to each overt act and such things that it intended to prove at trial. U S v. Farrington, M.D.Pa.1935, 11 F.Supp. 214. Indictment And Information ↻ 121.2(3)

The time and place of conspiracy must be alleged in the indictment. U.S. v. Soper, C.C.Dist.Col.1835, 27 F.Cas. 1260, 4 Cranch C.C. 623, No. 16353, 4 D.C. 623. Conspiracy ↻ 43(1)

287. ---- Jurisdiction, allegations, indictment or information

The exact place of the formation of a conspiracy to use the mails to defraud, denounced by former § 338 of this title, need not have been stated in an indictment which laid the venue in the place where an overt act was committed. Brown v. Elliott, U.S.Cal.1912, 32 S.Ct. 812, 225 U.S. 392, 56 L.Ed. 1136. Indictment And Information ↻ 86(1); Postal Service ↻ 48(4.1)

In prosecution for conspiracy to sell heroin brought in District Court for Eastern District of New York, allegations that many of overt acts scheduled in conspiracy count of indictment took place in Eastern District, many of sales were negotiated and deliveries actually made in Eastern District, were sufficient to give court jurisdiction, even though there was no evidence that defendant had ever been in Eastern District of New York. U. S. v. Campisi, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1957, 248 F.2d 102, certiorari denied 78 S.Ct. 266, 355 U.S. 892, 2 L.Ed.2d 191. Criminal Law ↻ 113

An indictment for conspiracy to violate former § 398 of this title, not alleging where the conspiracy was formed, but alleging, as one of the overt acts, that defendant telephoned from Honolulu to Los Angeles, charges the commission of an offense within the Southern District of California, in view of former § 103 of Title 28, providing that, when an offense is begun in one judicial district and completed in another, it shall be deemed committed in either. Smith v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Hawai'i) 1937, 92 F.2d 460. Criminal Law ⚡ 113

An indictment charging that the defendants conspired at a time and place unknown and that continued to a certain date and was then carried into a named county within the jurisdiction is good. U S v. Seidman, D.C.Pa.1930, 45 F.2d 178.

Indictment for conspiracy "on and prior to" certain date "in the said division of said district" was sufficiently definite. Foreman v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Ark.) 1928, 28 F.2d 768. Indictment And Information ⚡ 86(2); Indictment And Information ⚡ 87(2)

Indictment charging conspiracy to violate National Prohibition Act, former § 201 et seq. of Title 27, alleging that conspiracy was formed and that overt acts had been committed at various places including Cleveland, Ohio, stated a public offense triable in Eastern division of Northern district of Ohio. U. S. v. Fogel, D.C.Minn.1926, 22 F.2d 823.

Indictment charging conspiracy to transport liquor transferred from boat into district of Oregon properly laid venue within such district. Woitte v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Or.) 1927, 19 F.2d 506, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 84, 275 U.S. 545, 72 L.Ed. 417. Criminal Law ⚡ 113

Allegation that an overt act to effect a conspiracy elsewhere formed was committed within district where indictment is found is sufficient to show jurisdiction. Lucking v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ind.) 1926, 14 F.2d 881, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 455, 273 U.S. 749, 71 L.Ed. 872, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 455, 273 U.S. 749, 71 L.Ed. 873, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 455, 273 U.S. 750, 71 L.Ed. 873. Indictment And Information ⚡ 86(2)

Indictment charging formation and existence of conspiracy in Missouri, having as an object the transportation of whisky into and through Indiana, sufficiently charges existence of conspiracy in district of Indiana. Lucking v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ind.) 1926, 14 F.2d 881, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 455, 273 U.S. 749, 71 L.Ed. 872, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 455, 273 U.S. 749, 71 L.Ed. 873, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 455, 273 U.S. 750, 71 L.Ed. 873.

Since the overt act in furtherance of a conspiracy need not have been committed within the jurisdiction in which the conspiracy was formed, an indictment alleging the venue of the conspiracy and of all the overt acts but one was not insufficient because of its failure to allege the venue as to that act. Brolaski v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1922, 279 F. 1, certiorari denied 42 S.Ct. 381, 258 U.S. 625, 66 L.Ed. 797, certiorari denied 42 S.Ct. 589, 259 U.S. 586, 66 L.Ed. 1076. See, also, *Newton v. An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for a conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States is not defective because it fails to allege the division of the district where the offense was committed, except by reference to the caption. Harrington v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Iowa) 1920, 267 F. 97.

An indictment for conspiracy is not fatally defective, where it alleges the place where the overt acts are charged to have been done, although the venue of the conspiracy is not set out. U S v. Jenks, E.D.Pa.1919, 258 F. 763. Indictment And Information ⚡ 86(2)

In an indictment for conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States, where the conspiracy is alleged to have been formed within the district of indictment, it is not necessary to set forth the place of performance of the object of the conspiracy. *Vane v. Where the jurisdiction of the court depends solely upon an overt act alleged in an indictment for conspiracy, it must be alleged with all the certainty of any other jurisdictional fact, and the connection between the overt act and the conspiracy must be made to appear specifically. Tillinghast v. Richards, D.C.R.I.1915, 225 F. 226. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

Under former § 88 of this title [now this section] an indictment alleging conspiracy to violate the White Slave Traffic Act, § 2424 of this title and setting out overt acts done within jurisdiction of the court, was good, notwithstanding U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 6, as to venue in criminal cases, though conspiracy was formed in a foreign country. U.S. v. Linton, W.D.Wash.1915, 223 F. 677. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

Where indictment charged a conspiracy to defraud the United States by mailing old newspapers for the purpose of fraudulently increasing the weight of mail matter, if the fraudulent mailing was committed within the judicial district charged in the indictment, it is immaterial where the alleged conspiracy was formed, or whether or not the parties thereto, or either of them, were ever within such district. U.S. v. Newton, S.D.Iowa 1892, 52 F. 275. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(10)

Allegations in count charging conspiracy that defendant committed specified overt acts in Southwestern Division of Western District of Missouri were sufficient to fix venue in such district, and court's authority to try defendants in such district was not defeated by failure of indictment to allege that conspiracy itself occurred within Western District of Missouri. U. S. v. Merrick, W.D.Mo.1962, 207 F.Supp. 929. Indictment And Information ⚡ 86(2)

Even though indictment did not name defendant's alleged coconspirators, it was not on that basis so vague that it failed to apprise him of conspiracy charges, where indictment tracked statutory language and specified different overt acts allegedly done in furtherance of conspiracy, together with dates and locations. U.S. v. American Waste Fibers Co., Inc., C.A.4 (N.C.) 1987, 809 F.2d 1044. Indictment And Information ↻ 110(10)

Even where his named coconspirators are acquitted, an alleged conspirator can be convicted of conspiring with persons where names are unknown as long as the indictment asserts that such other persons exist and the evidence supports their existence and complicity. U.S. v. Espinosa-Cerpa, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 630 F.2d 328. Conspiracy ↻ 24(8)

Where indictment did not charge that only defendant and codefendant were involved in conspiracy but included "others known and unknown," a determination that there were other members of the conspiracy would not preclude a finding that defendant and codefendant were guilty of conspiracy. U. S. v. Glickman, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1979, 604 F.2d 625, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 1032, 444 U.S. 1080, 62 L.Ed.2d 764. Conspiracy ↻ 48.3

Even when codefendants are known and not prosecuted, person may be convicted of conspiring with them so long as indictment asserts that such other persons exist and evidence supports their existence. U. S. v. Lance, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1976, 536 F.2d 1065. Conspiracy ↻ 24(8)

Government may introduce evidence at trial of a person's participation in a conspiracy and thereby ascribe his acts and statements to the coconspirators even if that person is not named in the indictment. U. S. v. Briggs, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1975, 514 F.2d 794. Criminal Law ↻ 427(1)

Conviction of single conspirator may be upheld if indictment alleges that conspiracy involved unknown persons. U. S. v. Fleming, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1974, 504 F.2d 1045. Conspiracy ↻ 24(8)

Person can be convicted of conspiring with persons who are not identified by name in indictment so long as indictment asserts that such other persons exist and evidence supports such assertion, and this is no less true simply because coconspirators named as codefendants in indictment were not prosecuted for conspiracy. U. S. v. Goodwin, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1974, 492 F.2d 1141. Conspiracy ↻ 40

It is not necessary in order to sustain conviction for conspiracy that coconspirators be charged. Ng Pui Yu v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1965, 352 F.2d 626. Conspiracy ↻ 43(1)

An indictment charging conspiracy to defraud the United States was not repugnant and inconsistent on ground that it alleged that defendants conspired with each other and with other persons to the grand jurors unknown. U.S. v. Glasser, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1940, 116 F.2d 690, certiorari granted 61 S.Ct. 835, 313 U.S. 551, 85 L.Ed. 1515, modified on other grounds 62 S.Ct. 457, 315 U.S. 60, 86 L.Ed. 680, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 629, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 637, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222. Under an indictment charging conspiracy between defendants and with others unknown, where the conspiracy between defendants and the overt acts alleged are proved, and that they must have been aided by others, it is not essential to conviction that the names of such others be shown. Nee v. U.S., C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1920, 267 F. 84.

The unessential quoted words of an indictment, that the three defendants had conspired "with other persons to the grand jury unknown," may be ignored, there being no evidence of there having been more than the three conspirators. Meyer v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1919, 258 F. 212, 169 C.C.A. 280. Indictment And Information ↪ 119

Indictment charging defendant with conspiracy to commit possession of firearm by a felon was not required to allege that the guns were in fact delivered to convicted felon or identify defendant or someone else in receipt of the guns as a felon. U.S. v. Brown, E.D.Va.1992, 784 F.Supp. 322. Conspiracy ↪ 43(6)

Indictment is not subject to attack of variance where it is disclosed by evidence that grand jury knew name of co-conspirator but failed to state it. U. S. v. Melekh, N.D.Ill.1961, 193 F.Supp. 586. Indictment And Information ↪ 173

In prosecution of defendants, who organized and operated five trade schools, for conspiring to defraud Government by fraudulently inflating cost basis of tuition rate and by fraudulently increasing cost to be charged to Veterans' Administration, naming of three other persons as co-conspirators was a nullity and of no effect in absence of testimony to show participation by any persons other than the two defendants. U. S. v. Weinberg, M.D.Pa.1955, 129 F.Supp. 514, affirmed 226 F.2d 161, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 305, 350 U.S. 933, 100 L.Ed. 815. Conspiracy ↪ 33(2.1)

290. ---- Participation, allegations, indictment or information

It is not essential in charging "conspiracy" to show that all conspirators participated in its beginning, or that all contributed alike, provided there is common design and purpose applicable to all conspirators at some period during conspiracy. U.S. v. Harding, App.D.C.1936, 81 F.2d 563, 65 App.D.C. 161. Conspiracy ↪ 43(2)

It is not necessary to set forth the particular part to be assumed or undertaken by each conspirator in the consummation of the unlawful scheme and it is sufficient if the object of the conspiracy is clearly stated, the time when and the place where it was entered into and the manner in which it was to be carried out. U.S. v. Cella, App.D.C.1911, 37 App.D.C. 423, certiorari denied 32 S.Ct. 526, 223 U.S. 728, 56 L.Ed. 633. Conspiracy ↪ 43(1)

291. ---- Evidentiary matters, allegations, indictment or information

Any variance between conspiracy offense charged against codefendants and government's proof was not plain error where defendant was neither charged with nor convicted of conspiracy. U.S. v. Neely, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1992, 980 F.2d 1074. Criminal Law ↪ 1032(7)

Indictment charging defendant with conspiracy to transport stolen bonds having value in excess of $5,000 was sufficiently detailed, where it included, among other things, identification of bonds involved by issuing authority and certificate numbers, incorporated additional substantive count as overt act of conspiracy, and included dates, locations and addresses of transactions, names of codefendants and others involved, amounts of checks received in exchange for cashing bonds and recipients of checks issued. *U.S. v. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

292. ---- Negating exceptions, allegations, indictment or information

An indictment charging conspiracy to transfer rubber tires and tubes in violation of rationing regulations was not inadequate for failure to negative exceptions to regulations permitting transfers in certain circumstances by retailers. Rose v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1945, 149 F.2d 755. Indictment And Information ↪ 111(1)

An indictment charging a conspiracy to violate a statute need not negative an exception contained in such statute either by proviso or other distinct or substantive provision. Edwards v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Okla.) 1940, 113 F.2d 286, certiorari granted 61 S.Ct. 51, 311 U.S. 632, 85 L.Ed. 402, reversed 61 S.Ct. 669, 312 U.S. 473, 85 L.Ed. 957. See, also, Jelke v. U.S., C.C.A.III.1918, 255 F. 264; U.S. v. Stone, D.C.N.J.1905, 135 F. 392. Indictment And Information ↪ 111(1)

Count of indictment, charging conspiracy to sell securities and to use mails in connection therewith, was not demurrable on ground of failure to charge that the securities were not of the class exempted. Edwards v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Okla.) 1940, 113 F.2d 286, certiorari granted 61 S.Ct. 51, 311 U.S. 632, 85 L.Ed. 402, reversed on other grounds 61 S.Ct. 669, 312 U.S. 473, 85 L.Ed. 957. Indictment And Information ↪ 111(1)

Indictment charging a like offense sufficiently averred place of commission of overt acts, not bad for indefiniteness and not required to negative exceptions found in statute. U.S. v. D'Arcy, D.C.R.I.1916, 243 F. 739. Conspiracy ↪ 43(6)

Indictment charging the transfer of new commercial vehicles contrary to provisions of order of War Production Board, and a conspiracy, was not objectionable for failure to allege that vehicles were not secondhand or used ones, since meaning of word "new" was known to everyone and indictment was not required to allege a negative. U.S. v. Pyramid Auto Sales, E.D.N.Y.1943, 50 F.Supp. 868. War And National Emergency ↪ 315

293. Overt acts, indictment or information--Generally

At common law, it was not necessary to aver or prove an overt act in order to complete the offense of conspiracy but under former § 88 of this title [now this section] an overt act was essential. Fiswick v. U.S., U.S.N.J.1946, 67 S.Ct. 224, 329 U.S. 211, 91 L.Ed. 196. See, also, U.S. v. Olmstead, D.C.Wash.1925, 5 F.2d 712. Conspiracy ↪ 27

In prosecution for conspiring to mail obscene material, inclusion of overt acts in indictment was proper despite defendants' contention that acts contained prejudicial information. U. S. v. Gilman, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1982, 684 F.2d 616. Conspiracy ↪ 43(5)

Allegations of overt acts may be considered in judging sufficiency of conspiracy indictment. U. S. v. Watson, C.A.10 (Okla.) 1979, 594 F.2d 1330, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 78, 444 U.S. 840, 62 L.Ed.2d 51. Conspiracy ↪ 43(1)

A conspiracy indictment must allege an unlawful purpose and must go further and allege overt acts. U. S. v. Root, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1966, 366 F.2d 377, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 861, 386 U.S. 912, 17 L.Ed.2d 784. Conspiracy ↪ 43(4); Conspiracy ↪ 43(5)

Conspirator need not be charged with personal participation in one of the overt acts charged so long as evidence of his own conduct has proved his participation in conspiracy and some one of the overt acts charged has been performed by co-conspirator in behalf of all. U. S. v. Brown, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1964, 335 F.2d 170. Conspiracy ↪ 43(5)

The fact that certain overt acts referred to in indictment charging a conspiracy to commit an offense against the

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

United States were insufficiently alleged would not invalidate the indictment where the commission of other overt acts was sufficiently charged. Culp v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Ark.) 1942, 131 F.2d 93. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

An "overt act", the commission of which must be charged in an indictment charging a conspiracy to commit offense against the United States, need not be a wrong, but it must be a manifestation that the conspiracy is at work. U.S. v. Offutt, App.D.C.1942, 127 F.2d 336, 75 U.S.App.D.C. 344. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

Indictment for conspiracy must allege commission of overt act. Enrique Rivera v. U.S., C.C.A.1 (Puerto Rico) 1932, 57 F.2d 816. See, also, U.S. v. Noble, D.C.N.Y.1937, 18 F.Supp. 808. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

Averment of overt act is not ordinarily intended to be a statement of object of conspiracy. Baugh v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Idaho) 1928, 27 F.2d 257, certiorari denied 49 S.Ct. 34, 278 U.S. 639, 73 L.Ed. 554. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

Overt act alleged is sufficient to make indictment good, if done by one or more of alleged conspirators. U.S. v. Rotman, D.C.R.I.1928, 23 F.2d 860. See, also, Williams v. U.S., C.C.A.Tenn.1925, 3 F.2d 933. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

The overt act need not be in itself unlawful, and it is sufficient if it is alleged that it was done to effect the object of the conspiracy and in pursuance thereof. Rumely v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1923, 293 F. 532, certiorari denied 44 S.Ct. 38, 263 U.S. 713, 68 L.Ed. 520. See, also, Marron v. U.S., C.C.A.Cal.1925, 8 F.2d 251. Conspiracy ⚡ 27

Where an indictment for conspiracy contained two counts, the first charging a conspiracy in restraint of trade under Sherman Anti-Trust, § 1 et seq. of Title 15, and the other charging an offense under former § 88 of this title [now this section] the first count need not have alleged an overt act, but the second count must. U.S. v. Hency, N.D.Tex.1923, 286 F. 165. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5); Monopolies ⚡ 31(1.4)

The overt act charged in an indictment for conspiracy, under former § 88 of this title [now this section], may easily, if it does not necessarily, comprehend an attempt to commit the crime to which the conspiracy relates. Wiener v. U S, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1922, 282 F. 799.

The fact that an indictment for conspiracy alleges a number of overt acts, which may or may not have been crimes in themselves, has no bearing on the validity of the indictment. U.S. v. Vannatta, E.D.N.Y.1922, 278 F. 559. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

What is technically known as an overt act is peculiar to an indictment for conspiracy, and has no application to specific crimes. Proffitt v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1920, 264 F. 299. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

Such allegations may be regarded as meeting objections to the generality of the charge in the indictment, and as giving specifications of the completed acts done pursuant to the conspiracy. U.S. v. Downey, D.C.R.I.1919, 257 F. 364.

An indictment for conspiracy is sufficient if some of the overt acts are properly pleaded. De Lacey v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1918, 249 F. 625, 161 C.C.A. 535. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

An indictment for conspiracy must plainly set out the overt acts, or some of them, and if one was to do the overt act, and the other should aid him, the indictment necessarily and properly charges what each was to do. U.S. v. Rogers, N.D.N.Y.1915, 226 F. 512. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

The fact that the overt acts set forth in an indictment were innocent and commonplace, when unconnected with the conspiracy, does not invalidate the indictment where they were done pursuant to a conspiracy and to effect an unlawful purpose. U.S. v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co. of Canada, W.D.N.Y.1915, 225 F. 283.

Where an overt act alleged in an indictment for conspiracy must be qualified by circumstances to make it relevant to the particular conspiracy charged, it should be pleaded with the circumstances which make it relevant. Tillinghast v. Richards, D.C.R.I.1915, 225 F. 226. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

Fact that overt act charged was also criminal in nature did not make indictment which charged conspiracy and listed acts performed to effectuate conspiracy duplicitous. U. S. v. Azzarelli Const. Co., E.D.Ill.1978, 459 F.Supp. 146. Indictment And Information ↻ 125(42)

Where conspiracy count of an indictment alleged that all overt acts were committed in pursuance of one agreement, such count could not be dismissed on theory that it dealt with ten different objectives and did not allege a continuing conspiracy. U. S. v. Okin, D.C.N.J.1955, 154 F.Supp. 553. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

In averment of overt acts in indictment for conspiring to commit offense, in which conspiracy is gist of crime, it is not necessary to allege with technical precision all elements essential to commission of offense which is object of conspiracy. U. S. v. Silverman, D.C.Conn.1955, 129 F.Supp. 496. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

The overt acts may not ordinarily be considered in aid of averments of conspiracy in charging clauses of indictment, although they are sometimes resorted to in order to interpret doubtful terminology in charging clauses. U. S. ex rel. Semel v. Fitch, D.C.Conn.1946, 66 F.Supp. 206. See, also, Anderson v. U.S., C.C.A.Kan.1921, 273 F. 20, certiorari denied 42 S.Ct. 56, 257 U.S. 647, 66 L.Ed. 415. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

Conspiracy indictment against several defendants need not allege that any overt act was committed by one defendant. U S v. Stromberg, S.D.N.Y.1957, 22 F.R.D. 513. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

294. ---- Number, overt acts, indictment or information

Government need not set out with precision every overt act alleged to have been committed by defendants charged with conspiracy. U. S. v. Bolzer, C.A.9 (Mont.) 1977, 556 F.2d 948. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

The purpose of alleging in an indictment charging conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States that one or more overt acts were committed in execution of the conspiracy was to show that it was the kind of conspiracy denounced by former § 88 of this title [now this section] and such overt acts need not have been described in that part of indictment charging conspiracy. Culp v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Ark.) 1942, 131 F.2d 93. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

Indictment for conspiracy was not rendered bad merely because more overt acts were alleged than necessary. Capriola v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1932, 61 F.2d 5, certiorari denied 53 S.Ct. 315, 287 U.S. 671, 77 L.Ed. 579. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

Allegation of one overt act is sufficient. Onderdonk v. U. S., C.C.A.5 (Ala.) 1926, 16 F.2d 116. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

Only one overt act is necessary, and, where one is sufficiently charged in indictment, it is good against demurrer, regardless of deficiencies in other charges of overt acts. U.S. v. Baker, D.C.R.I.1917, 243 F. 741. Conspiracy ↻ 28(1); Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

In a prosecution for conspiracy, it is not necessary to charge all the overt acts done or necessary to be done to render the object of the conspiracy effective. U. S. v. Burkett, D.C.Kan.1907, 150 F. 208.

An indictment charging conspiracy to obstruct the mails is not restricted to the allegation of a single overt act in pursuance thereof, since the gist of the offense is the conspiracy. U.S. v. Debs, N.D.Ill.1895, 65 F. 210. Postal Service ¶ 48(7.5)

Government is not required to allege all overt acts committed in furtherance of a conspiracy. U. S. v. Cafaro, S.D.N.Y.1979, 480 F.Supp. 511. Conspiracy ¶ 43(5)

Conspiracy count may allege any combination to commit multiple offenses. U. S. v. Wilson, D.C.Md.1973, 356 F.Supp. 463. Indictment And Information ¶ 125(5.5)

Where earlier tried conspiracy and conspiracy which was subject of present indictment both involved the bribery of the same individual but related to different contracts and were separate and distinct conspiracies, there was no basis for dismissal of conspiracy indictment on ground of public policy to the effect that several offenses arising out of single transaction should be alleged and tried together and not be made the basis of multiple prosecutions. U. S. v. De Sapio, S.D.N.Y.1969, 299 F.Supp. 436. Conspiracy ¶ 37

Only one overt act whether lawful or unlawful committed in pursuance of a conspiracy is sufficient to charge defendants with commission of an unlawful act. U. S. v. Turner, E.D.Tenn.1967, 274 F.Supp. 412. Conspiracy ¶ 27

Where some overt acts alleged in indictment for conspiracy to defraud United States were properly and sufficiently charged, sufficiency of indictment was not affected by alleged insufficiency in allegation of other overt acts. U. S. v. Boisvert, D.C.R.I.1960, 187 F.Supp. 781. Conspiracy ¶ 43(10)

In prosecution for conspiracy to commit offense, the indictment is sufficient if one overt act is well pleaded; the indictment need not say how the overt act tended to further the conspiracy. U. S. v. Gilboy, M.D.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 442. Conspiracy ¶ 43(5)

To sustain a charge of conspiracy to commit a crime only one overt act need be alleged and proved, and the overt act need not in itself be criminal, and indictment need not set forth how alleged overt act in fact furthered conspiracy. U.S. v. Westbrook, W.D.Ark.1953, 114 F.Supp. 192. Conspiracy ¶ 43(5)

An indictment for conspiracy need not allege overt acts on part of each member of conspiracy. U.S. v. Liss, S.D.N.Y.1942, 43 F.Supp. 203. Conspiracy ¶ 43(5)

Where conspiracy count in indictment alleged all of the elements of the offense, and then alleged extremely vague parts and objects of conspiracy but also it alleged 63 overt acts, 21 of which were allegedly participated in by defendant, it could not be said that count was so vague that its dismissal was constitutionally required. U. S. v. Smith, N.D.Ga.1974, 65 F.R.D. 464. Indictment And Information ¶ 71.4(3)

295. ---- Formation of conspiracy, overt acts, indictment or information

Allegations in indictment of certain overt acts in furtherance of conspiracy to illegally use money of federally insured financial institutions, naming or at least intimating each of defendants to have official position with some of the financial institutions involved, could be looked to to cure failure of indictment to allege requisite capacity called for in sections 656, 657, 1005 and 1006 of this title and satisfied requirement that at least one of conspirators was connected in some capacity with financial institutions named in count. U. S. v. Kahn, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1967, 381 F.2d 824, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 591, 389 U.S. 1015, 19 L.Ed.2d 661, rehearing denied 88 S.Ct. 2272, 392 U.S. 948, 20 L.Ed.2d 1413, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 592, 389 U.S. 1015, 19 L.Ed.2d 661, rehearing denied 88 S.Ct. 2272, 392 U.S. 948, 20 L.Ed.2d 1414. Conspiracy ¶ 43(6)

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Where there was ample proof in record to show existence of agreement without necessity of relying upon any one of overt acts charged, certain conduct was not precluded from being charged as an overt act on ground that it amounted to agreement or consent that constituted conspiracy itself. Condrey v. U. S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1965, 351 F.2d 456. Conspiracy ↻ 27

It is necessary to allege and prove an overt act in prosecution for conspiracy, but the overt act does not constitute the offense. Hudspeth v. McDonald, C.C.A.10 (Kan.) 1941, 120 F.2d 962, certiorari denied 62 S.Ct. 110, 314 U.S. 617, 86 L.Ed. 496, rehearing denied 65 S.Ct. 1181, 325 U.S. 892, 89 L.Ed. 2004. Conspiracy ↻ 43(12)

Averments of conspiracy cannot be aided by allegations respecting overt acts. Luxenberg v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (W.Va.) 1930, 45 F.2d 497, certiorari denied 51 S.Ct. 345, 283 U.S. 820, 75 L.Ed. 1436. See, also, U.S. v. Robinson, D.C.Okl.1920, 266 F. 240; Anderson v. U.S., C.C.A.Ark.1919, 260 F. 557; Steers v. U.S., Ky.1911, 192 F. 1, 112 C.C.A. 423; Dwinnell v. U.S., Cal.1911, 186 F. 754, 108 C.C.A. 624; U.S. v. Black, Wis.1908, 160 F. 431, 435, 87 C.C.A. 383; U.S. v. Milner, C.C.Ala.1888, 36 F. 890; Tyner v. U.S., 1904, 23 App.D.C. 324; U.S. v. Britton, Mo.1883, 2 S.Ct. 531, 108 U.S. 199, 27 L.Ed. 698; U.S. ex rel. Clark v. Mathues, D.C.Pa.1927, 17 F.2d 187; Rulovitch v. U.S., C.C.A.N.J.1923, 286 F. 315, certiorari denied 43 S.Ct. 434, 261 U.S. 622, 67 L.Ed. 831; U.S. v. Dowling, D.C.Fla.1922, 278 F. 630; U.S. v. Vannatta, D.C.N.Y.1922, 278 F. 559; U.S. v. Beiner, D.C.Pa.1921, 275 F. 704; Manning v. U.S., C.C.A.Mo.1921, 275 F. 29; U.S. v. Amster, D.C.N.Y.1921, 273 F. 532. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

Conspiracy must be specially charged in indictment, and cannot be added to former acts done by one or more of conspirators in furtherance of conspiracy. U.S. v. Olmstead, D.C.Wash.1925, 5 F.2d 712.

Overt acts must be charged as in pursuance of a conspiracy previously completely and definitely set forth. U.S. v. Vannatta, E.D.N.Y.1922, 278 F. 559.

The plan of the conspiracy must be found in the clause of the indictment which sets it forth and it cannot be enlarged by the overt acts alleged. Tillinghast v. Richards, D.C.R.I.1915, 225 F. 226.

Overt acts set forth in a conspiracy indictment may be referred to in order to clarify charging paragraphs. U. S. v. Heinze, D.C.Del.1973, 361 F.Supp. 46. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

Conspiracy count charging as overt acts that defendants met and conferred at certain places on or about certain dates in pursuance of conspiracy and to effect the objects thereof, was not defective on ground that the overt acts alleged were not in reality overt acts, but merely acts leading to the formation of the conspiracy. US v. Coplon, S.D.N.Y.1949, 88 F.Supp. 912. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

Although sufficiency of conspiracy indictment cannot be established by overt acts alleged, such overt acts as are alleged may be used as explanatory of the conspiracy portion. U.S. v. Carter & Co., W.D.Ky.1944, 56 F.Supp. 311. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

296. ---- Tendency to accomplish object, overt acts, indictment or information

Indictment need not show that alleged overt act would effect object of conspiracy. U.S. v. Eisenminger, D.C.Del.1926, 16 F.2d 816. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

The indictment need not show a necessary or logical relation of the overt act to the conspiracy, it being sufficient if it charges that act was in furtherance of unlawful scheme. Marron v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1925, 8 F.2d 251.

While in an indictment for conspiracy, an averment of some overt act is required, it is sufficient if it is alleged that it was done to effect the object of the conspiracy and in pursuance thereof. Rumely v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1923,

293 F. 532, certiorari denied 44 S.Ct. 38, 263 U.S. 713, 68 L.Ed. 520. Conspiracy ⚡ 27

The act charged as an overt act must be alleged to have been done "to effect the object of the conspiracy," or words to that effect, and is not sufficient to allege that it was done "pursuant to said unlawful conspiracy." U.S. v. Dowling, S.D.Fla.1922, 278 F. 630. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

An indictment for conspiracy need not allege in what manner the overt acts tended to effect the purpose of the conspiracy, it being sufficient to allege that the overt acts were done to effect the object of the conspiracy. Howenstine v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1920, 263 F. 1. See, also, St. John v. U.S., C.C.A.III.1920, 268 F. 808; Haywood v. Sanche, C.C.Tenn.1881, 7 F. 715. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

"The offense to be committed must be described with sufficient particularity, but I do not understand that the overt act or acts charged must appear on their face to have been acts which necessarily would aid in the commission of the crime charged. Some act must have been done by one or more to effect the object of the conspiracy, but in and of itself it may have been an innocent act and one entirely disconnected from the crime itself. And it was not necessary to point out in this indictment why or how the doing of the overt act would or did, or was intended to aid in effecting, or carrying out, the object of the conspiracy. It is sufficient that the act done was done to aid in effecting the object of the conspiracy; was so intended, even if the doing of such act, instead of actually aiding to effect the object of the conspiracy, defeated the conspirators and actually operated to prevent the commission of the crime. And in charging a conspiracy to commit a crime against the United States and overt acts done to effect the object of such conspiracy it is not necessary to allege that the crime which the parties conspired to commit was actually committed, or that any act in and of itself evil was done in aid of effecting the object of such conspiracy." U.S. v. Wupperman, N.D.N.Y.1914, 215 F. 135.

In an indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States by bringing Chinamen into the country from Mexico in violation of the statute by means of a certain vessel, the provisioning of such vessel for the outward voyage and the sailing of such vessel from an American port to Mexico for the purpose of accomplishing the purpose of the conspiracy could have been averred as overt acts. Daly v. U S, C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1909, 170 F. 321, 95 C.C.A. 107.

An allegation that defendant entered into an agreement which was corrupt, and with a bad intent, does not sufficiently describe the act done to effect the object of the conspiracy, since it fails to show whether the agreement was written or oral, active or passive, and leaves uncertain the matter and persons concerned. U. S. v. Milner, C.C.N.D.Ala.1888, 36 F. 890. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate Smith Act, § 2385 of this title, relating to advocating overthrow of Government, defendants' motion to strike overt acts of one defendant in that he used false name during particular period for specified purpose, would be denied where reasonable inference could be drawn from inclusion in description of overt act that purpose of such act was part of general purpose to effect objects of alleged conspiracy. U. S. v. Silverman, D.C.Conn.1955, 129 F.Supp. 496. Indictment And Information ⚡ 137(1)

297. ---- Substantive offense, overt acts, indictment or information

The same overt acts charged in a conspiracy count may also be charged and proved as substantive offenses, since the agreement to do the act is distinct from the act itself. *U.S. v. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Substantive offense may be charged and punished as a distinct crime, even though conspiracy charge in same indictment also sets out facts involved in such substantive offense as an overt act of the conspiracy. Brown v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Ark.) 1948, 167 F.2d 772. Conspiracy ↻ 28(2)

A substantive crime when charged as an overt act of a conspiracy need not be a part of the conspiracy. Hall v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Okla.) 1940, 109 F.2d 976. Conspiracy ↻ 27

Commission of the offense which was the alleged purpose of the conspiracy may be charged as the overt act in an indictment for the conspiracy. Welter v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1925, 4 F.2d 342. See, also, Miller v. U.S., C.C.A.III.1925, 4 F.2d 228, certiorari denied 45 S.Ct. 511, 268 U.S. 692, 69 L.Ed. 1160; U.S. v. Rogers, D.C.N.Y.1915, 226 F. 512.

Overt acts, which in themselves are substantive offenses, are material allegations in an indictment charging conspiracy to commit such acts. Bell v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Utah) 1924, 2 F.2d 543.

Charges that accused committed overt acts constituting substantive offenses in violation of § 1138 et seq. of Title 12 could properly have been included in indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] charging conspiracy to violate § 1138 et seq. of Title 12 and relying upon same overt acts. U.S. v. Halbrook, E.D.Mo.1941, 36 F.Supp. 345. Indictment And Information ↻ 129(1)

298. ---- Acts of others, overt acts, indictment or information

An indictment setting forth various acts performed by several of the defendants in furtherance of the conspiracy is not defective as to a defendant as against whom it fails to aver the commission of any such act, the gist of the offense being the unlawful combination, although an overt act by one or more of the parties must be alleged and proved. Bannon v. U.S., U.S.Or.1895, 15 S.Ct. 467, 156 U.S. 464, 39 L.Ed. 494. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

Overt act necessary to activate conspiracy could be that of any conspirator, and indictment containing no allegation of overt act of one of alleged conspirators was not faulty as to such conspirator. McMurray v. U. S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1961, 298 F.2d 619, certiorari denied 82 S.Ct. 950, 369 U.S. 860, 8 L.Ed.2d 18. Conspiracy ↻ 27; Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

Count was sufficient though omitting defendant from list of those committing overt acts. Chew v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Ark.) 1925, 9 F.2d 348. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

Paragraph in indictment stating that it was further part of conspiracy that defendants would misrepresent, conceal, hide and cause to be misrepresented, concealed and hidden for purposes of any acts done in furtherance of the conspiracy was not so confusing and prejudicial to defendants that it had to be stricken. U. S. v. Amidzich, E.D.Wis.1975, 396 F.Supp. 1140. Indictment And Information ↻ 137(7)

Indictment alleging that, in violation of this section prohibiting conspiring to commit offense against United States, certain defendants on or about November 21, 1965 traveled from specified point in Delaware to specified point in Maryland and that on or about December 24, 1968, certain defendant traveled between specified points in Delaware sufficiently alleged specific overt acts which member or members of alleged conspiracy are claimed to have committed in furtherance of conspiracy, though some other alleged overt acts were not expressly identified as acts of any conspirator. *U. 299. Counts, indictment or information

A count which, coming after a conspiracy count, alleges a substantive violation against several defendants and also alleges a violation of section 2 of this title is not such a conspiracy allegation as to offend any rule against duplicitous charges. U. S. v. Nims, C.A.5 (La.) 1975, 524 F.2d 123, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 2646, 426 U.S. 934, 49 L.Ed.2d 385. Indictment And Information ↪ 125(3)

Indictment charging defendant with conspiring to counterfeit obligations of United States, counterfeiting such obligations and causing such counterfeit obligations to be sold was not multiplicitous or duplicitous, since each count charged separate offense for which different elements of proof were necessary to sustain conviction. U. S. v. Simone, C.A.8 (Mo.) 1974, 495 F.2d 752. Indictment And Information ↪ 125(6)

Three conspiracy count did not constitute an improper multiplication of counts where each count involved a separate transaction, although similar in nature, in which government agent was key figure, and over acts were different in each count and involved at least one different coconspirator. Stephens v. U. S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1965, 347 F.2d 722, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 324, 382 U.S. 932, 15 L.Ed.2d 343. Indictment And Information ↪ 130

Alleging in one count conspiracy to commit more than one offense, e.g., forging and uttering, is not duplicitous. Danielson v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1963, 321 F.2d 441. Indictment And Information ↪ 125(5.5)

The language of indictment charging in counts 1-8 that federal employee received 8 separate payments for services rendered in relation to two government contracts was sufficiently broad to permit government to prove that each payment was for a separate service, even when considered with conspiracy count charging four of the payments as overt acts, and counts 2-8 should not have been dismissed as duplicitous of count 1; even if § 281 of this title forbidding federal employee to receive compensation for services rendered in relation to government contract permitted only one punishment for the 8 separate payments, dismissal of counts 2-8 was still unwarranted. U. S. v. Ketchum, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1963, 320 F.2d 3, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 194, 375 U.S. 905, 11 L.Ed.2d 145. Indictment And Information ↪ 125(15); United States ↪ 52

Although proof showed only one conspiracy, two counts in indictment were permissible to meet the different interpretations which might be placed on the evidence by the jury. United States v. McKnight, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1958, 253 F.2d 817. Indictment And Information ↪ 128

In prosecution under this section and § 1010 of this title, making it unlawful knowingly to make or cause to be made false statements to obtain loan intending that it be offered to Federal Housing Administration for insurance, counts of indictment complained of were not objectionable as duplicitous. Ross v. U. S., C.A.6 (Ohio) 1950, 180 F.2d 160. Indictment And Information ↪ 125(1)

Count of indictment alleging conspiracy under both the "specific offenses" clause and the "defraud" clause of conspiracy statute was not duplicitous; the statute does not create two separate conspiracy offenses. U.S. v. Dale, D.D.C.1991, 782 F.Supp. 615. Indictment And Information ↪ 125(19.1)

Counts charging conspiracy to bribe a United States Senator in order to obtain a favorable disposition on pending legislation and alleging nine separate wire fraud violations were not multiplicitous so as to compel the government to elect between them, notwithstanding that evidence as to each overlapped, where crimes charged were distinct with necessary proof of a conspiracy to bribe and proof of a scheme to defraud being largely independent. U. S. v. Dorfman, N.D.Ill.1981, 532 F.Supp. 1118. Indictment And Information ↪ 132(3)

A count of an indictment is not duplicitous when it contains allegations of objects of conspiracy as well as the conspiracy itself. U. S. v. Wolfson, D.C.Del.1968, 294 F.Supp. 267. Indictment And Information ↪ 125(5.5)

Joinder of defendants was proper in prosecution for conspiracy to commit mail fraud and violation of Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act as a result of scheme to obtain, buy and sell police promotional and entrance examinations, although defendants contended Government should have tried general conspiracy count involving one defendant separately from subsidiary counts involving other defendants; acts that were central to subsidiary conspiracy also formed part of general conspiracy and were also charged as overt acts in furtherance of general conspiracy. *U.S. v. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Charges against one defendant for interstate transportation of stolen property and conspiracy involving transportation in interstate commerce, and receipt and disposition of stolen property, were sufficiently interrelated with charges against other defendants, which included conspiracy involving transportation in interstate commerce, and receipt and disposition of its own property and receipt of stolen property that had been transported interstate, to permit joinder of defendants, despite objection to charges and proof that codefendants were involved in other unlawful acts not involving defendant. U.S. v. Lawson, C.A.6 (Ohio) 1985, 780 F.2d 535. Indictment And Information ⚡ 124(5)

District court did not abuse its discretion in trying defendants charged with conspiracy and various other crimes jointly where, although there were over 200 exhibits admitted into evidence, trial was neither unusually lengthy nor complex and jury could compartmentalize evidence as to each of defendants and properly apply it to court's instructions. U.S. v. Pack, C.A.10 (Okla.) 1985, 773 F.2d 261. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(8)

Where bank fraud scheme, described by its organizer as continuing fraud, constituted single conspiracy, all transactions involved same fraudulent technique, transactions had common object of securing money from banking system before it could discover worthless checks, and there was evidence that cash from earlier frauds financed later transactions, defendants who were involved in same series of bank fraud transactions were properly joined in prosecution for mail fraud and conspiracy. *U. Even assuming, without supporting facts, that in indictment alleging conspiracy to distribute obscene films, appellant properly appeared in overt act charge with other defendants in respect to placing one telephone call among 20 other overt acts which pointed overwhelmingly to the existence of two unrelated conspiracies to distribute obscene films, connection was too tenuous to support the substantial identity of facts or participants necessary to justify joinder of defendants. U. S. v. Levine, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1977, 546 F.2d 658, rehearing denied 551 F.2d 687. Indictment And Information ⚡ 124(1)

Even if district court had dismissed conspiracy count, that would not have retroactively affected the validity of joinder based on that count, absent bad faith by the prosecutor; in any event, the district court in the instant case did not dismiss the conspiracy count and the record showed that there was ample evidence from which the jury could have found a conspiracy, meaning that the joinder of defendants was not error. U. S. v. Nims, C.A.5 (La.) 1975, 524 F.2d 123, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 2646, 426 U.S. 934, 49 L.Ed.2d 385. Indictment And Information ⚡ 124(1)

Joinder of two defendants, who were charged with receiving stolen property and with conspiracy to receive stolen property, with third defendant, who had allegedly made unrelated purchase, did not prejudice defendants, even though there was want of evidence regarding conspiracy, where evidence as to each defendant's guilt was unusually clear. U. S. v. Braico, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1970, 422 F.2d 543, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 1712, 398 U.S. 912, 26 L.Ed.2d 74, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 2171, 398 U.S. 958, 26 L.Ed.2d 543. Criminal Law ⚡ 1167(1)

The number of possible conspiracies and conspirators is not the sole criterion for propriety of joinder; such a nexus is different from an overall common purpose required for a finding of a single conspiracy; the nexus is at least concerned with identity of parties to the transaction, character of transaction, modus operandi, area of operations, lapse of time, etc. *U. Indictment charging conspiracy to defraud the United States and conspiracy to commit mail fraud was not duplicitous under Court of Appeals' decision in Gordon, holding that indictment that charges conspiracy to defraud the United States and a second conspiracy to cover up fraud is duplicitous; instant indictment did not charge separate coverup conspiracy but a mail fraud conspiracy, and although portion of mail fraud did turn on evidence showing cover-up conspiracy, a substantial part of evidence showed mail fraud as part of main conspiracy. *U.S. v. Indictment which charged, in addition to a conspiracy count, that defendants unlawfully used the mails with intent to carry on an unlawful business enterprise involving prostitution offenses, in violation of specified state statutes, was not insufficient by reason of the fact that it failed to set forth the elements of the offenses defined in the several state statutes; nor could the indictment be said to be duplicitous, since defendants were not charged with commission of the substantive offenses under state law and since the allegations as to state law only identified as unlawful the enterprise which the use of interstate facilities was designed to promote. U. S. v. Rizzo, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1969, 418 F.2d 71, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 1006, 397 U.S. 967, 25 L.Ed.2d 260. Indictment And Information ⚡ 125(3)

An indictment, charging conspiracy to defraud the United States by charging that defendant and another designed to obstruct justice both by corruptly administering the Frazier Lemke Act, §§ 201 to 203 of Title 11, and at the same time by procuring its corrupt administration, was not thereby rendered duplicitous, where no claim was made that defendant was prejudiced by such allegations. Joyce v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1946, 153 F.2d 364, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 1349, 328 U.S. 860, 90 L.Ed. 1631. Indictment And Information ↪ 125(5.5)

Where indictment for violation of former § 338 of this title, and § 77q of Title 15, and for conspiracy charged that defendants devised a scheme to defraud by sale of fractional parts of practically worthless oil leases, that after selling as many as possible of the lease units defendants would further "reload" the investors by selling them shares of stock of certain companies and that when defendants should find investors with more money than they could be induced to invest in the lease and stock, defendants would endeavor to borrow money from the investors on notes which defendants did not intend to pay, the indictment was not objectionable on ground that it was "duplicitous" in that each count charged three separate schemes to defraud. Simons v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1941, 119 F.2d 539, certiorari denied 62 S.Ct. 78, 314 U.S. 616, 86 L.Ed. 496. Indictment And Information ↪ 125(24)

An indictment charging conspiracy to defraud United States of and concerning its governmental function to be honestly and faithfully represented in courts of United States by an Assistant United States Attorney to prosecute delinquents for crimes, free from corruption, dishonesty, and improper influence, and alleging that one of defendants was an Assistant United States Attorney and that money was solicited and used to influence him in the exercise of his official functions, charged merely a conspiracy to defraud United States, and was not "duplicitous". U.S. v. Glasser, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1940, 116 F.2d 690, certiorari granted 61 S.Ct. 835, 313 U.S. 551, 85 L.Ed. 1515, modified on other grounds 62 S.Ct. 457, 315 U.S. 60, 86 L.Ed. 680, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 629, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 637, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222. Indictment charging congressman and individuals with conspiracy to commit offense against the United States and defrauding the United States through violation of former § 203 of this title, prohibiting members of Congress from receiving compensation in matters affecting the government, and charging in separate counts receipt by congressman of compensation for services in relation to matters before the War Department and that other defendants aided and abetted, was not invalid on ground that it was duplicitous on theory that conspiracy count was merged into substantive offenses charged in separate counts. May v. United States, C.A.D.C.1949, 175 F.2d 994, 84 U.S.App.D.C. 233, certiorari denied 70 S.Ct. 58, 338 U.S. 830, 94 L.Ed. 505, order withheld 70 S.Ct. 81, 338 U.S. 854, motion denied 70 S.Ct. 94, motion denied 70 S.Ct. 95, rehearing denied 70 S.Ct. 154, 338 U.S. 882, 94 L.Ed. 542, rehearing denied 70 S.Ct. 155, 338 U.S. 882, 94 L.Ed. 542, order withheld 70 S.Ct. 80. A count of an indictment is not duplicitous because it charges object of conspiracy to have been to commit more than one offense against United States; conspiracy being unit, however varied its effect. U.S. v. Olmstead, D.C.Wash.1925, 5 F.2d 712.

Two different conspiracies, one aimed solely at keeping the mine operating despite Clean Air Act violations and ending when mine shut down, and one aimed at avoidance of liability for defendants' actions, were not charged in same count of indictment, and therefore indictment was not duplicitous; rather, conspiracy count could be fairly read to charge a single offense, i.e., a conspiracy with the dual purposes of violating the Clean Air Act and defrauding the government in order to facilitate operation of the mine and avoid liability for the effects of asbestos-contaminated vermiculite on humans and the environment. U.S. v. W.R. Grace, D.Mont.2006, 429 F.Supp.2d 1207. Indictment And Information ↪ 125(5.5)

Count in indictment charging defendants with conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States, and to defraud the United States, was not duplicitous, where defendants' alleged course of conduct encompassed offenses under both prongs of statute proscribing conspiracy either to commit any offense against the United States or to defraud the United States, in that they allegedly fraudulently moved investor funds through interstate wire transfers for their own personal enrichment, and concealed existence and location of these funds from the United States to avoid assessment and collection of income taxes thereon. *U.S. v. Count which alleged that defendants conspired to defraud bankruptcy court in relation to particular bankruptcy cases, to defraud Department of the Treasury by defeating lawful functions of the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) in the collection of income taxes, and to commit specified offenses against the United States was not duplicitous, although it was argued that count charged two conspiracies, one to defraud bankruptcy court and Department of the Treasury and another to commit offenses against the United States. U.S. v. Levine, D.Colo.1990, 750 F.Supp. 1433, affirmed 968 F.2d 22, affirmed 970 F.2d 681, certiorari denied 113 S.Ct. 289, 506 U.S. 901, 121 L.Ed.2d 214. Indictment And Information ↪ 125(20)

Indictment which alleged conspiracy over four and one-half years between twelve defendants to commit multiple offenses against United States did not charge improper multiple conspiracies; evidence before grand jury showed probable cause to believe each defendant entered into alleged conspiracy to liquidate profit sharing and pension plans of certain defendants, to divert proceeds to law firm and accounting firm trust accounts, to convert those funds for personal use, including capitalization of new enterprise without disclosure to creditors, and to take affirmative measures to conceal the claimed fraud. U.S. v. Law Firm of Zimmerman & Schwartz, P.C., D.Colo.1990, 738 F.Supp. 407, reversed 943 F.2d 1246. Conspiracy ↪ 43(1)

Despite contention of defendant that first count of indictment charged one conspiracy to make false statements and destroy documents, another to obstruct congressional inquiries, and a third to obstruct other congressional inquiries, count charged but one single conspiracy to defeat congressional inquiries by various means, and thus, was permissible method of charging conspiracy. . Indictment And Information ⚡ 125(5.5)

The fact that a single count of an indictment charges a conspiracy to violate more than one statutory provision does not in and of itself make indictment duplicitous. U. S. v. Haim, S.D.N.Y.1963, 218 F.Supp. 922. Indictment And Information ⚡ 125(5.5)

Conspiracy count was not duplicitous but merely charged single conspiracy to defraud United States, where parts or objects of conspiracy charged all dealt with general subject of one defendant's connection with savings and loan associations named as co-conspirators, with indictment against defendant and others on charges arising from operation of the associations, and with services allegedly rendered by defendant congressman, in speech on floor of House of Representatives and in dealing with Department of Justice, in connection with related matters. U. S. v. Johnson, D.C.Md.1963, 215 F.Supp. 300. Indictment And Information ⚡ 125(5.5)

Indictment was not duplicitous because of joinder of conspiracy charge against all defendants with substantive counts naming only some of them. U. S. v. Nomura Trading Co., S.D.N.Y.1963, 213 F.Supp. 704. Indictment And Information ⚡ 125(5.5)

Conspiracy indictment was not duplicitous because scope of alleged conspiracy embraced violations of two different statutes. U. S. v. Nomura Trading Co., S.D.N.Y.1963, 213 F.Supp. 704. Indictment And Information ⚡ 125(3)

That indictment for conspiracy to defraud United States was similar to another pending indictment against same defendants for conspiracy to commit a different offense did not establish that there was but one conspiracy, and that conspiracy charged in instant indictment had been fragmented from whole conspiracy for purpose of prosecution to prejudice of defendants. U. S. v. Boisvert, D.C.R.I.1960, 187 F.Supp. 781. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(10)

A count charging the defendants with a conspiracy to violate the National Firearms Act, § 5801 et seq. of Title 26, and rules and regulations thereunder and the Federal Firearms Act, § 901 et seq. of Title 15, and rules and regulations thereunder and stating in eight paragraphs different parts of the conspiracy was not duplicitous. Indictment was not duplicitous for alleging that defendant conspired to commit an offense against the United States and to defraud the United States. U. S. v. Kemmel, M.D.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 718. Indictment And Information ⚡ 125(5.5)

Conspiracy is a crime regardless of the diversity of its objects, and fact that single count of indictment charged conspiracy to commit three separate offenses against the United States did not render count invalid as duplicitous. charged a conspiracy to commit three offenses, when each of such offenses was a felony. Schnautz v. U.S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1959, 263 F.2d 525, certiorari denied 79 S.Ct. 1294, 360 U.S. 910, 3 L.Ed.2d 1260. Indictment And Information ⚡ 125(5.5)

308. ---- Participants, duplicity, indictment or information

It was immaterial, for purpose of determining whether only a single conspiracy was charged in indictment, that one of the participants entered the scheme after it had started and that her connection with the scheme resulted in additional substantive crimes being committed. U. S. v. Bernstein, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1976, 533 F.2d 775, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 523, 429 U.S. 998, 50 L.Ed.2d 608. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

Joinder of a defendant in a conspiracy during its continuance relates back to the date of its formation, and an indictment is subject to the charge of neither uncertainty nor duplicity, as charging a new conspiracy, because it alleges the joinder therein at different times after the date when it is charged to have been formed. Norton v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Tex.) 1923, 295 F. 136. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(1); Indictment And Information ⚡ 125(5.5)

An indictment for conspiracy to commit a crime against the government, charging bank teller's abstraction, misapplication and embezzlement of its funds, and the other defendants with having abetted such acts, was not bad for duplicity, since under former § 550 of this title all were principals in the same crime. *U.S. v. Indictment for conspiracy and use of mails to defraud by sale of corporate securities was not duplicitous because it set out various means. Sunderland v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1927, 19 F.2d 202. Indictment And Information ⚡ 125(19.1)

An indictment for conspiracy is not duplicitous because it alleges different means of accomplishing purpose. U.S. v. B. Goedde & Co., E.D.Ill.1941, 40 F.Supp. 523. Indictment And Information ⚡ 125(19.1)

310. Severance of counts, indictment or information

Although trial on conspiracy-related charges was long, denial of defendant's motion for severance was not abuse of discretion, since jury was able to follow evidence and charge and reach fair verdict, each defendant was acquitted on one or more counts, and charging jury that it was to consider each offense and evidence pertaining to it separately as to each defendant was sufficient to cure any prejudice to defendant by counts relating to events occurring after his alleged "retirement," which evidence indicated may have been sham. U.S. v. Faulkner, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1994, 17 F.3d 745, rehearing and rehearing en banc denied 21 F.3d 1110, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 193, 513 U.S. 870, 130 L.Ed.2d 125, rehearing dismissed 115 S.Ct. 786, 513 U.S. 1105, 130 L.Ed.2d 679, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 663, 513 U.S. 1056, 130 L.Ed.2d 598. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(1)

Failure of trial court to grant motion for severance filed by defendant charged with bribery and conspiracy to bribe criminal investigators of Immigration and Naturalization Service after conspiracy count had been dismissed was prejudicial where, even though conspiracy charge was made in good faith, evidence concerning nefarious reputation of codefendants who were tried for both bribery and conspiracy to bribe, and tape recordings containing codefendants' inculpatory statements would probably not have been admitted at trial of defendant alone. U. S. v. Ong, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1976, 541 F.2d 331, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 814, 429 U.S. 1075, 50 L.Ed.2d 793, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 1559, 430 U.S. 934, 51 L.Ed.2d 780. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(4)

Irrespective of whether there was a single overall conspiracy, or two separate conspiracies each involving robbery of two different banks, and even if defendant's motion at close of Government's case for a severance of defendants and charges raised issue as to multiple conspiracies, denial of severance did not constitute an abuse of discretion or plain error, in view of fact that, if there were two conspiracies, defendant was a participant in each, and in view of commonality of the proofs involved, both as to offenses and as to defendants. U. S. v. Scott, C.A.8 (Iowa) 1975, 511 F.2d 15, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 2403, 421 U.S. 1002, 44 L.Ed.2d 670. Criminal Law ¶ 617; Criminal Law ¶ 622.7(4)

Where codefendants had been police officers but defendant had not, and where trial court was careful to charge, with respect to each witness who testified only against one former police officer, that the testimony was not admitted against defendant, and where defendant was not charged in count which charged obstruction of justice against the police officers, it was not error to deny defendant's motion which sought to have the count charging conspiracy to obstruct justice severed from the remainder of the conspiracy and substantive charges. U. S. v. Papadakis, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1975, 510 F.2d 287, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 1682, 421 U.S. 950, 44 L.Ed.2d 104. Criminal Law ¶ 620(6)

In prosecution involving stolen and forged securities, there was no error in failure to sever substantive and conspiracy counts in absence of motion therefor. U. S. v. Smith, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1971, 445 F.2d 861, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 212, 404 U.S. 883, 30 L.Ed.2d 165. Criminal Law ¶ 620(7)

Where single conspiracy to burglarize post offices was formed with one common aim and the two defendants knowingly became active participants in attaining objects of the scheme, trial court's refusal to sever different counts of indictment or the defendants was not prejudicial. Miller v. U. S., C.A.8 (Mo.) 1969, 410 F.2d 1290, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 81, 396 U.S. 830, 24 L.Ed.2d 80. Criminal Law ¶ 1166(6)

Since existence of multiple conspiracies is really a fact question as to the nature of the agreement, it is for jury to decide whether there is one agreement or several, and hence district judge should not under Rule 14, Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, this title, grant a severance or order an election by the government of which conspiracy it would prosecute, but when the possibility of a variance appears, should instruct the jury on multiple conspiracies as well. U. S. v. Varelli, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1969, 407 F.2d 735. Conspiracy ¶ 48.2(1); Criminal Law ¶ 622.6(4); Criminal Law ¶ 678(1)

A defendant charged with others of conspiring to violate the internal revenue laws relating to liquor was not entitled to severance of substantive counts in which he was not named as a defendant and which were not set forth as overt acts in conspiracy count since all defendants need not be charged in each count. U. S. v. Bryant, C.A.4 (S.C.) 1966, 364 F.2d 598. Criminal Law ¶ 622.7(4)

Where defendant and his codefendant were charged in first count with conspiracy involving a series of acts relating to embezzlement of public money, filing false claims, and making false statements in matters affecting the government, fact that count 5 charged defendant alone with substantive offense of making the same false statements did not entitle defendant to a severance of the substantive counts. U. S. v. Godel, C.A.4 (Va.) 1966, 361 F.2d 21, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 87, 385 U.S. 838, 17 L.Ed.2d 72. Criminal Law ¶ 622.7(4)

Where motion for severance was made and argued more than a month before trial on ground there was no relation between substantive counts and conspiracy counts, and indictment demonstrated that overt acts were also involved in substantive counts, severance was properly denied. *Semler v. Severance of mail fraud and obstruction of justice charges against one defendant was not required to protect rights of second defendant who was charged in same indictment with mail fraud in connection with separate operation and whose rights could be adequately safeguarded by limiting instructions to prevent jury confusion, evidentiary spillover, and cumulation of evidence despite number of counts and complexity of evidence. *U.S. v. In prosecution of three defendants for conspiracy and interstate transportation of a stolen security, defense severance motion was properly denied, despite the state incarceration of one of the defendants and defense counsel's claim that because of that fact the defendants were unable to confer inter se and with counsel, since government's evidence was to be substantially similar against all defendants and same counsel represented all the defendants and would conduct cross-examination of government witnesses, since incarceration of the one defendant could possibly extend for several years, and since a severance would have visited undue hardship and expense upon government. *U. Averments in counts charging sales of morphine and conspiracy which are inappropriate and inapplicable to facts established may be treated as surplusage. Roberts v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1938, 96 F.2d 39. Indictment And Information ¶ 119

In view of evident intent to allege conspiracy as gist of indictment, averments allegedly rendering indictment duplicitous were surplusage, if not properly descriptive of conspiracy or overt acts. U.S. v. McKieghan, D.C.Mich.1932, 58 F.2d 298. Indictment And Information ¶ 120

An indictment charging that defendants conspired to commit an offense against and to defraud the United States in violation of this section, and to unlawfully and willfully aid and counsel unknown persons to refuse to register under the former Selective Draft Act May 18, 1917 (temporary), did not charge two distinct offenses, no facts being alleged to show a conspiracy to defraud the United States, so that the allegation as to fraud was surplusage. Sugar v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Mich.) 1918, 252 F. 79, 164 C.C.A. 191, certiorari denied 39 S.Ct. 19, 248 U.S. 578, 63 L.Ed. 429. Indictment And Information ¶ 125(5.5)

Motion of defendant in prosecution for conspiracy to violate mail and wire fraud statutes and for scheme to defraud by use of the mails, to strike certain language from indictment as surplusage would be denied where included matter might be relevant to conspiracy charge and its inclusion was neither prejudicial nor inflammatory. U. S. v. Pilnick, S.D.N.Y.1967, 267 F.Supp. 791. Indictment And Information ¶ 137(1)

Where Count 1 part "A" sufficiently charged a conspiracy to defraud the United States, and part "B" was legally insufficient, part "B" could be regarded as surplusage and be withdrawn from consideration of the jury, and part "A" would not be dismissed. U. S. v. Apex Distributing Co., D.C.R.I.1957, 148 F.Supp. 365. Indictment And Information ¶ 119; Indictment And Information ¶ 144.2

Where indictment charges conspiracy to commit several offenses against the United States, one of which is not an offense, the latter may be regarded as surplusage and ignored, and such action does not constitute a forbidden amendment of indictment. U.S. v. Albanese, S.D.N.Y.1954, 123 F.Supp. 732, affirmed 224 F.2d 879, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 87, 350 U.S. 845, 100 L.Ed. 753. Indictment And Information ¶ 119

315. Bill of particulars, indictment or information--Generally

Where indictment charges a continuing conspiracy, the government should not ordinarily be limited in its evidence by a bill of particulars to specific overt acts. Braatelen v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1945, 147 F.2d 888. Indictment And Information ¶ 121.5

The effect of a "bill of particulars" is to limit the evidence to transactions set out in the bill of particulars, but the prosecution is not required to specify in the bill all the evidence it will produce in support of the charges against accused, and, where the issue is whether the accused is guilty of a general conspiracy, is is competent to prove distinct overt acts in any way connected with the conspiracy charged. U.S. v. Glasser, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1940, 116 F.2d 690, certiorari granted 61 S.Ct. 835, 313 U.S. 551, 85 L.Ed. 1515, modified on other grounds 62 S.Ct. 457, 315 U.S. 60, 86 L.Ed. 680, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 629, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 637, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222. Where the conspiracy alleged in the indictment is so extensive that the trial court may determine, in its discretion, that the defendants should have more adequate notice, the trial court has power to require the government to furnish the defendants with a bill of particulars of the evidence intended to be relied on. Hyde v. U.S., App.D.C.1906, 27 App.D.C. 362. Indictment And Information ↻ 121.1(7)

Defendants charged with conspiracy to defraud United States by impeding collection of income taxes were entitled to bills of particulars more extensively detailing charges against them. U. S. v. Turkish, S.D.N.Y.1978, 458 F.Supp. 874. Indictment And Information ↻ 121.2(3)

Defendant charged with conspiracy to commit mail fraud was entitled to bill of particulars disclosing time and place of alleged crime, means employed to perpetrate criminal deed, identities of co-conspirators, amounts of money co-conspirators received for their offense and time of such receipt. U. S. v. Burgio, S.D.N.Y.1968, 279 F.Supp. 843. Indictment And Information ↻ 121.2(9)

Defendant in prosecution for conspiracy to violate mail fraud and wire fraud statutes and for scheme to defraud by use of mails was entitled to have set forth in bill of particulars whether government intended upon trial to offer evidence of false and fraudulent pretenses, representations and promises not stated in indictment. U. S. v. Pilnick, S.D.N.Y.1967, 267 F.Supp. 791. Indictment And Information ↻ 121.2(9)

Where defendant was indicted for conspiracy and bribery of internal revenue agents and aiding and abetting receipt of bribes, government was required by bill of particulars to state approximate date and time of acts, amount of money given, offered or promised and sums coconspirators were authorized by law to receive and applicable section thereof. U. S. v. Cogan, S.D.N.Y.1967, 266 F.Supp. 374. Indictment And Information ↻ 121.2(1)

Where defendant in conspiracy prosecution claimed that missing co-defendant was a material witness, government was required to furnish defendant particulars with respect to what information it had as to present and last known address of missing co-defendant. U. S. v. Nomura Trading Co., S.D.N.Y.1963, 213 F.Supp. 704. Indictment And Information ↻ 121.2(3)

Defendant in conspiracy prosecution was entitled to bill of particulars concerning matters connecting him with offense but not to such an extent as would amount to a full exposure of government's evidence in advance of trial. U. S. v. Nomura Trading Co., S.D.N.Y.1963, 213 F.Supp. 704. Indictment And Information ↻ 121.2(3)

In prosecution for conspiracy and using mails to defraud, defendants were entitled to bill of particulars containing names of defendants who allegedly made false or fraudulent representations, names of persons to whom representations were made, the manner by which the representations were made and whether the newspapers containing the advertising were sent through the mails and the dates on which the advertisements were caused to appear in the newspapers. U. S. v. Garrison, E.D.Wis.1958, 168 F.Supp. 622. Indictment And Information ↻ 121.2(9)

Defendants who sought bill of particulars in prosecution for conspiring to advocate and teach duty of overthrowing federal government by force and to organize a group of persons who teach and advocate overthrowing of federal government by force were not entitled to government's evidence. U S v. Flynn, S.D.N.Y.1951, 103 F.Supp. 925. Indictment And Information ↻ 121.2(1)

Where mail fraud indictment charged defendants, officers of company engaged in extensive realty and mortgage business running into millions of dollars and covering thousands of transactions, with unlawful scheme to defraud others induced to buy stock of company by means of false balance sheets and fraudulent revaluation of assets of company, defendants were entitled to bill of particulars as to parcels of realty of company and its subsidiaries which were alleged to have been overvalued in revaluation of assets. U.S. v. Greve, E.D.N.Y.1934, 12 F.Supp. 372 . Indictment And Information ↻ 121.2(9)

Where mail fraud indictment charged defendants, officers of company engaged in extensive realty and mortgage business, with unlawful scheme to defraud others induced to buy stock of company, defendants were entitled to bill of particulars identifying false communications allegedly mailed and respect in which each was alleged to be fraudulent. U.S. v. Greve, E.D.N.Y.1934, 12 F.Supp. 372. Indictment And Information ⚡ 121.2(9)

To the extent the Government in prosecution for conspiring to defraud the United States by impeding Internal Revenue Service in its function of computing defendant's income taxes and submitting false income tax returns, relied on cash expenditures method of proof, Government was required to file bill of particulars approximating cash on hand or its equivalent at beginning of each tax year charged and itemizing expenditures during each reporting period, stating whether it was claimed each expenditure was deductible. U.S. v. DeGroot, W.D.N.Y.1988, 122 F.R.D. 131. Indictment And Information ⚡ 121.2(3); Indictment And Information ⚡ 121.2(6)

Defendants charged with conspiracy were not entitled to bills of particulars stating date and place each entered into conspiracy, names of all persons whom government contended entered into conspiracy, manner in which each participated in formation of conspiracy, source of bribes given to one defendant or dates, places and descriptions of payments or gifts not charged in indictment. U. S. v. Simon, S.D.N.Y.1962, 30 F.R.D. 53. Indictment And Information ⚡ 121.2(3)

In prosecution for violations of narcotics laws and for conspiracy to violate them, government would be compelled to answer, but only approximately, defendant's request for particulars as to date when defendant entered into conspiracy, situs of conspiracy, and date, time and place of two overt acts alleged. U. S. v. Lopez, S.D.N.Y.1960, 26 F.R.D. 174. Indictment And Information ⚡ 121.2(7); Indictment And Information ⚡ 121.4

In conspiracy prosecution, the government would be directed to furnish by bill of particulars, when and if the information was available to it, a more exact date for the commission of certain of the overt acts, where only a month and year were charged, and to furnish the name of the carrier by which the airplane flights charged in certain overt acts were made. U S v. Stromberg, S.D.N.Y.1957, 22 F.R.D. 513. Indictment And Information ⚡ 121.2(3)

In prosecution for conspiracy to file and for filing with the National Labor Relations Board false affidavits of nonCommunist union officer, bill of particulars furnished by government stating that names of persons with whom a defendant was appointed to maintain communications were undisclosed was not clear, and hence objectionable, since if government did not know the names of such persons, it should say so. U. S. v. Haug, N.D.Ohio 1957, 21 F.R.D. 22. Indictment And Information ⚡ 121.4

In prosecution for conspiracy to smuggle and clandestinely introduce diamonds into United States, government would not be required to state in bill of particulars whether it claimed that defendant had done any act concerning acquisition of diamonds by second codefendant and transfer by second codefendant to third codefendant or as to any acts pursuant to conspiracy except overt acts charged. U.S. v. Lieberman, S.D.N.Y.1953, 15 F.R.D. 278. Indictment And Information ⚡ 121.2(3)

316. ---- Notice to court and defendants, bill of particulars, indictment or information

Indictment which specified five separate means and methods used to carry out conspiracy and detailed 15 overt acts gave defendant fair notice of the charges against him and he was not entitled to a bill of particulars. U.S. v. Ayers, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1991, 924 F.2d 1468, rehearing denied. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(1); Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5); Indictment And Information ⚡ 121.2(3)

Indictment charging defendants with conspiracy to commit terrorist acts in exchange for payment from Libya was sufficient to inform defendants of nature of charges against them, and thus defendants were not prejudiced by trial court's refusal of request for bill of particulars; indictment listed dates and times of various telephone calls,

provided name of each coconspirator, enumerated specific threatened acts of violence underlying conspiracy, and specifically listed dates of travel to Libya and Panama to meet with Libyan officials. U.S. v. McAnderson, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1990, 914 F.2d 934, post-conviction relief denied 817 F.Supp. 723, affirmed 23 F.3d 410, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 372, 513 U.S. 953, 130 L.Ed.2d 323. Criminal Law ☞ 1167(1)

In conspiracy prosecution, bill of particulars was sufficient to apprise defendants that a proffer of evidence would be made concerning particular overt acts relating to the conspiracy charged, and evidence concerning the acts was properly admitted, especially where, in the order directing the United States to file a bill of particulars, the United States' right to offer additional evidence was reserved. U.S. v. Glasser, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1940, 116 F.2d 690, certiorari granted 61 S.Ct. 835, 313 U.S. 551, 85 L.Ed. 1515, modified on other grounds 62 S.Ct. 457, 315 U.S. 60, 86 L.Ed. 680, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 629, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 637, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222. Indictment And Information ☞ 121.4

Although indictment contained all elements necessary to prove violation for conspiracy to defraud the United States, it did not sufficiently inform defendant of offense charged so that he would not be misled while preparing his defense and did not show with accuracy extent to which defendant could plead former acquittal or conviction; therefore, bill of particulars was appropriate to inform defendant of precise charges and establish parameters of Government's case. U.S. v. Cole, E.D.Pa.1989, 717 F.Supp. 309. Indictment And Information ☞ 121.2(3)

317. ---- Refusal of bill of particulars, indictment or information

Where defendant was indicted for corruptly influencing juror and for conspiracy to obstruct justice and influence jurors and the indictment and numerous overt acts pleaded by the Government failed to give names of, or identify, the acquaintances through whom, it was alleged, the defendant sought to interfere with jurors, the defendant was entitled of a bill of particulars, and refusal of trial court to order Government to file bill of particulars constituted an abuse of discretion. Cefalu v. U.S., C.A.10 (Colo.) 1956, 234 F.2d 522. Indictment And Information ☞ 121.2(1)

That defendants cannot know in advance of trial, facts and circumstances relied on as proof of alleged conspiracy, does not show prejudice from denial of bill of particulars. Nye & Nissen v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1948, 168 F.2d 846, certiorari granted 69 S.Ct. 81, 335 U.S. 852, 93 L.Ed. 400, affirmed 69 S.Ct. 766, 336 U.S. 613, 93 L.Ed. 919. Criminal Law ☞ 1167(1)

In prosecution for violations of the Mail Fraud Act, former § 338 of this title, for violations of fraud provisions of the Securities Act of 1933, § 77q(a)(1) of Title 15, and for conspiracy to violate said sections, denial of part of defendants' requests for particulars was not error where there was ample time and opportunity for defendants to present their case in fullest possible measure and there was no showing of surprise occurring during the trial. U. S. v. Monjar, C.C.A.3 (Del.) 1944, 147 F.2d 916, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 1191, 325 U.S. 859, 89 L.Ed. 1979, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 1192, 325 U.S. 859, 89 L.Ed. 1979, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 1192, 325 U.S. 859, 89 L.Ed. 1980, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 1193, 325 U.S. 859, 89 L.Ed. 1980, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 1194, 325 U.S. 859, 89 L.Ed. 1981. Indictment And Information ☞ 121.2(9)

In prosecution for conspiring to defraud the United States by corruptly administering and procuring the corrupt administration of the Frazier-Lemke Act, §§ 201 to 203 of Title 11, where a defendant, who had been conciliation commissioner during period covered by indictment filed motion for bill of particulars demanding that wrongful acts committed by him should be specified with names of persons and places, refusal to require specification, in advance, of the particular cases relied upon by government, was not prejudicial. Braatelen v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1945, 147 F.2d 888. Criminal Law ☞ 1167(1)

In prosecution for using mails to defraud and for conspiracy, defendants were not entitled to know in advance, by obtaining bill of particulars, what conclusions would be drawn from their books. U.S. v. Dilliard, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.)

In prosecution of officers of mortgage participation company for using mails to defraud and for conspiracy, denial of bill of particulars, sought to compel showing of details concerning misrepresentations allegedly made and other details, was not prejudicial error where the prosecution developed its case for 24 days, during which defendants had ample opportunity to examine the papers. U.S. v. Dilliard, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1938, 101 F.2d 829, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 484, 306 U.S. 635, 83 L.Ed. 1036. Criminal Law ↪ 1167(1)

Defendants, charged with conspiracy, were not entitled to bill of particulars naming all persons with whom conspiracy was alleged to have been entered into. U.S. v. Hosier, D.C.La.1931, 50 F.2d 971. Indictment And Information ↪ 121(2)

Denying bill of particulars was not error, where indictment charged conspiracy to import and sell, transport, deliver, and possess liquors. Hoagland v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1928, 28 F.2d 871. Indictment And Information ↪ 121.2(7)

Bill of particulars, setting forth every act connecting each defendant with conspiracy to possess and transport intoxicating liquor, cannot be required. Rubio v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1927, 22 F.2d 766, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 213, 276 U.S. 619, 72 L.Ed. 734. Indictment And Information ↪ 121.2(7)

Refusal, in prosecution for conspiracy to violate National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, to require bill of particulars setting up numerous details, was not abuse of discretion. Olmstead v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1927, 19 F.2d 842, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 117, 275 U.S. 557, 72 L.Ed. 424, 72 L.Ed. 729, rehearing granted 48 S.Ct. 207, 276 U.S. 609, 72 L.Ed. 729, affirmed 48 S.Ct. 564, 277 U.S. 438, 72 L.Ed. 944. Indictment And Information ↪ 121.2(7)

An indictment charging conspiracy to interfere with the prosecution by the United States of war with Germany was sufficiently definite, and accused not entitled to bill of particulars setting forth names of persons solicited and to whom pamphlets containing alleged false statements regarding military operations of United States were delivered. U.S. v. Pierce, N.D.N.Y.1917, 245 F. 888. Indictment And Information ↪ 121(2)

Mine operator and employees indicted in connection with alleged release of asbestos-contaminated vermiculite were not entitled to bill of particulars seeking additional information regarding overt acts allegedly committed in furtherance of conspiracy to violate Clean Air Act (CAA); defendants' participation in agreement, not subsequent acts in furtherance, were relevant to issue whether they were members of conspiracy. U.S. v. Grace, D.Mont.2005, 401 F.Supp.2d 1103. Indictment And Information ↪ 121.2(3)

Defendants would not be granted detailed bill of particulars with reference to indictment for conspiracy to defraud United States, arising from alleged scheme to take income tax deductions for legal services that were not provided; upon consideration of allegations of deficiencies in indictment, discovery and grand jury materials provided by Government, and nature of extensive filings by defendants and Government, District Court concluded that defendants were sufficiently informed of details of charges against them, were not significantly impaired in preparing defense, and were not likely to face prejudicial surprise at trial. U.S. v. Danella, E.D.Pa.1996, 931 F.Supp. 374. Indictment And Information ↪ 121.2(3)

Defendants who were charged with, inter alia, a conspiracy were entitled to be informed, via bill of particulars, as to approximate address of place of meeting and approximate date of meeting but were not entitled to be informed of exact time or exact date thereof. U. S. v. Tanner, N.D.Ill.1967, 279 F.Supp. 457. Indictment And Information ↪ 121.2(3)

Since indictment charged defendants with reasonable particularity and definiteness both as to crime charged and overt acts allegedly committed, defendants were not entitled to bill of particulars. U. S. v. Patterson, E.D.La.1964, 235 F.Supp. 233. Indictment And Information ↪ 121.1(2)

Defendant was not entitled to know by bill of particulars the particular day on which he was alleged to have entered conspiracy, as such was minutia not necessary to preparation of case, but matter the disclosure of which might seriously hamper or foreclose prosecutor in proof. U. S. v. Bozza, E.D.N.Y.1964, 234 F.Supp. 15. Indictment And Information ↪ 121.2(3)

Defendant was not entitled to learn with respect to bill of particulars as to conspiracy counts whether it was charged that he ever had in his possession alleged stolen money orders or had forged them where such were details evidentiary in character and unnecessary in preparation of defendant's case. U. S. v. Bozza, E.D.N.Y.1964, 234 F.Supp. 15. Indictment And Information ↪ 121.2(3)

Defendant charged with conspiracy and with substantive offenses, some of which were clearly of continuous nature, involving theft of money orders, their transportation, forging, and publishing of orders was not entitled by bill of particulars to learn when offenses so charged were claimed to have been committed, whether in morning, afternoon or night of days charged, absent any showing that information was necessary to prepare for trial or to prevent surprise. U. S. v. Bozza, E.D.N.Y.1964, 234 F.Supp. 15. Indictment And Information ↪ 121.2(1)

Bill of particulars in conspiracy prosecution will not be ordered to extent that it would be tantamount to a preview of government's case in advance of trial. U. S. v. Nomura Trading Co., S.D.N.Y.1963, 213 F.Supp. 704. Indictment And Information ↪ 121.2(3)

In prosecution for conspiring to advocate and teach duty of overthrowing federal government by force and to organize a group of persons who teach and advocate overthrowing of federal government by force, indictment was sufficiently specific for defendants' trial preparation and protection and defendants were not entitled to bill of particulars. U S v. Flynn, S.D.N.Y.1951, 103 F.Supp. 925. Indictment And Information ↪ 121.2(1)

In prosecution for violating 50 App. § 1152 by transferring trucks manufactured after July 31, 1941, contrary to provisions of War Production Board order, and for conspiracy, the government was not required to furnish bill of particulars showing precise date of manufacture of the trucks allegedly sold. U.S. v. Pyramid Auto Sales, E.D.N.Y.1943, 50 F.Supp. 868. Indictment And Information ↪ 121.2(1)

The government may not be required to furnish defendants in a conspiracy case the names of witnesses or the evidence on which it will rely in the trial of the case. U.S. v. General Petroleum Corp. of Cal., S.D.Cal.1940, 33 F.Supp. 95. Indictment And Information ↪ 121.2(3)

Indictment for conspiracy was sufficiently specific without a bill of particulars as to the overt acts, time and place of their commission, and time and place of commencement of conspiracy. U S v. Farrington, M.D.Pa.1935, 11 F.Supp. 214. Indictment And Information ↪ 121.2(3)

Where items which government refused to furnish in response to defendant's request for particulars amounted to evidence rather than facts needed to prepare for trial, avoid surprise or enable defendant to plead double jeopardy, in prosecution for conspiracy to possess certain drugs and with aiding and abetting sale of stimulant or depressant drugs, defendant was not entitled to the items refused. U. S. v. Cummings, S.D.N.Y.1969, 49 F.R.D. 160. Indictment And Information ↪ 121.2(3)

Indictment charging conspiracy was not insufficient and bill of particulars was not warranted on ground that specific dates and certain locations had been omitted and names of individuals had been excluded, where charges were pleaded in detail and were adequate to give defendants notice of allegations against them and to enable them to plead an acquittal or conviction thereto in bar of any future prosecution for same offense. U. S. v. Maletteri, E.D.Pa.1964, 35 F.R.D. 225. Indictment And Information ↻ 121.2(3)

In conspiracy prosecution, a defendant was not entitled to bill of particulars disclosing (1) the names of persons who testified before grand jury as to overt act in which such defendant was mentioned, (2) list of subpoenas issued to her by grand jury, (3) the dates she attended, (4) number of grand jurors present when she attended, (5) certified statement as to legal formation of grand jury and names and addresses and occupations of members of grand jury voting her indictment, (6) the dates on which original and superseding indictments were filed, and (7) a statement as to whether United States Attorney knew that grand jury was illegally formed. Indictment which alleged, in the language of this section, elements of the offense of conspiracy with which defendants were charged was sufficient and was not required to be made more definite. U. S. v. Buschman, E.D.Wis.1975, 386 F.Supp. 822, affirmed 527 F.2d 1082. Indictment And Information ↪ 110(10)

Where prosecution was directed in prosecution for fraud in sale of securities in violation of Securities Act, section 77a et seq. of Title 15, and for using mails to defraud, and for conspiracy to violate those laws to make all records of several corporations named in indictment available to defendants pursuant to their motions for discovery and inspection, and great mass of material was deposited by prosecution with clerk, government would be required to designate all portions of record that would form a basis for expert testimony to be used on the trial. U. S. v. Sanders, W.D.La.1967, 266 F.Supp. 615. Criminal Law ↪ 627.8(1)

Where indictment charged violation of conspiracy statute and alleged particular overt acts within jurisdiction of court, defendant, if he required further detail to prepare for trial, could request bill of particulars. Defendants' motions for bill of particulars filed in prosecution for conspiracy to obtain defense information, conspiracy to induce United States citizen to act as foreign agent and for other stated offenses would be denied to the extent that they requested minutiae of evidence but would be granted to the extent that they sought identity of such United States citizen. U. S. v. Melekh, N.D.Ill.1961, 193 F.Supp. 586. Indictment And Information ↪ 121.2(3)

In prosecution for conspiracy to defraud United States, defendants' motion for bill of particulars would be denied where defendants in effect were asking complete discovery of government's entire case and grand jury's indictment was unusually complete and specific and contained extensive and intensive account of modus operandi and spelled out 39 overt acts and defendants were sufficiently informed as to nature of charge to prepare their defense and to avoid surprise at trial and could later plead double jeopardy. U. S. v. Gilboy, M.D.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 442. Indictment And Information ↪ 121.2(3)

Where defendants were twice indicted for conspiracy, the second indictment being for essentially the same matter as first indictment with some additional wording, and parties stipulated that all motions, objections and rulings thereon, and facts, figures, arguments and orders in the previous case should be considered applicable to case under the second indictment, motions for bill of particulars and to dismiss the indictment in the second case would be overruled for reasons stated with respect to similar motions in the former case. U.S. v. Frankfeld, D.C.Md.1952, 103 F.Supp. 48. Stipulations ↪ 14(11)

Where it appeared that motions for bills of particulars sought to discover in advance of trial the government's evidence and to limit the government in its proof of indictments for conspiracy to organize Communist Party and for membership in such party and it appeared that the indictments were sufficiently specific to enable the defendants to adequately prepare for and proceed to trial, motions for bills of particulars would be denied. Where indictment for conspiracy to to commit an offense against the United States was not bad on ground that it alleged a conspiracy under former § 80 of this title which did not cover conspiracy, where upon demurrer the reference to such section was explained as merely a typographical error and that the conspiracy charged was made an offense by former § 88 of this title [now this section]. Smith v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Okla.) 1944, 145 F.2d 643, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 563, 323 U.S. 803, 89 L.Ed. 641. Indictment And Information ⚡ 79

Where indictment for conspiracy to violate certain laws set forth with care the nature of the conspiracy, the period of time covered by it, the participants therein, the statutes to be violated and twenty-eight overt acts in furtherance of the conspiracy, the indictment was not demurrable on ground that it was "duplicitous" or too indefinite to acquaint defendant with the precise charges against him. Stewart v. U. S., C.C.A.5 (Ala.) 1942, 131 F.2d 624, certiorari denied 63 S.Ct. 854, 318 U.S. 779, 87 L.Ed. 1147. Indictment And Information ⚡ 71.4(3); Indictment And Information ⚡ 125(5.5)

Where there were overt acts charged in indictment for conspiracy to violate the internal revenue laws relating to operation of stills and liquor taxes which supported the charge, indictment was sufficient on demurrer notwithstanding that it was subject to criticism for its length and for charging as overt acts certain acts of officers and of third persons or mere sayings of a conspirator after arrest. Reece v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Ga.) 1942, 131 F.2d 186, certiorari denied 63 S.Ct. 529, 318 U.S. 759, 87 L.Ed. 1132. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

An indictment charging lawyer and registrant with conspiracy to violate 50 App. former § 301 et seq., by causing registrant to fail to report for induction, was not demurrable for failure to allege overt acts connected with object to illegal agreement, where failure of registrant to report was charged as an overt act. U.S. v. Offutt, App.D.C.1942, 127 F.2d 336, 75 U.S.App.D.C. 344. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

An indictment charging lawyer and registrant with conspiracy to violate 50 App. former § 301 et seq., by causing registrant to neglect willfully to report for induction and willfully to evade service and requirement of said sections, was not demurrable on ground that a conspiracy to cause one of two persons to neglect a duty is a legal impossibility because of necessity of an overt act. U.S. v. Offutt, App.D.C.1942, 127 F.2d 336, 75 U.S.App.D.C. 344. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

An indictment charging lawyer and registrant with conspiracy to violate 50 App. former § 301 et seq., alleging that registrant had been registered, classified, designated, and notified to fill call on April 19, 1941, that knowing all that conspiracy was entered into on April 14, object of which was to fail to report on April 19, and that overt acts were done on April 14 to 19, inclusive, was not demurrable for failure to state that designation and notification were in effect on April 14 or from April 14 to 19. U.S. v. Offutt, App.D.C.1942, 127 F.2d 336, 75 U.S.App.D.C. 344. Conspiracy ↻ 43(6)

Even if District Court erred in striking portions of indictment relating to certain of overt acts on defendants' demurrer to the indictment as a whole, the whole indictment did not thereby become void. Johnson v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Ga.) 1941, 124 F.2d 101. Indictment And Information ↻ 153

Indictment for conspiracy is sufficient on demurrer if it apprises defendant of what he must be prepared to meet and secures him against second jeopardy. U.S. v. Harding, App.D.C.1936, 81 F.2d 563, 65 App.D.C. 161. See, also, U.S. v. Direct Sales Co., D.C.S.C.1941, 40 F.Supp. 917. Indictment And Information ↻ 71.4(3)

Demurrer to plea in bar of indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] was overruled. U.S. v. Pardue, S.D.Tex.1923, 294 F. 543.

When indictment charged a conspiracy by all defendants to defraud the United States through the unlawful issuance of permits to purchase liquor, to be accomplished through several groups, who were to carry out parts of the conspiracy, and that each defendant knew of the general conspiracy, the question whether the evidence would show such knowledge, or would show that the so-called general conspiracy was in fact the doing of things having similar unlawful purposes in view by separate groups was of no concern on demurrer, but raised trial questions. U S v. McConnell, E.D.Pa.1923, 285 F. 164. Conspiracy ↻ 43(10)

"The charging portion of the indictment must define all the necessary elements of the conspiracy, and also all the necessary elements of the acts which are alleged to constitute either an offense under the laws of the United States or a fraud upon the United States. But the defendant cannot, by misinterpreting or assuming according to his own ideas the crime of fraud charged, present successfully a demurrer upon the theory that the indictment fails to set forth all the elements which he thinks are necessary to support the charge which he has in mind." U.S. v. Amster, E.D.N.Y.1921, 273 F. 532.

Where an indictment for conspiracy sets out the plan of the conspirators, an averment that the overt acts alleged were for executing such conspiracy does not preclude the court from determining on demurrer whether or not they tend to effect its purpose. U.S. v. Ault, W.D.Wash.1920, 263 F. 800. Indictment And Information ↻ 150

Though one overt act is sufficient to support a conviction for conspiracy to defraud revenue laws with relation to sale of colored oleomargarine, an indictment alleging several overt acts is not demurrable as containing surplusage. U.S. v. Orr, D.C.R.I.1916, 233 F. 717. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5); Conspiracy ↻ 43(10)

Where an indictment charged a conspiracy by a postmaster and others, the object of which was that the postmaster should make false returns to the First Assistant Postmaster General for the purpose of fraudulently increasing his salary by failing to report, in the gross receipts required to be made monthly, large and irregular sales of postage stamps for use outside the district served by such post office, the fact that no such report of gross receipts as was described in the indictment was required of the postmaster did not render the indictment demurrable, since its allegations on demurrer would be taken as true. U.S. v. Foster, D.C.Mass.1913, 211 F. 206, reversed 34 S.Ct. 666, 233 U.S. 515, 58 L.Ed. 1074.

A demurrer to an indictment for conspiracy did not challenge the sufficiency of the indictment, so far as it charged a conspiracy as distinguished from allegations of overt acts. Hedderly v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Or.) 1912, 193 F. 561, 114 C.C.A. 227. Indictment And Information ↻ 148

The objection that it is within the exclusive jurisdiction of the land department to determine questions of fact involved in the trial of an indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States by an illegal entry of public lands cannot be raised by demurrer, where the indictment does not show that any proceeding relating to such entry is pending in the department. U.S. v. Peuschel, S.D.Cal.1902, 116 F. 642. Indictment And Information ↻ 147

A motion challenging adequacy of indictment to charge a conspiracy was the equivalent of a demurrer, and in ruling on the motion allegations of the indictment had to be accepted as written and movant could not find support in what facts it might believe that the trial would disclose. U. S. v. American Oil Co., D.C.N.J.1968, 286 F.Supp. 742. Indictment And Information ↻ 146; Indictment And Information ↻ 150

An indictment charging conspiracy under former § 88 of this title [now this section] to unlawfully buy and sell gasoline ration coupons issued by Office of Price Administration sufficiently identified offense which defendants were charged with having conspired to commit, and was not subject to demurrer on ground that it was too vague and indefinite to be effectual protection to defendants against being put in jeopardy for same offense again at a subsequent time. U S v. Kendzierski, E.D.N.Y.1944, 54 F.Supp. 164. Indictment And Information ↻ 71.4(3)

Indictment charging conspiracy to violate Fair Labor Standards Act, § 201 et seq. of Title 29, by paying employees wages at less than one and one-half times their regular rates of pay for all hours worked in excess of applicable maximum statutory hours was demurrable where indictment did not sufficiently allege that such employees were within said sections. U.S. v. Berke Cake Co., E.D.N.Y.1943, 50 F.Supp. 947. Conspiracy ↻ 43(6); Labor And Employment ↻ 2534

Where a statute creating evil or wrong has no lawful existence, it cannot be said that an "evil" is committed within rule that either means or end of conspiracy must be evil, and hence attack on indictment is "direct", but attack is "collateral" so as not to be available on demurrer, where evil alleged is frustrating or impeding a government function performed under law which is attacked. U.S. v. Rhoads, D.C.D.C.1942, 48 F.Supp. 175. Indictment And Information ↻ 147

In prosecution for conspiracy to defraud United States by delaying and withholding tools from defense use, constitutionality of Acts of Congress requiring the reporting and making available of war materials, and of delegation of powers by Congress, were "collateral" to issues raised and hence not available upon demurrer to indictment. U.S. v. Rhoads, D.C.D.C.1942, 48 F.Supp. 175. Constitutional Law ↻ 46(2)

Where first three pages of indictment set forth conspiracy in general terms, allegations in 11 additional pages as to details of conspiracy could not be rejected as "surplusage", and indictment was required to be tested, on demurrer, by sufficiency of such allegations. U.S. v. Regan, N.D.Ill.1940, 39 F.Supp. 309. Indictment And Information ↻ 119

322. Dismissal of indictment or information

If charges are never brought against other alleged coconspirators, if charges are dismissed against all other coconspirators, or if coconspirator has not yet been tried, dismissal of charges against remaining coconspirator is not required. U.S. v. Sachs, C.A.6 (Mich.) 1986, 801 F.2d 839, 231 U.S.P.Q. 197. Conspiracy ↻ 24(4.1)

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

False testimony before grand jury that vehicle identification number had been discovered in December of 1983 on frame of car seized in Chicago when, in fact, number was not discovered until approximately six months later did not warrant dismissal of indictment charging defendants with conspiring to transport stolen property in interstate commerce and knowingly concealing and transporting such property in interstate commerce, because defendants failed to show that statements rose to level of perjury or that grand jury heard no evidence competent to sustain indictment. U.S. v. Johnson, C.A.8 (Mo.) 1985, 767 F.2d 1259. Indictment And Information ⚡ 10.2(2)

Dismissal was required when essential element of offense was omitted from indictment for conspiracy to defraud government, which rendered indictment constitutionally defective, particularly when error was compounded by grand jury instructions that also omitted element. U.S. v. Cote, D.Or.1996, 929 F.Supp. 364. Indictment And Information ⚡ 144.1(1)

Orders denying defendants' motions to dismiss indictments charging them with conspiracy to defraud the government were not final, appealable orders. U.S. v. Kailing, C.A.9 (Hawai'i) 2004, 102 Fed.Appx. 615, 2004 WL 1435152, Unreported. Criminal Law ⚡ 1023(3)

323. Amendments, indictment or information

Failure to require Government to prove money laundering did not amount to constructive amendment of indictment charging defendant with conspiracy to defraud Internal Revenue Service; neither evidence nor jury instructions modified essential element of offense that transactions were fabricated for purpose of being reported and were reported on specified tax returns. U.S. v. Attanasio, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1989, 870 F.2d 809. Indictment And Information ⚡ 159(1)

Striking of overt act alleging a meeting with one drug supplier did not constitute an impermissible amendment of the indictment since such action did not charge defendant with a new and different crime. U. S. v. Sir Kue Chin, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1976, 534 F.2d 1032. Indictment And Information ⚡ 159(2)

The addition of names of two persons as coconspirators in two counts of indictment in which the persons had not been named by the grand jury did not so change the basic theory of the alleged conspiratorial agreement as to constitute an amendment to the indictment. U. S. v. Gross, C.A.3 (N.J.) 1975, 511 F.2d 910, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 266, 423 U.S. 924, 46 L.Ed.2d 249. Indictment And Information ⚡ 159(1)

Amendment of indictment charging defendants with conspiracy to defraud government and Securities and Exchange Commission and with substantive offenses under securities laws by striking allegations of stockholder and creditor fraud narrowed rather than broadened reach of conspiracy count and was permissible without resubmission to grand jury. U. S. v. Colasurdo, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1971, 453 F.2d 585, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 1766, 406 U.S. 917, 32 L.Ed.2d 116.

Government did not constructively amend indictment charging antique firearms dealer and co-defendant with conspiracy to commit wire and postal fraud by introducing evidence relating to co-defendant's agency relationship with collector, where indictment stated that co-defendant was collector's agent, and agency relationship was relevant to collector's reliance on co-defendant's assurances that prices he was paying for handguns were reasonable and that letters from dealer and third party were legitimate and valid. 351. Advocating overthrow of Government, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

In prosecution for conspiracy to advocate the overthrow of the United States government by force, and to advocate insubordination in the armed forces, count was not rendered defective by use of word "would" instead of "to" to state the purposes of the conspiracy. Dunne v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Minn.) 1943, 138 F.2d 137, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 205, 320 U.S. 790, 88 L.Ed. 476, rehearing denied 64 S.Ct. 260, 320 U.S. 814, 88 L.Ed. 492, rehearing denied 64 S.Ct. 426, 320 U.S. 815, 88 L.Ed. 493.

In prosecution for conspiring to advocate and teach duty of overthrowing federal government by force and to organize a group of persons who teach and advocate overthrowing of federal government by force, indictment was sufficient to state an offense under Smith Act, § 2385 of this title. U S v. Flynn, S.D.N.Y.1951, 103 F.Supp. 925.

A charge of conspiring to commit acts prohibited by the Smith Act, § 2385 of this title, by knowingly advocating and teaching the duty and necessity of overthrowing Government of United States by force and violence and by knowingly helping to organize society which teaches and advocates overthrow and destruction of United States Government by force and violence would be covered by this section, which requires, as essential element of offense, that overt act be done to effect object of conspiracy. U. S. v. Schneiderman, S.D.Cal.1951, 102 F.Supp. 87

In indictment charging defendants with unlawfully conspiring to commit offenses against United States by unlawfully doing acts prohibited by Smith Act, § 2385 of this title, the adverb "unlawfully" was but conclusion of pleader that what was done was in violation of law. U. S. v. Schneiderman, S.D.Cal.1951, 102 F.Supp. 87.

Where at time of alleged conspiracy to organize Communist Party and at time indictments were returned allegation of overt acts was unnecessary, subsequent change of law in respect to such matter could not be availed of by defendants. U.S. v. Foster, S.D.N.Y.1948, 80 F.Supp. 479.

352. Agricultural offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Government agent and jury were sufficiently apprised of nature of charges in conspiracy counts of indictment which specified nature of charged fraud on United States, and that object was in one case to allow growth of excess rice and in other two cases to transfer rice acreage allotments unlawfully from one county to another, all in violation of agent's duty to see that transfers and allocations were made only in compliance with laws and regulations. Stephens v. U. S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1965, 347 F.2d 722, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 324, 382 U.S. 932, 15 L.Ed.2d 343.

Indictment charging that defendants conspired to defraud the United States by selling it pigs as property of producers thereof when pigs belonged to one defendant who was not a producer stated an offense irrespective of validity of Agricultural Adjustment Act, § 601 et seq. of Title 7. U.S. v. MacDonald, W.D.Mo.1935, 10 F.Supp. 948.

Indictments charging conspiracy to defraud the United States by falsely pretending to comply with regulations of Secretary of Agriculture and by thereby selling hogs to government contrary to purposes of Agricultural Adjustment Act, § 601 et seq. of Title 7, charged a conspiracy to "defraud the United States," within former § 88 of this title [now this section], making such act a criminal offense. U.S. v. Soeder, W.D.Mo.1935, 10 F.Supp. 944.

353. Alien enemies and enemy property, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment against Alien Property Custodian for conspiring to allow illegal claims stated crime. Miller v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1928, 24 F.2d 353, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 421, 276 U.S. 638, 72 L.Ed. 421.

Where plaintiffs in error were convicted under an indictment which charged them with having conspired to defraud the United States by obstructing and preventing the United States from seizing and administering a certain indebtedness of the defendant Rumely to the imperial German government, and it was alleged as part of the conspiracy that the defendants should conceal the fact of such indebtedness to the German government, and should make false and misleading reports to the Alien Property Custodian of the United States, and so obstruct and prevent the transfer and payment of that indebtedness to such custodian, the indictment was sufficient. Rumely v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1923, 293 F. 532, certiorari denied 44 S.Ct. 38, 263 U.S. 713, 68 L.Ed. 520.

An indictment for conspiring to aid enemy aliens to escape from custody, into which they had been taken under the President's order for their arrest and confinement, which alleged several overt acts, was not defective because it did not set forth, verbatim or in substance, letters alleged as overt acts. De Lacey v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1918, 249 F. 625, 161 C.C.A. 535.

354. Assault, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment for conspiracy to assault or interfere with employees of Bureau of Animal Industry of Agricultural Department in execution of duties need not allege that regulations of Secretary of Agriculture for suppression and extirpation of disease among live stock have been certified to and accepted by executive authority of state, nor need it allege that cattle being dipped by employees were subject-matter of interstate commerce, it being sufficient to describe generally that employees were performing their duties under statute. Thornton v. U.S., U.S.Ga.1926, 46 S.Ct. 585, 271 U.S. 414, 70 L.Ed. 1013.

355. Bail offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment for conspiracy to procure fraudulent bail bonds, by procuring surety having property of much less value than liability on bond, charged "conspiracy to defraud United States." Henry v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1926, 15 F.2d 624, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 575, 274 U.S. 737, 71 L.Ed. 1316.

356. Banking offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment sufficiently alleged conspiracy among bank customers to violate Bank Secrecy Act resulting in failure of bank to file currency transaction reports for customers' purchase of money orders totaling more than $10,000 on one day; indictment alleged that bank officer participated in scheme such that bank had knowledge of purchase and had duty to file currency transaction reports in connection with purchases. U.S. v. Farm & Home Sav. Ass'n, C.A.8 (Mo.) 1991, 932 F.2d 1256, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 179, 502 U.S. 860, 116 L.Ed.2d 141.

Charge that bank president did knowingly conspire to defraud the Government by impairing collection of data on currency transaction reports, to violate federal statutes prescribing fraudulent entries in bank records, and to violate federal statutes requiring filing of currency transaction reports was sufficient to enable bank president to defend and avoid double jeopardy. U.S. v. Penagaricano-Soler, C.A.1 (Puerto Rico) 1990, 911 F.2d 833.

Indictment contained sufficient facts to establish that customer conspired with financial institution to avoid currency transaction reporting requirement, and to defraud the government, where customer was aware of reporting requirement and participated in conduct that encouraged and rewarded financial institution for unlawful conduct. U.S. v. Cure, C.A.11 (Fla.) 1986, 804 F.2d 625.

Read as a whole, indictment's first count, charging defendants with conspiracy to steal money from two banks, supported defendants' felony convictions; although the first paragraph did not include an allegation of value, second paragraph stated that it was part of a conspiracy to attempt to transfer $5 million from one bank, and third paragraph stated that the conspiracy encompassed another attempted transfer in which defendants tried "to transfer a substantial amount of [second bank's] funds by wire to accounts at other banks owned and controlled by defendants." U.S. v. Gironda, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1985, 758 F.2d 1201, certiorari denied 106 S.Ct. 523, 474 U.S. 1004, 88 L.Ed.2d 456.

Count charging senior vice-president of bank's investment division with making false entries in bank records with intent to defraud by causing bank to enter into fictitious foreign exchange contracts showing a nonexisting profit would not be dismissed on ground that the vice-president had not personally participated in foreign exchange transactions since under the evidence the jury could find that the vice-president joined a conspiracy to falsify bank's first-quarter financial statement and could reasonably anticipate that his partners in crime might commit other criminal acts, including use of fictitious foreign exchange transactions. U.S. v. Gleason, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1979, 616 F.2d 2, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 1037, 444 U.S. 1082, 62 L.Ed.2d 767, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 1320, 445 U.S. 931, 63 L.Ed.2d 764.

Indictment alleging conspiracy to commit bank robbery, challenged on ground that it failed to allege an overt act subsequent to the alleged formation of the conspiracy, was sufficient to support conviction under this section. U. S. v. Hodges, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1977, 556 F.2d 366, certiorari denied 98 S.Ct. 735, 434 U.S. 1016, 54 L.Ed.2d 762.

Counts of indictment charging conspiracy to violate section 1005 of this title and alleging that bank loan officer, who was an unindicted coconspirator, willfully and knowingly and without authority issued letters of credit and that defendants counseled or induced officer's offenses failed to allege a federal offense, in absence of allegation of an intent to injure or defraud. U. S. v. Pollack, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1974, 503 F.2d 87.

A count of an indictment, charging conspiracy to embezzle funds of a national bank and to make and cause to be made false entries in bank's records with intent to injure bank and to deceive its officers who were appointed to examine its affairs and records, was not demurrable for failure to aver that overt acts charged were done without knowledge and consent of bank's directors. Wilson v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Ky.) 1940, 109 F.2d 895.

An indictment charging the president of a national bank with conspiring with others to commit an offense against the United States by making false entry in books of the bank with intent to deceive any agent who might thereafter be appointed by the Comptroller of the Currency to examine the affairs of the bank did not state an offense under former § 88 of this title [now this section] where the overt act charged to have been committed by defendant consisted in his concealing from the bookkeeper who actually made the alleged false entries, but who was not charged with being a party to the conspiracy, the issuance of certain drafts, which should have been credited to the account of said reserve bank. U.S. v. McClarty, W.D.Ky.1911, 191 F. 518.

Where a count in an indictment against a bank's officers and alleged aiders and abettors charged conspiracy to violate § 592 of Title 12, prohibiting willful misapplication of funds of a national bank, and that to effect the object of the conspiracy defendant K., one of the parties thereto, drew and accepted a draft, set out, presented it to the bank, and obtained credit for the amount thereof for the drawer of the draft in which company K. was interested, the indictment sufficiently charged that an act was done by one of the parties to the alleged conspiracy to effect the object thereof and sufficiently specified such act to withstand a demurrer. Prettyman v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1910, 180 F. 30, 103 C.C.A. 384.

Since, under § 592 of Title 12, making it an offense to misapply the funds of a national bank, that offense can only be committed by an officer or agent of the bank, under a count of an indictment for conspiracy to misapply funds of the national bank, it is sufficient to show an agreement to commit that offense made between either the cashier or the vice president of the bank and the defendants for whose benefit the money is alleged to have been withdrawn. Prettyman v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1910, 180 F. 30, 103 C.C.A. 384.

An indictment alleging a conspiracy to defraud the United States in the exercise of its governmental and fiscal functions, by deliberately giving false information regarding the financial condition of a national bank, the fraud resulting in lessening the power of the federal government by failure to maintain in efficient condition one portion of the national fiscal system, stated an offense against the United States, it being possible to have a conspiracy to defraud by merely deceiving a governmental officer, though neither the government nor the officer was deprived thereby of money or money value. U.S. v. Morse, C.C.S.D.N.Y.1908, 161 F. 429.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section], against two defendants, charging them with a conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States by making certain false entries in the books of a national bank of which one of the defendants was an officer, in violation of § 592 of Title 12, was not bad because, in stating the details of the overt act committed by defendants, it was averred that the entries which were made in the books of the bank were made by the hand of the defendant who was not an officer thereof, it being averred that both defendants were present, and participated in the carrying out of the plan formed between them to make such entries. Scott v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1904, 130 F. 429, 64 C.C.A. 631.

Allegations in indictment, that bank employees had conspired with bank to structure deposits so as to avoid federal deposit reporting requirements, was sufficient to state charges against employees for conspiring with bank to defraud the United States and for concealing material facts from the IRS. U.S. v. Kraselnick, D.N.J.1988, 702 F.Supp. 480.

Indictment charging that defendants engaged in scheme to "launder" money by making numerous bank deposits in sums less than $10,000 in order to avoid triggering requirements under Bank Secrecy Act [31 U.S.C.A. § 5311 et seq.] that bank file currency transaction reports with the Internal Revenue Service was sufficient to allege crime of conspiracy to defraud United States in violation of 18 U.S.C.A. § 371. U.S. v. Richter, N.D.Ill.1985, 610 F.Supp. 480, affirmed 785 F.2d 312, affirmed 793 F.2d 1296, certiorari denied 107 S.Ct. 191, 479 U.S. 855, 93 L.Ed.2d 124.

Indictment was sufficient to charge crimes of conspiracy to commit an offense against United States and for unlawful entry into federally insured bank with intent to commit larceny. Scott v. U. S., E.D.Ky.1961, 199 F.Supp. 680, affirmed 304 F.2d 706, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 82, 371 U.S. 847, 9 L.Ed.2d 82.

Indictment, which charged defendant with conspiring to rob military banking facility established by national bank was sufficient to state a cause of action. U. S. v. Papworth, N.D.Tex.1957, 156 F.Supp. 842, affirmed 256 F.2d 125, certiorari denied 79 S.Ct. 85, 358 U.S. 854, 3 L.Ed.2d 88, rehearing denied 79 S.Ct. 239, 358 U.S. 914, 3 L.Ed.2d 235.

Where conspiracy indictment charged defendants willfully and unlawfully agreed that two of defendants should draw checks on accounts at a national bank knowing accounts did not have sufficient funds to pay checks, and that other defendant who was cashier in bank should willfully misapply bank's funds by paying and honoring checks, indictment did not allege sufficient facts to set forth either an illegal purpose or an agreement to use illegal means to accomplish a legal purpose, and indictment was fatally defective. U.S. v. Cawthon, M.D.Ga.1954, 125 F.Supp. 419.

Indictment charging conspiracy to embezzle, abstract, purloin and willfully misapply moneys, funds and credits of bank, and alleging that defendants in furtherance of said conspiracy had made false entries in bank reports and statements, that certain conversations had been had concerning reimbursement of bank for money shortage, that one defendant had refused to send bank statements regularly to depositors, and that one defendant had given person check for $1,400, sufficiently alleged overt acts in furtherance of conspiracy. U.S. v. Westbrook, W.D.Ark.1953, 114 F.Supp. 192.

An indictment charging that named individual "was an employee, to wit, Supervisor" of certain trust, "of a certain national banking association," and that he misapplied funds of bank in violation of § 592 of Title 12, and that three other individuals did abet him in violation of former § 550 of this title and that all conspired to misapply bank funds in violation of former § 88 of this title [now this section], was not defective on ground that it failed to allege that the individual named as "Supervisor" was an officer, director, agent, or employee of a federal reserve bank, within meaning of § 592 of Title 12. U.S. v. Jacobson, D.C.N.J.1940, 34 F.Supp. 214.

An indictment charging that named individual was supervisor of certain trust of a certain national banking association and misapplied bank's funds, and that three other individuals did abet him, and that all conspired to misapply bank funds, was not defective on ground that it appeared that money allegedly misapplied was not the money of the bank, but of the trust, in view of § 248(k) of Title 12, providing that national banks shall segregate all assets held in any fiduciary capacity from the general assets of the bank and that sums deposited or held in trust shall be carried in a separate account. U.S. v. Jacobson, D.C.N.J.1940, 34 F.Supp. 214.

357. Bankruptcy offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment was sufficient to charge conspiracy to commit offenses against Bankruptcy Act, § 1 et seq. of Title 11, but insufficient to show conspiracy to violate § 1341 of this title. U.S. v. Goodman, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1960, 285 F.2d 378, certiorari denied 81 S.Ct. 1651, 366 U.S. 930, 6 L.Ed.2d 389.

Presence of surplusage did not justify dismissal of count which was otherwise sufficient to charge conspiracy to commit offenses against Bankruptcy Act, § 1 et seq. of Title 11. U.S. v. Goodman, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1960, 285 F.2d 378, certiorari denied 81 S.Ct. 1651, 366 U.S. 930, 6 L.Ed.2d 389.

An indictment charging conspiracy to transfer bankrupt's property illegally was not defective because indictment made no reference to concealment since the actual intent of Congress is best served by prohibiting either transfer or concealment, for either one may defeat the purpose of title 11. U.S. v. Switzer, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1958, 252 F.2d 139, certiorari denied 78 S.Ct. 1363, 357 U.S. 922, 2 L.Ed.2d 1366, rehearing denied 79 S.Ct. 16, 358 U.S. 859, 3 L.Ed.2d 93.

Indictment charging that defendants unlawfully conspired to defraud the United States by corruptly administering and procuring the corrupt administration of the Frazier-Lemke Act, §§ 201 to 203 of Title 11, summarizing the provisions of said sections, stating the part which defendants had in administering it, and describing the wrongful acts of the conspirators was not objectionable as too general, vague and confusing. Braatlien v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1945, 147 F.2d 888.

The overt acts alleged in an indictment charging a conspiracy to violate Bankruptcy Act, former § 52 of Title 11, need not have been unlawful in themselves. U.S. v. Goodman, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1942, 129 F.2d 1009.

In prosecution for conspiracy to conceal assets of bankrupt corporation from its receiver, count of indictment following language of former § 88 of this title [now this section] and containing sufficient statements of overt acts to effect object of conspiracy was sufficient. Miller v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Mich.) 1942, 125 F.2d 517, certiorari denied 62 S.Ct. 1276, 316 U.S. 687, 86 L.Ed. 1759.

Indictment charging conspiracy against government by fraudulently concealing assets from trustee in bankruptcy was sufficient. Gerson v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Okla.) 1928, 25 F.2d 49.

In indictment for conspiracy that bankrupt corporation withhold property from trustee, allegation that corporation had been adjudged bankrupt and trustee appointed was not essential. Bartkus v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1927, 21 F.2d 425. See, also, Steigman v. U.S., N.J.1915, 220 F. 63, 135 C.C.A. 631. Conspiracy ↪ 43(6)

Indictment for conspiracy to conceal property of bankrupt's estate from trustee sufficiently described conspiracy. Carter v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1927, 19 F.2d 431.

Allegation that defendant sold stock at reduced prices and converted proceeds was sufficient allegation of overt act in indictment for conspiracy to conceal assets. Kolbrenner v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Tex.) 1926, 11 F.2d 754, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 489, 271 U.S. 677, 70 L.Ed. 1146.

An indictment charging a conspiracy to conceal assets from a trustee in bankruptcy need not allege an adjudication in bankruptcy. Jollit v. U. S., C.C.A.5 (Ala.) 1922, 285 F. 209, certiorari denied 43 S.Ct. 519, 261 U.S. 624, 67 L.Ed. 832.

An indictment alleging that on or about the 1st day of September, 1920, and continuously during the period from that date to January 3, 1921, the defendants conspired to conceal assets from a trustee in bankruptcy, and alleging overt acts as committed prior to the last-named date, is not objectionable as alleging overt acts which antedated the formation of the conspiracy. Jollit v. U. S., C.C.A.5 (Ala.) 1922, 285 F. 209, certiorari denied 43 S.Ct. 519, 261 U.S. 624, 67 L.Ed. 832.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for conspiracy to conceal assets from a trustee in bankruptcy, need not have alleged that there were other assets of the bankrupts in addition to those delivered to the trustee, or that the conspiracy was continued after adjudication in bankruptcy, which would have been necessary only on the untenable theory that the conspiracy must have been successful. Jollit v. U. S., C.C.A.5 (Ala.) 1922,

285 F. 209, certiorari denied 43 S.Ct. 519, 261 U.S. 624, 67 L.Ed. 832.

Where the defendants were convicted of having conspired to conceal assets from their trustee in bankruptcy in violation of the Bankruptcy Act, former § 52 of Title 11, and the indictment alleged that in pursuance of such conspiracy the defendants had turned over to a third person a certain check belonging to them, a contention that the indictment did not show that the overt act was done to effect the object of the conspiracy was overruled. Meyer v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1919, 258 F. 212, 169 C.C.A. 280.

Indictment for conspiracy to conceal assets from trustee in bankruptcy was not subject to motion to quash. Malvin v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1918, 252 F. 449, 164 C.C.A. 373, certiorari denied 39 S.Ct. 8, 248 U.S. 564, 63 L.Ed. 423

Indictment alleging conspiracy in anticipation of involuntary bankruptcy to conceal from trustee to be appointed merchandise belonging to estate, which alleged concealment after appointment of trustee occurring during period of conspiracy, was not bad for failure to aver overt act within such period, but it was defective in averments of overt acts of concealment which it was not alleged were committed by defendants. U.S. v. Baker, D.C.R.I.1917, 243 F. 741.

In an indictment for conspiracy to conceal property of a bankrupt from the trustee in bankruptcy an allegation that certain property "was thereafter concealed" from the trustee, is ineffective as an averment of an overt act, if it be not alleged that such concealment was by the defendants. U.S. v. Baker, D.C.R.I.1917, 243 F. 741.

An indictment charging conspiracy in anticipation of involuntary bankruptcy, to conceal assets, was sufficient against various objections. U.S. v. Baker, D.C.R.I.1917, 243 F. 741.

An indictment was sufficient to charge conspiracy to receive property of the bankrupt after bankruptcy, contrary to former § 52 of Title 11. Knoell v. U S, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1917, 239 F. 16, 152 C.C.A. 66, error dismissed 38 S.Ct. 316, 246 U.S. 648, 62 L.Ed. 920.

An indictment charging that defendants, expecting an involuntary petition in bankruptcy against one of them and appointment of a receiver, conspired to conceal property of the expected bankrupt, and setting forth overt acts done, is sufficient, though not alleging that owner was a bankrupt at the time of conspiracy. Friedman v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1916, 236 F. 816, 150 C.C.A. 653.

An indictment charging a conspiracy to conceal, contrary to former § 88 of this title [now this section], property belonging to a copartnership which subsequently filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, was sufficient. Frankfurt v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Tex.) 1916, 231 F. 903, 146 C.C.A. 99, certiorari denied 37 S.Ct. 111, 242 U.S. 639, 61 L.Ed. 540.

An indictment for conspiring to conceal bankrupt's property, in violation of Bankruptcy Act, former § 52 of Title 11, was not defective for failure to use the words "knowingly and fraudulently," in view of former § 556 of this title. Tapack v. US, C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1915, 220 F. 445, 137 C.C.A. 39, certiorari denied 35 S.Ct. 664, 238 U.S. 627, 59 L.Ed. 1495.

A conspiracy by bankrupts to conceal their property from their trustee formed within 30 days of the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, and followed by actual concealment of the property, was an offense which continued to the date of the refusal to turn over the property to the trustee on his election, and an indictment for conspiracy under former § 88 of this title [now this section] properly charged the commission of the offense as of such date. U S v. Stern, E.D.Pa.1911, 186 F. 854, affirmed 193 F. 888, 114 C.C.A. 102.

In such an indictment an averment that a person named was "duly" appointed trustee is sufficient, the matter of appointment being an incidental matter only, and not a vital element of the crime. Kerrch v. U.S., C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1909, 171 F. 366, 96 C.C.A. 258, certiorari denied 30 S.Ct. 402, 215 U.S. 602, 54 L.Ed. 344.

An indictment against a bankrupt and others, charging a conspiracy to conceal property, did not charge an offense under former § 88 of this title [now this section] where it showed that the conspiracy was formed and executed prior to the bankruptcy, and did not aver that it was in contemplation of bankruptcy, or that any overt act was committed after the bankruptcy, although it charged a further conspiracy thereafter to continue the concealment. U.S. v. Grodson, N.D.Ill.1908, 164 F. 157.

An indictment for conspiracy to purchase goods and go into bankruptcy, and to conceal the goods, in violation of former § 52 of Title 11 was not insufficient because the conspiracy was formed and the goods were to have been concealed prior to the bankruptcy, where it also averred that it was the intention to continue the concealment thereafter. Alkon v. U.S., C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1908, 163 F. 810, 90 C.C.A. 116.

An indictment for conspiracy that a corporation as a bankrupt should fraudulently conceal property from its trustee in violation of former § 52 of Title 11, was not insufficient because it charged that the property was removed and concealed prior to the bankruptcy, where it also averred that, with the consent and connivance of defendants, the concealment was continued after the bankruptcy and the appointment of a trustee, and the property was not scheduled by the bankrupt. Cohen v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1907, 157 F. 651, 85 C.C.A. 113, certiorari denied 28 S.Ct. 261, 207 U.S. 596, 52 L.Ed. 357.

Conspiracy count of indictment charging that defendants conspired to conceal assets from trustee in bankruptcy was required to be dismissed, where there was no allegation of overt act within limitation period. U. S. v. Stein, E.D.Pa.1966, 249 F.Supp. 873.

Object of agreement must be specifically set forth in indictment charging conspiracy to violate Bankruptcy Act, § 1 et seq. of Title 11. U. S. v. Mathies, W.D.Pa.1962, 203 F.Supp. 797.

An indictment charging a conspiracy to commit an offense against the Bankruptcy Act, former § 52 of Title 11, was not to have been brought under that section but under former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U.S. v. Fraidin, D.C.Md.1945, 63 F.Supp. 271.

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate the Bankruptcy Act, § 1 et seq. of Title 11, indictment alleging that defendants conspired to receive goods from insolvent person without alleging that conspiracy had for its object receipt of goods from insolvent person, as a bankrupt, after filing of proceeding under said sections, did not charge an offense. U.S. v. Cohen, D.C.Mass.1944, 58 F.Supp. 16.

An indictment charging defendant with conspiracy in bankruptcy and with concealment of assets would not be quashed on ground that defendant had never been declared a bankrupt in any bankruptcy proceeding and that no trustee had been appointed for him or on ground that indictment failed to state a crime. U S v. Agresti, E.D.N.Y.1941, 39 F.Supp. 16, affirmed 130 F.2d 152.

An indictment charging a conspiracy to have a bankrupt account for his property by falsely pretending that he had given a valid mortgage thereon to secure a consideration a part of which he should falsely pretend to have been stolen, set out an offense under former § 88 of this title as a conspiracy to attempt to account for property by fictitious losses. U.S. v. Swett, D.C.Me.1879, 28 F.Cas. 3, No. 16427. Bankruptcy ☞ 3862

358. Bribery, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

An indictment charging a conspiracy to defraud the United States, and averring a scheme of resorting to bribery as a way of consummating the conspiracy is not defective as charging a conspiracy to commit the substantive offense of bribery requiring concerted action. Glasser v. U.S., U.S.Ill.1942, 62 S.Ct. 457, 315 U.S. 60, 86 L.Ed. 680, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 629, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 637, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(10)

Indictment charging defendants with conspiring with others to defraud United States by agreeing to receive bribes from named persons and others as to purchase by government agency of foodstuffs and other merchandise was not indefinite for failure to specify "other" conspirators, vendors and merchandise and, even if indefinite, it was not prejudicial where government did not attempt to prove transactions with vendors other than those named, or sale of merchandise other than foodstuffs, and failed to call any other vendors as witnesses. Harlow v. U. S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1962, 301 F.2d 361, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 25, 371 U.S. 814, 9 L.Ed.2d 56, rehearing denied 83 S.Ct. 204, 371 U.S. 906, 9 L.Ed.2d 167. Criminal Law ⚡ 1167(1); Indictment And Information ⚡ 71.4(3)

Indictment charging that appeal agent of local draft board and a third party conspired to ask an inductee for money with intent to influence appeal agent's official action concerning application of inductee for recommendation to the Army for an extension of a furlough pending before inductee's draft board stated a federal offense. Cohen v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1944, 144 F.2d 984, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 440, 323 U.S. 797, 89 L.Ed. 636, order withheld 65 S.Ct. 441, rehearing denied 65 S.Ct. 586, 324 U.S. 885, 89 L.Ed. 1435. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

Indictment charging that constable received money under agreement to protect another against prosecution was sufficient to charge overt act. Cook v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Okla.) 1928, 28 F.2d 730. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

Indictment sufficiently charged defendants with conspiring among themselves and with unknown persons to take bribes. Harvey v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1928, 23 F.2d 561. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

An indictment charging conspiracy to commit offense against the United States in asking for and receiving bribe for not reporting liquor found in search under warrant, alleging in the terms of former section 207 of this title that certain of the defendants were persons "acting for and in behalf of the United States in an official capacity" as federal prohibition agents in the matter of searching certain premises for liquor under search warrant and making report of results to federal prohibition director, was sufficient to show the official capacity in which such defendants acted in entering into the conspiracy. Downs v. U.S., C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1925, 3 F.2d 855, certiorari denied 45 S.Ct. 509, 268 U.S. 689, 69 L.Ed. 1158.

An indictment charging that one of the defendants agreed with another, who was an officer authorized to make contracts on behalf of United States, to procure funds from manufacturers desiring to sell to United States, and to divide with the defendant officer and other officers, who made contracts with the contributing manufacturers, alleged a true agreement or conspiracy to defraud the United States, within former section 88 of this title [now this section] and not merely an acceptance by the officer of bribes procured by the other defendant. Gouled v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1921, 273 F. 506. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(10)

An indictment which charged a confederated effort to deprive the national government of the right and privilege of proper service in the Department of Agriculture by corrupting an employee of such department, and inducing him to secretly furnish advance information of crop conditions, contrary to the rules of the department, and to issue false reports to the public as to such conditions, charged a conspiracy to defraud the United States under former section 88 of this title [now this section]. U.S. v. Haas, C.C.S.D.N.Y.1908, 163 F. 908. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(10)

In an indictment under former section 88 of this title [now this section] for conspiracy to defraud the United States by bribing a member of a board of examining surgeons to make a false report to the commissioner of pensions, it was unnecessary to aver that the commissioner had authority to grant pensions, for such authority was given by general statutes, of which the court would take judicial notice. U. S. v. Van Leuven, N.D.Iowa 1894, 62 F. 62.

An indictment charging a conspiracy with intent to defraud the United States by obtaining the dismissal or discontinuance of certain suits which by law might be brought by the United States, cannot be considered as charging a conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States, to wit, bribery, there being no specific hint of such an offense, except in the allegations of acts done to effect the object of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Milner, C.C.N.D.Ala.1888, 36 F. 890. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(10)

Where the conspiracy charged was predicted upon an attempted fraud upon the United States by means of the tender of an agreement to pay bribes to "certain federal officials, to wit, the officers of court of the United States," the description of the officials was too indefinite to identify either the agreement or tender. U. S. v. Milner, C.C.N.D.Ala.1888, 36 F. 890.

First count of indictment alleging that object of conspiracy of District Supervisor of Bureau of Motor Carriers, Interstate Commerce Commission, and defendant, who allegedly paid him money, was defrauding of United States in its governmental rights and functions, and particularly of its right to have business of commission conducted honestly and efficiently and to have duties of commission employees, specifically District Supervisor, performed honestly, faithfully, and impartially, free from corruption and improper influence, and that, in effectuating objects of conspiracy, District Supervisor unlawfully and corruptly received money from other defendant for services rendered by District Supervisor, in his official capacity, in assisting in consummation of sale of controlling interest in interstate trucking company operating under jurisdiction of commission, clearly charged conspiracy to defraud United States, though means by which count alleged that conspiracy was effectuated constituted a violation of section 281 of this title making unlawful payment of compensation to employees of the United States in matters affecting the government. U.S. v. Bowles, D.C.Me.1958, 183 F.Supp. 237. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(10)

Where bribe is an officer of the United States, there is no need for indictment charging a conspiracy to defraud the United States of and concerning governmental functions, to allege that officer was acting in an official capacity, and it is sufficient to allege that the bribe was given with intent to influence the officer to commit or aid in the committing of any fraud on the United States. Buchanan v. New York Cent. R. Co., E.D.Pa.1957, 148 F.Supp. 732.

Count 1 part "B" of indictment charging conspiracy to commit certain offenses against the United States, namely, the crime of bribery in violation of certain statutes, the crime of knowingly making false statements and entries in violation of section 1001 of this title, and the crime of knowingly and fraudulently obtaining from the United States moneys in excess of $100, by means of false and fictitious invoices in violation of section 1003 of this title, the crime of knowingly making false, fictitious, and fraudulent claims on and against the United States in violation of section 287 of this title, and the crime of knowingly and with intent to defraud and mislead, introducing and delivering for introduction into interstate commerce, certain misbranded food in violation of section 331 of Title 21 without giving any details or particulars as to any of such crimes, was legally insufficient. Buchanan v. New York Cent. R. Co., E.D.Pa.1957, 148 F.Supp. 732.

In prosecution for conspiring with another to obtain by offering of a bribe to a United States employee certain property of the United States in violation of existing law, overt acts charged did not remedy the lack of sufficient allegation that the property had in fact been stolen not the total failure to set forth the capacity in which the employee was employed by the United States and hence indictment was insufficient. U. S. v. Numrich, D.C.Mass.1956, 144 F.Supp. 812. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

Indictment charging that defendants entered into conspiracy to secure contract from airplane builders to make tools and parts for military airplanes which United States government was purchasing under contracts whereby cost to government depended in part on cost of construction, by bribing employee of the builders, charged a conspiracy to defraud the government. U.S. v. Furer, S.D.Cal.1942, 47 F.Supp. 402. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(10)

359. Census offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

In an indictment for conspiring with a census enumerator to insert a certain number of false and fictitious names in the census schedules, it is sufficient to state a few only of the names alleged to have been so wrongfully inserted by the enumerator, as certainty to common intent is all that is required in an indictment for conspiracy. U.S. v. Stevens, D.C.Minn.1890, 44 F. 132. Conspiracy ↪ 43(1)

The court granted a motion in arrest of judgment for want of averment of an overt act after conviction on an indictment for conspiracy to make out a false census roll, etc., with intent to defraud the government, without alleging that the defendants did make false roll, etc. U.S. v. Blunt, C.C.N.C.1875, 24 F.Cas. 1183, 7 Chi.Leg.N. 258, No. 14615.

360. Civil rights offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Conspiracy count of indictment charging that, under color of law, superintendent of police of town and others had object to subject, or cause to be subjected, "any Negro inhabitant" of United States who sought to lease, occupy, possess, or enjoy access to any property in town, and particularly specified property, to deprivation of any right to do so, defined sufficiently class or group of persons who were to suffer deprivation charged and constituted a charge of conspiracy to commit offense against United States. U. S. v. Konovsky, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1953, 202 F.2d 721. Conspiracy ↪ 43(6)

An indictment charging a conspiracy to commit the offense punishable by former section 52 of this title, punishing any one who under color of any law deprives an inhabitant by reason of color or race of any rights secured by the federal Constitution or laws, which alleged that a state law required that the official ballots in a designated part of the state should be arranged in alphabetical order with a designation of the political party, and that sample ballots must be posted before the election, and that in other parts of the state, the supervisors of election might arrange the names of the candidates in any order without party designation and without furnishing sample ballots, that the Legislature in enacting the law intended to give the supervisors of election of the counties where the negro population was large the opportunity to so arrange the ballots as to deprive negro voters of the right to vote, and that defendants by the form of the ballots adopted made it extremely difficult for negro voters to vote their choice at congressional election, etc. - was sufficient as against a demurrer, though it did not allege that the state statute was on its face, directed against negro voters and did not disclose an intent to discriminate against negro voters. U. S. v. Stone, D.C.Md.1911, 188 F. 836. Conspiracy ↪ 43(8)

361. Condemnation, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment alleging that defendants and others conspired to divert personal use of one or more defendants money, which was paid by Commonwealth of Massachusetts for realty condemned for federal aid highway, in derogation of purposes of federal aid highway program, alleged violation of this section dealing with conspiracy to defraud United States. Harney v. U. S., C.A.1 (Mass.) 1962, 306 F.2d 523, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 254, 371 U.S. 911, 9 L.Ed.2d 171. Conspiracy ↪ 43(10)

362. Customs violations, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

An indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States by means of a false invoice, is sufficient which sets forth such a conspiracy, notwithstanding that it does not set forth the consummation of the fraud nor include an allegation that the fraud could have been accomplished, if not detected. U.S. v. Stamatopoulos, C.C.E.D.N.Y.1908, 164 F. 524. See, also, U.S. v. Haas, C.C.N.Y.1908, 163 F. 908. Conspiracy ↪ 43(10)

Indictment charging conspiracy extending from February 9, 1930, to August 9, 1931, to violate section 1593(a) of Title 19 becoming effective on June 17, 1930, was not demurrable, since all acts alleged in furtherance of crime charged occurred after effective date of section. Davidson v. U.S., C.C.A.1 (R.I.) 1933, 63 F.2d 90. Conspiracy ↪ 43(6)

Counts charging conspiracy made on board American vessel on high seas to smuggle dutiable or prohibited merchandise into United States were good in substance, in view of former section 88 of this title [now this section]. U.S. v. Tello, D.C.Mass.1925, 6 F.2d 579.

Indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States out of customs duties on imported coal by false weights was sufficient, in absence of objection before trial or to testimony or request, to limit scope of the charge, although an indictment charging in general terms a conspiracy to defraud the United States would be insufficient to charge a conspiracy to defraud the United States of customs duties in connection with imported coal. Smith v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1916, 231 F. 25, 145 C.C.A. 213, certiorari denied 37 S.Ct. 19, 242 U.S. 636, 61 L.Ed. 539. Criminal Law ⤴ 1032(5); Indictment And Information ⤴ 196(5)

An indictment charging a conspiracy to deposit, conceal, or withdraw goods removed from a warehouse for exportation and to introduce them unconditionally unto the country effecting a surreptitious entry by which the duties would become due instantly, sufficiently charged a crime. U.S. v. Ehr Gott, C.C.S.D.N.Y.1910, 182 F. 267.

An allegation of conspiracy to defraud the government of customs duties is sufficiently made in an indictment that alleges conspiracy with respect to merchandise to be imported into the United States without invoicing or entering the same and without paying the duties then and there accruing thereon. U.S. v. White, C.C.S.D.N.Y.1909, 171 F. 775. Conspiracy ⤴ 43(10)

The allegation in an indictment for conspiracy to defraud the customs revenue, that certain acts were done "to the end that" less than the legal amount of duties should be collected by the collector of customs, was sufficient as an allegation of corrupt and fraudulent intent. Browne v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1905, 145 F. 1, 76 C.C.A. 31, certiorari denied 26 S.Ct. 755, 200 U.S. 618, 50 L.Ed. 623. Customs Duties ⤴ 134

An indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States of sums to become due to it as customs duties must allege, to some extent at least, the means intended to be used to defraud - as that it was by smuggling, or by forged or false invoices, or the like - although the details of the plan need not be set out, since they may not have been known to the grand jury or to the conspirators themselves. U.S. v. Grunberg, C.C.Mass.1904, 131 F. 137.

In an indictment in a federal court it is not necessary to allege the tenor of an instrument unless it touches the very pith of the crime itself, as in forgery, or counterfeiting, and an indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States by obtaining the entry of imported merchandise without payment of the legal duty thereon need not allege the tenor of an instrument by means of which, as charge, it was intended to accomplish the fraudulent entry. U.S. v. Doe, N.D.Cal.1904, 127 F. 982.

An indictment charging defendants with unlawfully carrying aboard an exporting carrier for export 20 pounds of platinum without first presenting to Collector of Customs of the Port of Baltimore a license so to do, contrary to requirements of General Regulations of Board of Economic Warfare promulgated pursuant to 50 App. § 701, and with conspiring to commit such acts, was sufficient. U.S. v. Baren, D.C.Md.1943, 50 F.Supp. 520. War And National Emergency ⤴ 514

An indictment charging a conspiracy to commit the offense defined and made punishable by former section 120 of this title, was sufficient when it particularized the act as being an agreement between the defendants to conceal and destroy certain described papers relating to the importation of certain merchandise, entered into by the defendants for the purpose of suppressing evidence contained therein of fraud in connection with that importation, though the facts setting forth the object of the conspiracy might not be sufficient to support an indictment laid alleging the commission of the offense. U.S. v. De Grieff, C.C.N.Y.1879, 25 F.Cas. 799, No. 14936.

363. Defrauding United States, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations--Generally

Fact that alleged events included the filing of false statements did not in and of itself make the conspiracy to defraud the United States clause of this section unavailable for indictment alleging a conspiracy fraudulently to obtain services of National Labor Relations Board on behalf of union by filing false non-Communist affidavits. Dennis v. U. S., U.S.Colo.1966, 86 S.Ct. 1840, 384 U.S. 855, 16 L.Ed.2d 973.

An indictment charging that the United States was defrauded by depriving it of its lawful governmental functions by dishonest means charged a "defrauding" within the meaning of former § 88 of this title [now this section] defining the offense of conspiring to defraud the United States. Glasser v. U.S., U.S.Ill.1942, 62 S.Ct. 457, 315 U.S. 60, 86 L.Ed. 680, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 629, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 637, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222.

Alleged conspiracy against United States, whereby defendants obstructed governmental function of collecting data and currency transaction reports (CTR) through concealment of transactions over $10,000 from Internal Revenue Service (IRS), was properly charged under defraud clause of conspiracy statute in addition to offense clause, where defendants received specific notice of crimes, defendants' activity was broad in terms of temporal duration, number of events, and variety of crimes implicated, and defendants' duties were not sufficiently technical. U.S. v. Khalife, C.A.6 (Mich.) 1997, 106 F.3d 1300, rehearing and suggestion for rehearing en banc denied, certiorari denied 118 S.Ct. 685, 522 U.S. 1045, 139 L.Ed.2d 632. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(10)

Prosecution may proceed against defendant under either defraud clause or offense clause, of 18 U.S.C.A. § 371, regardless of whether there is specific statute describing conduct alleged in conspiracy and regardless of whether object of conspiracy was designated a misdemeanor. U.S. v. Harmas, C.A.11 (Fla.) 1992, 974 F.2d 1262.

Indictment which alleged that defendants conspired to commit certain enumerated offenses against the United States and to defraud the United States adequately put defendant on notice that she was charged with conspiring to defraud the United States as well as conspiring to commit the specific offenses. U.S. v. Helmsley, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1991, 941 F.2d 71, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 1162, 502 U.S. 1091, 117 L.Ed.2d 409, denial of post-conviction relief affirmed 985 F.2d 1202, post-conviction relief granted.

Indictment contained sufficiently definite statement of essential facts constituting conspiracy to defraud United States where indictment specified names of three persons alleged to have agreed to defraud United States, at least three overt acts, alleged defendants intended to agree to defraud the United States by impairing the lawful function of the United States District Court, and alleged that agreement to impair functioning of court came in context of specific issue in specific case. U.S. v. Rankin, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1989, 870 F.2d 109, rehearing denied.

Even though indictment count contained language regarding conspiracy "to defraud and mislead" federal and state agencies, indictment charging that defendant conspired to commit offenses against the United States failed to allege conspiracy to defraud the United States, the offense of which defendant was convicted. U.S. v. Haga, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1987, 821 F.2d 1036.

Indictment alleging only that corporation reported as entity on whose behalf currency transfer had been made did little or no business, had few or no assets, and issued stock offering so that defendants could launder money failed to allege crime under statute proscribing defrauding the United States; indictment did not allege scheme to deprive government of tax revenue, and particular activities which were alleged had not been proscribed by criminal statute. U.S. v. Murphy, C.A.9 (Or.) 1987, 809 F.2d 1427.

In considering alleged conspiracy to defraud the United States, court had to be mindful that this section is a broad one, and that there is danger that prosecutors may use it arbitrarily to punish activity not properly within ambit of federal criminal sanction, and thus indictment charging conspiracy had to be carefully scrutinized. U. S. v. Shoup, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1979, 608 F.2d 950.

Count of indictment charging two Congressmen and two other defendants with conspiracy to "defraud" the United States was not fatally defective because it failed to charge any false statement, misrepresentation or deceit, where count alleged that as part of conspiracy one of Congressmen was paid to make speech in Congress and to persuade officials of Department of Justice to cause postponement and eventual dismissal of criminal actions then pending against one of the defendants. U. S. v. Johnson, C.A.4 (Md.) 1964, 337 F.2d 180, certiorari granted 85 S.Ct. 703, 379 U.S. 988, 13 L.Ed.2d 609, affirmed 86 S.Ct. 749, 383 U.S. 169, 15 L.Ed.2d 681, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 134, 385 U.S. 889, 17 L.Ed.2d 117, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 44, 385 U.S. 846, 17 L.Ed.2d 77.

Count of indictment charging two Congressmen and two other defendants with conspiracy to defraud United States and alleging that one of Congressmen was paid to persuade officials of Department of Justice to cause postponement and eventual dismissal of criminal actions then pending against one of defendants was not defective, on ground that it was not within power of Department of Justice to effectuate postponement of trial or dismissal of indictment because that power was solely in court, since decision of Department of Justice to postpone or abandon case has great, if not decisive, influence with court. U. S. v. Johnson, C.A.4 (Md.) 1964, 337 F.2d 180, certiorari granted 85 S.Ct. 703, 379 U.S. 988, 13 L.Ed.2d 609, affirmed 86 S.Ct. 749, 383 U.S. 169, 15 L.Ed.2d 681, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 134, 385 U.S. 889, 17 L.Ed.2d 117, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 44, 385 U.S. 846, 17 L.Ed.2d 77.

Indictment charging a conspiracy of defendant, with others, to conceal commodities to defraud the government of the tax thereon and charging 16 overt acts was sufficient, notwithstanding that some of the overt acts formed basis of substantive charges in other counts and that some were barred by limitation. Pinkerton v. U. S., C.C.A.5 (Ala.) 1945, 151 F.2d 499, certiorari granted 66 S.Ct. 702, 327 U.S. 772, 90 L.Ed. 1002, affirmed 66 S.Ct. 1180, 328 U.S. 640, 90 L.Ed. 1489, rehearing denied 67 S.Ct. 26, 329 U.S. 818, 91 L.Ed. 697.

An indictment, alleging that city officers and Works Progress Administration employee conspired to use services of laborers employed by such Administration in razing brick structures, purchased by one of such officers, and removing and cleaning bricks and to sell cleaned bricks to city at prices materially exceeding their previous value, charged conspiracy to defraud United States, not to violate Emergency Relief Appropriation Act, Act of Apr. 8, 1935, c. 48, § 9, 49 Stat. 118. U.S. v. Holt, C.C.A.7 (Ind.) 1939, 108 F.2d 365, certiorari denied 60 S.Ct. 616, 309 U.S. 672, 84 L.Ed. 1018, rehearing denied 60 S.Ct. 806, 309 U.S. 698, 84 L.Ed. 1037.

Indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section], was insufficient to charge conspiracy to defraud United States. Asgill v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (Va.) 1932, 60 F.2d 780. See, also, Stager v. U.S., N.Y.1916, 233 F. 510, 147 C.C.A. 396; U.S. v. Orr, D.C.R.I.1915, 223 F. 220; Houston v. U.S., Wash.1914, 217 F. 852, 133 C.C.A. 562, certiorari denied 35 S.Ct. 284, 238 U.S. 613, 59 L.Ed. 1490. Conspiracy ↪ 43(10)

As the offense of conspiring to defraud the United States, in violation of former § 88 of this title [now this section] was complete, though the mode or details of execution were not fully agreed upon, it was impracticable and unnecessary for the indictment to set forth the object of the conspiracy with the same particularity of detail as in cases of completed acts constituting a past offense. U.S. v. Downey, D.C.R.I.1919, 257 F. 364.

While a charge of conspiracy to defraud the United States under former § 88 of this title [now this section] which wholly omitted some essential element of the offense, could not have been aided by the statement of acts done to effect its object, this did not prevent reference to such statement for the purpose of ascertaining the sense in which terms were used in charging the conspiracy. Stearns v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Minn.) 1907, 152 F. 900, 82 C.C.A. 48.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] was sufficient where it charged that the defendants named "unlawfully did conspire to defraud the United States," etc., followed by a statement of the nature and purpose of the conspiracy and the acts done to effect its object, and the use, in connection with the verb "conspire," of other words or phrases of similar import, such as "combine," "confederate," "agree together," or "agree between and among themselves," while usual and proper indictments for conspiracy, was not essential, since such words add nothing to the meaning expressed by the word "conspire," as defined by lexicographers and as used in said former section, and their omission, if a defect, was one of form only, which did not tend to the prejudice of the defendants, and must therefore be disregarded, under former § 556 of this title. Wright v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (La.) 1901, 108 F. 805, 48 C.C.A. 37, certiorari denied 21 S.Ct. 924, 181 U.S. 620, 45 L.Ed. 1031.

In an indictment for conspiring to defraud, it was sufficient to charge an unlawful combination and agreement as actually made, and, in addition, to describe any act by one of the parties, as an act relied on to show the agreement in operation, without showing how such act would tend to effect the object, or that the object was actually effected. U.S. v. Benson, C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1895, 70 F. 591, 17 C.C.A. 293. Conspiracy ↪ 43(5); Conspiracy ↪ 43(10)

Although objects in count alleging conspiracy to commit offense against or defraud United States which tracked "fuzzy" nature of fraud prong of that statute were legally sufficient for purposes of indictment, defendants could not be convicted on basis of acts that did not rise to level of corruption forbidden by statute and Government would be required to make explicit showing in that regard at trial. U.S. v. Recognition Equipment, Inc., D.D.C.1989, 711 F.Supp. 1.

Indictment charging defendant with conspiracy to defraud federal Government need not elaborate as to state law and need not allege identity of public servant to be bribed. U. S. v. Aloï, E.D.N.Y.1977, 449 F.Supp. 698.

Indictment charging a violation of this section was sufficient although it did not allege with technical precision all of the elements of substantive offense alluded to, namely a violation of § 1001 of this title making it a crime to conceal by trick or scheme any material fact from a department or agency of the United States. U. S. v. Patterson, E.D.La.1964, 235 F.Supp. 233.

Charge of conspiracy to defraud the United States is not precluded by fact that indictment as a whole shows that violations of specific statutes are involved. U. S. v. Johnson, D.C.Md.1963, 215 F.Supp. 300.

Indictment charging conspiracy to defraud United States sufficiently informed defendants of nature and cause of accusation, and stated facts sufficient to constitute an offense. U. S. v. Boisvert, D.C.R.I.1960, 187 F.Supp. 781.

In prosecution against corporation, its president and principal stockholder, and its superintendent for conspiracy to commit an offense against or to defraud the United States by applying less paint than was provided for in corporation's subcontract for painting of warehouses being constructed at a military installation of United States, indictment stated sufficient facts to constitute an offense against the United States. U. S. v. Kemmel, M.D.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 718.

Count 1 part "A" of the indictment was sufficient to charge a conspiracy to defraud the United States of and concerning governmental functions. U. S. v. Apex Distributing Co., D.C.R.I.1957, 148 F.Supp. 365.

Counts of indictment charging defendants with conspiracy to commit certain offenses in violation of § 1341 of this title dealing with frauds and swindles, and the commission of certain overt acts in furtherance of conspiracy, were legally sufficient. U. S. v. Sugarman, D.C.R.I.1956, 139 F.Supp. 878.

In prosecution of deputy collector of internal revenue for conspiracy to commit offense or defraud United States, and for failure to collect and pay over tax, the seven overt acts alleged were sufficient to support conspiracy charge. U.S. v. Waldin, E.D.Pa.1956, 138 F.Supp. 791.

Indictment was sufficient to charge a conspiracy to defraud the United States in violation of this section. U S v. Long, D.C.Puerto Rico 1954, 118 F.Supp. 857.

Reconstruction Finance Corporation and had, in furtherance of such conspiracy, removed collateral pledged to support the loan was defective for failure to allege overt act to effect the conspiracy, where the loans had been made prior to removal of collateral. U.S. v. McGee, D.C.Wyo.1952, 108 F.Supp. 909. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

An indictment charging that defendants employed in plant making airplanes for the government absented themselves from work, that some defendants would sign the time cards to make it appear that the absentees were present, and that the payroll would be made up from the cards of the employees and submitted to the United States which would pay the employer, alleged a conspiracy to defraud the United States. Ex parte Graham, E.D.Tex.1944, 58 F.Supp. 576.

An indictment charging that defendants conspired to defraud the United States of money appropriated in connection with the National Industrial Recovery Act, Act of June 16, 1933, c. 90, 48 Stat. 195, by favoring a certain building material and closing specifications with respect to it so that other materials of equal efficiency were excluded, and charging that by means of such exclusion, and by favoring the particular material, larger prices were charged for its use, contained sufficient averments to make the indictment a valid charge. U.S. v. Haskins, W.D.Mo.1941, 40 F.Supp. 219.

The crime of conspiracy to defraud the United States is materially different from the offense of conspiracy as it existed at common law, and every ingredient of the offense must be clearly alleged. U.S. v. De Grieff, C.C.N.Y.1879, 25 F.Cas. 799, No. 14936.

364. ---- Alteration of obligations of United States, defrauding United States, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment charging defendant with conspiracy to make counterfeit money was valid even if only hearsay was presented to the grand jury and even if assistant United States Attorney failed to inform grand jury that one of the witnesses against defendant was a heroin addict. U.S. v. Herndon, C.A.8 (Mo.) 1982, 693 F.2d 57.

An indictment charging defendant with passing, uttering and publishing as true certain altered obligations of the United States, to wit, United States internal revenue documentary stamps, and with possession of such altered stamps in violation of former § 265 of this title, and with conspiracy to violate the substantive counts in the indictment, sufficiently charged an offense under said former section making it an offense to falsely alter any "obligation of the United States" with intent to defraud. Roberts v. Hunter, C.C.A.10 (Kan.) 1943, 140 F.2d 38.

365. ---- False affidavits, defrauding United States, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment alleging that defendants, unable to secure for their union the benefit of Labor Board process except by submitting non-Communist affidavits, deliberately concocted a fraudulent scheme, and in furtherance of that scheme, some of defendants did in fact submit false affidavits and the union did thereafter use Labor Board facilities made available to them properly charged a conspiracy to defraud the United States. Dennis v. U. S., U.S.Colo.1966, 86 S.Ct. 1840, 384 U.S. 855, 16 L.Ed.2d 973.

366. ---- False and fraudulent claims, defrauding United States, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment charging that various university officials agreed that each would use his status as project director at different universities and agencies to insure that others entered into contracts financed by federal government and that their consulting fees would be set at amount which allowed them to skim profits was sufficient to charge violation of federal statute prohibiting conspiracies to "defraud the United States, or any agency thereof in any manner or for any purpose" [18 U.S.C.A. § 371]; while indictment lacked explicit allegations of arrangement for equal dollar payments, conspiracy to defraud United State was alleged, and recitation of overt acts was sufficient to apprise defendant of facts upon which charges were based. U.S. v. Lane, C.A.9 (Mont.) 1985, 765 F.2d 1376.

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate section 1001 of this title by knowingly making or causing to be made false, fictitious and fraudulent representations in an application to Small Business Administration for the guaranty of a bank loan, it was incumbent upon Government to prove to satisfaction of jury beyond reasonable doubt that alleged coconspirators formed an agreement, however clandestine or informal, to violate section 1001 of this title by the making of false representations in an application to the Small Business Administration concerning a material fact, that is, either (1) the financial condition of the company which was to receive the loan or (2) the intended purposes of the loan, and that someone committed an overt act in furtherance of this object. U. S. v. Kramer, C.A.10 (Colo.) 1975, 521 F.2d 1073, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 1104, 424 U.S. 909, 47 L.Ed.2d 313.

Indictment for conspiracy to violate § 287 of this title by presenting claims for education and training allowances to the Veterans Administration knowing them to be false and fraudulent was sufficient. U. S. v. Chicago Professional Schools, Inc., C.A.7 (Ill.) 1961, 290 F.2d 285.

Count charging defendants with conspiracy to submit false claims to federal agency with respect to Federal Housing Administration loans with purpose in mind that money so loaned to various homeowners would not be used for home improvements was not violative of rule prohibiting charges of multiple conspiracies in a single conspiracy count even though there were involved a number of loans to be made to a number of homeowners. Shayne v. U.S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1958, 255 F.2d 739, certiorari denied 79 S.Ct. 39, 358 U.S. 823, 3 L.Ed.2d 64.

In prosecution for conspiracy to defraud United States by inducing Veterans' Administration through alleged fraudulent representations to guarantee home loan to veteran, receipt by defendant real estate agent of earnest money deposit from veteran and balance of down payment, the signing by sellers of document accepting veteran's purchase offer for home and certain personal property located therein for an additional sum, obtaining as security a second mortgage on real estate and chattel mortgage on personal property and promissory note from veteran conditioned on payment by veteran for personal property were committed in furtherance of general scheme to fraudulently induce Veterans' Administration to guarantee the home loan and supported a conspiracy charge against real estate agent. U. S. v. Aderman, C.A.7 (Wis.) 1951, 191 F.2d 980, certiorari denied 72 S.Ct. 366, 342 U.S. 927, 96 L.Ed. 691, rehearing denied 72 S.Ct. 552, 342 U.S. 950, 96 L.Ed. 706.

Indictment charging a conspiracy to cause lender to make and use false certificate, which certificate defendant real estate dealer knew contained fictitious statements and entries, for purpose of inducing the Veterans' Administration to guarantee a loan to a veteran eligible for such loan and alleging certificate to be false in representing purchase price of property and charging that false certificate was caused to be made and used by lender, knowing it contained fictitious statements and entries, sufficiently showed a violation of law and enabled defendant to know nature and cause of accusation. U. S. v. Aderman, C.A.7 (Wis.) 1951, 191 F.2d 980, certiorari denied 72 S.Ct. 366, 342 U.S. 927, 96 L.Ed. 691, rehearing denied 72 S.Ct. 552, 342 U.S. 950, 96 L.Ed. 706.

In prosecution under this section and § 1010 of this title, making it unlawful knowingly to make or cause to be made false statements to obtain loan intending that it be offered to the Federal Housing Administration for insurance, indictment charging substantive offenses was sufficiently certain to state an offense. Ross v. U. S., C.A.6 (Ohio) 1950, 180 F.2d 160.

Indictment, charging that defendants conspired to cause to be presented for payment a false claim upon the Government, to cause to be made false statements or representations in a matter within the jurisdiction of a department or agency of the United States, and to knowingly and willfully conceal or cover up by a trick, scheme or device a material fact in a matter within the jurisdiction of a department or agency of the United States, and charging certain overt acts, sufficiently charged the offense of conspiring to commit offenses against the United States and doing acts to effect the object of the conspiracy. Chevillard v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1946, 155 F.2d 929.

An indictment under former §§ 80 and 88 [now this section] of this title which alleged that defendants, who were officers of a corporation, prepared a false claim and voucher, which they submitted to an officer of the United States army, was insufficient, because not showing that the officer was clothed with authority to examine and approve the claim and voucher. U.S. v. Christopherson, E.D.Mo.1919, 261 F. 225.

Where it was charged that such defendants made a false claim for furnishing cans of black pepper, which purported to weigh one-quarter of a pound each, when in truth they did not contain one-quarter of a pound of such pepper, the indictment should have clearly shown the exact facts as they existed, and an indictment which merely alleged that the cans purported to weigh one-quarter of a pound, but did not contain that much pepper, was defective, though not fatally defective, because it was obvious that the can or container must have weighed something. U.S. v. Christopherson, E.D.Mo.1919, 261 F. 225.

An indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States by a false invoice is not vitiated by the particularity with which the overt act is set forth, if the conspiracy of itself be sufficient. U.S. v. Stamatopoulos, C.C.E.D.N.Y.1908, 164 F. 524.

A count in an indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States, which charges as an overt act done in pursuance of the conspiracy the knowing and willful presentation and payment of false and fraudulent claims, against the United States, is not insufficient because it does not specify the particulars in which such claims were fraudulent, the only purpose of such count being to show that the unlawful agreement was carried into actual operation. U.S. v. Greene, S.D.Ga.1902, 115 F. 343.

In an indictment charging a conspiracy to defraud the United States by aiding in obtaining payment of a false claim, it is not necessary to aver what particular official might have been deceived if the conspiracy had been carried to a successful issue. U.S. v. Newton, S.D.Iowa 1891, 48 F. 218. Conspiracy ↻ 43(10)

Allegations that defendants aided and abetted evasion of income and FICA taxes by paying employees of their corporation "off the books" without withholding deductions, provided "off the books" employees with false W-2 forms which were used by employees in filing false federal income tax returns, and filed false Employer's Quarterly Federal Tax Returns with Internal Revenue Service were sufficient to support charge of conspiracy to defraud United States. U.S. v. Standard Drywall Corp., E.D.N.Y.1985, 617 F.Supp. 1283.

Indictment which identified prime contractor, the prime contract, the nature of prime contract, the subcontractor, nature of subcontract, and date on which subcontract was awarded and which contained allegation of conspiracy to make a false claim, identifying the participants and duration of conspiracy and stating that subcontractor was to make the false claim, sufficiently identified false and fraudulent claim and was sufficient to charge commission of offense under this section making it a crime to conspire to commit an offense against or to defraud the United States. U. S. v. Strycker, E.D.Wis.1960, 182 F.Supp. 677.

Indictment charging corporation and three of its officers with conspiracy to commit offense against United States denounced by statutes making it offense to make or use false, fraudulent, or fictitious statements in matters within jurisdiction of Department of Army and to knowingly and wilfully make and present false, fictitious and fraudulent claims to Department was insufficient in that it failed to indicate what specific false statements or claims were alleged to have been made or presented or even to indicate transaction or general subject matter in connection with which any false statements or claims were allegedly made or presented and indictment would be dismissed. U.S. v. Devine's Milk Laboratories, Inc., D.C.Mass.1960, 179 F.Supp. 799.

Indictment which charged defendants, who organized and operated five trade schools, with conspiring to defraud Government by fraudulently inflating cost basis of tuition rate and by fraudulently increasing cost to be charged to Veterans' Administration, was sufficient and it was not necessary to allege what acts were done to effect object of conspiracy nor set out all means agreed upon to carry it forward. U. S. v. Weinberg, M.D.Pa.1955, 129 F.Supp.

514, affirmed 226 F.2d 161, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 305, 350 U.S. 933, 100 L.Ed. 815.

In indictment charging primarily a conspiracy to commit offenses against the United States by willfully making or presenting false claims in order to defraud the United States, allegation as to bribery of Army inspector, whether alleged as one of many means of effectuating conspiracy or as constituting an essential characteristic of the conspiracy, could in no wise militate against the definite admission by plea of guilty that the conspiracy charged was one primarily to obtain the payment of a knowingly false claim by the United States and that pleading defendants participated in such conspiracy. U. S. v. Ben Grunstein & Sons Co., D.C.N.J.1955, 127 F.Supp. 907.

Indictment charging conspiracy to defraud the United States by causing false claims against the government to be presented was not defective because of absence of allegation of direct contractual relationship between United States and defendant. U. S. v. Gonzales, D.C.Mass.1944, 56 F.Supp. 995.

Indictment charging that employees of shipyard engaged in making ships for United States Navy Department under contracts providing that United States would reimburse shipyard for cost incurred in performing contracts, including cost of labor, conspired to make out false tally sheets on the basis of which they were paid and shipyard was reimbursed, charged offense of conspiracy to defraud United States by causing false claims against government to be presented. U. S. v. Gonzales, D.C.Mass.1944, 56 F.Supp. 995.

367. ---- False entries, defrauding United States, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

In context of charge of conspiracy to defraud the United States, government adequately alleged and proved interference with lawful government function by individual defendant who acquired semiautomatic rifles on basis of his status as law enforcement officer and then resold rifles to corporate defendant; indictment alleged and government proved that defendants acted in concert so as to interfere with function of Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in regulating sales of such weapons by providing Bureau with false documents. U.S. v. F.J. Vollmer & Co., Inc., C.A.7 (Ill.) 1993, 1 F.3d 1511, certiorari denied 114 S.Ct. 688, 510 U.S. 1043, 126 L.Ed.2d 655.

In indictment charging that defendants, an owner of a construction company and an employee of a savings and loan association whose accounts were insured by federal agency, conspired to violate § 1006 of this title relating to defrauding federal credit institutions, allegation that employee would approve loans to owner's customers by falsely concealing from officers of association the true facts of the conduct and practice of owner sufficiently charged that defendants conspired that employee would make false entries in books and records of association with intent to defraud the association or to deceive its officers. U. S. v. Spector, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1963, 326 F.2d 345.

368. Election offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

In an indictment in a federal court for a conspiracy to induce officers of election to omit the duty of safekeeping and delivering to the board of canvassers the poll books, tally sheets, and certificates of votes, it was not necessary to allege or prove the intention of the conspirators to effect the election of the member of Congress who was voted for at that place, the returns of which were in the same poll books, tally sheets, and certificates with those for state officers. Ex parte Coy, U.S.Ind.1888, 8 S.Ct. 1263, 127 U.S. 731, 32 L.Ed. 274.

Indictment charging defendants with conspiracy to violate constitutional rights of qualified voters was not defective on grounds that it alleged in part violation of right not recognized by United States Constitution or that general conspiracy statute had been preempted by specific statute concerning vote fraud. U.S. v. Howard, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1985, 774 F.2d 838.

If indictment for conspiracy to intimidate voter was intended to charge a direct threat to have sentence pronounced, it was argumentative and lacked positiveness. U.S. v. Welch, D.C.R.I.1917, 243 F. 996.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section], for conspiracy to corrupt election for Representative in Congress, was so vague, uncertain, insufficient, and duplicitous as not to sufficiently apprise defendants of the nature of the charge. U.S. v. Gradwell, D.C.R.I.1916, 234 F. 446, affirmed 37 S.Ct. 407, 243 U.S. 476, 61 L.Ed. 857.

Where an indictment charged that the defendants were officers of an election held at a certain precinct in the city of New Orleans on the 17th day of November, A.D. 1882, for a member of congress, and that they, "being then and there officers of said election, with intent then and there to affect said election and its result," "did acts unauthorized, in this: that they, being required to keep a list of the persons then and there voting, and to swear to said list as correct, did then and there add to said list," it was good, and it was unnecessary that there should have been added the words, "which they then and there, as such officers as aforesaid, kept." U.S. v. Bader, C.C.E.D.La.1883, 16 F. 116. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(11); Elections ⚡ 328(3)

Indictment charging conspiracy to commit offense against § 250 of Title 2, by making and causing to be made an expenditure and to pay and cause to be paid, certain sums of money to divers persons to vote in a general election at which names of candidates for United States Senate and United States House of Representatives appeared on official printed ballot was sufficient. U.S. v. Blanton, E.D.Mo.1948, 77 F.Supp. 812.

369. Embezzlement, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment in which it was alleged that defendant and codefendant conspired to embezzle, steal, purloin, and convert to their own use funds of United States exceeding $100, that defendant diverted federal funds from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) which were intended for loans to minority owned businesses, that defendant utilized funds to purchase certificates of deposit and arrange lines of credit, that lines of credit were used to make unauthorized loan, and that defendant and codefendant shared proceeds of that unauthorized loan, properly charged conspiracy to commit offense against the United States; indictment specifically alleged that object of conspiracy was embezzlement and theft of federal funds and specifically identified source of those funds as HUD. U.S. v. Hope, C.A.11 (Fla.) 1990, 901 F.2d 1013, certiorari denied 111 S.Ct. 713, 498 U.S. 1041, 112 L.Ed.2d 702.

An indictment that defendants conspired to violate an order of the Director General requiring railroads to sell certain unclaimed freight at public auction to the highest bidder, by delivering certain freight under a corrupt agreement and not at public auction, etc., was insufficient, since the word "delivery" need not import a final disposition, and was consistent with an agreement to sell at public auction and thereafter embezzle the proceeds. U.S. v. U.S. Brokerage & Trading Co., S.D.N.Y.1919, 262 F. 459.

Indictment charging conspiracy to defraud United States by scheme by defendant bridge toll collector to embezzle a part of the tolls paid by motorists using a bridge over a navigable stream and alleging that the city constructed the bridge pursuant to an act of Congress permitting it to collect tolls from the users of the bridge to pay the cost of operation and for amortization of the cost of construction of the bridge failed to charge an offense against the United States, since the offense, if any, of the defendants was against the city and the state of Illinois. U. S. v. Kaiser, S.D.Ill.1960, 179 F.Supp. 545.

370. Escape, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Good-faith basis existed to charge prison escapees with conspiracy where all three sought to escape at same place on same day at same time, all three lived in same unit and range at prison and all three worked at same job at same time within prison. U.S. v. Garza, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1981, 664 F.2d 135, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 1620, 455 U.S. 993, 71 L.Ed.2d 854.

Indictment alleging conspiracy to commit offense of causing or attempting to cause escape of named prisoners was insufficient to charge such conspiracy, in view of fact that one of the named prisoners was defendant. Kahl v. U.S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1953, 204 F.2d 864.

Indictment charging conspiracy to violate former § 753g of this title, pertaining to persons who procure the escape of prisoner properly committed to custody of Attorney General, was sufficient, notwithstanding indictment charged prior conviction of prisoner and that by judgment and sentence he was duly sentenced to imprisonment in Federal Penitentiary, since all those exercising physical custody over him as prisoner were doing so under supervision of Attorney General. Galatas v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1935, 80 F.2d 15, certiorari denied 56 S.Ct. 574, 297 U.S. 711, 80 L.Ed. 998, certiorari denied 56 S.Ct. 575, 297 U.S. 711, 80 L.Ed. 998. See, also, Farmer v. U.S., 1936, 56 S.Ct. 574, 297 U.S. 711, 80 L.Ed. 998; Mulloy v. U.S., 1936, 56 S.Ct. 575, 297 U.S. 711, 80 L.Ed. 998. Conspiracy ↪ 43(6)

An indictment charging that petitioner conspired with his official custodian and another to permit petitioner to escape stated an offense against the United States. Ex parte Lyman, W.D.Wash.1913, 202 F. 303.

Since it is made an offense by federal statute for any person directly or indirectly to aid, abet, or assist another person to escape, and conspiracy to commit such an offense is a separate crime, an indictment, alleging that accused, together with other named persons, conspired to commit an offense against the United States, to wit, to aid, abet, and assist himself to escape from an officer, was not fatally defective on the theory that, inasmuch as there was no law making it an offense for a prisoner to escape or attempt to escape, he could not be guilty of aiding, abetting, or assisting himself to do so. U.S. v. Lyman, D.C.Or.1911, 190 F. 414.

371. Espionage, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

An indictment averring a conspiracy to violate § 33 of Title 50, by causing insubordination in the military or naval forces of the United States, by means of a pamphlet distributed to persons in part belonging to the military forces, and also to obstruct the recruiting service, etc., was sufficient to charge those offenses. U.S. v. Nearing, S.D.N.Y.1918, 252 F. 223.

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate one of the provisions of § 33 of Title 50, by obstructing recruiting and enlistment service of the United States by means of newspaper articles, indictment was not subject to objection that it was defective, because not alleging that the articles were intended to be publications which defendant might not lawfully publish, or that they were untrue in fact. U.S. v. Prieth, D.C.N.J.1918, 251 F. 946.

The indictment was sufficient, although it did not state names of persons whom conspiracy was designed to induce not to enlist, etc., or allege that names were unknown to grand jury, it being manifest that names of such persons could not be known to grand jury. U.S. v. Prieth, D.C.N.J.1918, 251 F. 946.

372. False personation, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

In indictment for conspiracy to personate federal officers, time of formation of conspiracy, though not alleged, was sufficiently fixed by overt acts. Heskett v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1932, 58 F.2d 897, certiorari denied 53 S.Ct. 89, 287 U.S. 643, 77 L.Ed. 556.

In indictment for conspiracy to personate immigrant inspectors, allegation that defendants, in pursuance of conspiracy, twice visited intended victim's residence, was sufficient allegation of overt acts. Heskett v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1932, 58 F.2d 897, certiorari denied 53 S.Ct. 89, 287 U.S. 643, 77 L.Ed. 556.

An indictment charging a conspiracy that one of the defendants should "unlawfully and feloniously assume and pretend to be" an officer of the United States, and should in such assumed character, with intent to defraud, obtain from a person named a thing of value described, sufficiently charged that such defendant should "falsely" assume and pretend to be such officer within former § 76 of this title. Ferguson v. U S, C.C.A.8 (N.M.) 1923, 293 F. 361.

373. Food and drug violations, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Evidence that defendants provided codefendant with cash that was used to buy food stamps from undercover police officer and that officer saw defendants take food stamps that he had transferred to codefendant was sufficient to sustain convictions of conducting illegal traffic in food stamps. U.S. v. Andrews, C.A.11 (Ala.) 1985, 765 F.2d 1491, rehearing denied 772 F.2d 918, certiorari denied 106 S.Ct. 815, 474 U.S. 1064, 88 L.Ed.2d 789.

Count in economic adulteration case charging violation of provision of Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, § 301 et seq. of Title 21, in that defendants conspired to introduce into interstate commerce with intent to defraud and mislead a food which was adulterated within meaning of § 342 of Title 21 did not state an offense in its failure to meet required standards in setting out manner by which specified federal laws had been violated. Van Liew v. U. S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1963, 321 F.2d 664.

Indictment charging conspiracy to sell a quantity of lysergic acid diethylamide was sufficient to apprise defendants, who made no showing that they had technical knowledge of chemistry which prejudicially misled them into believing that disposition of the acid in the salt form, as opposed to the base form was lawful, that they were being charged with conspiracy to dispose of the acid in either the salt or free base form; the government was not required to prove that confiscated pills, d-lysergic acid diethylamide in the salt form, were in the free base form. U. S. v. Farber, N.D.Cal.1969, 306 F.Supp. 48.

374. Foreign agents, registration of, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

An indictment for conspiracy to violate Foreign Agents Registration Act, § 612 of Title 22, sufficiently alleged facts from which it affirmatively appeared that federal district court for New Jersey had jurisdiction. U.S. v. German-American Vocational League, C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1946, 153 F.2d 860, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 976, 328 U.S. 833, 90 L.Ed. 1608, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 976, 328 U.S. 833, 90 L.Ed. 1609, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 977, 328 U.S. 833, 90 L.Ed. 1609, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 977, 328 U.S. 834, 90 L.Ed. 1609, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 977, 328 U.S. 834, 90 L.Ed. 1610, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 978, 328 U.S. 834, 90 L.Ed. 1610.

An indictment for conspiracy to violate the Foreign Agents Registration Act, § 612 of Title 22, and to defraud the United States adequately stated essential elements of crime charged. U.S. v. German-American Vocational League, C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1946, 153 F.2d 860, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 976, 328 U.S. 833, 90 L.Ed. 1608, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 976, 328 U.S. 833, 90 L.Ed. 1609, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 977, 328 U.S. 833, 90 L.Ed. 1609, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 977, 328 U.S. 834, 90 L.Ed. 1609, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 977, 328 U.S. 834, 90 L.Ed. 1610, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 978, 328 U.S. 834, 90 L.Ed. 1610.

Indictments charging that defendants conspired to transmit information relating to national defense and conspired to act as agents of another nation without prior notification to Secretary of State would not be dismissed on ground that United States placed defendants' alleged coconspirators, who were prospective witnesses, beyond jurisdiction of court without notice to defendants, where there was no proof of suppression of evidence or even existence thereof. U. S. v. Egorov, E.D.N.Y.1964, 232 F.Supp. 732.

Count of indictment charging that defendants conspired to induce United States citizen to act as agent of foreign government without prior notification of Secretary of State adequately alleged that citizen concerned knew of his role as foreign agent. U. S. v. Melekh, N.D.Ill.1961, 193 F.Supp. 586.

375. Forgery, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Under an indictment charging conspiracy and the substantive offense of altering, forging and uttering certain papers for the purpose of obtaining money from the United States or any of its officers, it is sufficient to authorize a conviction if any one of the named defendants committed the forgery, alteration, and uttering alleged. Morrison v. Hunter, C.C.A.10 (Kan.) 1947, 161 F.2d 723.

376. Gold offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment charging a criminal conspiracy to defraud United States in exercise of its governmental functions in that defendants without a license transported and offered to sell and dispose of gold in quantities in excess of that permitted by gold regulations stated facts sufficient to sustain charge that defendants conspired to defraud the United States, and there was no error in giving such charge even if so much of the indictment was defective as related to a conspiracy to defraud United States due to its failure to allege deceit, craft or trickery, or means that were dishonest. Hunsaker v. U. S., C.A.9 (Or.) 1960, 279 F.2d 111, certiorari denied 81 S.Ct. 52, 364 U.S. 819, 5 L.Ed.2d 49.

An indictment charging defendant and others with conspiring to acquire and transport gold without a license issued by Secretary of Treasury, which did not state facts from which it could be inferred that acquisition or transportation which it charged defendant and others conspired to effect was one for which a license was required, failed to charge a conspiracy to violate § 442 or 443 of Title 31, or any regulation thereunder. Fuller v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1940, 114 F.2d 698.

An indictment charging defendant and others with conspiring to acquire and transport gold without a license issued by Secretary of Treasury, which failed to charge a conspiracy to violate Gold Reserve Act of 1934, §§ 442 and 443 of Title 31, or any regulation thereunder, could not be upheld on ground that it charged a violation of Trading with the Enemy Act, § 95a of Title 12, and Executive Order issued thereunder, since said section and Executive Order issued thereunder relate to gold coin, gold bullion and gold certificates, and not to gold, as such. Fuller v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1940, 114 F.2d 698.

A count of an indictment charging a conspiracy to defraud United States by an agreement to effect sale of gold to United States mint by falsely concealing in required affidavit true origin of gold was not insufficient because of absence of allegation that United States suffered pecuniary damage or property loss in purchase, since obstruction of governmental function in purchase of gold was a "fraud" within meaning of former § 88 of this title [now this section]. Hills v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1938, 97 F.2d 710.

Indictment charging that defendants conspired to violate the Gold Reserve Act of 1934, §§ 440 to 443 of Title 31, and the gold regulations issued and promulgated thereunder, and to defraud the United States in the exercise of its governmental functions regulating the value of money, and to acquire excess quantities of gold and to divert and dispose of the same without an appropriate license sufficiently stated an offense under this section dealing with conspiracy to commit offense or to defraud the United States. U S v. Barrios, S.D.N.Y.1952, 124 F.Supp. 807.

Indictment charging defendant with unlawfully conspiring to commit offenses against the United States by violating Gold Reserve Act of 1934, § 440 et seq. of Title 31, and to defraud United States in exercise of its governmental functions of regulating value of money and controlling acquisition, and custody, of fine gold for industrial, professional and artistic use, without a license issued pursuant to said sections by fraudulently altering gold license, charged a fraud within meaning of this section and it was not necessary to allege or show that there was a loss to United States in the transaction. U.S. v. O'Toole, D.C.R.I.1951, 101 F.Supp. 123.

Indictment charging defendant with unlawfully conspiring to commit offenses against the United States by violating Gold Reserve Act of 1934, § 440 et seq. of Title 31, and regulations promulgated thereunder, was not defective for failure to set forth number of rules and regulations which defendants were alleged to have violated. U.S. v. O'Toole, D.C.R.I.1951, 101 F.Supp. 123.

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Indictment charging defendants with conspiracy to violate Gold Reserve Act of 1934, § 440 et seq. of Title 31, and rules and regulations promulgated pursuant thereto, was not subject to objection that it charged a conspiracy to violate said sections and rules and regulations issued pursuant thereto for which no punishment was provided by law. U.S. v. O'Toole, D.C.R.I.1951, 101 F.Supp. 123.

377. Housing offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment, charging conspiracy to violate National Housing Act, § 1701 et seq. of Title 12, which referred by section number to certain parts of said sections in addition to the penal section directly involved and then attempted an explanation of the regulations and of the practices to be followed in making home modernization loans, was not defective. U.S. v. Groopman, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1945, 147 F.2d 782, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 29, 326 U.S. 745, 90 L.Ed. 445.

378. Immigration offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Where defendant was observed bringing food into garage and driving persons away from "drop house" in his van and where evidence indicated that defendant had knowledge that illegal aliens were being transported in light of codefendant's arrest for transporting illegal aliens in defendant's vehicle, evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction of conspiracy to smuggle, induce, harbor and transport illegal aliens. U. S. v. Sanchez-Murillo, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1979, 608 F.2d 1314.

Indictment charging defendants with conspiracy to harbor and conceal an alien not lawfully entitled to enter or reside within the United States was sufficient where it alleged agreement between defendants to commit the particular specified offense, contained allegations either expressly or by necessary implication that defendant knowingly, willfully and jointly actually committed the offense so agreed on, and alleged overt acts. Reno v. U. S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1963, 317 F.2d 499, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 72, 375 U.S. 828, 11 L.Ed.2d 60.

Indictment charging conspiracy to conceal, harbor, shield and transport an alien not entitled to enter or reside in the United States charged an offense even though concert of action on part of the illegal alien and defendant was required, where an ingredient was alleged in the conspiracy not present in the completed crime, namely participation of at least one of defendant's co-conspirators in addition to participation of the alien. Reno v. U. S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1963, 317 F.2d 499, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 72, 375 U.S. 828, 11 L.Ed.2d 60.

An indictment for conspiracy to bring into the United States Chinese persons, contrary to the Chinese Exclusion Act, former § 263 et seq. of Title 8, need not allege that the Chinamen intended to be brought in did not belong to the classes excepted. Wing v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Fla.) 1922, 280 F. 112.

A count charging that defendant and others conspired, in violation of former § 88 of this title [now this section] and Chinese Immigration Act, former § 269 of Title 8, to bring Chinese persons, not lawfully entitled to enter, into the United States, and that in furtherance of the conspiracy one of the defendants delivered to another certain letters containing questions and answers to be used by the applicants, was not defective for failure to allege in detail what defendant did with records which were delivered and contained questions to be used by the applicants. Kaphan v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1920, 264 F. 323.

A count in an indictment charging that defendant and others conspired, in violation of former § 234 of this title, to conceal, remove, and mutilate public records of an immigration office, and that certain overt acts were committed, including the abstraction of certain official files pertaining to certain Chinese persons, was not defective for failure to allege what defendant did with the files and records, and whether the Chinese persons named therein were entitled to enter. Kaphan v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1920, 264 F. 323.

An indictment alleging that defendants conspired to secure the approval of the application of a Chinese person desiring to go abroad for preinvestigation of his claimed mercantile status was, in view of the requirement of the rule of the Department of Labor that application should be made 30 days before proposed departure, and the Chinese Exclusion Acts, insufficient, as it merely alleged defendants knew the applicant had not been a merchant for one year before his application. U.S. v. Fung Sam Wing, N.D.Cal.1918, 254 F. 500.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section], charging conspiracy to bring into the United States, in violation of § 269 of Title 8, Chinese persons not entitled to enter or remain, was sufficient, though giving the mere outlines of the plot. Lew Moy v. U S, C.C.A.8 (N.M.) 1916, 237 F. 50, 150 C.C.A. 252.

An indictment for conspiracy to bring in Chinese not entitled to enter under Chinese Exclusion Act, former § 263 et seq. of Title 8, charged a general conspiracy, so that names of Chinese need not be given or alleged to be unknown. Dahl v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1916, 234 F. 618, 148 C.C.A. 384.

Where an indictment alleged that defendants feloniously conspired with divers other persons, whose names were to the grand jurors unknown, to willfully, etc., aid and abet the landing of unknown Chinese persons in the United States from certain vessels, the names of which were to the grand jurors unknown, from ports or places in the empire of China to the grand jurors unknown, etc., and that, to effect the object of such conspiracy, defendant W.D., whose true name was to the grand jurors unknown, did bribe one B., deputy sheriff, in charge of certain Chinese persons whose names were unknown, who had been sentenced to deportation, to cause certain other Chinese persons, whose names were to the grand jurors unknown, to be substituted therefor, etc., it was not defective for failure to allege the detailed facts stated to be unknown. Wong Din v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1905, 135 F. 702, 68 C.C.A. 340.

An indictment charging a conspiracy to commit the offense of aiding and abetting the landing of Chinese laborers not entitled to enter the United States, by furnishing them with false and fraudulent evidence of identification, was sufficient under former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U.S. v. Wilson, D.C.Or.1894, 60 F. 890. Conspiracy  28(3)

Indictment properly charged defendants with conspiring to defraud United States by interfering with deportation of aliens. U S v. Sotak, M.D.Pa.1933, 2 F.Supp. 323.

379. Interstate commerce offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment was sufficient to charge defendants with conspiracy to cause victims of alleged extortion to travel in interstate commerce with intent to promote and facilitate extortion. U. S. v. De Cavalcante, C.A.3 (N.J.) 1971, 440 F.2d 1264.

An indictment for conspiracy to steal goods from a shipment in interstate commerce was not defective merely because it did not allege that a particular defendant took part in overt acts relied on. U.S. v. McCarthy, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1948, 170 F.2d 267.

In prosecution for conspiracy to interfere with interstate commerce, it was not necessary to allege with technical precision all the elements essential to the commission of the substantive offenses that were the object of the conspiracy. Ladner v. U. S., C.C.A.5 (La.) 1948, 168 F.2d 771, certiorari denied 69 S.Ct. 53, 335 U.S. 827, 93 L.Ed. 381.

An indictment charging dining car employees with conspiring to unlawfully take money from dining cars on trains moving in interstate commerce charges a crime against the United States. Stone v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1946, 153 F.2d 331.

Indictment which charged that defendants conspired, within jurisdiction of District Court which tried them, to transport stolen money in interstate commerce, and alleged overt acts committed in furtherance of conspiracy charged an offense over which District Court had jurisdiction, and indictment was therefore not fatally defective though it did not allege transportation of the stolen money from, into, or through the jurisdiction of such courts. Hickok v. Hunter, C.C.A.10 (Kan.) 1945, 150 F.2d 635, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 137, 326 U.S. 765, 90 L.Ed. 461.

Indictments, charging carrier's employees with conspiracy to collect for transportation accommodations more than regular fares fixed by tariffs and another employee with collecting for transportation accommodations more than regular fares fixed by tariffs, stated offenses though no participation or connivance by any carrier was alleged. Howitt v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Fla.) 1945, 150 F.2d 82, certiorari granted 66 S.Ct. 92, 326 U.S. 706, 90 L.Ed. 417, affirmed 66 S.Ct. 923, 328 U.S. 189, 90 L.Ed. 1162.

Indictment for conspiracy to violate law forbidding interstate transportation of prize fight films charged offense against United States. Cullen v. Esola, D.C.Cal.1927, 21 F.2d 877. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] which alleged that the defendants conspired among themselves "to steal from a certain railroad freight car certain goods then and there moving as and constituting a part of an interstate shipment of freight, with the intent then and there to convert said goods to their own use," was defective as not sufficiently identifying the offense with which the defendants were charged. Anderson v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Ark.) 1919, 260 F. 557, 171 C.C.A. 341. See, also, Booker v. U.S., Ark.1919, 260 F. 561, 171 C.C.A. 345. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

An indictment charging that defendants conspired together to violate former § 405 of this title, prohibiting the introduction of prize fight pictures, charged a violation of former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U.S. v. Johnston, N.D.N.Y.1916, 232 F. 970.

In an indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for a conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States, all facts necessary to constitute the conspiracy, including the overt act, must have been averred with all the particularity required in criminal pleadings, but no high degree of particularity was required in describing the offense to which the conspiracy related which was necessarily defined by the statute, and where an indictment charged a conspiracy to induce a shipper to receive rebates from railroad companies in violation of the federal statute, it was not essential to aver the names of such railroad companies which were not known to the grand jury. Thomas v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1907, 156 F. 897, 84 C.C.A. 477.

Under the Elkins Act, §§ 41 and 42 of Title 49, abolishing imprisonment as a punishment for offenses committed against the acts regulating interstate commerce, an indictment alleging that the agents of a shipper and the agents of a railroad company engaged in interstate commerce stipulated to give and receive rebates on the transportation of sugar from New York to Detroit, and thereafter gave and received such rebates in pursuance of such fraudulent conspiracy, merely alleged a violation of the Interstate Commerce Act, § 1 et seq. of Title 49, and was therefore not sustainable as alleging a conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States. U.S. v. New York Cent. & H.R.R. Co., C.C.S.D.N.Y.1906, 146 F. 298, affirmed 29 S.Ct. 304, 212 U.S. 481, 53 L.Ed. 613, affirmed 29 S.Ct. 309, 212 U.S. 500, 53 L.Ed. 624.

In an indictment for conspiracy to obtain an unlawful discrimination in rates by underweighing, the allegation that the railroad employé therein named was employed by the railroad to weigh the lumber shipped was material, so far as concerned the overt acts of underweighing therein charged, but it was immaterial whether he was generally employed for the purpose. U.S. v. Howell, W.D.Mo.1892, 56 F. 21. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

Indictment charging that defendants for purpose of bribery conspired to violate statute making it an offense to travel in interstate or foreign commerce or to use any facility in that commerce with the intent of furthering an unlawful activity and if there is in fact a furthering of the unlawful activity or an attempt to do so charged an offense over objection that giver and receiver of bribe cannot be prosecuted for conspiracy because crime of bribery requires participation of two parties, since indictment did not charge conspiracy to commit bribery. U. S. v. Corallo, S.D.N.Y.1968, 281 F.Supp. 24.

An indictment alleging that defendants entered into an unlawful conspiracy whereby certain defendants would produce excessive amounts of oil from described leases, and that certain other defendants, without authority of Texas Railroad Commission or Federal Tender Board, would cause oil to be manufactured into contraband products and sold in interstate commerce in violation of laws of United States sufficiently charged a "conspiracy" under former § 88 of this title [now this section] to violate Connally Hot Oil Act, §§ 715b, 715d, and 715e of Title 15, it being immaterial that certain allegations of fact were intended to show an unlawful undertaking to commit offenses under former § 80 of this title, concerning presenting false claims against United States. U.S. v. Gilliland, E.D.Tex.1940, 35 F.Supp. 181, probable jurisdiction noted 61 S.Ct. 33, reversed on other grounds 61 S.Ct. 518, 312 U.S. 86, 85 L.Ed. 598.

380. Jury offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Defendant was properly charged with conspiring to commit offenses against United States where, under indictment, substantive offenses were offenses of influencing a juror and of impeding justice, and the jurors were not parties to conspiracy. Slade v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Utah) 1936, 85 F.2d 786.

The averment, in an indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section], that defendants conspired to commit the "offense of corruptly endeavoring to influence a petit jury of the circuit court of the United States for the district of Oregon in the discharge of its duty," was insufficient, because it omitted any averment of facts constituting the offense for which the conspiracy was formed, by which it could be identified. U.S. v. Taffe, D.C.Or.1898, 86 F. 113. Conspiracy ↻ 43(6)

An allegation in an indictment that the defendants intended to influence the jury to return a large verdict in a case brought by the United States to condemn a right of way was insufficient, in failing to state facts showing that the effect of what was intended would have been to defraud the United States. U.S. v. Taffe, D.C.Or.1898, 86 F. 113. Conspiracy ↻ 43(10)

381. Labor offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment charging conspiracy to defraud the United States in effectuating, on behalf of union, compliance with former subsection (h) of § 159 of Title 29 by means of filing of false non-Communist, affidavits was sufficient. Dennis v. U.S., C.A.10 (Colo.) 1962, 302 F.2d 5.

An indictment for conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States by receiving money and things of value for or on behalf of defendant, the representative of employees employed in an industry affecting interstate commerce, from the employers of such employees, charged an offense. U. S. v. Downes, M.D.Pa.1958, 161 F.Supp. 291.

Indictment charging defendants with conspiracy to defraud United States by fraudulently effecting a compliance with the National Labor Relations Act, § 139(h) of Title 29, requiring non-Communist affidavits, by fraudulently obtaining for union use of facilities of National Labor Relations Board and by perverting and defeating administration of act by Board charged a conspiracy to defraud United States and sufficiently stated an offense against United States. U. S. v. Pezzati, D.C.Colo.1958, 160 F.Supp. 787.

In order that defendants may be held to answer charge of conspiracy to violate Fair Labor Standards Act, § 201 et seq. of Title 29, it must be alleged that employees against whom alleged conspiracy was directed were within coverage of said sections. U.S. v. Berke Cake Co., E.D.N.Y.1943, 50 F.Supp. 947.

382. Larceny, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Where an indictment averred that defendant, and S. and H. "together with divers other evil-disposed persons," did conspire to steal certain chattels, "the property of and in the possession of the United States," and that thereafter "the said S., together with the said divers other evil-disposed persons," in execution and furtherance of said conspiracy, did unlawfully and feloniously steal, etc., the indictment charged defendant with the conspiracy only, and not with the larceny. U.S. v. Gardner, C.C.N.D.N.Y.1890, 42 F. 829. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(1)

In an indictment for conspiracy to commit larceny, the averment of the commission of the larceny is an ample averment of an overt act. U.S. v. Gardner, C.C.N.D.N.Y.1890, 42 F. 829. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

In an indictment for conspiracy, the averment of the commission of larceny, which was the object of the conspiracy, sufficiently charges an overt act in furtherance of the conspiracy. U.S. v. Gardner, C.C.N.D.N.Y.1890, 42 F. 829. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(5)

383. Liquor offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations--Generally

In indictment for conspiracy to violate National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, and Tariff Act, § 1001 of Title 19, charge of violating treaty with Great Britain, which creates no offense, was surplusage. Ford v. U.S., U.S.Cal.1927, 47 S.Ct. 531, 273 U.S. 593, 71 L.Ed. 793.

An indictment charging a conspiracy to introduce liquors into the Indian country related to intrastate shipments only. Joplin Mercantile Co. v. U.S., U.S.Mo.1915, 35 S.Ct. 291, 236 U.S. 531, 59 L.Ed. 705.

Omission of any averment in indictment charging a conspiracy to introduce liquors into the Indian territory, that the conspiracy was to introduce such liquors from without the state, was not a defect in form to have been ignored under former § 556 of this title. Joplin Mercantile Co. v. U.S., U.S.Mo.1915, 35 S.Ct. 291, 236 U.S. 531, 59 L.Ed. 705.

Indictment charging plan to deceive by use of physicians' prescriptions to cover unlawful sale of liquor charged conspiracy to defraud government in regulating medicinal use of liquor. Wallenstein v. U.S., C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1928, 25 F.2d 708, certiorari denied 49 S.Ct. 13, 278 U.S. 608, 73 L.Ed. 534.

Indictment charging conspiracy to violate National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, charged offense against United States. U S v. Mayer, D.C.Pa.1927, 22 F.2d 827.

Count in prosecution for conspiracy to violate National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, sufficiently advised defendants of accusation. Olmstead v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1927, 19 F.2d 842, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 117, 275 U.S. 557, 72 L.Ed. 424, 72 L.Ed. 729, rehearing granted 48 S.Ct. 207, 276 U.S. 609, 72 L.Ed. 729, affirmed 48 S.Ct. 564, 277 U.S. 438, 72 L.Ed. 944.

Separate and distinct offenses were charged by counts for conspiracy and possession and manufacture of liquor. Perry v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Okla.) 1927, 18 F.2d 477.

Indictment for conspiracy to manufacture, unlawfully remove, and dispose of beer was defective in its reference to manufacture, not charged to be unlawful. U.S. v. Eisenminger, D.C.Del.1926, 16 F.2d 816.

Charge of conspiracy to violate National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, is insufficient to charge conspiracy to commit offense against United States. U.S. v. Eisenminger, D.C.Del.1926, 16 F.2d 816.

Indictment for conspiracy to violate National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, by manufacture of beer, and unlawful removal and disposal thereof, was insufficient. U.S. v. Eisenminger, D.C.Del.1926, 16 F.2d 816

An indictment for conspiracy to violate National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, need not allege that liquors were fit, sold, transported, or possessed for beverage purposes. Belvin v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (Va.) 1926, 12 F.2d 548, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 98, 273 U.S. 706, 71 L.Ed. 850.

An indictment of master and crew of schooner for acts committed 24 miles off coast did not charge violation of former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U.S. v. Archer, D.C.Ala.1926, 12 F.2d 137.

An indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States, by having withdrawal permits issued to a druggist in amounts exceeding the quantity to which he is entitled under the conditions and limitations of his basic permit and the department regulations, need not allege the amount to which he would be entitled thereunder. U.S. v. Catrow, D.C.N.Y.1922, 7 F.2d 510.

Conspiracy to commit an offense against United States, within former § 88 of this title [now this section] has been pleaded when it was shown the plan was to violate department rules made to guard against liquor traffic, authority for making which was given by Volstead Act, former § 83 of Title 27, and penalty for violating which was prescribed by former § 85 of Title 27. U.S. v. Catrow, D.C.N.Y.1922, 7 F.2d 510.

Former § 49 of Title 27 was intended to simplify indictments for conspiracy to violate National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27. Haynes v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1925, 4 F.2d 889, certiorari denied 45 S.Ct. 638, 268 U.S. 703, 69 L.Ed. 1166.

An indictment for conspiracy to unlawfully possess intoxicating liquor containing more than one-half of 1 per centum of alcohol by volume and fit for beverage purposes were sufficient to charge an offense. U.S. v. Bockol, D.C.Del.1924, 3 F.2d 197.

An indictment charging conspiracy under former § 88 of this title [now this section], to manufacture and sell distilled spirits for beverage purposes, was insufficient to charge a violation of the National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, in view of a failure to state that the spirits were fit for beverage purposes. Brauer v. U.S., C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1924, 299 F. 10. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(6)

In an indictment charging in separate counts a conspiracy to unlawfully manufacture whisky, to have in possession stills and apparatus designed and intended for the unlawful manufacture of whisky, and to unlawfully furnish, sell, and keep in possession whisky, the words "unlawfully" and "unlawful," in view of National Prohibition Act, former § 49 of Title 27, sufficiently excluded the exceptional cases in which the things charged could lawfully have been done under said section. U.S. v. Jones, E.D.Ill.1924, 298 F. 131.

An indictment for conspiracy to unlawfully manufacture or sell liquor need not allege that it was intended for beverage purposes, in view of National Prohibition Act, former §§ 12 and 49 of Title 27. U.S. v. Jones, E.D.Ill.1924, 298 F. 131.

Indictment charging conspiracy to unlawfully possess Mexican tequila, in violation of National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, alleging that defendants agreed to possess 1,000 quarts of tequila, and that the agreement intended using it for beverage purposes, was sufficient as against contention that indictment did not show that the liquor was intoxicating, or was fit for beverage purposes, or that possession was unlawful, since § 49 of Title 27 made it unnecessary to include defensive negative averments, and since the designation of the liquor as "Mexican tequila" was descriptive merely, and added nothing to and took nothing from the averment that the liquor was intoxicating, and since the averment that the liquor was intended for beverage purposes included averment that it was suitable for such purposes. Powers v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Tex.) 1923, 294 F. 512.

Insufficiency of an indictment for conspiracy to use nonbeverage alcohol for beverage purposes was not cured by verdict. Brenner v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1922, 287 F. 636.

An indictment charging in one count that defendants conspired to violate the National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, in that they "would then and there possess certain intoxicating liquors (describing them), contrary to the provisions of said act," and in the second count that the same persons, at the same time and place "unlawfully and knowingly did possess certain intoxicating liquors" described, was insufficient to charge an offense in either count. Hilt v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Fla.) 1922, 279 F. 421.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section], charging conspiracy to violate the National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, and a regulation of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, charged an offense, since it charged a conspiracy to commit a crime and the violation of the regulation would defraud the United States. Brolaski v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1922, 279 F. 1, certiorari denied 42 S.Ct. 381, 258 U.S. 625, 66 L.Ed. 797, certiorari denied 42 S.Ct. 589, 259 U.S. 586, 66 L.Ed. 1076.

An indictment for conspiracy to violate the National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, by possessing "certain intoxicating liquors [stating the number of cases], contrary to the provisions of said act," without alleging any facts to show that such possession was unlawful, either on account of the time, place, or purpose of the possession, or the character of the liquor, did not charge an offense. U.S. v. Dowling, S.D.Fla.1922, 278 F. 630.

That some of the defendants charged in an indictment for conspiracy to violate the National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, as shown by the averments were the intended purchasers of the liquor, which purchase is not in itself an offense did not render the indictment demurrable as to such defendants, where the ultimate purpose of the conspiracy as charged, to which such defendants were parties, was to effect the unlawful sale. U S v. Slater, E.D.Pa.1922, 278 F. 266.

Counts of an indictment charging that defendants conspired to possess intoxicating liquor with intent to use, in violation of the National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, and to effect the object of the conspiracy had possession of 600 quarts of liquor with intent so to use it, and conspired to transport intoxicating liquor without permit or without making record, and to effect the object of the conspiracy transported such liquor, were sufficient. Violette v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Mont.) 1922, 278 F. 163, certiorari denied 42 S.Ct. 382, 258 U.S. 626, 66 L.Ed. 798.

A count charging that defendants conspired to use and sell for beverage purposes a large quantity of distilled spirits manufactured from food, etc., and did make sales between July 1, 1919, and November 15, 1919, was good as charging an offense under the War Prohibition Act (temporary). Maresca v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1921, 277 F. 727, certiorari denied 42 S.Ct. 183, 257 U.S. 657, 66 L.Ed. 420.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] charging that defendants conspired to violate the National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, "in that they would unlawfully, willfully, and knowingly sell, barter, transport, deliver, furnish, and possess distilled spirits and intoxicating liquors otherwise than as authorized in the aforesaid act, * * * particularly Title 2 thereof" was insufficient, as too indefinite to charge any offense. U S v. Beiner, W.D.Pa.1921, 275 F. 704.

384. ---- Transportation, liquor offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment for conspiracy to possess and transport intoxicating liquor was sufficient. Rubio v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1927, 22 F.2d 766, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 213, 276 U.S. 619, 72 L.Ed. 734. See, also, U.S. v. Frank, D.C.R.1926, 12 F.2d 796; Belvin v. U.S., C.C.A.Va.1926, 12 F.2d 548; Ford v. U.S., C.C.A.Cal.1926, 10 F.2d 339, affirmed 47 S.Ct. 531, 273 U.S. 593, 71 L.Ed. 793; U.S. v. Olmstead, D.C.Wash.1925, 5 F.2d 712. Conspiracy ↪ 43(6)

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Indictment for conspiracy to transport intoxicating liquor must show it was to be fit for beverage purposes. Brown v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Ga.) 1927, 21 F.2d 827.

An indictment for conspiracy to import or transport intoxicating liquors unlawfully, charging the general purpose and alleging an overt act, is sufficient. U.S. v. Frank, D.C.R.I.1926, 12 F.2d 796.

An indictment charging conspiracy to violate National Prohibition Act, former § 12 of Title 27, through unlawful agreements to possess, sell, transport, store, and deal in intoxicating liquor, and specifying certain overt acts, was sufficient, without charging transportation to be without permit, in view of former § 49 of Title 27, nor was it invalid as charging various separate and distinct offenses in one count. Williams v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1925, 3 F.2d 933.

An indictment for conspiracy to possess, sell, and transport intoxicating liquor, sufficiently informed defendant of the nature and cause of the accusation against him, though the persons with whom the accused was alleged to have conspired, alleged in the indictment to be unknown to the grand jury, were known to that body. Leverkuhn v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Tex.) 1924, 297 F. 590, certiorari denied 45 S.Ct. 91, 266 U.S. 603, 69 L.Ed. 463. See, also, Briggs v. U.S., C.C.A.Tex.1924, 297 F. 593. Conspiracy ↪ 43(2)

An indictment charging that defendants did "unlawfully, willfully, and feloniously conspire to commit an offense against the United States, that is, to then and there willfully and unlawfully transport certain intoxicating liquors, to wit, whisky, the said transporting of such intoxicating liquors being then and there prohibited and unlawful," was sufficient to raise the necessary implication that the transportation was without permit. Huth v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Ky.) 1924, 295 F. 35.

In an indictment for conspiracy unlawfully to purchase and transport intoxicating liquor "without obtaining a permit so to do, that is to say, upon a false, forged, and fictitious permit," the averment quoted was not required to be proved, and was regarded as surplusage, and a prosecution on such indictment was a bar to a prosecution on a second indictment charging the same conspiracy unlawfully to purchase, transport, possess, and sell the liquor for beverage purposes. U.S. v. Weiss, N.D.Ill.1923, 293 F. 992.

An indictment charging that defendants conspired and agreed to unlawfully and willfully violate National Prohibition Act, former §§ 16, 22, and 39 of Title 27, in that two of them would transport intoxicating liquor from Canada to Cleveland and there sell it to the other defendant in violation of such sections, sufficiently charged the violation of law intended without charging that the transportation was to be without a permit, without making a record, etc. De Witt v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1923, 291 F. 995, certiorari denied 44 S.Ct. 134, 263 U.S. 714, 68 L.Ed. 521.

An indictment alleging that defendants conspired to import into, and to transport within, the United States intoxicating liquors, without a permit to do so, with averment of overt acts, was sufficient under former § 88 of this title [now this section] and the National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27. U.S. v. Drawdy, S.D.Fla.1923, 288 F. 567.

In view of Volstead Act, § 12 of Title 27, forbidding the transportation and possession of intoxicating liquor, except as therein authorized, and of regulation No. 60, forbidding the purchasing, etc., for nonbeverage purposes without a permit, an indictment charging conspiracy with F. and others to sell to F. whisky fit for beverage purposes, when defendant had no permit and F. had none to make a further sale, sufficiently charged a conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States, though buying intoxicating liquor is not a crime. U.S. v. Vannatta, E.D.N.Y.1922, 278 F. 559.

In an indictment charging conspiracy, under this section to violate the Reed Amendment (superseded in part), by transporting for beverage purposes intoxicating liquors into a state where the sale of such liquors for that purpose was prohibited, it was not necessary to charge that the transportation alleged as the overt act was for beverage purposes, since the overt act need not be in itself criminal. Grayson v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1921, 272 F. 553, certiorari denied 42 S.Ct. 49, 257 U.S. 637, 66 L.Ed. 409.

A charge of an indictment that the purpose of defendant was to wrongfully, unlawfully, and feloniously transport the liquor was sufficient to import an unlawful motive. Hockett v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Ariz.) 1920, 265 F. 588, certiorari denied 41 S.Ct. 13, 254 U.S. 638, 65 L.Ed. 451.

The indictment need not allege the place from which the liquors were to have been transported, since that need not have been agreed upon, but the purpose may have been to transport them into the state from any place where they could be procured. Hockett v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Ariz.) 1920, 265 F. 588, certiorari denied 41 S.Ct. 13, 254 U.S. 638, 65 L.Ed. 451.

In an indictment for conspiracy to ship liquor from California into Washington, in violation of former § 390 of this title, making it an offense to ship any package containing liquor from one state into another, "unless such package be so labeled on the outside cover as to plainly show the name of the consignee, the nature of its contents, and the quantity contained therein," it was not necessary to allege that the state of Washington was dry territory. Richards v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1920, 264 F. 654.

385. Lottery offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

The crime of conspiracy to violate lottery laws and lottery statute violations are not so closely connected as to render applicable a proposition that where a concert of action between two or more persons is logically necessary to a crime's completion, a charge of conspiracy will not lie against such persons. Woods v. U.S., C.A.D.C.1956, 240 F.2d 37, 99 U.S.App.D.C. 351, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 815, 353 U.S. 941, 1 L.Ed.2d 760, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 1385, 354 U.S. 926, 1 L.Ed.2d 1438.

An indictment for conspiracy to carry from one state to another a list of prizes drawn or awarded by lottery in violation of former § 387 of this title did not charge an offense, where transmission of "mutuel prices" was charged and such term was treated as being synonymous with "closing odds" for races, since "closing odds" were not lists of prizes drawn or awarded by lottery within said former section. U.S. v. Regan, N.D.Ill.1940, 39 F.Supp. 309.

386. Money laundering, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Allegations in indictment that defendants had knowingly and wilfully conducted financial transactions involving money that one defendant had embezzled from bank at which she was employed over three-year period, the last date of which was within five-year limitations period prior to filing of charges, were sufficient to charge defendants with conspiracy to commit money laundering. U.S. v. Blackwell, D.N.J.1997, 954 F.Supp. 944. Conspiracy 43(6)

387. Narcotics offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment for conspiring to violate Opium Act, § 171 et seq. of Title 21, sufficiently informed defendant of nature and cause of accusation. Wong Tai v. U.S., U.S.Cal.1927, 47 S.Ct. 300, 273 U.S. 77, 71 L.Ed. 545.

Conspiracy alleged in indictment had two objectives, namely, possession with intent to distribute cocaine and possession with intent to distribute marijuana; therefore, where defendants did not challenge sufficiency of proof as to marijuana prong of the conspiracy, evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for the conspiracy itself. U.S. v. Alvarez, C.A.11 (Fla.) 1984, 735 F.2d 461.

Inasmuch as defendant was specifically charged with conspiring to violate § 4705(a) of Title 26 with respect to narcotic offenses, reference to this section in indictment was miscitation and more specific statute dealing with narcotic offenses was controlling. Tanksley v. U. S., C.A.8 (Minn.) 1963, 321 F.2d 647.

Indictment alleging conspiracy to import marihuana contrary to law and to receive, conceal and sell marihuana, knowing it to have been imported contrary to law, was sufficient to charge conspiracy without specifying respect in which importation was illegal and statute which made it so, where such omissions were not relevant to defense. Williamson v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1962, 310 F.2d 192.

In count charging conspiracy to import marihuana contrary to law, conspiracy was gist of crime and it was not necessary to allege with technical precision all elements essential to commission of offense which was subject of conspiracy. Williamson v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1962, 310 F.2d 192.

Indictment charging defendant with conspiring to acquire marihuana without paying transfer tax, to transfer marihuana without written order required by §§ 4741, 4742 of Title 26, and to receive, conceal, sell and facilitate transportation, concealment and sale of unlawfully imported marihuana was not defective because of absence of allegations of a conspiracy to commit specifically designated offenses. Schnautz v. U.S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1959, 263 F.2d 525, certiorari denied 79 S.Ct. 1294, 360 U.S. 910, 3 L.Ed.2d 1260.

Separate indictments for conspiracy to unlawfully import cocaine, to deal in cocaine without registering and paying the special tax, and for importing and dealing in the same without registering and paying the tax, did not charge the same offense, but each a different offense. Vlassis v. U. S., C.C.A.9 (Ariz.) 1925, 3 F.2d 905.

It is not necessary to include in a charge of unlawful importation of opium the names of persons who received the opium from one alleged to be a conspirator, since such receiver is not necessarily one of the conspirators, as, for instance, where he received the opium innocently. Iponmatsu Ukichi v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Hawai'i) 1922, 281 F. 525, certiorari denied 43 S.Ct. 92, 260 U.S. 729, 67 L.Ed. 485.

An indictment for conspiring to commit the offense of receiving, concealing, buying, selling, and facilitating the transportation, concealment, and sale of opium prepared for smoking and imported from a foreign country was sufficient. Proffitt v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1920, 264 F. 299.

An indictment charging conspiracy to obtain certain drugs for purposes other than those specified in the statute need not set forth specifically what was the wrongful object or purpose. U.S. v. D'Arcy, D.C.R.I.1916, 243 F. 739.

An indictment charging a similar conspiracy was sufficient to allege the conspiracy to dispose of drugs in the First District of Illinois, in which it was charged that accused's coconspirator was not registered, and not defective for failure to aver the coconspirator had not registered his place of business. Wallace v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1917, 243 F. 300, 156 C.C.A. 80, certiorari denied 38 S.Ct. 11, 245 U.S. 650, 62 L.Ed. 531.

An indictment charging a conspiracy to violate the Harrison Act, § 2550 et seq. of Title 26, regulating the sale of narcotics, fully informed the defendants of the charge, so as to be sufficient to put them on trial. Thurston v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Tex.) 1917, 241 F. 335, 154 C.C.A. 215, certiorari denied 38 S.Ct. 9, 245 U.S. 646, 62 L.Ed. 529.

Charging of offenses in the conjunctive which are in the statute in the disjunctive is in accordance with a well-known rule of criminal pleading, and an indictment was sufficient where this method of pleading was adopted in describing, as the offense which the defendants were alleged to have conspired to commit, the offense specified in § 172 et seq. of Title 21, prohibiting the fraudulent importation of opium. Shepard v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1916, 236 F. 73, 149 C.C.A. 283.

An indictment charging defendant with conspiring to have opium in the possession of M. was insufficient, in absence of a charge that M. had it in his possession for any of the purposes for which he would have to register and pay the tax. U S v. Jin Fuey Moy, W.D.Pa.1915, 225 F. 1003, affirmed 36 S.Ct. 658, 241 U.S. 394, 60 L.Ed. 1061.

An indictment which expressly alleged that the defendants did wilfully, unlawfully and feloniously conspire together and with divers other persons "to wilfully, fraudulently and knowingly receive and conceal" a certain quantity of opium "which they then and there knew had been imported into the United States contrary to law" sufficiently charged that the overt acts alleged were committed "knowingly, unlawfully and feloniously," and sufficiently alleged a conspiracy to do an unlawful act. Jung Quey v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1915, 222 F. 766, 138 C.C.A. 314.

Government adequately alleged that conspiracy to interfere with witnesses was single conspiracy, even if various offenses charged as objectives of conspiracy involved murder of individual witnesses or attempts to intimidate or solicit murder of individual witnesses, since government alleged that entire purpose of conspiracy was concealment of conspirator's drug trafficking activities. U.S. v. Johnson, N.D.Iowa 2002, 239 F.Supp.2d 897, reconsideration denied 270 F.Supp.2d 1060. Conspiracy ⤵ 43(2)

Indictment plainly drawn under this section for alleged conspiracy to buy or distribute narcotics not in or from original stamped package did not allege offense of class defined by § 7237 of Title 26 governing enhanced penalties for second narcotics offenses. U. S. v. Panebianco, E.D.N.Y.1963, 212 F.Supp. 590.

Indictment, charging conspiracy unlawfully to import a narcotic, sufficiently charged commission of an overt act in pursuance of conspiracy. U. S. v. Litterio, S.D.Tex.1957, 153 F.Supp. 329, affirmed 244 F.2d 956, certiorari denied 78 S.Ct. 75, 355 U.S. 849, 2 L.Ed.2d 58, certiorari denied 81 S.Ct. 818, 365 U.S. 852, 5 L.Ed.2d 817, certiorari denied 82 S.Ct. 1153, 369 U.S. 880, 8 L.Ed.2d 282.

An indictment for conspiracy to violate § 3220 of Title 26 by wholesaler's sale of narcotic drugs to physician pursuant to official order form used to obtain drugs for unlawful purpose was not bad as not adequately informing defendant wholesaler of nature and cause of accusation because it left determination of amount of such drugs which may be dispensed by licensees to discretion of court or jury, thereby delegating to them Congress' power to define crime in violation of U.S.C.A.Const. Amends. 5 and 6. U.S. v. Direct Sales Co., W.D.S.C.1941, 40 F.Supp. 917.

Indictment charging that named persons conspired together for the purpose of effecting certain unlawful objects, which were set forth, and charging that certain overt acts were committed in furtherance of the conspiracy was sufficient. U S v. Stromberg, S.D.N.Y.1957, 22 F.R.D. 513.

388. Neutrality laws, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

An indictment was sufficient to charge a conspiracy to set on foot a "military enterprise" within the meaning of that term as used in former § 25 of this title. U.S. v. Tauscher, S.D.N.Y.1916, 233 F. 597.

An indictment that defendants conspired to set on foot or provide means for a military enterprise against Canada was a mere conclusion, and did not charge a conspiracy to do any acts which would constitute a setting on foot of a military enterprise or a providing of means therefor, nor was it aided by allegations as to defendants' intention, since an attempt to destroy tunnels, etc., was not necessarily a military enterprise, especially as it was not even alleged that the purpose of such destruction was to prevent the transportation of munitions of war. U.S. v. Bopp, N.D.Cal.1916, 230 F. 723.

389. Obstruction of justice, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

In an indictment charging a conspiracy corruptly and by threats and force to obstruct the due administration of justice in a United States court, the combination of minds for the unlawful purpose and the overt act in effectuation of that purpose must be averred, and it must also be averred and proved that the accused knew that the witness or officer was a witness or officer in order to convict of the charge of impeding such witness or officer in the discharge of his duty, and the accused should have knowledge or notice or information of the pendency of the proceedings before he can be found guilty of obstructing the same. Pettibone v. U.S., U.S. Idaho 1893, 13 S.Ct. 542, 148 U.S. 197, 37 L.Ed. 419. See, also, Fletcher v. U.S., 1914, 42 App.D.C. 53.

Indictment which charged that defendants "did unlawfully, willfully and knowingly, conspire, combine, confederate, and agree, together and with each other * * * to obstruct the due administration of justice in the federal grand jury investigation" of defendant, sufficiently stated that prosecution was for conspiring to commit offense against United States, as opposed to conspiring to defraud United States. U.S. v. Lahey, C.A.7 (Ind.) 1995, 55 F.3d 1289, rehearing denied. Conspiracy ↪ 43(11)

Indictment charging defendant and others with the conspiratorial object and purpose of obstructing justice and stealing government property by obtaining and passing on secret grand jury information, as well as alleged overt act in furtherance of alleged agreement, sufficiently charged the requisite elements of a conspiracy. U.S. v. Jeter, C.A.6 (Ky.) 1985, 775 F.2d 670, certiorari denied 106 S.Ct. 1796, 475 U.S. 1142, 90 L.Ed.2d 341.

Indictment alleging that as a part of a conspiracy defendants would willfully and knowingly endeavor by means of bribery and intimidation to obstruct, delay and prevent the communication of information by named individual relating to violations of specified narcotics statute to special agents of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, and that defendants did so, sufficiently alleged both the conspiracy and the substantive offense. U.S. v. Lippman, C.A.6 (Mich.) 1974, 492 F.2d 314, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 779, 419 U.S. 1107, 42 L.Ed.2d 803

Count of indictment charging two Congressmen and two other defendants with conspiracy to defraud United States of its right to have official business of Department of Justice conducted honestly, to have personnel of Department of Justice free of unlawful, improper, and undue pressure, to have Congressmen free from corruption, and not to be deprived of faithful, loyal and conscientious services of Congressmen was not vague and indefinite. U. S. v. Johnson, C.A.4 (Md.) 1964, 337 F.2d 180, certiorari granted 85 S.Ct. 703, 379 U.S. 988, 13 L.Ed.2d 609, affirmed 86 S.Ct. 749, 383 U.S. 169, 15 L.Ed.2d 681, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 134, 385 U.S. 889, 17 L.Ed.2d 117, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 44, 385 U.S. 846, 17 L.Ed.2d 77.

Count of indictment charging defendants with conspiracy to obstruct administration of justice was sufficient to authorize conviction notwithstanding the conspiracy was entered into at a time when there was no proceeding pending in federal district court, where the conspiracy continued into a period when there were proceedings pending in that court and acts in furtherance of the conspiracy were committed both prior to and after the commencement of such proceedings. U.S. v. Perlstein, C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1942, 126 F.2d 789, certiorari denied 62 S.Ct. 1106, 316 U.S. 678, 86 L.Ed. 1752.

Where defendants organized to suppress evidence and to keep persons, who were familiar with operations of still, from disclosing what they knew to any investigating agency, indictment charging conspiracy to obstruct justice could not be defeated on theory that offense, if any, was misprision of felony. U.S. v. Perlstein, C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1942, 126 F.2d 789, certiorari denied 62 S.Ct. 1106, 316 U.S. 678, 86 L.Ed. 1752.

An indictment charging a conspiracy to defraud the United States of and concerning its governmental function to be honestly and faithfully represented in the courts of the United States by an Assistant United States Attorney to prosecute delinquents for crimes free from corruption, dishonesty, and improper influence, sufficiently apprised defendants of the charge against them with reasonable particularity as to the persons, time, place, and circumstances. U.S. v. Glasser, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1940, 116 F.2d 690, certiorari granted 61 S.Ct. 835, 313 U.S. 551, 85 L.Ed. 1515, modified on other grounds 62 S.Ct. 457, 315 U.S. 60, 86 L.Ed. 680, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 629, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 637, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222.

An indictment alleging that defendants conspired to defraud the United States of and concerning its governmental function to be honestly and faithfully represented in the courts of the United States by an Assistant United States Attorney to prosecute delinquents for crimes free from corruption, dishonesty, and improper influence, and that defendants solicited and used money to influence the attorney in his official functions, charged a "conspiracy" to defraud the United States, as against contention that indictment alleged a case where concerted action was necessary and that conspiracy would not lie in such case. U.S. v. Glasser, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1940, 116 F.2d 690, certiorari granted 61 S.Ct. 835, 313 U.S. 551, 85 L.Ed. 1515, modified on other grounds 62 S.Ct. 457, 315 U.S. 60, 86 L.Ed. 680, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 629, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 637, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222.

An indictment charging a general conspiracy constituting an agreement between a Circuit Judge and an acquaintance by the terms of which, without a time limit, acquaintance should seek out litigants and parties, known or unknown, who were interested in suits then or thereafter pending and in effect represent to each of them that judge would accept money in return for corrupt judicial action by him favorable to the interests of those who paid, charged a conspiracy to obstruct the administration of justice and to defraud the United States as a single continuing offense, and did not charge a number of distinct offenses. U.S. v. Manton, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1939, 107 F.2d 834, certiorari denied 60 S.Ct. 590, 309 U.S. 664, 84 L.Ed. 1012.

Indictment alleging that defendants conspired to endeavor to obstruct, corruptly, due administration of justice in criminal prosecution by stating to defendant therein that for a large sum of money, they would bring about corruptly a dismissal of indictment against him, sufficiently charged acts constituting obstruction to administration of justice. Craig v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1936, 81 F.2d 816, certiorari dismissed 56 S.Ct. 670, 298 U.S. 637, 80 L.Ed. 1371, certiorari dismissed 56 S.Ct. 671, 298 U.S. 637, 80 L.Ed. 1371, rehearing denied 83 F.2d 450, certiorari denied 56 S.Ct. 959, 298 U.S. 690, 80 L.Ed. 1408, rehearing denied 57 S.Ct. 6, 299 U.S. 620, 81 L.Ed. 457.

Indictment alleging that defendants conspired to endeavor to obstruct, corruptly, due administration of justice by corruptly obtaining dismissal of indictment against another and alleging that conspiracy was to be carried out in certain ways, including payment of $50,000 by the other, alleged completed and unconditional conspiracy, notwithstanding the other did not in fact pay money. Craig v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1936, 81 F.2d 816, certiorari dismissed 56 S.Ct. 670, 298 U.S. 637, 80 L.Ed. 1371, certiorari dismissed 56 S.Ct. 671, 298 U.S. 637, 80 L.Ed. 1371, rehearing denied 83 F.2d 450, certiorari denied 56 S.Ct. 959, 298 U.S. 690, 80 L.Ed. 1408, rehearing denied 57 S.Ct. 6, 299 U.S. 620, 81 L.Ed. 457.

In indictment charging conspiracy to obstruct due administration of justice in certain prosecution, statements of complete details of plan could not have prejudiced defendants' substantial rights, although complete details were not required to have been alleged. Craig v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1936, 81 F.2d 816, certiorari dismissed 56 S.Ct. 670, 298 U.S. 637, 80 L.Ed. 1371, certiorari dismissed 56 S.Ct. 671, 298 U.S. 637, 80 L.Ed. 1371, rehearing denied 83 F.2d 450, certiorari denied 56 S.Ct. 959, 298 U.S. 690, 80 L.Ed. 1408, rehearing denied 57 S.Ct. 6, 299 U.S. 620, 81 L.Ed. 457.

Count of indictment charging conspiracy to "defraud" United States was sufficient, where based on giving of false testimony in certain case before grand jury, since government was to be defrauded of doing justice, and defrauding meant by former § 88 of this title [now this section] was not only pecuniary loss but also any defeat of lawful governmental function. Outlaw v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Tex.) 1936, 81 F.2d 805, certiorari denied 56 S.Ct. 747, 298 U.S. 665, 80 L.Ed. 1389.

Indictment charging conspiracy to obstruct justice by giving certain false testimony before grand jury was sufficient to apprise defendant of charge. Outlaw v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Tex.) 1936, 81 F.2d 805, certiorari denied 56 S.Ct. 747, 298 U.S. 665, 80 L.Ed. 1389.

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Indictment charging defendants with conspiracy to corruptly administer and procure administration of acts of Congress for promotion of their own political interests and for their financial gain was sufficient to allege conspiracy to defraud. Langer v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1935, 76 F.2d 817.

Indictment charging conspiracy to institute false prosecution against government witness was sufficient. Harper v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Ark.) 1928, 27 F.2d 77.

An indictment for conspiracy to violate former § 250 of this title, by extorting money for not informing of a violation of a law of the United States, was sufficient. Roberts v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1918, 248 F. 873, 160 C.C.A. 631, certiorari denied 38 S.Ct. 583, 247 U.S. 522, 62 L.Ed. 1247.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for conspiring to commit an offense against the United States by obstructing the due administration of justice in a court of the United States, in violation of former § 241 of this title, was good. Wilder v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (W.Va.) 1906, 143 F. 433, 74 C.C.A. 567, certiorari denied 27 S.Ct. 787, 204 U.S. 674, 51 L.Ed. 674. See, also, Sneed v. U.S., C.C.A.Tex.1924, 298 F. 911, 37 A.L.R. 772, certiorari denied 44 S.Ct. 635, 265 U.S. 590, 68 L.Ed. 1195. Conspiracy ↪ 34

In prosecution for conspiracy to obstruct justice by influencing petit juror and for corruptly endeavoring to influence juror in discharge of his duty, in view of allegation in indictment that a juror was given $1,000 and "other things of value," government would be directed, on motion, to clarify such vague phrase and provide list of specific items, and to provide dates or approximate dates of "approximately six occasions" on which money was given to juror and to indicate whether allegations in one count were tape recorded or otherwise monitored, and, if so, indicate tape and section thereof on which statement appeared. U.S. v. Osticco, M.D.Pa.1983, 563 F.Supp. 727.

Since defendants were charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice, one defendant's prior conviction of a substantive offense was not an essential element of charge in indictment. U. S. v. Hubbard, D.C.D.C.1979, 474 F.Supp. 64.

Indictment was sufficient to charge defendants with a corrupt endeavor to obstruct justice in relation to Securities and Exchange Commission investigation of, and subsequent agency and judicial proceedings against, named individual and conspiracy to obstruct justice and to defraud the United States, despite contention that the "means" alleged in indictment did not constitute violations of section 1501 et seq. of this title. U. S. v. Mitchell, S.D.N.Y.1973, 372 F.Supp. 1239, appeal dismissed 485 F.2d 1290.

Indictment charging defendants with conspiring to defraud United States and agencies thereof in connection with government's lawful function to have its business and affairs conducted honestly and impartially and free from fraud, undue influence and obstructions; and government's lawful right to have its officers and employees free to transact official business unhindered by exertion on them of dishonest and undue pressure and influence was within prohibition embraced by this section outlawing schemes to defraud United States or to interfere with or obstruct lawful governmental functions by deceit. U. S. v. Sweig, S.D.N.Y.1970, 316 F.Supp. 1148.

Indictment charging defendants with conspiring to defraud United States, to obstruct justice and to commit perjury based on alleged agreement among defendants at a meeting that if they were asked by anyone, including federal grand juries, about nature and circumstances of meeting, they would endeavor to frustrate the inquiry by evasion, silence or lies, alleged criminal offenses and not just a conspiracy to conceal a crime, and indictment was sufficient. U S v. Bonanno, S.D.N.Y.1959, 177 F.Supp. 106, on subsequent appeal 285 F.2d 408.

Indictment charging a conspiracy to obstruct and mislead grand juries to be convened, last overt act in furtherance of which was committed only a few days before filing of indictment, was not deficient because it did not allege that there was a particular grand jury in session at the moment when the alleged conspiracy was formed. U S v. Bonanno, S.D.N.Y.1959, 177 F.Supp. 106, on subsequent appeal 285 F.2d 408.

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

A count of indictment, charging that named persons unlawfully conspired to defraud United States in exercise of governmental function of administering and enforcing criminal laws and to influence, obstruct and impede due administration of justice, in violation of § 1503 of this title, prescribing punishment for endeavoring to influence, obstruct or impede administration of justice corruptly or by threats or force, sufficiently charged conspiracy to violate such section. U S v. Brothman, S.D.N.Y.1950, 93 F.Supp. 924.

390. Packers and Stockyards Act, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

An indictment for conspiracy to violate the Packers and Stockyards Act, § 181 et seq. of Title 7, which did not allege any hearing, finding, or order of the Secretary under §§ 213 to 215 of Title 7 did not charge a conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States within former § 88 of this title [now this section]. U.S. v. Brown, D.C.Okla.1925, 4 F.2d 270.

391. Pensions, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] was sufficient when it charged that defendants conspired together to fraudulently obtain a pension for one of them in the name of a dead soldier, and that they knowingly caused to be made and presented to the commissioner of pensions a false affidavit in support of a claim for such pension,--an act made criminal by former § 126 of Title 38. U.S. v. Adler, S.D.Iowa 1892, 49 F. 736. Conspiracy ↪ 43(10)

392. Perjury and subornation of perjury, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Any doubt as to whether the allegations of an indictment charging a conspiracy to suborn the commission of perjury in proceedings to purchase public land under the Timber and Stone Act, § 311 et seq. of Title 43, embrace a conspiracy to suborn perjury in respect to the making of final proofs, as well as in making the original applications, must be resolved in favor of the accused. Williamson v. U.S., U.S.Or.1908, 28 S.Ct. 163, 207 U.S. 425, 52 L.Ed. 278.

The object of the conspiracy is sufficiently charged where the allegations plainly import that the unlawful agreement contemplates a future solicitation of unnamed individuals to enter public lands under the Timber and Stone Act, § 311 et seq. of Title 43, who is so doing will necessarily knowingly state and subscribe under oath, before a named person, stated to be a United States commissioner of the district of Oregon material false statements as to their purpose in respect to entering the land, known to be such by the conspirators. Williamson v. U.S., U.S.Or.1908, 28 S.Ct. 163, 207 U.S. 425, 52 L.Ed. 278.

Indictment charging accuseds with conspiring with others to induce defendants in criminal trial to tell a false story at trial and to impede administration of justice and to suborn perjury was sufficient. U. S. v. Root, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1966, 366 F.2d 377, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 861, 386 U.S. 912, 17 L.Ed.2d 784.

Indictment charging conspiracy to impede and obstruct justice by perjury need not allege details of means to be used and precise false testimony to be given. Outlaw v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Tex.) 1936, 81 F.2d 805, certiorari denied 56 S.Ct. 747, 298 U.S. 665, 80 L.Ed. 1389.

Indictment charging conspiracy to commit offense against United States by violating former § 232 of this title, making penal a subornation of perjury, was not invalid as against contention that inducing by one person of another to swear falsely could not have been conspiracy to violate said former section. Outlaw v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Tex.) 1936, 81 F.2d 805, certiorari denied 56 S.Ct. 747, 298 U.S. 665, 80 L.Ed. 1389.

Where an indictment charged that defendants willfully, etc., conspired at a particular time and place within the district to suborn certain named persons at a stated time, before one alleged to be the duly appointed, qualified, and acting register of the land office at R., by applying pursuant to Timber and Stone Act, § 311 et seq. of Title 43, for certain of the public lands of the United States by swearing to and filing with such land officer a statement required by said sections and regulations of the Land Department alleging that the applicant did not apply to purchase for speculation but in good faith and to appropriate to his own exclusive use and benefit, etc.; whereas, in truth the statement was willfully false and intended to be so by each of them, in that it was intended that each should have a distinct agreement with the defendants that the land should be for defendant's benefit, the indictment was not fatally defective for failure to show that the precise piece or pieces of land to be acquired had been agreed on by the alleged conspirators at the time the conspiracy was formed or for failure to allege the persons to be suborned or the particular time and place of such subornation, but the indictment sufficiently stated the offense of conspiracy to defraud the United States denounced by former § 88 of this title [now this section]. Dwinnell v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1911, 186 F. 754, 108 C.C.A. 624.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for conspiracy to defraud the United States of public lands and to commit an offense against the United States by suborning entrymen to commit perjury in making oath to homestead affidavits, was sufficient. Richards v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1909, 175 F. 911, 99 C.C.A. 401.

Where an indictment for conspiracy to induce certain persons to commit perjury in the making of public land entries alleged that the acts were knowingly done, and that defendants knew that the entrymen were applying to purchase the lands on speculation, and not in good faith, to appropriate the same to their exclusive use and benefit, the indictment was not fatally defective for failure in terms to allege that such acts were "willfully" committed under former § 556 of this title. Nickell v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Or.) 1908, 161 F. 702, 88 C.C.A. 562, affirmed 167 F. 741, 93 C.C.A. 229, certiorari denied 29 S.Ct. 699, 214 U.S. 517, 53 L.Ed. 1064.

Where the facts alleged, in an indictment for conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States by subornation of perjury in proceedings to acquire public lands, necessarily import willfulness on the part of the persons giving such testimony, the failure of the indictment to use the word itself is not fatal. Van Gesner v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Or.) 1907, 153 F. 46, 82 C.C.A. 180.

An indictment charging that defendants unlawfully conspired with another to commit an offense against the United States, by causing the violation of former § 139 of this title, in this: That they induced 21 persons named to obtain certificates of citizenship by means of false statements, made with intent to procure such certificates; that such other party, to effect such object, appeared before the district court of the United States and the superior court of the state, and made certain false statements to such courts, with intent to procure the issuance of such certificates of citizenship under the laws relating to the naturalization of aliens; that such false statements were to the effect that such persons had resided in the state one year at least, which statement was false--did not charge against the defendants any offense against the United States, as an indictment charging a conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States by violation of said former section, must have alleged that the persons who should obtain, accept, or receive certificates of citizenship should do so with knowledge that they had been procured by means of false statements, made with the intent to procure or aid in procuring the issue of such certificates. U.S. v. Melfi, D.C.Del.1902, 118 F. 899.

The indictment did not charge conspiracy to violate former § 142 of this title, as to false swearing in naturalization proceedings. U.S. v. Melfi, D.C.Del.1902, 118 F. 899.

Indictment charging defendants with conspiring to defraud the United States, to obstruct justice, and to commit perjury based on alleged agreement among defendants at a meeting that if they were asked by anyone, including federal grand juries, about nature and circumstances of meeting they would endeavor to frustrate the inquiry by evasion, silence or lies, sufficiently apprised the defendants of what they must prepare to meet, and was not too vague. U S v. Bonanno, S.D.N.Y.1959, 177 F.Supp. 106, on subsequent appeal 285 F.2d 408.

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

393. Postal offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations--Generally

An indictment for conspiracy to violate provisions of postal laws relating to salary of postmasters was sufficient. U.S. v. Foster, U.S.Mass.1914, 34 S.Ct. 666, 233 U.S. 515, 58 L.Ed. 1074.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section], charging conspiracy to violate former § 334 of this title, by sending through the mails indecent matter of a character tending to incite murder and assassination, was sufficient, without setting out the matter. U.S. v. Wells, W.D.Wash.1917, 262 F. 833.

A conspiracy to rob the custodian of certain mail matter was sufficient though it did not (1) state with technical accuracy the relationship of the named custodian to the mail; (2) specify the nature of the mail matter or its destination; (3) allege that the defendants knew the mail was part of the United States mail; (4) allege intent other than by the general averment of wilfulness, or (5) allege the place of the performance of the conspiracy. Vane v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Idaho) 1918, 254 F. 28, 165 C.C.A. 438.

Under laws then in force defining second-class mail matter, and the rate of postage thereon, an indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States by securing for papers sent out in addition to the regular circulation the one cent a pound rate instead of the one cent for four ounce rate was insufficient, where it did not allege that the papers were designed primarily for advertising purposes or for free circulation or for circulation at nominal rates. U.S. v. Atlanta Journal Co., C.C.N.D.Ga.1911, 185 F. 656, error dismissed 33 S.Ct. 775, 229 U.S. 605, 57 L.Ed. 1348.

An indictment for conspiracy to commit the offense described in former § 324 of this title, which failed to allege that defendants conspired to "knowingly and wilfully" obstruct or retard the passage of the mails, in the manner set out, was fatally defective. Conrad v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (La.) 1904, 127 F. 798, 62 C.C.A. 478.

Where an indictment for conspiracy to knowingly and wilfully obstruct the passage of the mails was defective for failure to charge that defendants conspired to "knowingly and wilfully" obstruct the mails, the defect was not cured by the allegation that they did "knowingly, unlawfully, and feloniously combine, conspire," etc., to obstruct the mails, or by the part of the indictment charging the overt act alleging that such act was "knowingly and willfully" committed. Conrad v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (La.) 1904, 127 F. 798, 62 C.C.A. 478.

An indictment charging that defendants conspired together to obstruct a mail train must allege that the defendants knew that the mails were carried upon the train which they conspired to obstruct. Salla v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Idaho) 1900, 104 F. 544, 44 C.C.A. 26.

An indictment charging conspiracy, and overt acts in pursuance thereof, to obstruct the United States mails under former § 324 of this title need not allege that the acts done were done "feloniously," since the offense of obstructing the mails was not a common-law felony. U.S. v. Debs, N.D.Ill.1895, 65 F. 210.

Where an indictment for conspiracy to obstruct the United States mails charged the defendants with the overt acts of retarding the mail trains it was not necessary to charge them with having known at the time that the trains carried the mails. U.S. v. Debs, N.D.Ill.1895, 65 F. 210.

An indictment charging railway officials with conspiring to deceive the postal officers and defraud the United States by sending old newspapers through the mails to increase the mails when they were being weighed was sufficient under former § 88 of this title. U.S. v. Newton, S.D.Iowa 1892, 52 F. 275.

Editorials advocating restoration of celestial or plural marriages because God allegedly has restored the principle thereof did not contain "obscene", "lewd", or "lascivious" matter within former § 334 of this title denouncing as a crime the mailing of such matter and indictment charging conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States by mailing copies of publication containing such editorials did not state a Federal offense. U S v. Barlow,

394. ---- Mail fraud, postal offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Upon a charge of conspiracy to commit an offense described in former § 338 of this title, it must have been alleged in the indictment and established by the evidence that the persons charged intended to effect this scheme, by opening or intending to open correspondence with some other person through the post office establishment, or by inciting such other person to open communication with them; and that, in carrying out such scheme, such persons either deposited a letter or packet in the post office, or took or received one therefrom. Stokes v. U.S., U.S.Ala.1895, 15 S.Ct. 617, 157 U.S. 187, 39 L.Ed. 667.

The second requisite of such an indictment, namely, a charge that defendants intended to effect the scheme by opening correspondence with some other person through the post-office department, or by inciting such other person to open communication with them, was sufficiently complied with by an allegation that the post-office establishment of the United States was to be used for the purpose of executing such scheme to defraud, pursuant to said conspiracy, by opening correspondence with said persons, and by inciting said persons to open correspondence with defendants by means of said post-office establishment. Stokes v. U.S., U.S.Ala.1895, 15 S.Ct. 617, 157 U.S. 187, 39 L.Ed. 667. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(9); Postal Service ⚡ 48(4.7)

Deficiency in mail fraud conspiracy count of indictment in failing to sufficiently identify underlying mail fraud did not prejudice defendant, and thus did not require reversal of conviction; months before trial, district court decision on defense motion informed defendant that it was necessary to prove for defendant charged inflated rates in order to make alleged kickbacks, documents provided during discovery reveal overcharges that formed basis for conspiracy, and defendant took 24 days to present his defense, thoroughly exploring his involvement. U.S. v. Yefsky, C.A.1 (Mass.) 1993, 994 F.2d 885.

Indictment, alleging agreement among defendants to knowingly and willfully devise and intend to devise scheme to obtain money by means of false and fraudulent pretenses and, for purposes of executing scheme, to knowingly cause to be delivered by mail letters, policies, claims, proofs of losses, and other matters required in processing insurance claims, and, to further execute scheme, to transmit sounds in interstate commerce by means of telephone, and setting out specifics as the overt act committed in furtherance of the conspiracy, sufficiently set forth elements of conspiracy to commit mail fraud and wire fraud. U.S. v. Gordon, C.A.5 (Miss.) 1986, 780 F.2d 1165.

Count of indictment charging conspiracy to defraud by use of United States mails was sufficiently detailed and unambiguous to apprise defendants of the range of activities alleged to be unlawful, including both illegalities related to home repair business and to stock transaction, where any doubt as to interpretation of paragraph that defendants were charged with falsely representing their business and services it would perform prior to inducing victim to buy stock was resolved by portion of indictment setting forth overt acts which referred to business dealings and "checks" received before stock transaction was ever broached. U. S. v. Clark, C.A.7 (Ind.) 1981, 649 F.2d 534.

Claims that indictment was inadequate and duplicitous, that conspiracy count should have been stricken, that motion for bill of particulars should not have been denied, that prior indictment should not have been superseded, that prosecutor was guilty of improper summation, that certain instructions should not have been given and that sentence was improper did not warrant reversal of conviction for using mails to defraud in sale of securities, using mails in furtherance of scheme to defraud and conspiracy. U. S. v. Dinneen, C.A.5 (La.) 1970, 421 F.2d 834, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 81, 400 U.S. 840, 27 L.Ed.2d 75.

Indictment was not ambiguous because it charged conspiracy and outlined alleged mail fraud, where indictment charged defendant with having conspired to commit offenses in violation of § 1341 of this title, and indictment was in proper form. Mee v. U. S., C.A.8 (Minn.) 1963, 316 F.2d 467, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 1923, 377 U.S. 997,

12 L.Ed.2d 1049, rehearing denied 85 S.Ct. 20, 379 U.S. 873, 13 L.Ed.2d 80.

Where eight-count indictment charged in counts one through seven that defendant's alleged coconspirator had committed mail fraud and had fraudulently concealed and transferred assets in contemplation of bankruptcy and where the last count of indictment charged defendant with conspiracy to commit mail fraud and conspiracy to conceal assets in contemplation of bankruptcy and where last count included charges that defendant had willfully, knowingly, unlawfully and feloniously conspired, combined, and agreed to conceal assets and charged that defendant had endorsed and negotiated a certain check in the sum of $45,000 in furtherance of the illegal object, indictment failed to adequately charge conspiracy to violate mail fraud statute but was legally sufficient to charge defendant with conspiracy to conceal assets in contemplation of bankruptcy. U.S. v. Strauss, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1960, 283 F.2d 155.

Where defendant was not charged with any offenses in the first 12 counts of the indictment charging her codefendants with substantive offenses of using the mails to defraud and using the mails in a scheme to defraud in the sale of securities in interstate commerce but 13th count, charging defendant and codefendants with conspiracy to commit the substantive offenses, realleged and incorporated the first 12 counts of the indictment and designated them as overt acts done in pursuance of and to effect the objects of the conspiracy, and alleged in addition 28 other overt acts, and defendant was named in four of such overt acts, the indictment sufficiently charged defendant with conspiracy. Davenport v. U.S., C.A.9 (Or.) 1958, 260 F.2d 591, certiorari denied 79 S.Ct. 585, 359 U.S. 909, 3 L.Ed.2d 573.

Indictment charging use of mails to effectuate a scheme to defraud and conspiracy to commit such offense was sufficient. Reining v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Fla.) 1948, 167 F.2d 362, certiorari denied 69 S.Ct. 49, 335 U.S. 830, 93 L.Ed. 383. See, also, Ex parte King, D.C.Ga.1912, 200 F. 622. Conspiracy  43(6); Postal Service  48(4.1)

An indictment charging a scheme to defraud in connection with sale of allegedly potential oil lands and use of mails in furtherance of scheme, and employment of a fraudulent scheme in the sale of securities, and a conspiracy in furtherance of the scheme, was sufficient, where the entire alleged fraudulent scheme was disclosed and the defendants were fully informed of the nature and cause of the accusations against them. Mansfield v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Tex.) 1946, 155 F.2d 952, certiorari denied 67 S.Ct. 364, 329 U.S. 792, 91 L.Ed. 678.

Indictment, charging use of mails in furtherance of fraudulent scheme which contemplated signing of franchise-holder agreements for electrical directories for hotel lobbies and for conspiracy to commit such offense, was not objectionable on ground that substantial part thereof was surplusage. Marshall v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1944, 146 F.2d 618.

An indictment charging defendants with using mails to defraud in that they used mails to aid them in conduct of their "I Am movement", in which defendants represented by reason of their high spiritual attainments they had been selected as divine messengers, and thereafter induced persons to give money and property to the movement, and also charged defendants with conspiracy to do such acts, was sufficient. Ballard v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1943, 138 F.2d 540, certiorari granted 64 S.Ct. 427, 320 U.S. 733, 88 L.Ed. 434, reversed on other grounds 64 S.Ct. 882, 322 U.S. 78, 88 L.Ed. 1148, on remand 152 F.2d 941.

An indictment charging conspiracy to use mails to defraud was not defective because it alleged that defendants conspired at various places within the district of trial court and at places in other districts, since prosecution for conspiracy to use mails to defraud may be maintained in any district where an overt act in furtherance of conspiracy is committed, although prosecution might be held at place of formation of conspiracy, regardless of place of commission of the overt act. Walker v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1940, 116 F.2d 458.

A count charging that defendants charged in other counts with using United States mails to promote frauds, conspired to commit an offense against the United States, was sufficient, notwithstanding failure to charge that defendants conspired to use the mails. U.S. v. Womack, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1938, 98 F.2d 742.

Indictment for using mails to defraud and for conspiracy was not defective for failure to set forth terms of letters. U.S. v. Herzig, D.C.N.Y.1928, 26 F.2d 487.

Indictment for conspiracy to use mails to defraud by sale of securities, alleging scheme to hold corporation out as owner of lands, that defendants represented themselves as owners, and that corporation was not owner, was not invalid for "repugnancy." Sunderland v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1927, 19 F.2d 202.

In indictment for conspiracy and use of mails to defraud by sales of corporate bonds, allegations as to individual defendants' ownership of land was surplusage, and instruction so to treat it not in effect amendment of indictment. Mathews v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1926, 15 F.2d 139.

Scheme alleged in indictment for conspiracy and using mails to defraud in selling mortgage company stock at prices in excess of its value, was sufficiently definite, and constituted fraudulent scheme contemplated by former § 338 of this title. Scheib v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ind.) 1926, 14 F.2d 75, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 95, 273 U.S. 700, 71 L.Ed. 847, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 95, 273 U.S. 701, 71 L.Ed. 847, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 95, 273 U.S. 701, 71 L.Ed. 848, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 113, 273 U.S. 718, 71 L.Ed. 856.

In prosecution under former §§ 88 [now this section] and 338 of this title for scheme to defraud in sale of mortgage company stock by use of mails, it was not necessary that indictment set out or describe letters charged to have been mailed. Scheib v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ind.) 1926, 14 F.2d 75, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 95, 273 U.S. 700, 71 L.Ed. 847, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 95, 273 U.S. 701, 71 L.Ed. 847, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 95, 273 U.S. 701, 71 L.Ed. 848, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 113, 273 U.S. 718, 71 L.Ed. 856.

Allegation that fraudulent scheme was to be effected by use of mails was unnecessary, in prosecution for violation of former § 338 of this title against fraudulent use of mails. Tincher v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (W.Va.) 1926, 11 F.2d 18, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 475, 271 U.S. 664, 70 L.Ed. 1139.

Indictment charging defendants with having devised a scheme to defraud and obtain money by false pretenses, and for purpose of executing it with having deposited in and received from the mails letters, certificates, and the like, and charging in usual language conspiracy to commit crimes and offenses already charged, was sufficient under former § 88 [now this section] and § 338 of this title. Tank v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Wis.) 1925, 8 F.2d 697.

In prosecution under former § 88 of this title [now this section], for conspiracy to use mails to defraud, contrary to former § 338 of this title, count of indictment, charging overt act in district in which conspiracy was claimed to have been formed and in which venue was laid, was not indefinite for charging conspiracy at many different places to violate said former section. Morris v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Ark.) 1925, 7 F.2d 785, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 205, 270 U.S. 640, 70 L.Ed. 775.

In indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section], for conspiracy to defraud by use of mails, contrary to former § 338 of this title, it was not necessary that overt acts charged have been effective in execution of scheme. Morris v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Ark.) 1925, 7 F.2d 785, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 205, 270 U.S. 640, 70 L.Ed. 775.

In an indictment for conspiracy to use the mails to defraud, the intention to commit the offense prohibited by former § 338 of this title, must have been averred. U. S. v. Morse, D.C.Conn.1923, 287 F. 906.

In an indictment for conspiracy to use the mails to defraud, allegations, as overt acts, of the mailing of letters, should allege that they were "to be sent or delivered by the post office establishment of the United States." U. S. v. Morse, D.C.Conn.1923, 287 F. 906.

An indictment for conspiracy to commit the offense of using the mails to defraud, as defined in former § 338 of this title, sufficiently charged the intended use of the mails to effect the object of the conspiracy. Riddle v. U. S., C.C.A.5 (Ala.) 1922, 279 F. 216, certiorari denied 42 S.Ct. 589, 259 U.S. 586, 66 L.Ed. 1077.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for conspiring to use the mails to defraud, charging that defendants devised a scheme to sell stock of a copper company, that false representations were made, that they used the mails in distributing letters and circulars containing such representations, that they contracted with a stock brokerage firm for sale of such stock, and that a certain defendant had paid another defendant money for securing his aid was sufficient. Tjosevig v. Boyle, C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1920, 268 F. 813.

An indictment setting forth fraudulent representations to induce the purchase of mining stock which representations were known to the defendants to be false and fraudulent and that to effect the object of the scheme the defendants placed or caused to be placed certain letters in the mail which letters are set forth, was sufficient under former § 88 of this title [now this section]. Rowe v. Boyle, C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1920, 268 F. 809, certiorari denied 41 S.Ct. 218, 254 U.S. 656, 65 L.Ed. 460.

An indictment under former §§ 88 [now this section] and 338 of this title, charging conspiracy to violate and violation of said former § 338 sufficiently alleged that letters were mailed for purpose of executing scheme; that matters stated in mail had power to effect object of conspiracy; and was not bad for failure to set out contract with the victims or that such contract was made, nor for failure to state that collection agency through which defendants realized on scheme was corporation, etc., or show relation of defendants to agency. Preeman v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1917, 244 F. 1, 156 C.C.A. 429, certiorari denied 38 S.Ct. 12, 245 U.S. 654, 62 L.Ed. 533.

Indictment for conspiracy to use mails in furtherance of scheme to defraud was good against objection that charges as to use of post office could not strengthen the charge of conspiracy. McKelvey v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1917, 241 F. 801, 154 C.C.A. 503.

Allegation in indictment for conspiracy to defraud the state of South Dakota "and divers persons to the grand jury unknown" in the filing of animal bounty claims under Act S.D. March 3, 1905, Laws 1905, c. 177, in so far as it charged a scheme to defraud unknown persons might be rejected as surplusage. Fall v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (S.D.) 1913, 209 F. 547, 126 C.C.A. 369.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for conspiracy to use the mails to defraud, need not have charged that the defendants conspired and did commit the offense of attempting to defraud, if the facts set out showed that they actually tried to carry out a scheme to defraud by the use of mails. U. S. v. Maxey, E.D.Ark.1912, 200 F. 997.

An indictment for conspiring to defraud by means of the post office establishment was not fatally defective because the intent to defraud was charged in the description, as distinguished from the charging part, of the indictment. U. S. v. Maxey, E.D.Ark.1912, 200 F. 997.

Where an indictment for conspiracy to further a scheme to defraud by means of the post office establishment stated an offense under former § 338 of this title, it was immaterial that it recited that the facts showed a violation of that section, which had not gone into effect when the conspiracy was formed. Ex parte King, N.D.Ga.1912, 200 F. 622.

An indictment for conspiracy to defraud by use of the post office establishment was not defective for failing to allege that it was part of the conspiracy to place or cause to be placed letters and circulars in the United States post office. Emanuel v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1912, 196 F. 317, 116 C.C.A. 137.

Where an indictment charged a conspiracy to devise a scheme to defraud in the sale of corporate stock and to have furthered such scheme by opening correspondence through the mail, it sufficiently charged a conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States. Wilson v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1911, 190 F. 427, 111 C.C.A. 231.

An indictment, under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for conspiracy to commit an offense under former § 338 of this title, by devising a scheme to defraud intended to be carried out by the use of the mails, must have charged a conspiracy to commit acts which, if committed, would constitute an offense under the latter section, but it need not have charged separately that defendants specifically conspired to commit each element of the offense. McConkey v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Minn.) 1909, 171 F. 829, 96 C.C.A. 501.

Where defendants were indicted for conspiracy to devise a scheme and artifice to defraud by using the mails in violation of former § 338 of this title, a demurrer was sustained because there was not in the overt acts charged in the indictment anything germane to the subject of the alleged fraud. U.S. v. McLaughlin, D.C.Minn.1908, 169 F. 302.

In an indictment for conspiracy to use the mails to carry out a scheme to defraud, the names of as many persons defendant planned to defraud may be used in the indictment as the pleader may know, and all mail connected with the scheme, shown to have passed through the post office to any person whether named in the indictment or not, is evidence upon the question of the existence of the scheme. US v. Marrin, E.D.Pa.1908, 159 F. 767, affirmed 167 F. 951, 93 C.C.A. 351, certiorari denied 32 S.Ct. 523, 223 U.S. 719, 56 L.Ed. 629.

While, in an indictment, under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for a conspiracy to use the mails to defraud, a fraudulent purpose must have been averred and proved, and where a purpose to defraud two jointly was charged, it must have been proved as laid, where the sending of individual letters to parties named was charged in different counts, an averment in general terms of an intent to defraud these parties did not necessarily import that the conspiracy contemplated a joint defrauding of the whole number named, the parties not being jointly interested in the property which it was the aim to secure. US v. Marrin, E.D.Pa.1908, 159 F. 767, affirmed 167 F. 951, 93 C.C.A. 351, certiorari denied 32 S.Ct. 523, 223 U.S. 719, 56 L.Ed. 629.

Facts which clearly show a conspiracy to devise a scheme or artifice to defraud, an intention to defraud, an intention to use the post-office establishment as a part of the scheme for the purpose of executing it, the use of that establishment for that purpose, and the scheme of artifice itself, are essential to a valid indictment, and must be alleged in the pleading. Cohen v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1907, 157 F. 651, 85 C.C.A. 113, certiorari denied 28 S.Ct. 261, 207 U.S. 596, 52 L.Ed. 357. See, also, Miller v. U.S., N.D.1904, 133 F. 337, 66 C.C.A. 399.

An indictment charging accused with conspiring to devise a scheme to defraud persons unknown to the grand jury was not insufficient because the names were not stated in the indictment, if it contained a true averment that they were unknown. Miller v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1904, 133 F. 337, 66 C.C.A. 399.

An allegation of an indictment that a part of a scheme to defraud, which the defendants conspired to devise, was that the scheme "was to be effected" by opening correspondence by means of the mails with unknown persons was held a sufficient averment of an intent by the accused to use the mails to execute their scheme. Miller v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1904, 133 F. 337, 66 C.C.A. 399.

An indictment for conspiracy to defraud by the use of the mails, in violation of former § 338 of this title, was not bad for repugnancy because it charged in the same count that defendant conspired to defraud "by dealing and pretending to deal" in what is commonly called "green articles" and "spurious Treasury notes." Lehman v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1903, 127 F. 41, 61 C.C.A. 577.

Although indictment for conspiracy to commit mail and wire fraud did not specify a list of overt acts, indictment was sufficient in alleging that acts were committed in furtherance of conspiracy and was sufficient to put defendants on notice of acts government intended to prove under those counts, where indictment began with phrase "It was part of the scheme that," and was followed by certain actions taken by defendants. U.S. v. Donato,

W.D.Va.1994, 866 F.Supp. 288. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

Conspiracy principles apply to multidefendant mail fraud schemes even though conspiracy was not formally charged in the indictment and thus, every act of codefendant in furtherance of scheme would be imputed to other codefendants. U. S. v. Stout, E.D.Pa.1980, 499 F.Supp. 598.

In prosecution for conspiracy and using mails to defraud, allegations concerning placing of various newspapers in mails for distribution properly set forth the advertising in newspapers as one of the elements of the scheme and as having been done pursuant to the alleged conspiracy. U. S. v. Garrison, E.D.Wis.1958, 168 F.Supp. 622.

In prosecution for conspiracy to use mails to defraud, allegation that defendant approved invoices for payment knowing that superintendent of the company was the real owner of goods in question was insufficient to spell participation in scheme of superintendent to sell fraudulently graded mohair owned by him to the company while representing it as being sold by a legitimate broker. U.S. v. Holdsworth, D.C.Me.1948, 77 F.Supp. 148.

Indictment charging conspiracy to violate mail fraud statute, former § 338 of this title, by scheme to obtain money by mortgages and certificates was sufficient, notwithstanding omission of allegation that making of false representations was integral part of scheme to defraud. U.S. v. Stevens, S.D.N.Y.1936, 13 F.Supp. 909.

In indictment for conspiracy to use the mails to defraud, it is sufficient to state that conspiracy was entered into within territorial limits of court in which prosecution was instituted. U.S. v. National Title Guaranty Co., E.D.N.Y.1935, 12 F.Supp. 473.

395. Price control offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment for violation of Emergency Price Control Act, 50 App. former § 901 et seq., and for conspiracy setting out approximate place and date of alleged violations, names of purchasers, type of meat sold, invoice numbers in maximum price for which meat could have been sold, was sufficiently definite and defendants were not entitled to bill of particulars. Stillman v. U.S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1949, 177 F.2d 607.

An indictment for conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States by violating Federal Control Act, § 11 (temporary), which did not allege any facts showing an intention to commit any act which was made an offense by said section, was insufficient. U.S. v. Geraci, S.D.Fla.1922, 280 F. 256.

An indictment under Act Aug. 10, 1917, c. 53, § 25 (temporary) authorizing the fixing of the price of coal by the President, which charged that defendants with full knowledge that the price had been fixed conspired to demand a greater price with allegation of overt acts, was sufficient, though an indictment for the specific offense would have had to allege both the price fixed and the price demanded. U S v. Pennsylvania Central Coal Co, W.D.Pa.1918, 256 F. 703.

396. Public contracts, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

An indictment for a conspiracy to defraud the United States, in violation of former § 88 of this title [now this section], which charged a corrupt agreement by which an officer of the United States was, in substance, to have a secret interest in a public contract as to the fulfilling of which by the contractor that officer was to be the judge, was sufficient without averring that the interest was given him or the money paid to him to influence his official conduct upon the very contract in question, or alleging which of the various ways of defrauding the government was in the minds of the conspirators, or that they all were. Crawford v. U.S., U.S.Dist.Col.1909, 29 S.Ct. 260, 212 U.S. 183, 53 L.Ed. 465, 15 Am. Ann. Cas. 392.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for conspiracy to defraud which averred that defendant and an officer of the United States "unlawfully did conspire, combine, confederate, and agree together * * * knowingly to defraud the said United States in the manner following, that is to say," followed by an averment that defendant promised and agreed with said officer to pay him a commission on the price of each and every one of certain articles which should be purchased by the United States by procurement of said officer, fairly imports an assent or agreement on the part of the officer, and was sufficient in such respect to charge conspiracy, although the officer's assent was not directly averred. Green v. MacDougall, U.S.N.Y.1905, 26 S.Ct. 748, 199 U.S. 601, 50 L.Ed. 328. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(10)

An indictment charging that from about January 1, 1938 and continuing to June 20, 1945, defendants conspired to defraud United States by delivering, grading, selling, etc., inferior products to the War Shipping Administration, War Department and Navy Department through frauds and deceptions practiced upon them; by obstructing inspection of such products and by avoiding standards to which purchases thereof were subject through false grading and weighing, followed by description of plan and allegation of several overt acts is sufficiently certain to inform defendants of the charges against them. Nye & Nissen v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1948, 168 F.2d 846, certiorari granted 69 S.Ct. 81, 335 U.S. 852, 93 L.Ed. 400, affirmed 69 S.Ct. 766, 336 U.S. 613, 93 L.Ed. 919.

In a prosecution for conspiracy to defraud the United States by use of fraudulent practices as to the inspection of goods manufactured by the defendants for the United States under war contracts, the indictment need not set out the contracts in full, allege the authority of the officials who signed the contracts on behalf of the government, nor allege that the government suffered injury through the defendant's fraud. Wolf v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1922, 283 F. 885, certiorari denied 43 S.Ct. 164, 260 U.S. 743, 67 L.Ed. 492.

An indictment charging a conspiracy to collusively submit false and fraudulent bids for tea offered for sale by the Surplus Property Division of the Army was sufficient as charging a conspiracy to defraud the United States. U.S. v. Amster, E.D.N.Y.1921, 273 F. 532.

An indictment charging that defendants were employes of a firm of contractors for government work, one being in charge of the pay roll; that under the contract the contractors were to be reimbursed for their expenditures and paid a commission as their compensation; that defendants conspired to have one of them, employed as a fireman, placed on the pay roll as an engineer, whereby he would receive a higher rate of pay; and that he was so placed by his codefendant--was sufficient to charge a conspiracy to defraud the United States. Belvin v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (Va.) 1919, 260 F. 455, 171 C.C.A. 281, certiorari denied 40 S.Ct. 15, 250 U.S. 673, 63 L.Ed. 1200.

Indictment charging a conspiracy to defraud the United States, between an army officer, defendant, and another, averring that conspiracy contemplated contracts should be submitted to and passed on by the army officer, etc., sufficiently inform the defendant of the facts. U.S. v. Gouled, S.D.N.Y.1918, 253 F. 239.

An indictment which charged that one of the defendants was a person acting for and on behalf of the United States in an official capacity as manager of the commissary department of the Subsistence Department of the Isthmian Canal Commission and that the other two defendants were engaged in buying and selling supplies, tobacco, and merchandise in Colon, Panama; that it was planned and agreed that Burke should purchase large quantities of tobacco from Salas, for which favor he was to receive, for his own benefit, from the other two defendants, large sums of money, was sufficient. U.S. v. Burke, S.D.N.Y.1915, 221 F. 1014, reversed 234 F. 842, 148 C.C.A. 440.

An indictment charging that defendant, a contractor, conspired with certain postal officials, one of whom was charged with the duty of procuring supplies through contracts let after advertisements or in open market at reasonable prices, to defraud the United States by having let to him a contract without competition, at exorbitant prices, for articles for which there was no immediate necessity, in pursuance of which conspiracy the articles were purchased from defendant thereafter, and the voucher approved by one of the officials, was sufficient to charge an offense under former § 88 of this title [now this section]. In re Runkle, C.C.S.D.N.Y.1903, 125 F. 996.

A charge in an indictment that defendants conspired with an engineer officer in charge of government work to defraud the United States by obtaining through such officer contracts by which they were to be paid high prices for inferior work; that large amounts of useless and unnecessary work were to be done and paid for; that such officer was to exercise the powers of his office fraudulently and corruptly in favor of the contractors in such contracts as might be so obtained by the conspirators by approving and accepting the work so fraudulently done,--was supported by averments of overt acts in presenting for payment to such officer a false and fraudulent claim against the United States for work done, pursuant to such conspiracy, and in the approval and payment of such claim by the officer, although it is further averred that such claim and payment were made under a contract antedating the alleged conspiracy, the conspiracy alleged being broader than one for the purpose alone of obtaining a contract and extending to the manner of conducting the work generally, and the obtaining of payment therefor. U.S. v. Greene, S.D.Ga.1902, 115 F. 343.

An indictment of railway officers for conspiring to defraud the United States, by "deceiving the officials" having charge of the mails as to the amount of mail matter carried over the line, need not aver what particular officer was intended to be deceived. U.S. v. Newton, S.D.Iowa 1891, 48 F. 218. Conspiracy ↪ 43(10)

"The indictment avers that Machen, as superintendent of the free-delivery division of the Postoffice Department, was charged with the duty of ascertaining the cost of articles needed in the administration of the business of that division, and, when so ascertained, with, in good faith, advising the First Assistant Postmaster-General to order the purchase of, and payment for, the same at the prices. Therefore, when, as is also charged, he advised and procured the purchase of any number of such articles at the price of $1.25 each, knowing, at the same time, that they could be bought for 75 cents, the proposition that the United States were defrauded is too plain to admit of argument. If, then, as charged, he confederated with others in the doing of such an act, all concerned therein were guilty of a conspiracy to defraud the United States. The fact that he may have participated in a division of the proceeds of such transactions aggravated the offense, and supplied express evidence of his corrupt intent as well as a circumstance tending to show the existence of the conspiracy. As regards the objection that the indictment fails to charge the want of knowledge of the First Assistant Postmaster-General, or that he had been deceived and fraudulently imposed upon by the acts and representations of his subordinate, Machen, it is enough to say that the conspiracy charged was one to defraud the United States and none other. The First Assistant Postmaster-General was not the United States, but their agent merely, as was Machen also, and his knowledge, if such were the case, could not be imputed to them so as to prevent criminality from attaching to the latter's conduct. It was proved on the trial that the First Assistant Postmaster-General had no knowledge of the conditions under which the purchases were made; but had it been shown that he had full knowledge, or was even a party to the conspiracy, the fraud perpetrated upon the United States would be none the less." Lorenz v. U.S., App.D.C.1904, 24 App.D.C. 337, certiorari denied 25 S.Ct. 796, 196 U.S. 640, 49 L.Ed. 631.

It was not necessary that the indictment should aver that the contemplated fraud was successful, or the fraudulent mail matter of sufficient weight to entitle the railway company to increased compensation, or that the forwarding of the matter would not be continued beyond the period fixed for weighing the mails. Lorenz v. U.S., App.D.C.1904, 24 App.D.C. 337, certiorari denied 25 S.Ct. 796, 196 U.S. 640, 49 L.Ed. 631.

An indictment charging conspiracy to secure contract from airplane builders to make tools and parts for military airplanes purchased by United States government under contracts whereby cost depended in part on cost of construction, by bribing employees of builders, was not defective because pecuniary loss to the government was not pleaded. U.S. v. Furer, S.D.Cal.1942, 47 F.Supp. 402.

An indictment charging the conspiracy to consist in "certifying that certain false and fraudulent accounts and vouchers for material furnished for use in the construction of said customhouse and post office, and for labor performed on said building, were true and correct," was bad for uncertainty. U.S. v. Walsh, C.C.Mo.1878, 28 F.Cas. 394, No. 16636. Conspiracy ↪ 43(10)

397. Public lands, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations-- Generally

Where gravamen of indictment was that defendant having access to property of the United States used for military purposes unlawfully conveyed such property to codefendants who purchased it with knowledge that property was contraband, indictment charged all the elements of a conspiracy to violate former § 10 of this title, and hence was valid notwithstanding the United States attorney stated that he intended to charge a conspiracy to violate the void, former § 87 of this title. Smith v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Okla.) 1944, 145 F.2d 643, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 563, 323 U.S. 803, 89 L.Ed. 641.

Notwithstanding a desert land entry may be assigned, § 321 et seq. of Title 43 required a bona fide entry with an intention to improve the land, and hence an indictment charging a conspiracy to cause to be made false, fraudulent, and fictitious entries of such land stated an offense under former § 88 of this title [now this section]. Chaplin v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1912, 193 F. 879, 114 C.C.A. 93, certiorari denied 32 S.Ct. 838, 225 U.S. 705, 56 L.Ed. 1266.

An indictment charging a conspiracy to defraud the United States by means of fraudulent entries of desert land was not defective for failure to allege that the entries were in fact made nor for failure to contain certain allegations to show that, if the conspiracy had been carried out, the United States would have been defrauded. Chaplin v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1912, 193 F. 879, 114 C.C.A. 93, certiorari denied 32 S.Ct. 838, 225 U.S. 705, 56 L.Ed. 1266.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for conspiracy to defraud the United States of public lands did not charge a conspiracy to do an act not unlawful in itself, because there was no separate statute making it a crime to defraud the United States, as said former section itself makes a conspiracy to defraud the United States a distinct crime, and no further offense need be averred nor proved. Mays v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Or.) 1910, 179 F. 610, 103 C.C.A. 168.

In an indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States by making a false oath or affidavit in connection with the purchase of Umatilla reservation lands, it was not necessary to set out the details of the administration of the oath, by whom administered, or that the person officiating was an officer qualified to do so. U.S. v. Raley, D.C.Or.1909, 173 F. 159.

An indictment for conspiracy in procuring false public land affidavits was not defective for failure to allege in what respect the affidavits were false or fraudulent. U.S. v. Raley, D.C.Or.1909, 173 F. 159.

Where an indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States alleged that defendant conspired to obtain Umatilla reservation lands by procuring persons to make false affidavits for the purchase of the lands on defendant's account, and by procuring persons to make contracts prior to such purchase whereby the title was to inure to defendant's benefit, and by procuring them to make false proofs of residence and cultivation of the lands, all of which acts were forbidden and unlawful, it sufficiently charged the means by which the conspiracy was to be effectuated. U.S. v. Raley, D.C.Or.1909, 173 F. 159.

An indictment charging that defendants did conspire, combine, confederate, and agree together to defraud the United States, by corruptly and for their own gains administering and procuring the administration of Act March 3, 1901, c. 853, 31 Stat. 1133, appropriating money to survey public lands, in a manner contrary to the true intent and purpose thereof, and wasteful of the money so appropriated and apportioned, prejudicial to the welfare and interest of the United States and the public service thereof, did not charge a conspiracy to defraud the government of its money or property, but charged a conspiracy to defraud the United States by corruptly administering an Act of Congress. U.S. v. Moore, C.C.Or.1909, 173 F. 122.

An indictment for conspiracy, alleging that defendants conspired to procure the maladministration of Act March 3, 1901, c. 853, 31 Stat. 1133, appropriating money for the survey of public lands in a specified order, by procuring the use of such funds for the survey of lands which were nonagricultural and the subject of fictitious entries, sufficiently charged the conspirators' corrupt purpose, and was therefore not objectionable for failure to allege that defendants had guilty knowledge of the falsity of the entries. U.S. v. Moore, C.C.Or.1909, 173 F. 122.

An indictment charging that defendants conspired together to defraud the government of the title to a portion of the public domain, to wit, etc., and in pursuance of the conspiracy performed the overt acts of obtaining and using before the register and receiver of the local land office false and bogus affidavits, represented by defendants to be genuine, in making proof of a timber culture entry theretofore regularly made on the land by H., since deceased, under an agreement with his widow that they were to succeed by conveyance from her to all the rights of the government secured by virtue of a patent issued by the government based on such proofs, was not defective for uncertainty. U. S. v. Burkett, D.C.Kan.1907, 150 F. 208.

An indictment alleging that defendants during all the times between May 25, 1902, and the commission of the last overt act therein set forth continued to conspire together to defraud the United States of the title to its public lands in the manner and by the means agreed on between them on May 25, 1902, was not equivalent to a charge that defendants subsequent to that date entered into a new conspiracy to accomplish their unlawful design, but was merely an allegation that the conspiracy formed on that day was never abandoned, but was in continuous operation thereafter until the date of the last overt act charged. U.S. v. Brace, N.D.Cal.1907, 149 F. 874.

Averments in an indictment for conspiracy under former § 88 of this title [now this section] that defendants conspired to fraudulently obtain the issuance by the United States of land scrip in satisfaction of a confirmed private land claim, which scrip when issued could be located on public lands of the United States, and that such conspiracy was carried out by fraudulently procuring the appointment of an administrator of the succession of the true claimant, on whose application the scrip was issued, and by whom it was sold, and the proceeds converted by defendants to their own use, were sufficient to sustain the charge that the conspiracy was one to defraud the United States. U.S. v. Bradford, C.C.E.D.La.1905, 148 F. 413, affirmed 152 F. 616, 81 C.C.A. 606, certiorari denied 27 S.Ct. 795, 206 U.S. 563, 51 L.Ed. 1190.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] which charged that defendants knowingly, unlawfully, wickedly, and corruptly conspired to defraud the United States out of its title to certain public lands by means of false, fraudulent, and fictitious entries of the same under the land laws, and that in pursuance of, and to effect the object of, such conspiracy, certain acts set forth were committed by one or more of the defendants, was not insufficient, because it did not expressly aver that such acts were done with knowledge of the fraudulent and illegal character of the entries, since the essence of the offense is the conspiracy, and while an overt act is an essential element under the statute, the use of the word "knowingly" in charging the conspiracy must fairly be held to apply to and characterize the acts specifically charged to have been done in furtherance of such conspiracy, and for the purpose of carrying it into effect. U.S. v. Mitchell, C.C.Or.1905, 141 F. 666.

Where an indictment alleged that defendants, knowing of a contract for the survey of certain lands between a United States deputy surveyor and a United States surveyor general, conspired to defraud the United States, and that, in pursuance of the conspiracy, and with intent to effect the same, one of them caused a fraudulent, fictitious and pretended survey to be made, and fraudulent field notes to be made, whereby the surveyor general was deceived into certifying the amounts due the deputy surveyor, it was held that the indictment was sufficient, though it failed to show how the acts charged would tend to effect the fraudulent object, or that defendants had actually profited by the conspiracy. U.S. v. Benson, C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1895, 70 F. 591, 17 C.C.A. 293.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] which charged an intent to defraud the United States by obtaining the dismissal of certain suits which by law might have been brought by the United States to recover certain lands "alleged to have been fraudulently and unlawfully obtained" from the United States did not charge a conspiracy to defraud the United States, since the use of the word "alleged" rendered the fraud an open question. U. S. v. Milner, C.C.N.D.Ala.1888, 36 F. 890. Conspiracy ⇨ 43(10)

Where the words of the affidavit required to be taken by an applicant for public land are set forth in the statute under which the application is made, it is sufficient, in an indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States, to refer to or describe it as the affidavit required of such applicant by law. U.S. v. Thompson, C.C.Or.1886, 29 F. 86, 12 Sawy. 151. Conspiracy ↪ 43(10)

A count in an indictment charging a conspiracy to defraud the United States by hiring 28 persons to enter at a land office, under color of the pre-emption laws, certain public lands of the United States, solely for the purpose of selling the same on speculation to defendant and L., and some other person to the grand jury unknown, was good. U.S. v. Gordon, D.C.Minn.1884, 22 F. 250. Conspiracy ↪ 43(10)

A count in an indictment which charged a conspiracy to defraud the United States by presenting for approval to a land office false and fraudulent affidavits and proofs of settlement and improvement, under the pre-emption law, of 28 persons, stating that such persons were entitled to enter public lands, and had severally complied with the pre-emption laws, and had severally entered such lands for their individual benefit, and not for speculation, was sufficient. U.S. v. Gordon, D.C.Minn.1884, 22 F. 250. Conspiracy ↪ 43(10)

398. ---- Coal, public lands, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

An indictment charging a conspiracy by defendants to defraud the United States by obtaining title to upwards of 5,000 acres of coal lands in Alaska of the value of $2,000,000 by means of 39 false, fraudulent, and fictitious entries made by as many different persons, ostensibly for their own benefit, but in fact for the benefit of the defendants, whereby the defendants would be enabled to receive and enjoy the benefit of a greater number of coal entries and locations and a greater quantity of coal lands than was permissible under the law, charged a crime. U.S. v. Doughten, C.C.E.D.Wash.1911, 186 F. 226.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for conspiracy to defraud the United States charged an offense where it averred the purpose of the conspiracy to be to acquire coal lands of the United States by means of false, fictitious, and fraudulent entries and applications, and to induce and hire others to make like entries, at the cost and for the benefit of defendants to whom such entrymen were to convey the lands so entered, and where it fully set out such means and overt acts committed for the purpose of effecting the object of such conspiracy. Arnold v. Weil, E.D.Wis.1907, 157 F. 429.

An indictment which charged defendants with conspiracy to defraud the United States, by obtaining for a certain corporation coal lands of the United States, in excess of the quantity which it could lawfully acquire under the coal land purchase laws, by means of entries to be made by certain of the defendants as individuals, thereby securing patents to themselves, paying for the lands with money furnished by the corporation, and thereupon conveying such lands to the corporation, and which charged as overt acts the making of applications for such entries, the acquiring of patents, and the making of such conveyances, did not state an offense under former § 88 of this title [now this section] where it did not aver that such defendants were employed or procured by the corporation to make applications for the entries in its behalf, that there was any fraudulent intention in fact in making the entries, or that the patents issued thereon were void, there being nothing in the statute to prevent the corporation from lawfully acquiring by purchase any quantity of coal lands, the title to which or the preference right to purchase which had been lawfully acquired by others. Pereles v. Weil, E.D.Wis.1907, 157 F. 419.

399. ---- Homestead entries, public lands, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Where an indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] charged conspiracy to defraud the United States of public lands by means of false entries under the homestead laws, and the description of the overt acts charged included matters subsequent to the "entry" of the lands, in the technical sense of the preliminary application under the homestead laws, the word "entries" was not to be taken with such technical meaning, but in its popular sense, as meaning the proceedings as a whole. Dealy v. U.S., U.S.N.D.1894, 14 S.Ct. 680, 152 U.S.

539, 38 L.Ed. 545. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for conspiracy to defraud the United States of public lands and to commit an offense against the United States by suborning entrymen to commit perjury in making oath to homestead affidavits, was sufficient. Richards v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1909, 175 F. 911, 99 C.C.A. 401.

Where an indictment charged that defendants, with others, conspired to obtain from the government certain specified tracts of land open to homestead entry by procuring certain named persons to enter the same by means of false proof in respect to their residence on and improvement of the land, and with respect to the intent with which and the purpose for which the entries were made, and in pursuance of such conspiracy and to effect the object thereof defendants caused and procured C. to make the homestead proof in respect to the land entered by him and the final affidavit required by homestead claimants, including a statement that his family consisted of himself and wife, and that they had resided continuously on the land since first establishing residence thereon, which proof was subscribed by C. and certified by defendant W., and that each of the defendants knew that the proof was false, etc., the indictment was sufficient. Jones v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Or.) 1908, 162 F. 417, 89 C.C.A. 303, certiorari denied 29 S.Ct. 685, 212 U.S. 576, 53 L.Ed. 657.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] which charged a conspiracy to defraud the United States of certain of its lands by means of false, forged and fraudulent entries thereof under the homestead law, and averred that such lands were "in the district of lands subject to entry under the homestead laws of the United States" at a certain land office, and also in stating the acts done pursuant to such conspiracy charged the filing of applications for homestead entry of certain described "public lands of the United States subject to homestead entry," and was not fatally defective, because in charging the conspiracy it did not expressly aver that the lands of which it was the purpose to defraud the United States were public lands, subject to homestead entry. Stearns v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Minn.) 1907, 152 F. 900, 82 C.C.A. 48.

In an indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States by means of a false and fraudulent entry of public lands under the homestead law, the word "entry" may properly be used and construed as applying to any or all of the steps necessary to acquire title under such law. Bradford v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (La.) 1907, 152 F. 617, 81 C.C.A. 607.

Where an indictment charged that defendants did unlawfully conspire together to defraud the United States out of a portion of its public lands on homestead entry, etc., such allegation included all proceedings as a whole necessary to complete the transfer of the title. U.S. v. Cunningham, D.C.Or.1904, 129 F. 833.

An allegation in an indictment that defendants did unlawfully conspire to defraud the United States out of a portion of its public land, by means "of procuring persons" to make false and fraudulent entries on such land, was not inconsistent with a further allegation as to the overt acts charged showing that the false proofs and entries were made by defendants themselves, and not by others procured by them. U.S. v. Cunningham, D.C.Or.1904, 129 F. 833.

Where an indictment for conspiracy to deprive the government of land by reason of a fraudulent homestead entry alleged that the lands sought to be acquired were "public lands," and that defendants had conspired to defraud the United States out of a portion of such land, it was not demurrable for failure to allege other facts showing that the land was in fact public land or subject to homestead entry. U.S. v. McKinley, C.C.Or.1903, 126 F. 242.

Where an indictment for conspiracy to defraud the government out of public lands by a fraudulent homestead entry alleged facts showing that the conspiracy in fact succeeded, and that by reason of fraudulent and forged proofs the land sought to be acquired was actually patented by the government in pursuance of such proofs, the indictment was not objectionable for failure to allege that the overt acts of the conspirators in furtherance of the conspiracy were effective in accomplishing its object. U.S. v. McKinley, C.C.Or.1903, 126 F. 242.

Since it was not necessary to a conviction for conspiracy to deprive the United States of public lands by a fraudulent homestead entry that it should be proved that the conspiracy was with reference to any particular tract of land or to land within the district, it was not necessary that the indictment particularly describe the land affected by the conspiracy. U.S. v. McKinley, C.C.Or.1903, 126 F. 242.

To constitute a criminal conspiracy to defraud the United States by obtaining title and possession, through homestead entry, to mineral lands not subject to entry, the fact that the land contained valuable minerals, and knowledge of such fact by the conspirators at the time the conspiracy was formed, are essential, and must be averred in the indictment, and indictment which, after charging such conspiracy and the subsequent making of an affidavit, and the filing of an application for entry in furtherance thereof, avers that the defendants "then and there" well knew that the land contained valuable mineral deposits, is uncertain, and fatally defective, in failing to charge such knowledge at the time the conspiracy was formed. U.S. v. Peuschel, S.D.Cal.1902, 116 F. 642.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] charging a conspiracy to defraud the United States by depriving it of the title to certain lands by means of a fraudulent entry under the homestead laws, which averred that the entry was made, and that by means of it the accused obtained possession of the land, and cut the timber thereon, was sufficient, though it did not allege that the land was subject to homestead entry, since the conspiracy constitutes the offense, and it need not be shown how the overt act tended to effect its purpose, or that it was successful. Gantt v. U. S., C.C.A.5 (Ala.) 1901, 108 F. 61, 47 C.C.A. 210.

400. ---- Lands obtained by exchange, public lands, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

An indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States of public lands by fraudulently obtaining the title to worthless state lands, securing the establishment of a forest reserve including such lands and then exchanging the same for public lands of the United States under the law authorizing such exchange, is not bad because it does not describe the state lands to be so acquired, further than to state the counties in which they are situated, where they had not been obtained and no further description was possible. Mays v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Or.) 1910, 179 F. 610, 103 C.C.A. 168.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] charging a conspiracy to defraud the United States by fraudulently obtaining title to and possession of certain described public lands, was not insufficient because it further charges that the purpose was to be accomplished through the state by securing the selection of the lands by the state in lieu of school lands included in a government forest reservation and their fraudulent transfer from the state to defendants, nor because the state was entitled to select such lands under the law. Perrin v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1909, 169 F. 17, 94 C.C.A. 385. See, also, Benson v. U.S., Mo.1909, 169 F. 31, 94 C.C.A. 399. Conspiracy ↪ 43(10)

An indictment charged a conspiracy to defraud the United States, within former § 88 of this title [now this section], where it averred that defendants conspired to obtain the legal title to school lands within public forest reservations from certain states by means of acts and representations set out, and which were of such fraudulent character that the equitable title to such lands would remain in the states, and to then exchange such lands for public lands of the United States, under the provisions of Act June 4, 1897, c. 2, § 1, 30 Stat. 36, repealed, which authorized such exchanges, but which contemplated that the government should obtain the full, fee-simple title to the lands for which it made the exchange, including the equitable as well as the legal title. U.S. v. Hyde, N.D.Cal.1904, 132 F. 545, affirmed 25 S.Ct. 760, 199 U.S. 62, 50 L.Ed. 90.

Where an indictment for conspiracy under former § 88 of this title [now this section] charged that petitioner conspired with others to obtain by means of fictitious applications and other false and fraudulent practices from the states of California and Oregon the title to large amounts of school lands owned by said several states, and lying within the boundaries of United States forest reservations, and then to exchange such lands, under the federal statutes providing therefor, for public lands of the United States subject to homestead entry outside of such reservations, while such acts would constitute a conspiracy to defraud the states, the indictment did not charge a "conspiracy to commit any offense against the United States or to defraud the United States in any manner," within the meaning of the statute since it appeared from its averments that the United States would obtain title to the school lands by the exchanges contemplated. In re Benson, C.C.S.D.N.Y.1904, 131 F. 968.

401. Rationing offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

An indictment for conspiring to buy false ration cheques and to obtain subsidies from the Defense Supplies Corporation by fraud was not invalid on the ground that, where object of the conspiracy is a crime to which conspirators are the only parties and which they have consummated, they may not be indicted for a conspiracy to commit it. U.S. v. Center Veal & Beef Co., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1947, 162 F.2d 766.

An indictment charging conspiracy to transfer rubber tires and tubes in violation of rationing regulations was not demurrable on ground that indictment charged a conspiracy commencing December 12, 1941, to violate amendment of former § 88 of this title [now this section] which was not adopted until March 27, 1942 where conspiracy was unlawful under previous statutes named in indictment and continued to be unlawful under subsequently-enacted statutes. Rose v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1945, 149 F.2d 755.

An indictment charging conspiracy to transfer rubber tires and tubes in violation of rationing regulations was not insufficient for indefiniteness as failing to specify what acts were to be done under conspiracy, where terms of applicable regulations were mentioned and overt acts in furtherance of object of conspiracy were set forth. Rose v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1945, 149 F.2d 755.

An indictment charging conspiracy to violate gasoline ration order was not defective on ground that it charged conspiracy which began before ration order had become effective, where the conspiracy was also charged to have continued until after effective date of order. U.S. v. Randall, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1944, 140 F.2d 70.

Even if buying or selling automobile tires for consumption without a rationing certificate was an offense against United States prior to amendment of 50 Appendix former § 901 et seq. by 50 Appendix § 633, fixing criminal penalties for violation of rationing regulations, an indictment alleging generally that defendants conspired to commit offenses and frauds, but which did not allege what offenses and frauds were agreed to be committed, was insufficient to charge a conspiracy, as against demurrer. Hamner v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Tex.) 1943, 134 F.2d 592.

Indictment, in so far as it charged a conspiracy on part of defendants to commit offenses of selling or delivering nylons without being specifically authorized in writing to do so by the War Production Board, was sufficient to apprise defendants fully of crimes with which they were charged. U.S. v. Schautz, D.C.N.J.1946, 65 F.Supp. 985.

Indictment charging conspiracy under former § 88 of this title [now this section] to unlawfully buy and sell gasoline ration coupons issued by Office of Price Administration was sufficient. U S v. Kendzierski, E.D.N.Y.1944, 54 F.Supp. 164.

402. Securities offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

An indictment charging violations of the Securities Act of 1933, § 77q(a)(1) of Title 15, and Mail Fraud Act, former § 338 of this title, and conspiracy to commit the substantive offenses was required to set out the scheme and artifice to defraud only with sufficient particularity to advise the defendant with what he would be confronted at trial. Harper v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1944, 143 F.2d 795.

An indictment charging violations of Securities Act of 1933, § 77q(a)(1) of Title 15, and Mail Fraud Act, former §

338 of this title, and conspiracy of commit the substantive offenses, which charged that defendant contemplated defrauding certain named victims and other unknown victims of money and property by selling them various worthless evidences of indebtedness described in indictment, and also stocks of certain corporations and interest in oil and gas leases, was not subject to demurrer on ground that the scheme and artifice to defraud was not charged with sufficient certainty, especially in absence of a demand for a bill of particulars. Harper v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1944, 143 F.2d 795.

In prosecution for violating Securities Act, § 77q of Title 15, for using the mails to defraud and for conspiracy to effect scheme to defraud, indictment was not required to allege violation of a particular statute as offense charged was to be determined and classified by allegations of the indictment. Holmes v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1943, 134 F.2d 125, certiorari denied 63 S.Ct. 1434, 319 U.S. 776, 87 L.Ed. 1722.

An indictment alleging conspiracy to commit acts made offenses by § 77q of Title 15 and former § 338 of this title, and alleging 17 overt acts with definite identification of time, place, and details, was sufficient. U.S. v. Carter & Co., W.D.Ky.1944, 56 F.Supp. 311.

Indictments charging defendants with conspiring to use mails to defraud and to violate Securities Act, § 77q of Title 15, were not demurrable on ground that, if violations of said section were not properly charged, recitations relating thereto were mere surplusage. U. S. v. Bogy, W.D.Tenn.1936, 16 F.Supp. 407, affirmed 96 F.2d 734, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 68, 305 U.S. 608, 83 L.Ed. 387.

Count of indictments charging conspiracy to commit offense of engaging in a fraudulent interstate transaction in sale of securities was not demurrable on ground that indictment did not allege that any sale was actually made, where terms of Securities Act, § 77q of Title 15, covered not only a sale of, but disposition of, attempt or offer to dispose of, or solicitation of offer to buy, a security. U. S. v. Bogy, W.D.Tenn.1936, 16 F.Supp. 407, affirmed 96 F.2d 734, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 68, 305 U.S. 608, 83 L.Ed. 387.

403. Sedition, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

In an indictment for seditious conspiracy against the United States, it is not necessary that the overt act charged should be the accomplishment of the design of the conspiracy. Phipps v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (Va.) 1918, 251 F. 879, 164 C.C.A. 95.

404. Selective service offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

An indictment charging lawyer and registrant with conspiracy to violate former § 301 et seq., of Title 50, App., by causing registrant to neglect willfully to report for induction and willfully to evade service and requirement of said sections, charged specific offense-object of violating 50 App. § 311, by failing to report for induction, and indictment was not demurrable notwithstanding vague references to evading service and requirement of said sections. U.S. v. Offutt, App.D.C.1942, 127 F.2d 336, 75 U.S.App.D.C. 344.

Indictments charging conspiracy to prevent registration or induce persons not to register were good. Anderson v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1920, 269 F. 65, certiorari denied 41 S.Ct. 447, 255 U.S. 576, 65 L.Ed. 794. See, also, U.S. v. Prieth, D.C.N.J.1918, 251 F. 946; U.S. v. Galleanni, D.C.Mass.1916, 245 F. 977.

An indictment was sufficient which charged a conspiracy to cause an evasion of military duty "through and by means of soliciting persons too numerous to mention, who were subject to and might be subject to service in the military and naval forces of the United States, to go to an oculist and optician and be fitted with eyeglasses that would so impair their vision and physical condition that they would thereby be rejected and discharged from service in said military and naval forces, and by also advising said persons that the President of the United States was an Englishman, and that he and the United States were fighting England's battles." Howenstine v. U.S.,

C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1920, 263 F. 1.

An indictment charging conspiracy to oppose by force the authority of the United States and to resist such authority by mutiny and armed force, by circulating after declaration of war with Germany printed matter set out, advising forcible resistance to conscription, charged an offense, although at the time the Selective Draft Act of 1917, 50 App. former § 201 et seq., had not been enacted, but was pending in Congress. U.S. v. Wells, W.D.Wash.1917, 262 F. 833.

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section], charging a conspiracy to violate the Selective Service Law, was sufficient where it alleged that the conspiracy, although formed prior to the enactment of such law, was continued thereafter and overt acts performed after its passage. U.S. v. Wells, W.D.Wash.1917, 262 F. 833.

Indictment charging that defendant conspired with officials of a draft board to violate the provisions of Selective Service Act, § 6, charged the commission of an offense against the United States. Gruher v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1918, 255 F. 474, 166 C.C.A. 550.

Count of indictment charging conspiracy by defendants, to commit offense against United States by aiding, abetting, counseling, etc., persons unknown unlawfully to evade and to aid others to evade the requirements of Selective Service Act, § 6, stated an offense under former §§ 88 [now this section] and 550 of this title. Fraina v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1918, 255 F. 28, 166 C.C.A. 356.

Indictment charging conspiracy, in violation of former § 88 of this title [now this section], to violate Conscription Act, was sufficient, though not alleging violation of act, nor was it bad because including in single count charge of conspiracy to commit an offense, as well as to defraud United States. U.S. v. Sugar, E.D.Mich.1917, 243 F. 423, affirmed 252 F. 79, 164 C.C.A. 191, certiorari denied 39 S.Ct. 19, 248 U.S. 578, 63 L.Ed. 429.

Since section 462 of Title 50, Appendix, making it unlawful to willfully interfere with administration of section 451 et seq. of Title 50, Appendix, contains its own conspiracy provision, that provision controlled, and reference in indictment to this section making it unlawful to conspire to commit offense against United States was improper, but absent showing by accused that he was prejudiced by this reference, indictment would not be dismissed. U. S. v. Cullen, E.D.Wis.1969, 305 F.Supp. 695.

Where first count in indictment alleged a conspiracy to evade provisions of Selective Service Act, 50 App. § 301 et seq., and not a conspiracy in violation of former § 88 of this title [now this section], the count was not defective for failure to allege an overt act. U. S. v. Valenti, W.D.Pa.1947, 74 F.Supp. 718.

405. Shipping offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

The provision of former § 88 of this title [now this section] which makes it a criminal offense to conspire "to defraud the United States in any manner or for any purpose," was not limited in its application to conspiracies to deprive the United States of money or property, but should be broadly construed to protect the government in its rights, privileges, operations, and functions against all fraudulent operations, and an indictment is good thereunder which avers facts sufficiently showing that defendants conspired to deceive inspectors of the United States in the exercise of their official functions by fraudulently inducing them to approve life preservers which did not in fact comply with the requirements of the federal law, and that they committed overt acts pursuant to such conspiracy. U.S. v. Stone, D.C.N.J.1905, 135 F. 392.

An indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States, which charged that defendants secretly inserted a piece of iron weighing half a pound in the center of each of a large number of cork blocks made by them, intending that such blocks should be used in making life preservers for the equipment of steamers navigating the ocean and lakes, bays and sounds of the United States, sufficiently showed that life preservers so made would not fulfill the law and regulations of the United States, which require that every such life preserver shall be made of good, sound cork blocks, and shall contain at least six pounds of good cork, which shall have a bouyancy of at least four pounds to each pound of cork. U.S. v. Stone, D.C.N.J.1905, 135 F. 392.

An indictment that avers in any form of language that some act has been done to carry out the agreement, is sufficient, whether it appears from the face of the pleading that the act averred would tend to effect the object or not, that being a matter of proof and a question for the jury, and therefore, an averment that one of the alleged conspirators "furnished and loaned" a skiff to be used by the others in plundering a wrecked vessel was within former § 88 of this title [now this section] and sufficient as a pleading. U.S. v. Sanche, C.C.W.D.Tenn.1881, 7 F. 715. Conspiracy ↻ 43(5)

406. Smuggling, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

In prosecution for a conspiracy to illegally smuggle cattle into the United States and for conspiring to receive, conceal and transport the cattle knowing them to have been illegally imported, indictment was not required to allege any particular place at which the customs law was first violated but it was enough that it was violated somewhere and that accused, with knowledge of the facts, possessed and concealed the cattle. Babb v. U.S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1954, 210 F.2d 473.

Counts of indictment were sufficient to charge the offense of conspiring to smuggle cattle into the United States contrary to law and conspiracy to transport cattle knowing them to have been illegally imported where all counts were practically in the language of §§ 371, 545, 2316, and 2317 of this title. Babb v. U.S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1954, 210 F.2d 473.

Indictment sufficiently charging conspiracy to smuggle intoxicating liquor into United States may not be dismissed on plea to jurisdiction of the court. U.S. v. Schouweiler, S.D.Cal.1927, 19 F.2d 387.

In prosecution for having smuggled and clandestinely introduced diamonds into United States and for having conspired to do so, allegations in conspiracy count that pursuant to conspiracy second codefendant had diamonds in his possession and had entered designated apartment and that, in furtherance of the conspiracy, defendant had entered the apartment on the next day sufficiently stated the manner in which it was claimed that defendant's entry of the apartment was an overt act in the conspiracy. U.S. v. Lieberman, S.D.N.Y.1953, 15 F.R.D. 278.

407. Stolen property, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment charging defendant with conspiracy to unlawfully transport stolen motor vehicles and stolen property in foreign commerce was not defective for failing to allege elements of substantive violation of unlawful transportation of stolen motor vehicles and stolen property. U. S. v. Graves, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1982, 669 F.2d 964.

Indictment charging two counts of aiding and abetting interstate transportation of stolen securities and one count of conspiracy to do so was sufficient to identify substantive crimes charged to give defendant notice of offenses, to enable him to prepare his defense and to protect against subsequent prosecution for same offense. U. S. v. Brown, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1964, 335 F.2d 170.

Where, in prosecution for conspiring to violate § 2312 of this title by transportation of stolen automobiles in interstate and foreign commerce, indictment alleged the commission of overt acts, in furtherance of the conspiracy, by defendants other than appellant, it was not necessary to allege an actual violation of the substantive provisions of said section nor to allege that appellant as distinguished from the other alleged conspirators, had committed an overt act or to describe the vehicles transported. United States v. Russo, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1956, 235 F.2d 477, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 364, 352 U.S. 972, 1 L.Ed.2d 325.

Indictment for conspiracy to transport stolen automobile in foreign commerce with knowledge of its stolen character was not voided by allegation that conspiracy was in process of execution "between, on or about September 29, 1952 to September 31, 1952, and each and every day intervening". Beeler v. U.S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1953, 205 F.2d 454, certiorari denied 74 S.Ct. 130, 346 U.S. 877, 98 L.Ed. 385.

Indictment charging that defendants conspired, confederated, and combined with others unknown to commit certain offenses against United States in violation of National Motor Vehicle Theft Act, former § 408 of this title, by receiving, concealing, selling, and transporting stolen motor vehicles in interstate commerce, and listing overt acts committed in effectuating conspiracy, was sufficient though not expressly alleging wrongful intent by use of such words as "knowingly, wilfully, feloniously, intentionally or unlawfully", since such words are unnecessary where the allegations necessarily or fairly import guilty knowledge. Madsen v. U. S., C.C.A.10 (Kan.) 1947, 165 F.2d 507.

In an indictment for conspiracy to transport, conceal, etc., motor vehicles, knowing the same to have been stolen, in violation of former § 408 of this title, it was unnecessary to set out the facts relating to the theft. Grace v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (La.) 1925, 4 F.2d 658, certiorari denied 45 S.Ct. 637, 268 U.S. 702, 69 L.Ed. 1165.

In prosecution under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for conspiracy to defraud the United States of the title and possession of an automobile, seized by the marshal because used in transportation of liquor, and allegation that United States was in actual possession was unnecessary, a charge that government had interest therein being sufficient. Cagle v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1925, 3 F.2d 746.

408. Tax offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations-- Income tax

Attorney was properly charged under "defraud" clause rather than "offense" clause of conspiracy statute for his role in concealing client's assets from Internal Revenue Service (IRS) because long-standing and wide-ranging scheme alleged in indictment violated more than one specific statute and indictment gave attorney adequate notice of the conduct constituting the charges against him. U.S. v. Kraig, C.A.6 (Ohio) 1996, 99 F.3d 1361. Conspiracy ↻ 43(10)

Alleged conspiracy to file false income tax returns and to conceal taxable income in order to prevent accurate ascertainment in collection of income taxes was chargeable under either the "offense" or the "defraud" clause of statute prohibiting conspiracies against the United States. U.S. v. Notch, C.A.10 (Colo.) 1991, 939 F.2d 895.

Indictments charging defendants with federal tax evasion violations in connection with defendants' alleged creation of trusts into which investors allegedly transferred income and assets for tax avoidance purposes was not fatally defective on ground it alleged that defendants represented to potential investors that legitimate business purpose for organizations existed; defendants could conspire to defraud United States regardless of whether entities used were shams. U.S. v. Schmidt, C.A.4 (N.C.) 1991, 935 F.2d 1440.

To sustain conviction for conspiracy to obstruct tax collecting function of Internal Revenue Service (IRS) Government must prove beyond reasonable doubt that alleged conspirators agreed among themselves to defraud United States by obstructing tax collecting function of IRS and must prove at least one overt act in furtherance of this agreement. U.S. v. Chesson, C.A.5 (La.) 1991, 933 F.2d 298, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 583, 502 U.S. 981, 116 L.Ed.2d 608.

Indictment adequately particularized alleged conspiracy to obstruct Internal Revenue Service, despite claims that purpose of one defendant in allegedly obstructing the Service was fatally lacking, that it was unclear as to whose taxes the Service was obstructed from ascertaining, and that terms of indictment, such as "shell company," "affiliates" and "utilized and controlled," were ambiguous. U. S. v. Hajecate, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1982, 683 F.2d 894, certiorari denied 103 S.Ct. 2086, 461 U.S. 927, 77 L.Ed.2d 298.

Indictment, which charged defendant with creation of artificial tax losses for a business by fraudulent manipulation of prices in a commodity market, was sufficient to charge defendant with conspiring to defraud the United States. U. S. v. Turkish, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1980, 623 F.2d 769, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 856, 449 U.S. 1077, 66 L.Ed.2d 800

Indictment which charged taxpayer and tax preparer with conspiracy to defraud United States by impeding, impairing, obstructing and defeating lawful functions of IRS and which alleged that defendants failed to file corporate income tax returns for various corporations for which they had responsibility of filing returns, that defendant falsely represented to IRS agents that returns had been filed, that defendants falsely represented that certain payments were properly reported as income, and that defendants falsely represented that various documents came into existence on date in advance of those on which documents were actually prepared was sufficient to charge defendants with conspiracy to obstruct lawful functions of IRS. U. S. v. Miller, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1974, 491 F.2d 638, rehearing denied 493 F.2d 664, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 236, 419 U.S. 970, 42 L.Ed.2d 186.

Under record, a count of indictment charging conspiracy between corporation and individuals to evade income tax was not deficient on ground that count did not fully and clearly set forth purpose of conspiracy. U.S. v. Knox Coal Co., C.A.3 (Pa.) 1965, 347 F.2d 33, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 239, 382 U.S. 904, 15 L.Ed.2d 157.

The failure of charging part of indictment alleging a conspiracy between corporation and individuals to evade income tax to declare that a tax in excess of that reported was due was not fatal since in a conspiracy count the conspiracy is the gist of the offense, and where purpose of conspiracy is the performing of acts which are made an offense by another section of the criminal code, every element of that offense need not be set forth. U.S. v. Knox Coal Co., C.A.3 (Pa.) 1965, 347 F.2d 33, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 239, 382 U.S. 904, 15 L.Ed.2d 157.

Count of indictment charging conspiracy to commit "the offenses of willful attempt" to evade and defeat corporate income taxes was not prejudicial to one of defendants even though it was not necessary to assert agreement to commit the offense in the plural, since conspiracy count may allege a purpose to commit multiple substantive offenses. U.S. v. Knox Coal Co., C.A.3 (Pa.) 1965, 347 F.2d 33, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 239, 382 U.S. 904, 15 L.Ed.2d 157.

In prosecution for conspiracy to obstruct Treasury Department's collection of revenue, it was not necessary that charge be based on conspiracy to violate the substantive offense of tax evasion as defined in Title 26 rather than conspiracy to defraud United States. U.S. v. Klein, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1957, 247 F.2d 908, certiorari denied 78 S.Ct. 365, 355 U.S. 924, 2 L.Ed.2d 354.

Separate counts of indictment properly charged conspiracy to defraud the United States by obstructing the lawful functions of internal revenue officials, and income tax evasion, since the same overt acts charged in a conspiracy count may also be charged and proved as substantive offenses, for the agreement to do the act is distinct from the act itself. Kobey v. U.S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1953, 208 F.2d 583.

A count in indictment charging defendants with a conspiracy extending over a period of years to defraud United States of income taxes due from one defendant and alleging overt acts of defendants in furtherance of conspiracy charged a "continuing offense" and was valid as against demurrer. U.S. v. Johnson, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1941, 123 F.2d 111, certiorari granted 62 S.Ct. 625, 315 U.S. 790, 86 L.Ed. 1193, certiorari granted 62 S.Ct. 625, 315 U.S. 790, 86 L.Ed. 1194, reversed on other grounds 63 S.Ct. 1233, 319 U.S. 503, 87 L.Ed. 1546, rehearing denied 64 S.Ct. 25, 320 U.S. 808, 88 L.Ed. 488.

Indictment charging attempt to evade and defeat large part of federal tax on income of a corporation was not bad because authority of special assistants to Attorney General was limited to investigating offenses under revenue laws and they also participated in investigation which resulted in indictment for conspiracy to violate the revenue laws. U.S. v. Molasky, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1941, 118 F.2d 128, certiorari granted 61 S.Ct. 1110, 313 U.S. 557, 85 L.Ed. 1518, certiorari granted 61 S.Ct. 1111, 313 U.S. 557, 85 L.Ed. 1518, reversed on other grounds 62 S.Ct. 374, 314 U.S. 513, 86 L.Ed. 383, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 620, 315 U.S. 826, 86 L.Ed. 1222, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 621, 315 U.S. 826, 86 L.Ed. 1222.

An indictment for a conspiracy to defeat and evade the income tax sufficiently sets forth an overt act where it alleges the filing of a false return with the collector of internal revenue, since by the filing of the return it is then placed beyond the control of the defendant and the collector in the usual course will use such return as a basis of assessing the tax. U.S. v. Rachmil, S.D.N.Y.1921, 270 F. 869.

In a prosecution for conspiracy to defeat and evade the income tax, it is necessary to allege and prove an overt act done in pursuance of, and to effectuate, the object of the conspiracy. U.S. v. Rachmil, S.D.N.Y.1921, 270 F. 869.

Indictment for conspiracy to defraud United States, arising from alleged scheme to take income tax deductions for legal services that were not provided, was not rendered legally insufficient by fact that additional substantive offenses charged in indictment of filing false income tax returns required higher mens rea of willfulness than conspiracy charge; indictment for conspiracy charged "classic" Klein conspiracy, for which proof of knowledge of illegality was not required. U.S. v. Danella, E.D.Pa.1996, 931 F.Supp. 374. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(10)

Dismissal of indictment charging that defendants set up sham trust entities to conceal taxable income and assets from the Internal Revenue Service, on theory that conduct alleged in indictment was lawful, based on defendants' representations was not warranted, in that a fact finder was required to make an objective determination of whether a legitimate business purpose existed for the trust, and the representations made could not be characterized as an objective determination that a valid business purpose existed for the transactions. U.S. v. Lewis, W.D.N.C.1990, 730 F.Supp. 691.

Conspiracy count's third paragraph, stating that conspiracy's third object was to submit and file and cause to be submitted and filed several form 11 returns, for listed periods, which were not true and correct as to every material matter, did not sufficiently state an offense against the United States and thus did not set forth an illegal object of the alleged conspiracy, since lack of belief in the truth and correctness of the matter represented is the essence of the offense under section 7206 of Title 26 prohibiting the willful making and subscribing of returns, verified by a specified declaration, without belief in their truth and correctness, whereas the count, rather than alleging lack of belief, simply charged that the statement was incorrect. U. S. v. Balistrieri, E.D.Wis.1972, 346 F.Supp. 341.

Count of indictment charging that defendants did unlawfully, wilfully, and knowingly combine, conspire, confederate, and agree together and with each other to defraud the United States in the exercise of its governmental functions in the assessment and collection of income taxes imposed by law and in management of the revenue, in that defendants attempted to conceal and continued to conceal the nature of their business activities and the source and nature of their income would not be dismissed, on ground that facts sufficient to constitute an offense against the United States had not been alleged, that allegations were duplicitous and uncertain, and that allegations were so vague as to violate U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 6. U.S. v. Klein, S.D.N.Y.1954, 124 F.Supp. 476, affirmed 247 F.2d 908, certiorari denied 78 S.Ct. 365, 355 U.S. 924, 2 L.Ed.2d 354.

Count of indictment charging one of defendants with income tax evasion by filing a false joint income tax return stating a net income of $50,200.94 for 1953 when he knew that joint net income was $92,209.78 or more and charging in another count that all of defendants conspired to violate specific sections of Internal Revenue Code, Title 26, and this title, and setting forth the dates involved and the overt acts and identifying the tax returns involved, was sufficient and a bill of particulars was not warranted. U.S. v. Wortman, E.D.Ill.1960, 26 F.R.D. 183.

409. ---- Liquor, tax offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment charging that defendants conspired to commit certain acts "made offenses against the United States of

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

America by section 5691 of Title 26" and that they conspired to "carry on the business of retail liquor dealers," was sufficient to charge an offense, though it did not specifically charge that defendants conspired to carry on the business without paying special tax as required by law. Davis v. U. S., C.A.6 (Ky.) 1958, 253 F.2d 24.

Indictment charging violations of § 5691 of Title 26 and § 1262 of this title, relating to transportation of intoxicants into dry state, and charging conspiracy in connection therewith sufficiently charged manner, method and means by which conspiracy was formed and accomplished. McDonough v. U.S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1955, 227 F.2d 402.

Indictment charging conspiracy to possess, transport and sell distilled spirits, in unstamped containers should have alleged that such possession, transportation and sale were to be done in the United States and would constitute offenses against United States, but trial would not be upset for failure of indictment to so state where record showed that everyone concerned knew during trial what grand jury meant, and it was alleged that conspiracy was formed in United States and each overt act alleged was done in United States. Johns v. U.S., C.A.5 (Ga.) 1952, 195 F.2d 77.

Allegations of overt acts in indictment charging conspiracy are important to show that the conspiracy alleged ripened into a crime, and to fix venue, but they do not constitute part of the description of the conspiracy charged. Johns v. U.S., C.A.5 (Ga.) 1952, 195 F.2d 77.

Indictment charging that defendants and other named persons conspired to violate §§ 2831, 2857, 2860 and 3253 of Title 26, by carrying on business of wholesale liquor dealer without paying special taxes, purchasing and receiving distilled spirits in quantities greater than 20 gallons from persons other than authorized dealers, wilfully failing to keep records of such business, and failing to keep sign posted stating they were wholesale liquor dealers was sufficient. Briggs v. U.S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1949, 176 F.2d 317, certiorari denied 70 S.Ct. 102, 338 U.S. 861, 94 L.Ed. 528, rehearing denied 70 S.Ct. 158, 338 U.S. 882, 94 L.Ed. 541, certiorari denied 70 S.Ct. 103, 338 U.S. 861, 94 L.Ed. 528.

Counts of indictment relating to violation of § 2810 of Title 26, will not be quashed on ground they did not allege offenses charged with sufficient fullness and definiteness as to time, place and other circumstances since if more precise information was necessary, proper remedy was by seeking bill of particulars. Kitt v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (Va.) 1942, 132 F.2d 920.

Count of indictment charging conspiracy to violate, 26 U.S.C.A. §§ 2810, 2833, 2834, and 2913 [I.R.C.1939] was not subject to demurrer on ground that word "unlawful" was used to describe overt acts charged to have been committed in furtherance of conspiracy. Kitt v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (Va.) 1942, 132 F.2d 920.

Where indictment charged conspiracy, it was permissible to allege the conspiracy was for purpose of aiding bootleggers in committing a number of substantive offenses for purpose of defrauding the United States. Blackmon v. U. S., C.C.A.5 (Ala.) 1942, 126 F.2d 214.

An indictment which adequately charged a conspiracy to violate internal revenue laws was not insufficient on ground that scheme to violate the laws by possessing stills, manufacturing and selling liquor was too generally alleged. Johnson v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Ga.) 1941, 124 F.2d 101.

An indictment charging a conspiracy and the possession of 50 gallons of liquor on which the tax had not been paid was sufficient where it was substantially in the form of the statute and charged specific overt acts in regard to the defendant. Pullin v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Ga.) 1939, 104 F.2d 57, certiorari denied 60 S.Ct. 97, 308 U.S. 552, 84 L.Ed. 464.

An overt act charged in indictment for conspiracy to violate national liquor laws, of driving automobile wherein were concealed jugs of moonshine whisky, did not alone charge an offense, in absence of allegation that liquor was tax unpaid, that containers were unstamped, or that concealment was for purpose of defrauding the United States. Hughes v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Fla.) 1938, 95 F.2d 538.

Indictment charging conspiracy against the United States in connection with illegal distilling with intent to defraud United States of taxes on distilled spirits was not invalid on ground that it was based upon internal revenue laws antedating prohibition and that former § 3 of Title 27 was unconstitutional. Wainer v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1937, 87 F.2d 77, certiorari denied 57 S.Ct. 511, 300 U.S. 669, 81 L.Ed. 876.

Indictment charging defendant with conspiring to defraud United States by delivering certain shipments of alcohol subject to tax to person other than consignee was sufficient, notwithstanding failure to negative exception in statute "unless upon written order in each instance of the bona fide consignee." Reing v. U S ex rel Girard, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1936, 84 F.2d 624.

Indictment charging conspiracy to import intoxicating liquor without permit and without paying customs duties sufficiently charged conspiracy to violate Revenue Laws, since at time involved there could be no lawful importation of liquors under National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, without permit, and offense charged was not affected by repeal of Eighteenth Amendment. Moyer v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1935, 78 F.2d 624.

Count of indictment charging conspiracy to import intoxicating liquor without permit and without paying customs duties charged one offense of conspiracy, and did not present question such as charging two offenses in single count. Moyer v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1935, 78 F.2d 624.

Indictment charging conspiracy to violate liquor law was not defective as charging several conspiracies because alleging defendants conspired in different counties. U S v. Ford, D.C.Pa.1932, 58 F.2d 1029.

In prosecution for conspiracy to defraud United States of customs duties and internal revenue taxes by fraudulent withdrawal of liquor from bonded warehouse, indictment, describing forged permits by means of which liquor was withdrawn as similar to customs permit with specified number, was sufficient. Becher v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1924, 5 F.2d 45.

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate the Internal Revenue Laws respecting distilled spirits, indictment was not defective on the ground that there was a variance between allegations and proof and that the government proved a number of isolated smaller conspiracies rather than a single over-all conspiracy. U. S. v. Kensil, E.D.Pa.1961, 195 F.Supp. 115, affirmed 295 F.2d 489, certiorari denied 82 S.Ct. 439, 368 U.S. 967, 7 L.Ed.2d 396.

Count which alleged that defendants had conspired to commit an offense against §§ 3072 and 3115(a) of Title 26, by knowingly selling, and causing to be sold, liquid medicinal preparation, containing specially denatured alcohol, for internal human use without payment of lawful tax due thereon, was sufficient to allege essential elements of a conspiracy. U. S. v. J. R. Watkins Co., D.C.Minn.1954, 120 F.Supp. 154.

In indictment for conspiracy to commit, with intent to defraud United States, violations of laws governing withdrawal and shipment of tax free alcohol, allegation of overt acts charging that defendant inspector and storekeeper-gauger in Bureau of Industrial Alcohol and in alcohol tax unit made reports purporting to show amounts of denatured alcohol received and mixed for manufacture of white distilled vinegar was not insufficient as indefinite, uncertain, and confusing in view of charging part of indictment stating in detail false and fraudulent acts claimed to have been done by such defendants. U.S. v. Noble, W.D.N.Y.1937, 18 F.Supp. 808.

In indictment for conspiracy to commit, with intent to defraud United States, violations of laws governing withdrawal and shipment of tax free alcohol, allegations of overt acts charging execution of false reports purporting to show amount of denatured alcohol received at designated plant was not insufficient for failure to allege that list or return was made to collector showing articles and objects charged with tax, since making of such return was not essential element of conspiracy charged. U.S. v. Noble, W.D.N.Y.1937, 18 F.Supp. 808.

In indictment for conspiracy to commit, with intent to defraud United States, violations of laws governing withdrawal and shipment of tax free alcohol, allegation of overt acts of defendant motor freight company and its officers and employees was not insufficient for failure to show that officers and employees of motor freight company were authorized to do acts charged, where indictment charged that company as well as such individuals made false entries and reports as to transportation of alcohol and that the company was authorized to transport denatured alcohol. U.S. v. Noble, W.D.N.Y.1937, 18 F.Supp. 808.

An indictment charging a conspiracy to defraud the United States of the taxes due upon distilled spirits need not allege the specific mode agreed upon by which the object of the conspiracy was to be carried out. U. S. v. Dustin, C.C.S.D.Ohio 1869, 25 F.Cas. 944, 2 Bond 332, No. 15011. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(3); Internal Revenue ⚡ 5283

In an indictment for a conspiracy to defraud the United States, the subjectmatter was sufficiently described as "taxes upon distilled spirits, distilled in the United States, and situated in certain bonded warehouses." U S v. Boyden, C.C.Mass.1868, 24 F.Cas. 1213, No. 14632. Indictment And Information ⚡ 21

410. ---- Manufacturers' tax, tax offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

An indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States of the special tax of 10 cents per pound, imposed on manufacturers of colored oleomargarine was sufficient. Jelke v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1918, 255 F. 264, 166 C.C.A. 434.

As indictment charging a conspiracy to defraud the United States of taxes on artificially colored oleomargarine was sufficient to charge such a conspiracy, and contained a sufficient averment of overt acts; it being unnecessary to allege that the scheme was completed or the government defrauded. U.S. v. Orr, D.C.R.I.1916, 233 F. 717.

An indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States by the removal of oleomargarine from a factory without payment of the tax need not allege that the defrauding was to be accomplished by deceit, misrepresentation, or concealment. Tillinghast v. Richards, D.C.R.I.1915, 225 F. 226.

411. Trading with the Enemy Act offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Company could properly be charged with conspiracy to commit an "offense" for violation of executive orders prohibiting United States persons from dealing with government of Iraq after Iraq invaded Kuwait, where International Emergency Economic Powers Act authorized President to issue executive orders proscribing conduct, and statute made criminal the disobedience of order issued under the Act. U.S. v. Arch Trading Co., C.A.4 (Va.) 1993, 987 F.2d 1087.

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate, and for substantive offenses of, violation, Trading with the Enemy Act, § 1 et seq. of Title 50, Appendix, and regulations thereunder, by dealing in Chinese-type drugs, interest of foreign nationals in proscribed merchandise was sufficiently alleged and proved. U. S. v. Quong, C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1962, 303 F.2d 499, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 119, 371 U.S. 863, 9 L.Ed.2d 100.

412. Travel and transportation, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate the Mann Act, § 2422 of this title, erroneous allegation of an overt act could be disregarded where there were five overt acts charged and only one had to be proved. U. S. v. Frank, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1961, 290 F.2d 195, certiorari denied 82 S.Ct. 38, 368 U.S. 821, 7 L.Ed.2d 26.

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

413. Wire communication offenses, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment alleging plan whereby defendants lured party into Mexico and partly by use of telephone persuaded party's father to pay money to procure party's release from arrest was sufficient to allege violations of Wire Fraud Statute, § 1343 of this title and of conspiracy to do so. Huff v. U. S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1962, 301 F.2d 760, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 289, 371 U.S. 922, 9 L.Ed.2d 230.

Count of indictment alleging that defendants and unknown persons conspired together to intercept wire communications and divulge and publish contents of communications, without authority of senders, in violation of § 501 and 605 of Title 47, and describing the acts and alleging that they were done by one or both of the defendants, sufficiently charged an offense under this section dealing with conspiracy to commit any offense against the United States, Elkins v. U.S., C.A.9 (Or.) 1959, 266 F.2d 588, certiorari granted 80 S.Ct. 61, 361 U.S. 810, 4 L.Ed.2d 58, vacated on other grounds 80 S.Ct. 1437, 364 U.S. 206, 4 L.Ed.2d 1669.

Indictment charging conspiracy to commit offenses against the United States in violation of provision of § 605 of Title 47, prohibiting wire tapping and the divulgence of information obtained thereby, charged a crime. U.S. v. Gruber, S.D.N.Y.1941, 39 F.Supp. 291.

414. Miscellaneous indictments and informations, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Where prime contract between prime contractor and the United States Air Force contained several references to its being a fixed-price contract and provided in each instance specified unit prices for various units of aircraft and parts produced, but provisions thereof contemplated that in course of renegotiation and revision in prices for items delivered, reimbursement for costs incurred would be made in some instances, prime contract was not exclusively a "fixed price contract" as distinguished from a "cost reimbursable contract" within meaning of §§ 51 to 54 of Title 41 forbidding kick-backs by subcontractors on cost-plus-a-fixed-fee or "cost reimbursable contracts," and indictments alleging a conspiracy to violate such sections by employees of prime contractor and subcontractors were sufficient. U. S. v. Barnard, C.A.10 (Kan.) 1958, 255 F.2d 583, certiorari denied 79 S.Ct. 287, 358 U.S. 919, 3 L.Ed.2d 238.

Sections 51 to 54 of Title 41 relating to kick-backs by subcontractors on cost-plus-a-fixed-fee or cost reimbursable contracts do not make knowledge of the terms of the prime contract an essential element of the offense to be charged in the indictment, and indictments charging conspiracy to violate such sections were not objectionable because they did not charge that donors or recipients of kickbacks knew of the existence of a cost reimbursable contract between the prime contractor and the United States Air Force. U. S. v. Barnard, C.A.10 (Kan.) 1958, 255 F.2d 583, certiorari denied 79 S.Ct. 287, 358 U.S. 919, 3 L.Ed.2d 238.

Indictment charging conspiracy to harbor fugitive from justice was not invalid on ground that statement that warrant for fugitive was issued under indictment for conspiracy to violate federal law was not tantamount to saying that fugitive was charged with crime as a defendant nor that warrant was issued for his arrest. Piquett v. U.S., C.C.A.Ill.1936, 81 F.2d 75, certiorari denied 56 S.Ct. 749. Piquett v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1936, 81 F.2d 75, certiorari denied 56 S.Ct. 749, 298 U.S. 664, 80 L.Ed. 1388.

An information charging "an unlawful combination and intention to violate [the] order of the court," but also charging an actual violation, did not charge conspiracy, a crime defined and triable only by jury under former § 88 of this title [now this section] but a contempt of court. Kelton v. U S, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1923, 294 F. 491, certiorari denied 44 S.Ct. 403, 264 U.S. 590, 68 L.Ed. 864.

Indictment sufficiently alleged single ongoing conspiracy to commit insurance fraud within five-year statute of limitations when indictment alleged that defendant, his brother, and other coconspirators were engaged in scheme to defraud insurance companies by submitting fraudulently inflated insurance claims for losses purportedly resulting from fires that occurred over more than 10-year period, indictment listed 34 overt acts covering time period of alleged single conspiracy, and final overt act occurred within limitations period, when defendant allegedly deposited proceeds of disbursement from insurance claim filed for losses sustained in last fire. U.S. v. Schlesinger, E.D.N.Y.2005, 360 F.Supp.2d 512. Criminal Law ↻ 150

An indictment for conspiring to delay and withhold valuable tools from defense use was not defective because some defendants were alleged to have dealt in legal opposition to others by reason of contractual relationship, where nevertheless benefit to each defendant depended upon accomplishing object of conspiracy and all defendants allegedly united in and agreed upon wrongful object. U.S. v. Rhoads, D.C.D.C.1942, 48 F.Supp. 175.

415. Travel Act, sufficiency of particular indictments or informations

Indictment charging defendant with conspiracy to violate Travel Act was sufficient and did not amount to deprivation of significant protection of indictment process; indictment put defendant on notice that he was charged with conspiracy to commit state law bribery through interstate travel or use of interstate facilities, and was specific enough to provide double jeopardy protection. U.S. v. Werme, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1991, 939 F.2d 108, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 1165, 502 U.S. 1092, 117 L.Ed.2d 412.

441. Representation by counsel, trial proceedings generally

Joint representation of defendants one of whom admitted existence of conspiracy but claimed entrapment and the other of whom denied guilt was not prejudicial on theory that counsel could not adequately present conflicting positions where defendants were involved in different aspects of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Lovano, C.A.2 (N.Y.)

© 2006 Thomson/West. No Claim to Orig. U.S. Govt. Works.

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

1970, 420 F.2d 769, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 1515, 397 U.S. 1071, 25 L.Ed.2d 694.

442. Pleas, trial proceedings generally--Generally

Signed statement of facts, which defendant admitted on record was accurate representation of what happened, established sufficient factual basis for defendant's guilty plea to offenses of laundering monetary instruments and conspiring to conceal assets from bankruptcy trustee. U.S. v. DeFusco, C.A.4 (Va.) 1991, 949 F.2d 114, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 1703, 503 U.S. 997, 118 L.Ed.2d 412. Criminal Law ☞ 273(4.1)

Fact that conspiracy count was only generally addressed in guilty plea allocution did not warrant reversal of finding that pleas to conspiracy and substantive count, which was read and explained in detail, were informed and voluntary. U.S. v. DeFusco, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1991, 930 F.2d 413, rehearing denied 933 F.2d 1006, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 239, 502 U.S. 885, 116 L.Ed.2d 194. Criminal Law ☞ 1167(5)

Prosecution for conspiracy against defendant who concealed purpose and scope of his criminal activities and subsequently lied to grand jury investigating such activities was not barred by defendant's agreement to plead guilty and his plea of guilty to misuse of a government seal, even though the Government had agreed not to charge defendant with any other possible violations arising out of such activities, where, at time plea agreement was made and plea was entered, Government knew only that using a false I.D. card defendant had entered United States Attorney's Office and used photocopying machine therein. U. S. v. Heldt, C.A.D.C.1981, 668 F.2d 1238, 215 U.S.App.D.C. 206, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 1971, 456 U.S. 926, 72 L.Ed.2d 440. Criminal Law ☞ 273.2(1)

Fact that the United States was unsuccessful in its efforts to convict codefendant of robbing a federally insured bank and of conspiring to rob such a bank did not vitiate the validity of defendant's guilty plea to the conspiracy count, notwithstanding the fact that the codefendant was the only additional individual named as a coconspirator in the indictment to which defendant pleaded guilty. U. S. v. Strother, C.A.5 (Miss.) 1972, 458 F.2d 424, certiorari denied 93 S.Ct. 456, 409 U.S. 1011, 34 L.Ed.2d 305. Criminal Law ☞ 273(1)

Petitioner was entitled to an evidentiary hearing on his claim that his guilty pleas to charges of conspiring to rob a federally insured bank and of concealing a stolen motor vehicle transported in interstate commerce were not entered with understanding of the pleas' consequences, in view of his testimony that he was permitted to plead guilty to the conspiracy charge although he told his appointed attorney and court that alleged coconspirator had in no way been involved in robbery, and in view of his testimony, supported to some extent by a conversation in open court between his attorney and trial judge, that no one explained to him the consequences of pleading guilty to the concealment charge. U. S. v. Strother, C.A.5 (Miss.) 1970, 434 F.2d 1292. Criminal Law ☞ 1655(3)

That trial judge permitted codefendant to plead guilty during course of lengthy stock conspiracy trial was not error or prejudicial to codefendants, under circumstances that guilty plea was not made in presence of jury, and jurors were not in any way apprised of fact that it had been made. U. S. v. Kelly, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1965, 349 F.2d 720, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 1467, 384 U.S. 947, 16 L.Ed.2d 544. Criminal Law ☞ 273(4.1)

Where prisoner, in presence of his counsel, entered voluntary pleas of guilty at federal court at Kansas City, prisoner waived right to be tried in southwestern division of federal court for western district of Missouri on counts of indictment charging armed bank robbery and conspiracy to commit such robbery at site within southwestern division, and court at Kansas City had jurisdiction to accept pleas of guilty and impose sentence. Potter v. U. S., C.A.8 (Mo.) 1962, 304 F.2d 664. Criminal Law ☞ 145

Evidence supported finding that accused was "ably represented" by counsel appointed by court at time of entering plea of guilty to charges of bank robbery, kidnapping, and conspiracy, even though such counsel advised plea of guilty. Crum v. Hunter, C.C.A.10 (Kan.) 1945, 151 F.2d 359, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 1117, 328 U.S. 850, 90 L.Ed. 1623. Habeas Corpus ☞ 721(2)

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

A plea of guilty to indictment charging conspiracy to corruptly administer the Frazier-Lemke Act, § 203 of Title 11, was an admission that accused entered into conspiracy with some one or all of codefendants to commit a crime against United States or to defraud United States by means of a corrupt administration of said section and that he or one of codefendants had committed one of overt acts charged in indictment or some other overt act for purpose of effecting object of conspiracy. Bergen v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1944, 145 F.2d 181. Criminal Law ⚡ 273.3

A plea of guilty to charge of conspiracy to violate Frazier-Lemke Act, § 203 of Title 11, was a waiver of fundamental rights against which every reasonable presumption is indulged. Bergen v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1944, 145 F.2d 181. Criminal Law ⚡ 273.4(1)

In prosecution for conspiracy to operate illicit stills, where existence of some kind of conspiracy was proved beyond peradventure and only important issue was whether accused were connected with enterprise, permitting others of accused to plead guilty in presence of jury was harmless, particularly in view of charge that jury disregard the incident. U.S. v. Falcone, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1940, 109 F.2d 579, certiorari granted 60 S.Ct. 1075, 310 U.S. 620, 84 L.Ed. 1393, affirmed 61 S.Ct. 204, 311 U.S. 205, 85 L.Ed. 128. See, also, Grunberg v. U.S., C.C.A.Mass.1906, 145 F. 81, 76 C.C.A. 51. Criminal Law ⚡ 1166.6

Defendant gave a knowing, intelligent, and voluntary guilty plea to offense of conspiracy to defraud the government, despite defendant's contention that he was not aware of the element of dishonesty or deceitful conduct; defendant admitted during plea allocution that he agreed with others to defraud government, and counsel asserted that he advised defendant of all elements of offense and discussed the defenses available to him. Coluccio v. U.S., E.D.N.Y.2004, 313 F.Supp.2d 150. Criminal Law ⚡ 273.1(4)

Agreement whereby corporation and chief executive officer pled guilty to misdemeanor violations of illegal corporate campaign contributions barred subsequent prosecution of the corporation, such officer and others for conspiring to defraud the government by impeding investigation into ascertainment of corporate income taxes, specifically, investigation as to nature and source of funds used to make the contributions, where plea agreement left open prosecution for violations of the tax code and at time of agreement government knew of source, generation or handling of the funds, which allegedly had not previously been recorded as income, and defendant were induced by and relied on the agreement in entering the pleas. U. S. v. Phillips Petroleum Co., N.D.Okla.1977, 435 F.Supp. 622. Criminal Law ⚡ 273.1(2)

In count of indictment charging primarily a conspiracy to commit offenses against the United States by willfully making or presenting false claims in order to defraud the United States, relatively brief allegations as to bribery of Army inspector merely alleged one of the means used by defendants to effectuate the conspiracy charged, and plea of guilty to such count did not constitute admission of such an alleged bribery. U. S. v. Ben Grunstein & Sons Co., D.C.N.J.1955, 127 F.Supp. 907. Criminal Law ⚡ 273.3

Plea of guilty to charge of criminal conspiracy admits only the existence of the particular conspiracy charged in its essential nature and participation therein by defendant so pleading. U. S. v. Ben Grunstein & Sons Co., D.C.N.J.1955, 127 F.Supp. 907. Criminal Law ⚡ 273.3

In prosecutions for conspiracy, pleas of guilty constitute an admission of existence of conspiracy, participation therein by defendants, and commission by defendant so pleading, or by one of his codefendants, of overt acts charged in indictment or any overt act which has as its purpose effectuation of objects of conspiracy. U.S. v. American Packing Corp., D.C.N.J.1953, 113 F.Supp. 223. Criminal Law ⚡ 273.3

443. ---- Withdrawal of pleas, trial proceedings generally

Any misleading statement during plea colloquy concerning the district court's discretion to upwardly depart during sentencing did not violate defendant's substantial rights, and thus defendant was not entitled to withdraw his guilty plea to conspiracy to escape from the custody of the Attorney General and to attempt to escape; defendant was warned of a term of five years of imprisonment on each count but was sentenced only to four years on each count, and overwhelming evidence of defendant's guilt existed, making it unlikely that defendant would have withdrawn the plea and faced a jury trial, which would have deprived defendant of the three-level acceptance of responsibility reduction. U.S. v. Parker, C.A.7 (Ill.) 2004, 368 F.3d 963. Criminal Law ⚡ 274(3.1)

Because examination of transcript of arraignment proceedings showed that district court's explanation of what basic facts must be proved to establish charged crimes of conspiracy to commit gambling offenses and the substantive gambling offense was incomplete and misleading in light of construction placed on statute by United States Supreme Court, record did not show that court correctly stated to defendant or that he truly understood the elements necessary to prove the offenses charged judgment of conviction on plea of nolo contendere must be vacated and defendant allowed to withdraw plea. U. S. v. Cantor, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1972, 469 F.2d 435. Criminal Law ⚡ 275

Record showing that at time of sentencing court was under mistaken impression that defendant had entered plea of guilty to charge of conspiracy rather than use of mails in scheme to defraud and that when mistake was discovered several days later sentence was vacated and defendant ordered to appear disclosed no reversible error in denial of motion to withdraw plea of guilty and to reinstate plea of not guilty and in resentencing defendant. U. S. v. Crowe, C.A.3 (Del.) 1967, 373 F.2d 797, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 31, 389 U.S. 833, 19 L.Ed.2d 93. Criminal Law ⚡ 1167(5)

District Court did not abuse its discretion in denying defendants' application for leave to withdraw their pleas of guilty to conspiracy to defraud the government and defrauding the government by upgrading poultry furnished the army, where it appeared that their pleas were voluntarily, understandingly, and deliberately entered, and that it was only their dissatisfaction with sentences imposed which caused them to make such application. Friedman v. U.S., C.A.8 (Iowa) 1952, 200 F.2d 690, certiorari denied 73 S.Ct. 784, 345 U.S. 926, 97 L.Ed. 1357, rehearing denied 73 S.Ct. 937, 345 U.S. 961, 97 L.Ed. 1381. Criminal Law ⚡ 274(5)

On motion for leave to withdraw plea of guilty to indictment charging conspiracy to defraud United States, which plea was entered without advice of counsel, question was not the probable guilt of accused nor what caused him to change his mind, but whether, when he entered plea, he had requisite understanding of charge against him, and, if he did not, the fact that third parties, for motives of their own, by explanation or influence, were able to show him his error or induce him to change his plea was of no significance. Bergen v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1944, 145 F.2d 181. Criminal Law ⚡ 274(7)

Where accused, when he entered plea of guilty to indictment charging conspiracy to defraud United States by corruptly administering Frazier-Lemke Act, § 203 of Title 11, gave trial judge a written statement which, though admitting solicitation of farmers to file proceedings for relief under said section, denied that he was guilty of conspiracy to defraud and stated that in such soliciting he acted under advice of counsel, his subsequent motion for leave to withdraw plea of guilty before sentence should have been granted under circumstances. Bergen v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1944, 145 F.2d 181. Criminal Law ⚡ 274(3.1)

Where accused who was represented by an able lawyer, after due consideration, entered plea of guilty to charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice and to defraud the United States, and became a government witness, refusal to allow accused to withdraw the plea after nolle prosequi had been entered as to his codefendant, after failure of two juries to reach verdict, was not abuse of discretion, even though the prosecuting officers recommended that accused be allowed to withdraw his plea. U. S. v. Fox, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1942, 130 F.2d 56, certiorari denied 63 S.Ct. 74, 317 U.S. 666, 87 L.Ed. 535. Criminal Law ⚡ 274(4)

In prosecution for conspiring to obstruct movement of mails and to restrain trade, court's denial of defendants' motion to set aside pleas of not guilty and to permit them to file demurrers was in trial court's discretion, which was not abused. U.S. v. Prosecuting attorney's motion to nolle prosequi indictment of two defendants charged with conspiracy did not entitle a third defendant, who had been jointly indicted and who pleaded guilty, to leave to withdraw his plea of guilty, or to be heard on government's motion as to his codefendants. Where defendant after discussion with his attorney had voluntarily chosen to enter plea of nolo contendere to bribery charge, and did not claim mistake of fact or law, he was not entitled to withdraw plea merely because his alleged co-conspirators were acquitted and because such plea was allegedly "improvident". U. S. v. Suba, W.D.Pa.1964, 227 F.Supp. 445. Criminal Law ⚡ 275

Where indictment alleging conspiracy did not name as co-conspirators persons unknown, and verdict of not guilty rendered by jury in earlier trial of alleged co-conspirators did not leave more than one defendant whose case was undisposed of, defendant whose case alone remained open would be permitted to withdraw plea of nolo contendere. 444. Jurors, trial proceedings generally--Generally Juror's letter to defendant about ten days after trial and the essentially uninformed opinions of psychiatrists regarding the letter fell considerably short of justifying any further inquiry into competence of such juror during her service in prosecution for conspiracy and substantive counts relating to violations of federal security laws and regulations and federal mail and wire fraud laws. U. S. v. Dioguardi, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1974, 492 F.2d 70, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 134, 419 U.S. 873, 42 L.Ed.2d 112, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 49, 419 U.S. 829, 42 L.Ed.2d 53, motion denied 95 S.Ct. 616, 419 U.S. 1044, 42 L.Ed.2d 638. 445. ---- Voir dire, jurors, trial proceedings generally

Voir dire examination of jurors, during which trial judge elected to deal with problem of massive pretrial publicity, much of it negative, by extensively questioning jurors concerning prior media impact and juror associations coupled with many dismissals based on even hints of possible prejudice, by substantially increasing number of peremptory challenges available to each defendant, and by relying on defendants' use of detailed questionnaires concerning all potential jurors coupled with sensitive responses by court to any of defendants' challenges arising from such use, sufficed to produce impartial jury and fundamentally fair trial. *U.S. v. 448. Continuance, trial proceedings generally

In prosecution for conspiracy, district court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to grant defendant a continuance after the fourth day of trial so that he could locate and produce two additional witnesses. U.S. v. Howard, C.A.8 (Mo.) 1983, 706 F.2d 267, certiorari denied 104 S.Ct. 341, 464 U.S. 934, 78 L.Ed.2d 309. Criminal Law ⚡ 649(2)

Trial court was not required to grant continuance for purpose of producing nephew of victim of burglary who allegedly had given conspirator certain information about amount and location of money in uncle's home where conspirators knew of existence of such person at least week before requesting continuance, they made no effort to secure his presence, and they had no genuine interest in securing his testimony which in any case was of doubtful relevance. U. S. v. Falange, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1970, 426 F.2d 930, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 149, 400 U.S. 906, 27 L.Ed.2d 144. Criminal Law ⚡ 598(2)

Where conspiracy to pass counterfeit federal reserve notes trial commenced almost 11 weeks after magazine article concerning defendant's activities had been published, defendant did not represent that any publicity attributable to the article had so permeated territory at time of trial as to prevent selection of impartial jury and defendant did not seek removal of case to another jurisdiction, trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying defendant's pretrial motion to postpone trial. U. S. v. Panczko, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1966, 367 F.2d 737, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 716, 385 U.S. 1009, 17 L.Ed.2d 546, rehearing denied 87 S.Ct. 771, 385 U.S. 1043, 17 L.Ed.2d 688. Criminal Law ⚡ 586

Where defense counsel was given opportunity to examine government's documentary evidence in prosecution for conspiracy to defraud the United States and for bribery, no issue of entrapment was raised and counsel did not know what he expected to find from examination, trial court did not abuse its discretion by denying defendant's motion made during trial for continuance for additional time in which to examine documents. *U. Trial judge's action in setting case peremptorily against both sides and in directing trial on stated date was a reasonable step and not an abuse of discretion with respect to defendant's claiming denial of effective assistance of counsel for want of necessary time adequately to prepare, in view of zeal and quality of performance rendered. U. S. v. Bentvena, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1963, 319 F.2d 916, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 345, 375 U.S. 940, 11 L.Ed.2d 271, rehearing denied 90 S.Ct. 894, 397 U.S. 928, 25 L.Ed.2d 108, rehearing denied 84 S.Ct. 515, 375 U.S. 989, 11 L.Ed.2d 476, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 346, 375 U.S. 940, 11 L.Ed.2d 271, rehearing denied 84 S.Ct. 1162, 377 U.S. 913, 12 L.Ed.2d 183, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 353, 375 U.S. 940, 11 L.Ed.2d 272, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 354, 375 U.S. 940, 11 L.Ed.2d 272, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 355, 375 U.S. 940, 11 L.Ed.2d 272, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 360, 375 U.S. 940, 11 L.Ed.2d 272. The trial of individual properly joined with others in conspiracy indictment should not be delayed indefinitely to await capture of fugitive co-conspirator. U. S. v. Cianchetti, C.A.2 (Conn.) 1963, 315 F.2d 584. Criminal Law ⚡ 575

Denial of motions for continuance or transfer, the judge having earlier granted continuance on ground of adverse publicity as to one defendant and having announced that need for continuance would be determined as trial progressed, was not abuse of discretion. Rizzo v. U. S., C.A.8 (Mo.) 1962, 304 F.2d 810, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 188, 371 U.S. 890, 9 L.Ed.2d 123. Criminal Law ⚡ 614(1)

In prosecution of alleged Communists for conspiracy to violate the Smith Act, § 2385 of this title, making it an offense to advocate forcible overthrow of the government, denial of motions of defendants for a continuance because of alleged public sentiment against Communists did not infringe any rights of alleged Communists. United States v. Flynn, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1954, 216 F.2d 354, certiorari denied 75 S.Ct. 295, 348 U.S. 909, 99 L.Ed. 713, order withheld 75 S.Ct. 285, 99 L.Ed. 1298, rehearing denied 75 S.Ct. 436, 348 U.S. 956, 99 L.Ed. 747. Criminal Law ⚡ 589(1)

Proof of an overt act other than the one alleged in indictment charging conspiracy does not constitute a fatal variance but may warrant a continuance on the ground of surprise. U.S. v. Negro, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1947, 164 F.2d 168. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(12); Criminal Law ⚡ 599

A district attorney's agreement that an absent witness would testify that there was no conspiracy between defendants, but not admitting truth of the testimony, would not require the overruling of a motion for continuance based on absence of the witness, if the motion was otherwise incomplete. Chastain v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Ga.) 1943, 138 F.2d 413. Criminal Law ⚡ 600(3)

Where defendants were apprised of conspiracy indictment on October 31, 1941, and on following day they employed counsel and the case, which was a simple one, was not called for trial until November 7, 1941, when it was consolidated with another case for trial, the action of the district court in refusing to grant motion for continuance based on allegations of surprise, lack of time for preparation for trial and securing of absent witnesses was not abuse of discretion. Adams v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Ga.) 1942, 128 F.2d 820, certiorari denied 63 S.Ct. 61, 317 U.S. 632, 87 L.Ed. 510. Criminal Law ⚡ 590(1); Criminal Law ⚡ 594(1)

Where court granted continuance because attorney for one defendant was engaged in trial in state court but stated that cause would have to proceed to trial on date to which cause was continued, but on that date attorney did not appear, continuance was denied, and, upon request, court appointed attorney for one of other defendants to represent defendant who sought continuance, refusal to grant the second continuance was not an abuse of discretion. *U.S. v. In prosecution for conspiracy to defraud by use of mails, contrary to former § 338 of this title, where attorney, member of one of firms conducting defense, appeared only on first day of trial, and suddenly died three days thereafter, refusal of continuance because thereof was not abuse of trial court's discretion. Morris v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Ark.) 1925, 7 F.2d 785, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 205, 270 U.S. 640, 70 L.Ed. 775.

In prosecution for conspiracy, under former § 88 of this title [now this section], to transport whisky in violation of the National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, where accused was represented by two attorneys, and ten days after commencing taking of testimony his chief counsel announced that he was ill, refusal of adjournment and direction to other counsel to proceed with case was not abuse of discretion. Means v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1925, 6 F.2d 975.

Despite the state incarceration of one of the defendants, charged with conspiracy and interstate transportation of a stolen security, involvement of counsel in another matter, and alleged noncooperation of government in pretrial discovery, defendants were not entitled to a continuance, where defense counsel entered his appearance more than two months before trial's commencement, government counsel represented that much pretrial discovery had been effected, the one defendant's incarceration was not one of brief duration but would have involved a continuance of possibly several years, and the government alleged that life of their key witness was in jeopardy and any further delay might result in his permanent unavailability. *U. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Even if one defendant who was charged with conspiracy and overt acts as part of the "Watergate" cover-up had been given the separate trial which he sought, government would still have been entitled to prove in that trial the scope of the entire conspiracy and would not have been restricted to the limited involvement of the one defendant. U. S. v. Haldeman, C.A.D.C.1976, 559 F.2d 31, 181 U.S.App.D.C. 254, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 2641, 431 U.S. 933, 53 L.Ed.2d 250, rehearing denied 97 S.Ct. 2992, 433 U.S. 916, 53 L.Ed.2d 1103. Conspiracy ↪ 45

Separate elements of time, persons, places, offenses, and overt acts will, if shown to be substantially distinct, support separate conspiracy prosecutions. U. S. v. Ingman, C.A.9 (Wash.) 1976, 541 F.2d 1329. Conspiracy ↪ 24(2)

Two defendants in securities fraud conspiracy prosecution were not denied due process as result of being tried with third defendant whose reputation as an underworld figure, extensive criminal record, and associations with various other notorious persons were introduced at trial where the role each defendant played in conspiracy was important to enable jury to understand overall scheme. U. S. v. Aloï, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1975, 511 F.2d 585, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 447, 423 U.S. 1015, 46 L.Ed.2d 386. Constitutional Law ↪ 268(2.5)

Where evidence was sufficient to show that two defendants were connected with single conspiracy to counterfeit United States obligations, rather than with two separate conspiracies, it was not error for trial court to deny defendants' motions for severance. U. S. v. Efronson, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1974, 505 F.2d 104. Criminal Law ↪ 622.7(4)

Though trial of several defendants in mail fraud and conspiracy prosecution lasted over one month and involved testimony of more than 50 witnesses, record including verdicts revealing unusual degree of discrimination on part of jury refuted claim that complexity of evidence required severance. U. S. v. Hutul, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1969, 416 F.2d 607, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 562, 396 U.S. 1007, 24 L.Ed.2d 499, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 573, 396 U.S. 1012, 24 L.Ed.2d 504, rehearing denied 90 S.Ct. 1519, 397 U.S. 1081, 25 L.Ed.2d 820, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 599, 396 U.S. 1024, 24 L.Ed.2d 517. Criminal Law ↪ 622.7(4)

With respect to propriety of severance in trial of coconspirators or codefendants, it is necessary to determine whether joint trial infringes defendants' right to fundamentally fair trial and determination is made by asking whether it is within jury's capacity, given complexity of the case, to follow admonitory instructions and to keep separate, collate and appraise evidence relevant only to each defendant. U. S. v. Kahn, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1967, 381 F.2d 824, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 591, 389 U.S. 1015, 19 L.Ed.2d 661, rehearing denied 88 S.Ct. 2272, 392 U.S. 948, 20 L.Ed.2d 1413, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 592, 389 U.S. 1015, 19 L.Ed.2d 661, rehearing denied 88 S.Ct. 2272, 392 U.S. 948, 20 L.Ed.2d 1414. Criminal Law ↪ 622.7(8)

Where record disclosed that there were many others, including a defendant, who played minor part in which some, but not all, conspirators participated, but such were all integral parts of a general unified conspiracy to accomplish a single criminal objective of violating internal revenue laws relating to liquor, such defendant's motion for severance on ground that evidence established numerous separate and unrelated conspiracies rather than a single conspiracy as alleged in indictment was properly denied. U. S. v. Bryant, C.A.4 (S.C.) 1966, 364 F.2d 598. Criminal Law ↪ 622.7(4)

Record, in prosecution of several defendants for conspiracy to fraudulently effectuate on behalf of union compliance with former subsection (h) of § 159 of Title 29 by filing false non-Communist affidavits, revealed no abuse of discretion in denying motion of one defendant who had been previously convicted in same court for filing false affidavit, for severance, continuance or change of venue or in denying motion for severance of other defendants objecting to trial with him. Dennis v. U.S., C.A.10 (Colo.) 1962, 302 F.2d 5. Criminal Law ↪ 121; Criminal Law ↪ 586; Criminal Law ↪ 622.7(4)

There was no error in denying separate trial on conspiracy count where indictments charged conspiracy as well as substantive counts. U. S. v. Sahadi, C.A.2 (Conn.) 1961, 292 F.2d 565. Criminal Law ↪ 618

A defendant is not entitled to a severance in a conspiracy case. Poliafico v. U. S., C.A.6 (Ohio) 1956, 237 F.2d 97, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 590, 352 U.S. 1025, 1 L.Ed.2d 597, rehearing denied 77 S.Ct. 718, 353 U.S. 931, 1 L.Ed.2d 725. Criminal Law ↪ 622.6(4)

In prosecution of defendant for conspiracy to defraud the United States and for falsely representing financial status of borrower to Federal Housing Administration, there was no error in refusing to grant severance of defendant's prosecution from prosecution of other salesman for similar offenses. U.S. v. Rosenfeld, C.A.7 (Ind.) 1956, 235 F.2d 544, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 226, 352 U.S. 928, 1 L.Ed.2d 163. Criminal Law ↪ 622.7(4)

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate § 2421 et seq. of this title, wherein it appeared that one defendant was a white woman while other defendants were Negro men, and white woman filed a motion to sever because of alleged racial prejudice present at trial, record did not warrant conclusion that racial prejudice and bias attended the trial, and denial of motion to sever on that ground was not error. Cwach v. U.S., C.A.8 (Minn.) 1954, 212 F.2d 520. Criminal Law ↪ 622.7(3)

Where defendant was indicted for conspiring with others to violate the Harrison Anti-Narcotic Act, §§ 2553 and 2554 of Title 26 and §§ 173 and 174 of Title 21, and codefendants were indicted for substantive offenses defined thereunder, and subject-matter of both indictments arose out of identical series of acts, and same evidence that proved defendant's guilt was relevant to prove guilt of codefendant, defendant was not denied a fair trial because court ordered the cases tried together. U.S. v. Brandenburgh, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1945, 146 F.2d 878. Criminal Law ↪ 622.7(4)

In prosecution for using mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud by sale of cemetery lots to the public for purposes of investment and for criminal conspiracy to commit that offense, refusal of court to grant motion for separate trial did not constitute error. Blue v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1943, 138 F.2d 351, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 1046, 322 U.S. 736, 88 L.Ed. 1570, rehearing denied 64 S.Ct. 1259, 322 U.S. 771, 88 L.Ed. 1596, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 1046, 322 U.S. 737, 88 L.Ed. 1570. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

In prosecution under indictment charging conspiracy to violate former § 317 of this title, which also charged each defendant with substantive offense of violating said former section, in procuring, handling, selling, and attempting to sell bonds stolen from the mail, denial of application for severance was not error. Sullivan v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Okla.) 1925, 7 F.2d 355, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 348, 270 U.S. 648, 70 L.Ed. 779.

One of two defendants charged with conspiracy may be separately tried. Miller v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (S.C.) 1921, 277 F. 721. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.6(4)

That one codefendant acted as government informant during period in which machine gun conversion kit registrations and transfers took place, giving rise to prosecution for violating federal firearm laws, did not entitle defendant to severance of trial, in absence of evidence that there was any quid pro quo for informant's assistance other than money received for information. U.S. v. Hunter, E.D.Mich.1994, 863 F.Supp. 462. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(1)

Defendant charged with conspiracy was not entitled to be separately tried from codefendant, charged with conspiracy and perjury, on theory that absent severance he would be incurably prejudiced should the Government introduce certain portions of the latter's grand jury testimony and should the latter decline to take the witness stand; only if the twin circumstances anticipated by the motion occurred would the court be required to consider whether the grand jury testimony was the sort of out-of-court statement of a codefendant to which governing case law is addressed. U. S. v. Hilliard, S.D.N.Y.1977, 436 F.Supp. 66. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(9)

Fact that indictment charging three defendants with conspiracy to violate laws relating to distilled spirits mentioned only one defendant with reference to certain overt acts did not entitle other two defendants to severance. U. S. v. Montague, N.D.Miss.1970, 326 F.Supp. 911. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(4)

That defendant's interests were antagonistic to those of several co-defendants in conspiracy prosecution did not require a severance on ground that he would be denied a fair trial. U. S. v. Nomura Trading Co., S.D.N.Y.1963, 213 F.Supp. 704. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(6)

In prosecution for conspiracy and using mails to defraud, motions of some of the defendants for a severance and a separate trial were denied. U. S. v. Garrison, E.D.Wis.1958, 168 F.Supp. 622. Conspiracy ⚡ 48.1(3); Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(4)

In conspiracy case, where charge against all defendants may be largely proved by same evidence and results from similar series of acts, severance should not be granted except for strong and cogent reasons. *U. In prosecution for conspiracy, if alleged conspirators were not parties to conspiracy, they would be entitled to an acquittal upon trial, but, if they are shown to have participated in conspiracy, they cannot be prejudiced by proof of acts and statements of other conspirators in furtherance of conspiracy, and, therefore, such alleged conspirators would not be granted severance on ground that they were not parties to such conspiracy and that evidence produced at their trial against other defendants would prejudice their rights. U S v. Cohen, S.D.N.Y.1953, 113 F.Supp. 955. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(4); Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(8)

In prosecution of six defendants for conspiracy to violate the Smith Act, § 2385 of this title, one defendant was not entitled to severance on ground that indictment was for a political offense and that jury would be unable to give proper recognition to propriety of such defendant's activities as a lawyer in professionally representing Communists. *U.S. v. motion of two individual defendants for severance was denied in absence of any substantial reason for such separation. U.S. v. Feinberg, E.D.N.Y.1943, 50 F.Supp. 976, affirmed 140 F.2d 592, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 943, 322 U.S. 726, 88 L.Ed. 1562. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(4)

The possible improvement in atmosphere resulting from granting motions for separate trial made by defendants charged with conspiracy to commit offenses against § 2550 et seq. of Title 26, relating to narcotics, was insufficient justification for subjecting government to the large expense of four separate trials. U.S. v. Liss, S.D.N.Y.1942, 43 F.Supp. 203. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(4)

All persons indicted for conspiracy should be tried together, especially where indictment charges no substantive crime, and motion by one of them for severance and separate trial will be denied. U.S. v. Lang, E.D.N.Y.1941, 40 F.Supp. 414. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.6(4)

In determining whether some of 53 defendants charged with scheme to use mails to defraud and with conspiracy to commit such act were entitled to separate trial, the government's plea that it would be greatly more expensive to have separate trials should not be considered. U. S. v. Gilbert, S.D. Ohio 1939, 31 F.Supp. 195. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(13)

Where two or more defendants are indicted for a joint transaction, it is inadvisable to split up case into many parts for separate trials, in absence of very strong and cogent reason therefor, especially with respect to conspiracy charges. U.S. v. Wortman, E.D.Ill.1960, 26 F.R.D. 183. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.6(4); Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(2)

In prosecution for income tax evasion and for conspiring to violate certain enumerated federal laws, defendants were not entitled to a severance on ground that jury would have insurmountable difficulty in distinguishing the alleged acts of one defendant from the alleged acts of his codefendants, that evidence admissible against one might be inadmissible against another, that each defendant would obtain a fair and more impartial trial if tried alone, that there was a misjoinder of defendants and offenses, or that continued mass of publicity made it impossible for certain of defendants to obtain a fair and impartial trial while joined with another defendant who had been convicted of a felony. U.S. v. Wortman, E.D.Ill.1960, 26 F.R.D. 183. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(1); Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(8)

Reasonably construed, indictment charging gaming conspiracy in one count and setting forth substantive offenses in other counts alleged that various defendants named therein had participated in same series of acts or transactions, and hence defendants would be denied a severance, notwithstanding absence of blanket allegation in indictment to effect that defendants had participated in same series of acts or transactions. *U.S. v. 450. ---- Prejudice, separate trials, trial proceedings generally

Tactical errors and outrageous statements made by defendant did not so prejudice codefendants as to render district court's refusal to sever defendant's trial from that of codefendants an abuse of discretion, where alleged improprieties happened outside presence of jury, were restatements of admitted evidence, or concerned only defendant. U.S. v. Daly, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1985, 756 F.2d 1076, rehearing denied 763 F.2d 416, certiorari denied 106 S.Ct. 574, 474 U.S. 1022, 88 L.Ed.2d 558, certiorari denied 106 S.Ct. 575, 474 U.S. 1022, 88 L.Ed.2d 558. Defendant who, although the least active, was nevertheless a fully implicated conspirator in attempted escape from prison was not prejudiced by evidence admitted against his coconspirators since most of evidence of which he complained would have been admissible against him in a separate trial as acts of coconspirators in furtherance of a conspiracy; thus, denial of motion for severance was not improper. *U.S. v. Defendants did not meet their burden of demonstrating the specific and compelling prejudice necessary for finding that trial court abused its discretion in denying their motion for severance on grounds that other defendants had prior felony convictions which if presented to jury would prejudice their right to a fair trial. U. S. v. Ocanas, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1980, 628 F.2d 353, rehearing denied 633 F.2d 582, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 2316, 451 U.S. 984, 68 L.Ed.2d 840. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(8)

No prejudice was caused by joint trial of nine defendants charged with conspiracy to violate narcotics laws; both size and complexity of alleged conspiracy was well within applicable bounds. U. S. v. In prosecution for a conspiracy to import cocaine and importation of cocaine, refusal to sever trial of defendant, who allegedly sold cocaine in question to codefendant, from codefendant's trial was within district court's discretion where codefendant's self-interest in testifying for the Government as well as his prior convictions were amply demonstrated to jury and there was no showing of prejudice to defendant on account of the joint trial. U. S. v. Miller, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1975, 513 F.2d 791. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(4)

There was no error in refusal to grant severance to any of 24 codefendants in a conspiracy prosecution despite contention that defendants were prejudiced by evidence relating to some defendants and not others, that they were deprived of the right to control their own defense, and that they were unduly burdened by the length of expense of the trial. U. S. v. Mayes, C.A.6 (Ky.) 1975, 512 F.2d 637, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 2629, 422 U.S. 1008, 45 L.Ed.2d 670, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 69, 423 U.S. 840, 46 L.Ed.2d 59. Where two codefendants elected to take the stand in prosecution for securities fraud conspiracy, Government was entitled to inquire into their past criminal activity notwithstanding defendant's contention that such inquiry constituted prejudice which should have justified severance as to him since he allegedly played only a minor role in the conspiracy. U. S. v. Aloi, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1975, 511 F.2d 585, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 447, 423 U.S. 1015, 46 L.Ed.2d 386. Witnesses ⚡ 337(4)

Defendants were not entitled to severance of their trials on narcotics, racketeering, and weapons charges from those of codefendants even though codefendants were charged with acts of violence while defendants were not; evidence was ample that defendants were integral part of racketeering enterprise, evidence of inner workings of enterprise would have been admissible at separate trial, enterprise's usual modus operandi included acts of violence, and court instructed jury that it should consider offense and defendants separately. *U.S. v. Fact that evidence adduced against other coconspirators is greater than that adduced against one defendant does not of itself constitute grounds for severance. U.S. v. Sababu, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1989, 891 F.2d 1308. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(11)

It was not adequate ground for severance that government's case contained a disproportionate amount of evidence against one defendant, the "kingpin" of the alleged conspiracy with which all three defendants were charged. U.S. v. Kopelciw, C.A.8 (Neb.) 1987, 815 F.2d 1235. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(11)

Defendant in prosecution for securities fraud conspiracy was not prejudiced by failure of trial court to sever his trial from that of other defendants where evidence produced as to defendant's role in conspiracy was not so disproportionate in relationship to that of the others as to require a severance and where proof of other defendant's submission of false documents to Securities Exchange Commission, an offense not charged to the defendant claiming prejudice, would nevertheless have been admissible in joint trial to show other defendant's consciousness of guilt in regard to counts charged against all defendants. U. S. v. Koss, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1974, 506 F.2d 1103, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 1402, 420 U.S. 977, 43 L.Ed.2d 657, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 1565, 421 U.S. 911, 43 L.Ed.2d 776. Criminal Law ⚡ 1166(6)

Court properly denied severances claimed on ground that evidence failed to prove a single conspiracy with respect to narcotics violations, where a continuing, chain relationship between defendants as importers, distributors, and sellers was proven and evidence against particular defendants who requested severance was not so little or so vastly disproportionate in comparison to that admitted against remainder of defendants, and court instructed jury not to consider evidence against any defendant once he had ceased to be member of conspiracy. 453. ---- Illness of defendant, separate trials, trial proceedings generally

District court did not abuse its discretion in severing trails of defendant and alleged coconspirator in prosecution for conspiracy to defraud or commit an offense against the Small Business Administration, especially in light of fact that coconspirator suffered from physical and mental infirmities and was granted a continuance as a result. U. S. v. Swarek, C.A.8 (Ark.) 1981, 656 F.2d 331, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 573, 454 U.S. 1034, 70 L.Ed.2d 478. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(4)

In conspiracy prosecution, motions for severance on ground of prejudicial joinder of defendants present the task of fairly balancing the prejudice of the government from separate trials against the prejudice to defendants from a mass trial; the resolution of the conflicting interests of the government and the defendants is a matter within the sound discretion of the trial judge. U S v. Stromberg, S.D.N.Y.1957, 22 F.R.D. 513. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.6(4)

In conspiracy prosecution against 46 defendants, motions for severance on ground of prejudicial joinder of defendants would be denied at the pretrial stage without prejudice to their renewal before trial judge who would be in a position to make a more realistic appraisal of the appropriate considerations. *U S v. 455. ---- Admonition to jury, separate trials, trial proceedings generally

District court was not required to grant motion for severance and mistrial once other defendants changed their pleas to guilty during trial on charges of conspiracy and interstate travel in aid of racketeering, where district court's instructions to jury about the unexpected occurrence fully protected defendant. U. S. v. Johnson, C.A.4 (Va.) 1971, 451 F.2d 1321, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 1298, 405 U.S. 1018, 31 L.Ed.2d 480. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(4); Criminal Law ⚡ 867

Joint trial of three defendants indicted as conspirators in scheme to illegally use moneys of federally insured banks and savings associations and charging defendants as principals or as aider-abettors in illegally misapplying funds deposited in federally insured institutions, where complete admonitory instructions were given, did not infringe defendants' right to fair trial and refusal to grant severance was not abuse of discretion. *U. S. v. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(5)

On record presented in prosecution for conspiracy to violate internal revenue laws by operating illicit liquor businesses, trial judge, who had carefully cautioned jury against considering evidence in passing on charges against defendants other than the one against whom alone such evidence was admitted, could not be charged with abuse of discretion in denying one defendant's motion for severance. Dowling v. U. S., C.A.5 (Ga.) 1957, 249 F.2d 746. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(8)

Some of 53 defendants charged with using mails to defraud and with conspiracy to commit such act were not entitled to separate trials, where rights of each defendant could be guarded by judge in charge to jury and there would be no disadvantage from practical standpoint to such defendants. *U. 457. Seating of defendants, trial proceedings generally

In conspiracy prosecution, where there were 29 individual defendants and one corporation on trial, there was no objection to seating defendants in order in which their names appeared in indictment and in court's requesting prosecuting attorney to prepare diagram showing names of defendants and order in which they were seated and giving each of jurors a copy to enable them to follow testimony and distinguish defendants whose names were difficult to pronounce and remember. U. S. v. Carlisi, E.D.N.Y.1940, 32 F.Supp. 479. Criminal Law ⚡ 633(1)

458. Restraint of defendants, trial proceedings generally

There was no abuse of discretion in trial judge's action, taken to preserve security of courtroom, ordering two defendants gagged and shackled after one had climbed into jury box and pushed jurors and another had thrown chair at Assistant United States Attorney and directing that additional marshals be present and did not abuse discretion in failing either to declare mistrial or to sever unruly defendants. *U. 459. Opening statement, trial proceedings generally

Conspiracy count was improperly dismissed after Government's opening statement, though Government conceded that it would not prove exactly how conspiracy began, that all defendants ever got together in single group and agreed to single, unified plan, or that defendants communicated with each other frequently; nothing in Government's opening statement was necessarily inconsistent with judgment of conviction under single conspiracy count. U.S. v. Donsky, C.A.3 (N.J.) 1987, 825 F.2d 746. Criminal Law ⚡ 703

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate Hobbs and Travel Acts, sections 1951 and 1952 of this title, and extortion from businesses engaged in interstate commerce, references in prosecutor's opening statement to defendant's complicity in conspiracies did not deprive defendant of fair trial even though he was subsequently acquitted on conspiracy counts, absent any indication that prosecutor had outlined facts that he did not believe could be substantiated. U. S. v. Somers, C.A.3 (N.J.) 1974, 496 F.2d 723, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 56, 419 U.S. 832, 42 L.Ed.2d 58, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 57, 419 U.S. 832, 42 L.Ed.2d 58. Criminal Law ⚡ 703

In prosecution for bribery and conspiracy to bribe criminal investigators of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, trial court did not commit reversible error in refusing to permit defense counsel to ask investigator on cross-examination if he had tried to involve defendant in a narcotics deal, in view of facts that evidence concerning narcotics activities had been permitted on direct examination only to demonstrate cordial relationship among defendants and investigators in order to rebut contention of coercion and that total cross-examination was sufficient to afford jury basis to evaluate defense theory. U. S. v. Ong, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1976, 541 F.2d 331, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 814, 429 U.S. 1075, 50 L.Ed.2d 793, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 1559, 430 U.S. 934, 51 L.Ed.2d 780. Criminal Law ↻ 1170.5(5)

Trial court properly permitted counsel to thoroughly cross-examine alleged co-conspirator with respect to his guilty plea and his expectations as to leniency, in view of coconspirator's plea and testimony in behalf of Government. *U. In prosecution for conspiracy, it was not abuse of discretion to allow prosecutor to ask particular defendant's character witness whether he had heard that on certain date such defendant was cited for contempt of court by certain court, where, from form of prosecutor's question, trial judge could reasonably have found that there was factual basis for the inquiry and where question was relevant in context of the examination. *U. In prosecution for possession and concealment of counterfeit notes and for conspiracy to commit such violation, in which defendant testified as to his activities during period of three days, cross-examination as to defendant's travels and meetings with named persons during period of several days prior to the dates testified to on direct examination was permissible, despite contention that the trips and contacts were never connected to the issues in the case, in light of fact that defendant had no visible means of support yet traveled extensively, and to establish pattern of companionship and communication involving defendant and his alleged coconspirators. Leeper v. U. S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1971, 446 F.2d 281, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 695, 404 U.S. 1021, 30 L.Ed.2d 671. Witnesses ↻ 277(5)

In conspiracy prosecution in which one conspirator was principal witness for the government, it was not reversible error to curtail cross-examination as to such conspirator's specific address. *U. In prosecution for conspiracy to violate Internal Revenue Laws and on substantive counts arising under such laws, permitting a defense witness to be asked about his prior arrest was not error, where witness had testified as to reputation of a prosecution witness for truthfulness and on cross-examination witness was asked, "Were you arrested" on certain date, to which there was no objection and witness answered that he had been arrested while "helping another fellow" with some moonshine whiskey, and then followed a series of objections, none of which raised question whether inquiring as to a prior arrest, without showing a conviction, was proper. Benefield v. U. S., C.A.5 (Ala.) 1966, 370 F.2d 912. Criminal Law ⚡ 698(1)

Even though trial judge took umbrage over what he perhaps mistakenly thought was suggestion that sentencing in court below could be part of a "deal" and stated "I think we have touched on it enough", there was no improper curtailment of cross-examination of alleged coconspirator, where (1) defendant was permitted to inquire whether that witness had been promised consideration for pleading guilty or had been told by his lawyer that he might receive some consideration and (2) defendant failed to make known to judge his desire to inquire further. *U. Refusal to permit cross-examination of SEC attorney on various SEC rulings on exemptions and views of text writers, was proper, in stock conspiracy prosecution wherein witness had given no expert or opinion evidence on direct examination, as probably productive of confusion in jurors' minds. *U. Cross-examination of defendant, charged with conspiracy to take fraudulent deductions on corporate income tax return, regarding alleged prior conviction of grand larceny, which cross-examination was based on erroneous FBI report, was not prejudicial where judge told jury to disregard reference to grand larceny conviction. *U.S. v. Cross-examination of witness, in prosecution for conspiracy to take fraudulent deductions on corporate income tax return, as to whether witness had given defendant any other money over and above his salary from corporation was not error on ground that it tended to show defendant was guilty of another crime, as it was proper to determine whether moneys reported as advanced for travel expenses on defendant's personal return had ever been paid from funds other than check which had never cleared. U.S. v. Haskell, C.A.2 (Conn.) 1964, 327 F.2d 281, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 1351, 377 U.S. 945, 12 L.Ed.2d 307. Criminal Law ⚡ 369.2(4)

Record refuted contention that defendants were unduly restricted in their cross-examination of principal prosecution witness who was admittedly part of conspiracy where, in addition to extensive and repetitious examinations, defendants had abundance of materials from which to examine him including, but not limited to, statements produced under Jencks Act, § 3500 of this title, grand jury minutes, and his testimony at prior trial. *U. Testimony of F.B.I. agent, in prosecution for robbery of veterans' administration hospital and for conspiracy to commit the robbery, as to questioning and telephone calls between agent and defendant concerning defendant's knowledge of robbery and of activities of other individuals involved, and cross-examination of defendant as to whether or not he had made the statements and telephone calls to discover what F.B.I. knew of the crime and to conceal the crime and its conspirators, was not inadmissible on theory that the F.B.I. agent's testimony when considered in conjunction with the cross-examination would mislead jury into finding defendant guilty of a crime with which he was not charged, namely, a continuing conspiracy to conceal the crime and obstruct justice. *Feyrer v. Refusal of federal District Court to permit inspection of criminal records of co-conspirator who was testifying for government in prosecution of defendant for robbery of veterans' administration hospital, and for conspiracy to commit the robbery, was not unfair where defendant's counsel was given a wide latitude in examination of witness as to his previous conviction and criminal activities. *Feyrer v. Government's closing argument in prosecution for conspiracy to defraud government and Securities and Exchange Commission and for substantive violations of securities laws that jury could infer that notes used by codefendant during public Commission proceedings contained anticipated questions and answers and had been prepared for consistency's sake was not improper as argument of inference which might be drawn in view of all evidence. U. S. v. Colasurdo, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1971, 453 F.2d 585, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 1766, 406 U.S. 917, 32 L.Ed.2d 116. Criminal Law ↪ 720(7.1)

Prosecutrix' argument in conspiracy prosecution, concerning disposition of money, was not impermissible comment on defendant's failure to testify. U. S. v. Knight, C.A.9 (Ariz.) 1969, 416 F.2d 1181. Criminal Law ↪ 721(3)

In prosecution of various defendants for mail fraud and conspiracy, comment of counsel for one defendant that such defendant took stand and testified and that he did whatever he did in good faith and was the only one who testified in the case was not prejudicial comment on failure of other defendants to testify. *U. Criminal Law ☞ 1171.5

Government attorney's statement to jury that defendant's attorney had overlooked testimony which incriminated his client by forgetting to mention that alleged coconspirator had testified "uncontradicted" that he had told something to defendant did not require mistrial on ground that prosecutor had improperly commented upon defendant's failure to testify by characterizing conspirator's testimony as uncontradicted, where court admonished jury to disregard statement and specifically directed jurors not to draw any unfavorable inference from failure of defendant to testify in his own behalf and on following day repeated such instructions. U. S. v. Edwards, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1966, 366 F.2d 853, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 852, 386 U.S. 908, 17 L.Ed.2d 782, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 882, 386 U.S. 919, 17 L.Ed.2d 790. Criminal Law ☞ 730(10)

Refusal to allow defendants' counsel to argue points involving instructions and requests for instructions orally and repetitively at length was not improper as denial of procedural due process, in prosecution for conspiracy to defraud public by distribution of defendants' oil company stock at grossly inflated prices. U. S. v. Kelly, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1965, 349 F.2d 720, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 1467, 384 U.S. 947, 16 L.Ed.2d 544. Constitutional Law ☞ 268(2.1)

In prosecution for (1) knowingly transporting in interstate commerce, for purpose of sale or distribution, obscene, lascivious and filthy film and (2) for conspiring with others to so transport, wherein there was evidence that interstate telephone call had been made on defendant's telephone but there was no evidence as to conversation which might have occurred during such call, hypothetical conversation should not have been created by prosecutor during summation; but any effect of such comment was eliminated by court's charge, and in light of definite proof presented on determinative issue of knowledge of intended interstate transportation, such hyperbole of forensic advocacy did not deprive defendant of fair trial. U. S. v. Russo, C.A.2 (Conn.) 1960, 284 F.2d 539. Criminal Law ☞ 719(1); Criminal Law ☞ 730(7)

Where a United States Attorney, in his argument, in a conspiracy prosecution, merely reviewed certain testimony, and added, truthfully, that there was no evidence in contradiction, his argument could not be said to have deprived defendants of a fair and impartial trial on theory that the argument constituted a forbidden comment on failure of defendants to testify. Davis v. U. S., C.A.4 (N.C.) 1960, 279 F.2d 127, certiorari denied 81 S.Ct. 60, 364 U.S. 822, 5 L.Ed.2d 53. Criminal Law ☞ 721(5)

In prosecution against officer of corporation selling fuel oil to the government and against government civilian employee for conspiracy, for bribery and for making false entries of competitive bids on government purchase orders, wherein relatively small amounts of money were involved in any profits made by president from fuel oil sold to the government during the period covered by indictment, argument of government's counsel which was plain effort to have jury believe that defendants were guilty of other and more profitable frauds was improper as a wholly impermissible development of a theme on which government counsel had reached the outer limits of proper argument in his opening statement. Wagner v. U.S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1959, 263 F.2d 877. Criminal Law ☞ 722.5

In prosecution for conspiracy, for bribery, and for making false entries of competitive bids on government purchase orders, argument of government's counsel that he had hoped that defendants would cross-examine defendants' bookkeeper "because she would have lowered the boom on them. But they didn't do that. They told you she was the bookkeeper. She knew all about this. She did that. But you notice they didn't ask too much about it," was improper, since the government had to rely on evidence which it introduced, and could not properly ask jury to assume that there was more damaging evidence against defendants which would have been brought to light if defendants' counsel had cross-examined such bookkeeper more extensively. Wagner v. U.S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1959, 263 F.2d 877. Criminal Law ☞ 721.5(2)

In prosecution for conspiracy to traffic in narcotics, it was proper for prosecutor, in argument, to draw inferences from letters which passed between codefendants, referring to sale of suits at rate of $600 for each suit, that "suits" may well not have referred to suits of clothing. U S v. De Fillo, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1958, 257 F.2d 835, certiorari denied 79 S.Ct. 591, 359 U.S. 915, 3 L.Ed.2d 577. Criminal Law ⚡ 720(7.1)

In prosecution for concealing assets from trustee in bankruptcy and conspiring to transfer assets from one corporation to another in contemplation of bankruptcy, allowing prosecutor in his summation to read part of defendant's testimony given before grand jury was not error where defendant previously had been confronted with it on cross-examination, and his counsel stipulated that grand jury stenographer, if called as a witness, would testify to the accuracy of the excerpts. *U.S. v. In prosecution of defendants for conspiracy to violate narcotics laws, argument of counsel for government during prosecution was not prejudicial, in absence of current objection, though, in any event, record disclosed no error in this respect. *Shepherd v. In prosecution for conspiracy to organize Communist Party of United States as a group to teach and advocate overthrow of government by force or violence, refusal to allow a defendant to sum up to the jury at the conclusion of the evidence was not error where such defendant had been represented during the whole trial by an attorney with great skill, loyalty and address, and such defendant had not indicated the slightest dissatisfaction with such attorney, and trial judge feared that to let such defendant address the jury would be an opportunity again to resort to an outburst which the judge had found it hard to control on previous occasions during the trial. *U.S. v. In conspiracy prosecution, alleged error in argument that accused's common-law wife by her plea of guilty admitted her part in conspiracy, that she would not lie for anyone, and had not taken the stand and supported accused's claim of nonparticipation in scheme, was not prejudicial where record disclosed that decision against calling common-law wife was not reached on score of unwillingness to testify but merely on considerations of trial tactics, and evidence of accused's guilt was persuasive. *Clayton v. If at conclusion of trial the court determines that prosecution has not demonstrated defendant's participation in a conspiracy by a preponderance of the evidence, the judge must decide whether a cautionary instruction will cleanse the record of prejudice due to admission of the coconspirator's extrajudicial statements, or whether a mistrial is required. *U. 472. Motion for acquittal, trial proceedings generally

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate the Internal Revenue Laws, motion for judgment of acquittal on the ground that there was a fatal variance between the indictment and proof in that instead of proving one conspiracy as alleged, several different conspiracies were proved and a large part of the matters proven were so completely disconnected with and separate from the conspiracy charged that it was impossible for the error not to prejudice the defendants was properly overruled. Duke v. U.S., C.A.5 (Ga.) 1956, 233 F.2d 897. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(12)

Where indictment charged defendants with conspiracy as well as a substantive count, if substantive count was unconstitutional, court should have granted motion for acquittal on conspiracy count, since defendants could not be convicted for a conspiracy to commit acts which for any reason did not constitute an offense. O'Malley v. U. S., C.A.1 (Mass.) 1955, 227 F.2d 332, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 434, 350 U.S. 966, 100 L.Ed. 838. Conspiracy ⚡ 25

Overruling of motion to direct acquittal on certain counts is harmless where sentences on all counts run concurrently. Jay v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Okla.) 1929, 35 F.2d 553.

In ruling on motion for acquittal on conspiracy charge, court must determine whether a reasonable mind might fairly conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that the conspiracy as charged in the indictment actually existed, that the objective of the conspiracy was to violate federal law or to achieve a legitimate goal through violation of federal law, that the particular defendant under consideration knowingly and willfully became a participant in the conspiracy, and that at least one of the conspirators committed an overt act in furtherance of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Koenig, S.D.N.Y.1974, 388 F.Supp. 670. Conspiracy ⚡ 48.1(1)

On motion for judgment of acquittal of conspiracy, court must examine evidence in light most favorable to government, recognizing and respecting the right of jury to draw inferences. *U. S. v. Single incident in which prosecutor made improper facial expressions and sarcastic comments during cross-examination of defendant did not warrant mistrial, in prosecution for conspiracy to defraud the United States, filing false claims against the United States, and theft of property of the United States; district court found conduct was unintentional and issued warning to prosecutor. U.S. v. Peters, C.A.8 (Neb.) 1995, 59 F.3d 732, rehearing denied. Criminal Law ⚡ 706(4)

In prosecution for conspiracy to dispense heroin, single remark of government witness that defendant was "involved in everything" did not warrant mistrial, in case in which defendant did not request mistrial, in light of all the evidence and court's acting swiftly to cure improper statement by sustaining defendant's objection and admonishing jury to disregard testimony. *U. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

In prosecution for conspiracy to rob federally insured bank, mistrial was not required for codefendant because defendant was referred to as political radical and because prosecutor elicited allusion to defendant's politically radical philosophy where court sustained objection to reference to defendant as political radical and gave cautionary instructions, where there was no objection to prosecutor's elicitation of allusion to defendant's politically radical philosophy and where such allusion was innocuous and was related to motivation for robbery. U.S. v. Bazinet, C.A.8 (Minn.) 1972, 462 F.2d 982, certiorari denied 93 S.Ct. 453, 409 U.S. 1010, 34 L.Ed.2d 303. Criminal Law ⚡ 730(12)

Refusal to grant mistrial on ground elderly witness' answers were not responsive to questions in prosecution for conspiracy to pass counterfeit federal reserve notes was not error where jury was specifically instructed to disregard testimony and jury was probably able to differentiate between witness' responsive answers and nonresponsive answers attributable to sorrow and resentment in belief that his son had been killed. *U. That, while trial was in progress, newspaper published article reporting arrest of defendant's brother as a scoff-law and referred to brother as "Mafia King of Wall Street" did not entitle defendant charged with conspiracy to transport stolen securities in interstate commerce to mistrial, inasmuch as newspaper article made no mention that person named in article had a brother, and only an oblique reference to brother was made at trial, and court acted well within its discretion in declining to poll jurors to determine if their judgment had been affected by the news item. U. S. v. Edwards, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1966, 366 F.2d 853, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 852, 386 U.S. 908, 17 L.Ed.2d 782, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 882, 386 U.S. 919, 17 L.Ed.2d 790. Criminal Law ⚡ 855(5)

Admission of testimony of F.B.I. agent concerning interview with one of the defendants in conspiracy trial did not require granting of motion for mistrial where testimony was no more than evidence of surrounding circumstances tending to illuminate principal fact in such way as to reflect entire transaction. *Marroso v. General verdict of guilty to offense of conspiracy to defraud United States, which was charged as dual-objective conspiracy, was permissible where defendant did not challenge one object of conspiracy and there was sufficient evidence to convict her under other object. U.S. v. Beverly, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1990, 913 F.2d 337, certiorari denied 111 S.Ct. 766, 498 U.S. 1052, 112 L.Ed.2d 786, certiorari granted 111 S.Ct. 951, 498 U.S. 1082, 112 L.Ed.2d 1039, affirmed 112 S.Ct. 466, 502 U.S. 46, 116 L.Ed.2d 371, rehearing denied 112 S.Ct. 1253, 502 U.S. 1125, 117 L.Ed.2d 484, dismissal of habeas corpus affirmed 972 F.2d 351, post-conviction relief denied, habeas corpus granted in part. Criminal Law ⚡ 881(1)

Once a defendant is found guilty of participating in a conspiracy, it is unnecessary that the verdict specify the particular statutory provision which defendant conspired to violate. U. S. v. Avila-Dominguez, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1980, 610 F.2d 1266, rehearing denied 613 F.2d 314, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 242, 449 U.S. 887, 66 L.Ed.2d 113. Conspiracy ⚡ 48.3

Whether the evidence of a conspiracy is direct or circumstantial, the test of sufficiency thereof is whether a reasonably minded jury could find the evidence inconsistent with every hypothesis of innocence. U. S. v. Barrentine, C.A.5 (Ala.) 1979, 591 F.2d 1069, rehearing denied 599 F.2d 1054, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 521, 444 U.S. 990, 62 L.Ed.2d 419. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

Fact that defendants convicted on count charging conspiracy to commit offenses recited in three substantive counts questioned the constitutionality of only one of the three unlawful "objects" of the conspiracy did not preclude challenge to the conspiracy conviction where because of a general verdict on the conspiracy charge the court could not know which of the three statutes, the violations of which were the "objects" of the conspiracy, the jury relied on in convicting the defendants. U. S. v. Baranski, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1973, 484 F.2d 556. Constitutional Law ⚡ 42.1(3)

Where conspiracy count charged violation of two statutes and violation of one statute was shown, even though violation of the other was not established, conviction of conspiracy was not improper on theory that it was impossible to determine upon which overt act the jury based its conspiracy conviction. *U. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Corporate defendant, a defense contractor, was not entitled to judgment of acquittal on charge of conspiracy to defraud and make false statements to federal government, even though individual codefendant, its employee, was acquitted; some evidence of conspiracy was offered against defendant alone, and jury could have found defendant vicariously guilty based on acts or omissions of employees other than codefendant. U.S. v. Hughes Aircraft Co., Inc., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1994, 20 F.3d 974, as amended, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 482, 513 U.S. 987, 130 L.Ed.2d 395. Conspiracy Ⓜ 24(6)

"Rule of consistency" did not require reversal of narcotics defendant's conspiracy conviction even though evidence was found not sufficient against defendant's only indicted co-conspirator; defendant was also charged with conspiring with "others," and rational juror could find beyond reasonable doubt that defendant had conspired with others to possess and import cocaine. U.S. v. Rodriguez, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1993, 983 F.2d 455.

Acquittal of all other defendants charged with conspiracy does not mandate acquittal of remaining conspirator; overruling Herman v. United States, 289 F.2d 362; United States v. Sheikh, 654 F.2d 1057. U.S. v. Zuniga-Salinas, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1992, 952 F.2d 876.

Jury's acquittal of defendant's sole alleged coconspirator in trial for conspiracy to commit bribery did not mandate acquittal of defendant; defendant had stipulated that evidence was sufficient to support his conspiracy conviction. U.S. v. Bucuvalas, C.A.1 (Mass.) 1990, 909 F.2d 593.

Defendant, who was convicted of conspiracy in joint trial while codefendant was acquitted was not entitled to acquittal on basis of inconsistency of jury verdict; explanations for inconsistency existed which had nothing to do with whether defendant actually conspired with codefendant to commit crime and further, sufficient evidence of conspiracy between defendant and codefendant existed to support jury's verdict against defendant; overruling Herman v. U.S., 289 F.2d 362. U.S. v. Andrews, C.A.11 (Fla.) 1988, 850 F.2d 1557, certiorari denied 109 S.Ct. 842, 488 U.S. 1032, 102 L.Ed.2d 974.

Acquittal of one defendant belied assertions that jury could not keep evidence separate as to each defendant, as bearing upon whether severance should have been granted in prosecution for conspiracy. U.S. v. Plotke, C.A.11 (Fla.) 1984, 725 F.2d 1303, certiorari denied 105 S.Ct. 151, 469 U.S. 843, 83 L.Ed.2d 89.

Theory of conspiracy between defendant and codefendant was barred by jury's determination that it was not shown beyond reasonable doubt that codefendant took part in conspiracy with defendant, and thus acquittal of codefendant required acquittal of defendant, where only defendant and codefendant were indicted on conspiracy charge and there was no evidence implicating anyone else as coconspirator. U.S. v. Hopkins, C.A.10 (Okla.) 1982, 716 F.2d 739, on rehearing 744 F.2d 716.

Conviction of only one defendant in a conspiracy prosecution will not be upheld when all other alleged coconspirators on trial are acquitted; defendant may be convicted of conspiring with persons whose names are unknown or who have not been tried and acquitted if the indictment asserts that such other persons exist and the evidence supports their existence and the existence of conspiracy. U.S. v. Sheikh, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1981, 654 F.2d 1057, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 1617, 455 U.S. 991, 71 L.Ed.2d 852.

Acquittal of coconspirator on conspiracy count did not preclude conviction of defendant on that count where unindicted coconspirator testified that he and defendant acted in concert to commit crime. U. S. v. Hopkinson, C.A.10 (Wyo.) 1980, 631 F.2d 665, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 1489, 450 U.S. 969, 67 L.Ed.2d 620.

Where named coconspirators were acquitted, alleged conspirator could not be convicted of conspiring with persons whose names were unknown, where there was no direct evidence at trial of the participation of anyone other than the named coconspirators. U.S. v. Espinosa-Cerpa, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 630 F.2d 328.

Even if codefendant was not guilty, defendant would not be entitled to an acquittal on two conspiracy counts where there was considerable evidence that defendant conspired with unknown persons other than the codefendant. U. S. v. Artuso, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1980, 618 F.2d 192, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 164, 449 U.S. 861, 66 L.Ed.2d 77, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 226, 449 U.S. 879, 66 L.Ed.2d 102.

There was evidence in prosecution for conspiring to transport and distribute stolen automobile engines and parts to show a single four-link conspiracy even though jury did not convict members of fourth link in chain. U. S. v. Diana, C.A.4 (S.C.) 1979, 605 F.2d 1307, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 1067, 444 U.S. 1102, 62 L.Ed.2d 787.

Rule that where all other alleged coconspirators are acquitted of a conspiracy, conviction of one person on that charge cannot be upheld must be limited to those cases in which allegations of indictment and proofs at trial admit of no other conspiratorial agreement than that existing between the one convicted defendant and other conspirators, all of whom have been acquitted of the specific charge. U. S. v. Sandy, C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1979, 605 F.2d 210, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 490, 444 U.S. 984, 62 L.Ed.2d 412.

Generally, conviction of only one defendant in conspiracy prosecution will not be upheld if all other alleged coconspirators are acquitted. U. S. v. Goodwin, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1974, 492 F.2d 1141; U.S. v. Musgrave, C.A.Tex.1973, 483 F.2d 327, certiorari denied 94 S.Ct. 447, 450, 414 U.S. 1023, 1025, 38 L.Ed.2d 315, 316. Conspiracy ↪ 24(6)

Generally, where two or more defendants in conspiracy prosecution have been lawfully convicted, fact that additional defendants have been acquitted is immaterial. U. S. v. Musgrave, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1973, 483 F.2d 327, certiorari denied 94 S.Ct. 447, 414 U.S. 1023, 38 L.Ed.2d 315, certiorari denied 94 S.Ct. 450, 414 U.S. 1025, 38 L.Ed.2d 316.

Where codefendant was tried on theory he aided and abetted defendant, if the principal defendant was acquitted then codefendant should also have been found not guilty, and the error which damaged principal defendant's defense was also prejudicial to codefendant. U. S. v. Smith, C.A.D.C.1973, 478 F.2d 976, 156 U.S.App.D.C. 66.

Conviction of two or more alleged conspirators is not affected by the fact that trial of some other defendant did not result in conviction; thus, acquittal of one defendant on count charging conspiracy to sell, transfer and deliver counterfeit obligations did not require acquittal of other coconspirators. U. S. v. Banks, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1972, 465 F.2d 1235, certiorari denied 93 S.Ct. 568, 409 U.S. 1062, 34 L.Ed.2d 514.

Fact that alleged coconspirators were acquitted by jury while defendants were convicted was not ground for reversal where jury could reasonably have found that evidence was insufficient to prove beyond reasonable doubt that alleged coconspirators had actually participated in conspiracy. U. S. v. Penney, C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1969, 416 F.2d 850, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 1832, 398 U.S. 932, 26 L.Ed.2d 98, rehearing denied 90 S.Ct. 2214, 399 U.S. 917, 26 L.Ed.2d 577.

Where count of indictment alleged that defendant and three other specifically named individual codefendants were sole perpetrators of conspiracy, and the three codefendants were acquitted, conspiracy conviction was reversed. Romontio v. U.S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1968, 400 F.2d 618, certiorari granted 91 S.Ct. 144, 400 U.S. 901, 27 L.Ed.2d 137, certiorari dismissed 91 S.Ct. 1384, 402 U.S. 903, 28 L.Ed.2d 644.

Where indictment names persons unknown as coconspirators, and evidence supports charge that one of two defendants conspired with unknown persons, conviction of such defendant can stand even though other defendant is acquitted. Cross v. U. S., C.A.8 (Ark.) 1968, 392 F.2d 360.

Defendant, who was charged with fraudulently importing opium and with conspiracy to commit that offense, could be convicted of conspiracy, though indictment charging 14 Chinese crew members with conspiracy was dismissed.

Ng Pui Yu v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1965, 352 F.2d 626.

Failure of government to prove that all alleged members of conspiracy were involved in it would not prevent conviction of two defendants for their participation therein. Carter v. U. S., C.A.8 (Mo.) 1964, 332 F.2d 728, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 79, 379 U.S. 841, 13 L.Ed.2d 47.

Conspiracy requires a plurality of actors and an acquittal of one of two conspirators is an acquittal of the other. Lubin v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1963, 313 F.2d 419.

Where all but one of charged conspirators are acquitted, verdict against one will not stand. Herman v. U.S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1961, 289 F.2d 362, certiorari denied 82 S.Ct. 174, 368 U.S. 897, 7 L.Ed.2d 93.

Conviction of one defendant for conspiracy could not be sustained where only overt act in furtherance of conspiracy was done by another defendant, and all other defendants were acquitted. Herman v. U.S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1961, 289 F.2d 362, certiorari denied 82 S.Ct. 174, 368 U.S. 897, 7 L.Ed.2d 93.

If, in prosecution for conspiracy, indictment names persons unknown as co-conspirators, and evidence supports charge that one of two named defendants conspired with the unknown persons, conviction of one defendant may stand in spite of codefendant's acquittal. U.S. v. Gordon, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1957, 242 F.2d 122, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 1378, 354 U.S. 921, 1 L.Ed.2d 1436.

Two persons are necessary to form a conspiracy, and, therefore, acquittal of one person indicted on conspiracy charge requires acquittal of other person indicted in absence or evidence implicating any one else. U.S. v. Gordon, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1957, 242 F.2d 122, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 1378, 354 U.S. 921, 1 L.Ed.2d 1436.

Fact that one of three alleged conspirators had been acquitted of charge of conspiracy would not be of avail to other conspirators upon other conspirators' appeal from judgment of conviction and would not affect verdict as to such other conspirators. Lazarov v. U.S., C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1955, 225 F.2d 319, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 140, 350 U.S. 886, 100 L.Ed. 781, rehearing denied 76 S.Ct. 341, 350 U.S. 955, 100 L.Ed. 831.

In prosecution for a conspiracy to violate the Gold Reserve Act, § 440 et seq. of Title 31, and Regulations and to defraud the United States, that jury convicted defendant while acquitting a co-defendant was not ground for complaint by defendant where the jury may have considered the codefendant's defense of entrapment well founded. United States v. Wiesner, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1954, 216 F.2d 739.

In prosecution of two corporate defendants and five individual defendants under two indictments charging conspiracy to defraud United States by delivery under contracts with Federal Surplus Commodity Corporation of rejected egg powder and conspiracy to defraud United States by obtaining payment of certain false claims, acquittal of one of the individual defendants of a charge under second indictment on a prior trial did not deprive court of jurisdiction to try the other defendants on the second indictment. U.S. v. Samuel Dunkel & Co., C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1950, 184 F.2d 894, certiorari denied 71 S.Ct. 491, 340 U.S. 930, 95 L.Ed. 671.

In prosecution of individuals for conspiracy to defraud the United States through violation of former § 203 of this title, prohibiting members of Congress from receiving compensation in matters affecting the government, fact that court directed acquittal of one defendant who was employee of corporations and acted in behalf of other individual defendants, on ground that he did not know that individuals were buying congressman's services, did not require striking out of all evidence as to acquitted individual. May v. United States, C.A.D.C.1949, 175 F.2d 994, 84 U.S.App.D.C. 233, certiorari denied 70 S.Ct. 58, 338 U.S. 830, 94 L.Ed. 505, order withheld 70 S.Ct. 81, 338 U.S. 854, motion denied 70 S.Ct. 94, motion denied 70 S.Ct. 95, rehearing denied 70 S.Ct. 154, 338 U.S. 882, 94 L.Ed. 542, rehearing denied 70 S.Ct. 155, 338 U.S. 882, 94 L.Ed. 542, order withheld 70 S.Ct. 80.

In prosecution for conspiracy to endeavor to impede due administration of justice in criminal prosecution by improper influence of jurors, that one of the alleged conspirators was acquitted, did not preclude conviction of others. Burton v. U. S., C.A.5 (La.) 1949, 175 F.2d 960, rehearing denied 176 F.2d 865, certiorari denied 70 S.Ct. 347, 338 U.S. 909, 94 L.Ed. 560, rehearing denied 70 S.Ct. 565, 339 U.S. 916, 94 L.Ed. 1341.

The fact that a partner of defendant was acquitted of the charge of conspiracy to carry on the business of a wholesale liquor dealer without paying the special taxes required by law did not vitiate the jury's verdict of guilty as to the defendant. Young v. U. S., C.C.A.10 (Kan.) 1948, 168 F.2d 242.

Acquittal of district judge, around whom alleged conspiracy to obstruct the administration of justice allegedly centered, did not preclude conviction of other alleged conspirators, since jury could reasonably find that persons around the judge were conspiring to obtain illegal advantage but that judge himself was not concerned in the transactions, and, in any event, jury's action in conviction some alleged conspirators and acquitting others need not be consistent in order to be legal. U. S. v. Johnson, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1947, 165 F.2d 42, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 355, 332 U.S. 852, 92 L.Ed. 421, motion granted 68 S.Ct. 357, rehearing denied 68 S.Ct. 457, 333 U.S. 834, 92 L.Ed. 1118, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 355, 332 U.S. 852, 92 L.Ed. 422.

The acquittal of some defendants on conspiracy charge does not vitiate conviction of others where it is shown that criminal conspiracy existed. U.S. v. Monroe, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1947, 164 F.2d 471, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 452, 333 U.S. 828, 92 L.Ed. 1113.

Corporate officers were not improperly convicted of conspiracy to sell liquor at wholesale in excess of ceiling prices because the corporation, alleged principal in conspiracy, was found innocent, where corporation sold liquor at ceiling prices and officers, by means of exorbitant premium collected independently of ceiling price, but in negotiation of such ceiling price, turned legitimate sale into an illegal one without benefit to corporation or awareness on part of other stockholders or employees. U.S. v. Hare, C.C.A.7 (Ind.) 1946, 153 F.2d 816, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 982, 328 U.S. 836, 90 L.Ed. 1612, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 983, 328 U.S. 836, 90 L.Ed. 1612.

In prosecution for conspiracy to defraud the United States by corruptly administering or procuring the corrupt administration of the Frazier Lemke Act, §§ 20 to 203 of Title 11, the fact that conciliation commissioners, who were jointly charged with defendant and another in the indictment, were acquitted, did not prevent the conviction of defendant and another for their part in attempting to procure the corrupt administration of said sections. Joyce v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1946, 153 F.2d 364, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 1349, 328 U.S. 860, 90 L.Ed. 1631.

Conviction of one alleged conspirator is not vitiated because of the possible later acquittal of codefendants not yet tried or even apprehended. U. S. v. Fox, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1942, 130 F.2d 56, certiorari denied 63 S.Ct. 74, 317 U.S. 666, 87 L.Ed. 535.

The conviction of some alleged conspirators does not fall because others named are acquitted, even though conviction of the others is logically required for the finding of guilty of those convicted. U. S. v. Fox, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1942, 130 F.2d 56, certiorari denied 63 S.Ct. 74, 317 U.S. 666, 87 L.Ed. 535.

Where an indictment for conspiracy names only two persons, an acquittal or reversal as to one is an acquittal or reversal as to the other. U. S. v. Fox, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1942, 130 F.2d 56, certiorari denied 63 S.Ct. 74, 317 U.S. 666, 87 L.Ed. 535.

The fact that only one of four persons charged with conspiracy to violate revenue laws was convicted was not a fatal inconsistency invalidating the verdict, where one of the persons thus charged in the indictment was not a defendant in the case. Bryant v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Fla.) 1941, 120 F.2d 483. See, also, West v. U.S., C.C.A.Ga.1947, 161 F.2d 452. Criminal Law ¶ 877

The rule that acquittal of all but one of alleged conspirators results in the acquittal of all applies to acquittals on the merits, on ground that such judgments prove that there was in fact no criminal agreement. Farnsworth v. Zerbst, C.C.A.5 (Ga.) 1938, 98 F.2d 541. See, also, U.S. v. Fox, C.C.A.Pa.1942, 130 F.2d 56, certiorari denied 63 S.Ct. 74, 317 U.S. 666, 87 L.Ed. 535. Conspiracy ↪ 22

Conviction of conspiracy of only one defendant cannot be sustained, if all other principal conspirators are acquitted. U.S. v. Austin-Bagley Corporation, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1929, 31 F.2d 229, certiorari denied 49 S.Ct. 479, 279 U.S. 863, 73 L.Ed. 1002. Conspiracy ↪ 23

Acquittal of two conspirators, unexplainable under evidence, does not require reversal of conviction of other conspirators. U.S. v. Austin-Bagley Corporation, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1929, 31 F.2d 229, certiorari denied 49 S.Ct. 479, 279 U.S. 863, 73 L.Ed. 1002. Conspiracy ↪ 23

Disagreement of jury as to guilt of one alleged conspirator to defraud United States did not preclude conviction of the other. Miller v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1928, 24 F.2d 353, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 421, 276 U.S. 638, 72 L.Ed. 421.

Indictment charging conspiracy with six unknown persons was sufficient to authorize prosecution after acquittal of other named defendants under court's instruction. McDonald v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Okla.) 1925, 9 F.2d 506.

If one of two defendants charged with conspiracy is acquitted, the other must also be acquitted, and if the charge against one be nol. pros'd, the other cannot afterwards be convicted. U.S. v. Wray, D.C.Ga.1925, 8 F.2d 429. See, also, Miller v. U.S., C.C.A.S.C.1921, 277 F. 721; Feder v. U.S., C.C.A.N.Y.1919, 257 F. 694; U.S. v. Hamilton, C.C.Ohio 1876, Fed.Cas. No. 15,288.

In prosecution of three individuals and corporation for conspiracy to violate Bankruptcy Act, former § 52 of Title 11, by concealing property of bankrupt from trustee, allowing jury to find two individuals guilty of charge was not error, because of fact that verdict of not guilty was directed as to other individuals, and corporation was not found guilty. Kaplan v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1925, 7 F.2d 594, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 107, 269 U.S. 582, 70 L.Ed. 423.

Where an indictment for conspiracy charged that not only those indicted, but others to the grand jury unknown, were parties to the conspiracy, and the evidence also implicated others, the acquittal of all except one of those indicted did not entitle him to an acquittal. Grove v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (Md.) 1925, 3 F.2d 965, certiorari denied 45 S.Ct. 511, 268 U.S. 691, 69 L.Ed. 1159.

Where two defendants were charged with conspiracy with others, to the grand jury unknown, to commit an offense, and the evidence sustained the allegation that others were engaged in the conspiracy, the acquittal of one defendant charged was not inconsistent with conviction of the other. Donegan v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1922, 287 F. 641, certiorari denied 43 S.Ct. 251, 260 U.S. 751, 67 L.Ed. 495.

Though the union of the minds of at least two persons is a prerequisite to the commission of the crime of conspiracy, yet one may be convicted after the other accused is dead before conviction, but, if one be acquitted, the other also must be acquitted, as is the case if the prosecutor enter a nolle prosequi as to one. Feder v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1919, 257 F. 694, 168 C.C.A. 644.

Where only two persons are charged as conspirators, it results that, except in extreme cases, such as the death of one of the alleged conspirators or his absence from the jurisdiction, unless both can be legally convicted, neither can be. Alkon v. U.S., C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1908, 163 F. 810, 90 C.C.A. 116.

Where jury acquitted one of three defendants on conspiracy charge, and courts found that evidence was insufficient to sustain conviction of second defendant on conspiracy charge, third defendant's conviction on conspiracy charge would have to be set aside. U. S. v. Whitfield, E.D.Pa.1974, 378 F.Supp. 184, affirmed 515 F.2d 506, affirmed 515 F.2d 507.

Acquittal of all other co-conspirators precludes the conviction of remaining conspirator, notwithstanding grant of severance and separate trial of co-conspirators. U. S. v. Bruno, E.D.Pa.1971, 333 F.Supp. 570.

Where three persons were indicted for conspiracy in connection with false statements to Veterans Administration for purpose of securing insured loan and there was no doubt that evidence overwhelmingly established particular defendant was guilty of conspiracy, even though one of the persons had not been tried on charge and the other defendant was acquitted on that count, defendant could be properly convicted of conspiracy. U. S. v. Koritan, E.D.Pa.1960, 182 F.Supp. 143, affirmed 283 F.2d 516.

Where indictment for conspiracy names only two, an acquittal or reversal as to one is an acquittal or reversal as to the other. U. S. v. Weinberg, M.D.Pa.1955, 129 F.Supp. 514, affirmed 226 F.2d 161, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 305, 350 U.S. 933, 100 L.Ed. 815.

A charge of conspiracy among defendants and divers persons unknown does not collapse with the acquittal of all except one defendant. U. S. v. Skurla, W.D.Pa.1954, 126 F.Supp. 713.

When more than two are joined in an indictment, any two may be found guilty and the others acquitted, provided the overt act is shown to have been committed by one of the convicted persons. U. S. v. Rindskopf, W.D.Wis.1874, 27 F.Cas. 813, 6 Biss. 259, 8 Chi.Leg.N. 9, No. 16165.

Under those counts which charge two defendants with conspiring with persons to the grand jurors unknown, if the evidence satisfies the jury that although the defendants may not have conspired together, yet if one of them did commit the offenses charged with some third person unknown, and either one of such persons did any one of the overt acts charged, the defendant who so conspired may be found guilty. U. S. v. Hamilton, C.C.S.D.Ohio 1876, 26 F.Cas. 90, 8 Chi.Leg.N. 211, No. 15288.

479. ---- Acquittal or conviction on conspiracy count, verdict, trial proceedings generally

Determination on appeal that evidence was insufficient to support convictions for conspiracy to commit mail and wire fraud required reversal of defendants' conspiracy convictions, although remaining objects of conspiracy, such as money laundering, alone would have been legally sufficient to support conspiracy convictions, where jury used general verdict form which gave no indication which objects of conspiracy formed basis of their decision, making it impossible to know which objects jury relied on in its decision to convict defendants of conspiracy. U.S. v. Manarite, C.A.9 (Nev.) 1995, 44 F.3d 1407, amended on denial of rehearing, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 2610, 515 U.S. 1158, 132 L.Ed.2d 854, certiorari denied 116 S.Ct. 148, 516 U.S. 851, 133 L.Ed.2d 93. Criminal Law 1190

If judge in multiple-object conspiracy prosecution instructs jury that it need only find one of multiple objects and reviewing court holds any of supporting counts legally insufficient, conspiracy count also fails. U.S. v. DeLuca, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1982, 692 F.2d 1277.

Where judge in his instructions concerning conspiracy count repeatedly charged that the overt acts must be alleged in the indictment, jury's verdict of guilty on charge of conspiracy by bank teller to misapply monies of a federally insured bank and verdict of not guilty on substantive counts of fraudulent check cashing constituted plain error since jury's verdict of not guilty with respect to the substantive crimes of fraudulent check cashing constituted, in effect, a finding that none of the alleged overt acts took place. U. S. v. Morales, C.A.1 (Puerto Rico) 1982, 677 F.2d 1.

Where an allegation of conspiracy is properly submitted to the jury, the fact that the jury acquits on the conspiracy count and convicts on the substantive counts does not affect the propriety of joinder. U. S. v. Nims, C.A.5 (La.) 1975, 524 F.2d 123, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 2646, 426 U.S. 934, 49 L.Ed.2d 385.

Where in two indictments defendants were charged with conspiring to violate laws relating to manufacture of whiskey, any possibility of prejudice to defendants by inclusion of conspiracy count in second indictment was vitiated by jury's acquittal of defendants on conspiracy charge in second case. U. S. v. Harris, C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1968, 391 F.2d 348, certiorari denied 89 S.Ct. 169, 393 U.S. 874, 21 L.Ed.2d 145.

Acquittal of defendant on conspiracy count was not inconsistent with conviction on substantive counts. U. S. v. Palmiotto, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1965, 347 F.2d 223.

In prosecution for false statements in obtaining loans to be insured by federal housing administration and for conspiracy to commit the substantive offense, fact that defendants were acquitted on the conspiracy count did not require that they also be acquitted on the substantive counts. Ross v. U. S., C.A.6 (Ohio) 1952, 197 F.2d 660, certiorari denied 73 S.Ct. 40, 344 U.S. 832, 97 L.Ed. 648, certiorari denied 73 S.Ct. 46, 344 U.S. 832, 97 L.Ed. 648

Where defendant was tried on two counts, one charging conspiracy to sell a stolen automobile and the other charging transportation of a stolen automobile in interstate commerce, acquittal on conspiracy count was not a determination of the facts essential to conviction of the substantive offense. United States v. Rainone, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1951, 192 F.2d 860.

Acquittal on count of indictment charging conspiracy to violate § 103 of Title 50, prohibiting the making of war material in a defective manner, did not bar conviction on count charging the substantive offense of making war material in a defective manner. Schmeller v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1944, 143 F.2d 544.

A verdict of not guilty of one count of an indictment alleging conspiracy does not prevent a conviction on the other counts charging the same counts as substantive offenses. Harris v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1921, 273 F. 785, certiorari denied 42 S.Ct. 55, 257 U.S. 646, 66 L.Ed. 414.

Where two were indicted for conspiracy to insure a vessel and have her cast away, and one of them was indicted individually for the same thing, and both were acquitted of the conspiracy, the individual must also be acquitted if he could not be found guilty without assuming the existence of the conspiracy. U.S. v. Morris, D.C.Md.1868, 26 F.Cas. 1320, No. 15812. Conspiracy ↪ 38

480. ---- Acquittal or conviction on substantive counts, verdict, trial proceedings generally

Conspiracy convictions could not stand, given instruction that jury could convict under conspiracy statute if government proved beyond reasonable doubt that defendants conspired to commit at least one of three offenses charged as objects of conspiracy, as defendants could not be convicted of wire fraud based on Canadian smuggling scheme and it was impossible to tell which ground jury based conspiracy conviction upon; jury may not have considered, with respect to all defendants, whether conspiratorial agreement extended to valid objects, which were interstate travel with intent to commit bribery and scheme to defraud another of honest services, but may instead have focused on overall conspiratorial agreement to transport tobacco into Canada without paying taxes and duties, and the two legally sufficient objects of conspiracy were not so intricately intertwined with invalid wire fraud count that court could necessarily infer that conspiracy conviction had legally correct basis. U.S. v. Boots, C.A.1 (Me.) 1996, 80 F.3d 580, certiorari denied 117 S.Ct. 263, 519 U.S. 905, 136 L.Ed.2d 188. Criminal Law ↪ 881(3)

Evidence was sufficient to support conviction for conspiracy to unlawfully modify and distribute decoders to be used for unauthorized decryption of satellite television transmissions, even though defendant was found not guilty of substantive offenses; although verdicts were inconsistent, there was ample evidence that defendant had agreed to modify decoders and had modified decoders for business which sold decoders to consumers. U.S. v. Suppenbach, C.A.8 (Mo.) 1993, 1 F.3d 679, rehearing denied.

Acquittal on stealing count did not preclude conviction on charge of conspiracy to steal goods from interstate shipment with intent to convert such goods to defendant's own use. U. S. v. Shigemura, C.A.8 (Mo.) 1982, 682 F.2d 699, certiorari denied 103 S.Ct. 741, 459 U.S. 1111, 74 L.Ed.2d 962.

Defendant's acquittal on substantive counts charging violation of section 201(c) of this title prohibiting bribery of public officials did not serve as an acquittal on counts charging conspiracy to defraud United States and to violate section 201(f), (g) of this title proscribing the giving and receiving of gratuities by public officials. U. S. v. Previte, C.A.1 (Mass.) 1981, 648 F.2d 73.

Completion of objective is not element of conspiracy and, therefore, acquittal on substantive count does not preclude conviction on conspiracy count with substantive offense as its object. U. S. v. Carman, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1978, 577 F.2d 556.

Defendant could be convicted of conspiracy even though he was acquitted on all substantive counts. U. S. v. Dearden, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1977, 546 F.2d 622, rehearing denied 550 F.2d 42, certiorari denied 98 S.Ct. 295, 434 U.S. 902, 54 L.Ed.2d 188, rehearing denied 98 S.Ct. 535, 434 U.S. 976, 54 L.Ed.2d 468, certiorari denied 98 S.Ct. 296, 434 U.S. 902, 54 L.Ed.2d 188.

Where defendant was acquitted on substantive charges of violation of Securities Act, section 77a et seq. of Title 15, and mail fraud, and where conspiracy count, on which defendant was convicted, covered three objects, defendant was not prejudiced even if government did alter its theory of the case, during summation, with respect to one of the substantive counts. U. S. v. Frank, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1975, 520 F.2d 1287, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 878, 423 U.S. 1087, 47 L.Ed.2d 97.

Acquittal on substantive counts of indictment does not require acquittal on conspiracy count. Castro v. U. S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1961, 296 F.2d 540.

Where substantive offense is overt act supporting conviction on conspiracy count, acquittal of substantive offense operates as acquittal of conspiracy count, if acquittal of substantive offense constitutes determination that overt act was not committed, but if acquittal of substantive offense does not necessarily constitute determination that overt act was not committed, acquittal does not preclude conviction on conspiracy count. Herman v. U.S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1961, 289 F.2d 362, certiorari denied 82 S.Ct. 174, 368 U.S. 897, 7 L.Ed.2d 93.

Fact that defendant was acquitted on substantive counts did not entitle defendant to judgment of acquittal on conspiracy charge. Shayne v. U.S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1958, 255 F.2d 739, certiorari denied 79 S.Ct. 39, 358 U.S. 823, 3 L.Ed.2d 64.

The fact that defendant was acquitted as to substantive crime of theft did not preclude conviction of conspiracy to commit that crime. U.S. v. Winters, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1946, 158 F.2d 674. See, also, U.S. v. Anderson, C.C.A.Wash.1929, 31 F.2d 436; Rothman v. U.S., C.C.A.N.Y.1920, 270 F. 31, certiorari denied 41 S.Ct. 149, 254 U.S. 652, 65 L.Ed. 458. Double Jeopardy ↪ 151(4)

A mere characterization of criminal liability arising from facts pleaded, as liability for conspiracy, will not preclude conviction for substantive offense if accused is advised of what he has to meet and if the trial proceeds as it would have proceeded if no conspiracy had been charged. U S v. Zeuli, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1943, 137 F.2d 845.

In trial for violations of and conspiracy to violate mail fraud statute, former § 338 of this title, verdict of conviction of one defendant on count of indictment charging conspiracy was not invalid because of inconsistency arising from his acquittal on counts charging violations thereof. Philbrook v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1941, 117 F.2d 632, certiorari denied 61 S.Ct. 1097, 313 U.S. 577, 85 L.Ed. 1534.

Conviction of conspiracy to commit substantive crimes would not be reversed for alleged inconsistency, in verdict, because verdict acquitted accused on counts charging commission of the substantive crimes. U.S. v. Pandolfi, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1940, 110 F.2d 736, certiorari denied 60 S.Ct. 1103, 310 U.S. 651, 84 L.Ed. 1416.

Fact that accused was acquitted under eighteen counts of indictment, charging scheme to defraud, and depositing in pursuance thereof letter in United States mails, did not render conviction under former § 88 of this title [now this section], for conspiracy to defraud by misuse of mails, contrary to former § 338 of this title, error, since the overt acts alleged and performed being other than substantive offenses charged in counts under which he was acquitted. Morris v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Ark.) 1925, 7 F.2d 785, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 205, 270 U.S. 640, 70 L.Ed. 775.

Where indictment charged conspiracy under former § 88 of this title [now this section] to violate National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, and in another count charged unlawful possession, conviction on latter count was valid, notwithstanding disagreement as to conspiracy count. Linden v. U.S., C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1924, 2 F.2d 817.

481. ---- Conclusiveness, verdict, trial proceedings generally

In prosecution for conspiracy to defraud the income tax, jury's verdict was conclusive as to defendants' guilt where it was concurred in by both the District Court and the Circuit Court of Appeals. U.S. v. Johnson, U.S.III.1943, 63 S.Ct. 1233, 319 U.S. 503, 87 L.Ed. 1546, rehearing denied 64 S.Ct. 25, 320 U.S. 808, 88 L.Ed. 488.

Where evidence supported theory of indictment that operations of defendants in several areas had common purpose of stopping coal production by stopping railroad transportation, verdict of guilty was binding upon reviewing court, as against contention that depredations in each area were unrelated to others. U.S. v. Anderson, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1939, 101 F.2d 325, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 822, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1502, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 822, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1503, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 823, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1503, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 823, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1504, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 823, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1504, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 824, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1505, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 824, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1504, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 825, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1506, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 825, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1506, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 825, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1507, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 825, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1508, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 826, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1508, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 826, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1509.

482. Motion in arrest of judgment, trial proceedings generally

District Court did not err in overruling motion in arrest of judgment after conviction of conspiracy to transport stolen money in interstate commerce on ground that indictment failed to allege that overt acts set forth therein were committed in furtherance of conspiracy. Crain v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Fla.) 1945, 148 F.2d 615.

The objection that an indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States of certain public lands does not make it altogether clear to what lands the conspiracy related cannot be taken by a motion in arrest of judgment. Stearns v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Minn.) 1907, 152 F. 900, 82 C.C.A. 48.

511. Order of proof, evidence

Although the preferred order of proof requires a showing of the conspiracy and of defendant's connection with it before admitting declarations of a coconspirator, when the trial court determines that it is not reasonably practicable to require the showing before admitting the statements, it may admit them subject to being connected up. U. S. v. Ocanas, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1980, 628 F.2d 353, rehearing denied 633 F.2d 582, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 2316, 451 U.S. 984, 68 L.Ed.2d 840. Criminal Law ⚡ 427(3)

Trial court did not err by allowing testimony to be introduced subject to Government's subsequent establishment of independent facts connecting defendants with the conspiracy. U. S. v. Harris, C.A.7 (Ind.) 1976, 542 F.2d 1283, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 1558, 430 U.S. 934, 51 L.Ed.2d 779. Criminal Law ⚡ 427(3)

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in order of proof in prosecution of defendant on conspiracy and substantive charges arising out of violation of firearms statutes. Brinlee v. U. S., C.A.8 (N.D.) 1974, 496 F.2d 351, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 142, 419 U.S. 878, 42 L.Ed.2d 118. Criminal Law ⚡ 622.7(4); Criminal Law ⚡ 680(1)

Admission of statements of conspirators before the conspiracy had been proved was question of order of proof within trial court's discretion. U. S. v. Smith, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1971, 445 F.2d 861, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 212, 404 U.S. 883, 30 L.Ed.2d 165. Criminal Law ⚡ 427(3)

Order of proof in conspiracy case is within discretion of trial judge; generally he may either admit evidence subject to later motion by prosecutor to apply evidence to all or certain defendants or may admit evidence as to all defendants, subject to motion to strike if not connected up with all or certain defendants. U. S. v. Knight, C.A.9 (Ariz.) 1969, 416 F.2d 1181. Criminal Law ⚡ 680(1)

In prosecution for conspiring to carry on manufacture, transportation and sale of illicit, nontaxpaid moonshine whiskey and to protect participants of conspiracy from all law enforcement activity, allowing government to prove overt acts of alleged conspiracy without first presenting independent proof of existence of conspiracy was not error, since order of proof in conspiracy prosecution is in trial court's discretion. U. S. v. Penney, C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1969, 416 F.2d 850, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 1832, 398 U.S. 932, 26 L.Ed.2d 98, rehearing denied 90 S.Ct. 2214, 399 U.S. 917, 26 L.Ed.2d 577. Criminal Law ⚡ 680(1)

Permitting government witness to testify as to acts and statements made in furtherance of conspiracy, before conspiracy and defendant's connection therewith had been established, was not abuse of discretion. Nelson v. U. S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1969, 415 F.2d 483, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 751, 396 U.S. 1060, 24 L.Ed.2d 754. Criminal Law ⚡ 427(3)

There is no requirement that conspiracy be proved at trial of one alleged conspirator before declarations by alleged coconspirators are admitted, and the order in which evidence is received is within court's discretion. U. S. v.

Halpin, C.A.7 (Wis.) 1967, 374 F.2d 493, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 1482, 386 U.S. 1032, 18 L.Ed.2d 594. Criminal Law ⚡ 427(3)

In cases charging commission of substantive offenses as well as conspiracy, trial court has broad discretion with respect to order of proof. Downing v. U. S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1965, 348 F.2d 594, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 235, 382 U.S. 901, 15 L.Ed.2d 155. Criminal Law ⚡ 680(1)

Introduction of evidence of existence of conspiracy in Oklahoma to unlawfully transport in interstate commerce forged checks and subsequently of proof of commission of overt act in western district of Texas did not constitute an objectionable order and sequence of proof. Downing v. U. S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1965, 348 F.2d 594, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 235, 382 U.S. 901, 15 L.Ed.2d 155. Criminal Law ⚡ 680(1)

Order of proof requiring proof of conspiracy before proof of other conspirator's acts become relevant and admissible against all does not bar all evidence during progress of trial until particular defendant's participation has been established. Esco Corp. v. U. S., C.A.9 (Or.) 1965, 340 F.2d 1000. Conspiracy ⚡ 48.3; Criminal Law ⚡ 427(3)

Order of proof in conspiracy case is matter almost entirely within trial court's discretion, and error may not be predicated on admission of evidence as to act of alleged coconspirator before proof that defendant was connected with conspiracy. Esco Corp. v. U. S., C.A.9 (Or.) 1965, 340 F.2d 1000. Conspiracy ⚡ 48.3; Criminal Law ⚡ 427(3)

Order of proof in conspiracy case is left to discretion of trial court. Strauss v. U. S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1963, 311 F.2d 926, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 1299, 373 U.S. 910, 10 L.Ed.2d 412. Criminal Law ⚡ 680(1)

There was no warrant in law for asking court to prescribe order of proof by prosecution in run-of-mine conspiracy case and there was no abuse of discretion in denial of motion. Strauss v. U. S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1963, 311 F.2d 926, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 1299, 373 U.S. 910, 10 L.Ed.2d 412. Criminal Law ⚡ 680(1)

Introduction into evidence of a statement offered to prove a conspiracy was not an abuse of discretion, even if it was offered prior to introduction of independent evidence of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Copeland, C.A.4 (N.C.) 1961, 295 F.2d 635, certiorari denied 82 S.Ct. 398, 368 U.S. 955, 7 L.Ed.2d 388. Criminal Law ⚡ 427(3)

In a conspiracy case or case tried on theory of joint enterprise, trial court has large discretion as to order in which the evidence may be introduced. Anthony v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1958, 256 F.2d 50. Criminal Law ⚡ 680(1)

In conspiracy prosecution, objection to testimony concerning statements made by coconspirator in defendant's absence going only to the order of proof was addressed to the discretion of the District Court. U.S. v. Manton, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1939, 107 F.2d 834, certiorari denied 60 S.Ct. 590, 309 U.S. 664, 84 L.Ed. 1012. Criminal Law ⚡ 427(3)

Much latitude is allowed to trial court's discretion in determining order of introducing testimony to prove conspiracy. Feigenbutz v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1933, 65 F.2d 122. Criminal Law ⚡ 427(3)

Court in conspiracy prosecution did not abuse its discretion in permitting recall of government witness for further testimony, which was relevant and material. Kuhn v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1928, 24 F.2d 910, modified on denial of rehearing 26 F.2d 463, certiorari denied 49 S.Ct. 11, 278 U.S. 605, 73 L.Ed. 533. Witnesses ⚡ 264

Objection that government presented evidence irregularly in prosecution for conspiracy to violate National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, was without merit. Baker v. U. S., C.C.A.4 (Va.) 1927, 21 F.2d 903, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 301, 276 U.S. 621, 72 L.Ed. 736. Criminal Law ⚡ 680(1)

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

It is better practice to require evidence establishing a conspiracy before receiving evidence of overt acts to effect the conspiracy's object. McGinniss v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1919, 256 F. 621, 167 C.C.A. 651. Criminal Law ⚡ 680(1)

The facts and circumstances from which a conspiracy is to be inferred may be and often must be shown singly and their collocation is for the jury, but the order in which they may be shown is generally one "in the discretion of the court." Chadwick v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1905, 141 F. 225, 72 C.C.A. 343.

The order of the proof rests in the sound discretion of the court. Taylor v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Idaho) 1898, 89 F. 954, 32 C.C.A. 449. See, also, Bartlett v. U.S., C.C.A.N.M.1948, 166 F.2d 920.

512. Offer of proof, evidence

In prosecution for conspiracy to import intoxicating liquor and to transport same, where defendants, some of whom were officers, filed written report of liquor seized with sheriff's assistants, and then stated to them substance of such report, an offer to prove such oral statements was properly rejected, where written report was not produced and failure to produce it was unexcused. Parmenter v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Mich.) 1924, 2 F.2d 945, certiorari denied 45 S.Ct. 514, 268 U.S. 697, 69 L.Ed. 1163.

In prosecution for conspiracy to defraud the United States by making false documents to secure insurance under modernization of homes provisions of National Housing Act, § 1701 et seq. of Title 12, offer of proof that some of defendants acted on advice of counsel was objectionable, where offer did not state that defendants had made a full disclosure to counsel, and offer showed that defendants did not rely on advice of counsel. U.S. v. Thomas, E.D.Wash.1943, 52 F.Supp. 571. Criminal Law ⚡ 670

In prosecution for conspiracy to defraud the United States by making false documents to secure insurance under modernization of homes provisions of National Housing Act, § 1701 et seq. of Title 12, offer of proof that defendants acted on advice of counsel was objectionable where language of certificates allegedly falsified was so clear that it was not subject to interpretation by any lawyer. U.S. v. Thomas, E.D.Wash.1943, 52 F.Supp. 571. Criminal Law ⚡ 670

In prosecution against financing corporation, its branch office manager, store owners, and their sales manager for conspiracy to defraud the United States by making false documents to secure insurance under modernization of homes provisions of National Housing Act, § 1701 et seq. of Title 12, admissibility, in favor of corporation and office manager, of testimony of statement by other defendants that practice of making false certificates was approved by their attorney, did not cure defects in offer of proof regarding advice of counsel. U.S. v. Thomas, E.D.Wash.1943, 52 F.Supp. 571. Criminal Law ⚡ 670

513. Matters to be proved, evidence--Generally

To prove conspiracy, government must show by direct or circumstantial evidence that two or more persons agreed to violate the law, that defendant knew at least essential objectives of conspiracy, that defendant knowingly and voluntarily became part of it, and that alleged coconspirators were interdependent. U.S. v. Dimeck, C.A.10 (Kan.) 1994, 24 F.3d 1239. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1); Conspiracy ⚡ 24.5

To prove conspiracy to make, possess, conceal and detonate destructive devices transported in interstate commerce, the government had to establish: agreement to engage in the criminal activity charged; one or more overt acts taken to implement the agreement; and requisite intent to commit the substantive crime. U.S. v. Winslow, C.A.9 (Idaho) 1992, 962 F.2d 845, as amended. Conspiracy ⚡ 28(3)

For a defendant to be convicted of conspiracy, the prosecution must prove beyond reasonable doubt that a conspiracy existed, that the defendant knew of it, and that he intended to join or associate himself with the objectives of it. U. S. v. Thevis, C.A.5 (Ga.) 1982, 665 F.2d 616, rehearing denied 671 F.2d 1379, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 2300, 456 U.S. 1008, 73 L.Ed.2d 1303, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 3489, 458 U.S. 1109, 73 L.Ed.2d 1370, certiorari denied 103 S.Ct. 57, 459 U.S. 825, 74 L.Ed.2d 61. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

To prove a criminal conspiracy, the government must show that there was an agreement among conspirators to commit an offense against the United States, accompanied by an overt act by one of the conspirators in furtherance of that agreement. U.S. v. Caicedo-Asprilla, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 632 F.2d 1161, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 1707, 450 U.S. 1000, 68 L.Ed.2d 201. Conspiracy ↪ 23.1

In prosecution for conspiracy to commit offenses against United States and for transmission by wire and radio communication in interstate commerce of certain sounds and signals in furtherance of preconceived scheme to defraud telephone company of revenue for use of long distance telephone service and facilities in violation of section 1343 of this title, government was not required to prove that a false representation had been made by defendants to company nor that it had actually been deceived. Brandon v. U. S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1967, 382 F.2d 607. Conspiracy ↪ 43(12); Telecommunications ↪ 1014(9)

The government is not bound to introduce evidence throughout the period of a continuing offense as set out in a valid conspiracy indictment. Arnold v. U. S., C.A.9 (Wash.) 1964, 336 F.2d 347, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 1348, 380 U.S. 982, 14 L.Ed.2d 275. Indictment And Information ↪ 176

The fundamental problem in each conspiracy case is to establish the nature and scope of conspiracy agreement and connection of defendants with the conspiracy. Hayes v. U. S., C.A.8 (Mo.) 1964, 329 F.2d 209, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 1883, 377 U.S. 980, 12 L.Ed.2d 748. Conspiracy ↪ 44.2

An indictment charging as the object of a conspiracy the violation of a number of statutes is sustained by proof of conspiracy to violate any one of them. Andrews v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (W.Va.) 1939, 108 F.2d 511. Conspiracy ↪ 43(12)

In prosecution for conspiracy, it is not necessary to prove that all defendants in indictment conspired together, but it is sufficient to prove that they conspired one with the other, notwithstanding that indictment charges one general conspiracy. Beland v. U. S., C.C.A.5 (Tex.) 1938, 100 F.2d 289, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 485, 306 U.S. 636, 83 L.Ed. 1037. Conspiracy ↪ 43(12)

Existence of conspiracy as laid must be satisfactorily established before overt acts alleged may play their jurisdictional part in consummation of offense charged. Feigenbutz v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1933, 65 F.2d 122. Criminal Law ↪ 427(3)

Where conspiracy to commit several offenses is charged in one count, proof of conspiracy to commit any one of them will sustain a conviction. Christiansen v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Ga.) 1931, 52 F.2d 950.

It is only necessary to show conspiracy between two or more of all those charged with conspiracy to warrant conviction of those shown to have conspired. Bryant v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Tex.) 1919, 257 F. 378, 168 C.C.A. 418, motion denied 40 S.Ct. 117. Conspiracy ↪ 43(12)

To warrant conviction, it must appear (1) that a conspiracy existed as charged in the indictment; (2) that if such conspiracy existed, the overt act charged was committed in furtherance of such conspiracy; (3) and that the defendant was one of the conspirators. U.S. v. Cassidy, N.D.Cal.1895, 67 F. 698. See, also, U.S. v. Newton, D.C.Iowa 1892, 52 F. 275; U.S. v. Goldberg, C.C.Wis.1876, 7 Biss. 175, 25 Fed.Cas. No. 15,223.

In order that one be found guilty as a conspirator, it need only be shown that, with knowledge of conspiracy, he knowingly performed acts designed to promote or aid in attainment of object thereof. Noerr Motor Freight, Inc. v. Eastern R. R. Presidents Conference, E.D.Pa.1957, 155 F.Supp. 768, affirmed 273 F.2d 218, certiorari granted 80 S.Ct. 862, 362 U.S. 947, 4 L.Ed.2d 866, reversed on other grounds 81 S.Ct. 523, 365 U.S. 127, 5 L.Ed.2d 464, rehearing denied 81 S.Ct. 899, 365 U.S. 875, 5 L.Ed.2d 864. Conspiracy ↪ 13

Indictment for conspiracy will not fail merely because all of the ramifications alleged are not established. U. S. v. Russo, D.C.Mass.1957, 155 F.Supp. 251. Conspiracy ↪ 43(12)

514. ---- Formation of conspiracy, matters to be proved, evidence

Where tape was found in defendants' possession and their voices were identified on such tape and FBI agents through whose hands the tape passed testified that it had not been altered and that its condition at time of trial, on charges of use of interstate telephone facilities for gambling activities and for conspiring to commit such offenses, was identical to that at time of seizure, sufficient foundation for accuracy of tape had been laid. U. S. v. Fuller, C.A.4 (S.C.) 1971, 441 F.2d 755, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 73, 404 U.S. 830, 30 L.Ed.2d 59, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 74, 404 U.S. 830, 30 L.Ed.2d 59. Criminal Law ↪ 444

Where the allegation is one of a continuing conspiracy, the government may prove that the conspiracy was formed at any time during the period referred to in the indictment. U. S. v. Calise, S.D.N.Y.1962, 217 F.Supp. 705. Indictment And Information ↪ 176

Proof of a conspiracy does not require disclosure of formation of a conspiracy by proof of a specific meeting at which express agreements were entered into. U. S. v. Boyance, E.D.Pa.1963, 215 F.Supp. 390. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

515. ---- Agreement to commit offense, matters to be proved, evidence

"Conspiracy" is an inchoate offense, the essence of which is an agreement to commit an unlawful act; the agreement need not be shown to have been explicit; it can instead be inferred from the facts and circumstances of the case. Iannelli v. U. S., U.S.Pa.1975, 95 S.Ct. 1284, 420 U.S. 770, 43 L.Ed.2d 616. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1); Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Conviction for conspiracy under this section cannot be sustained unless there is proof of an agreement to commit an offense against United States, although there need not be proof that the conspirators were aware of the criminality of their objective. Ingram v. U.S., U.S.Ga.1959, 79 S.Ct. 1314, 360 U.S. 672, 3 L.Ed.2d 1503, rehearing denied 80 S.Ct. 42, 361 U.S. 856, 4 L.Ed.2d 96. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

Record did not reflect existence of agreement between defendant doctors to defraud the United States by filing false claims with Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS) by misrepresenting what surgical procedures were performed for purposes of statute making it unlawful to conspire to defraud the United States; proof that defendants practiced medicine together, shared one billing system, assisted each other in surgery and advertised heavily in area did not constitute facts upon which reasonable juror could infer agreement to commit mail fraud and neither did testimony of operating room nurses who testified generally that they heard defendants discuss insurance filing procedures so that payment might be had and expert witness' testimony that, in his opinion, defendants were performing operations together and then billing them in fraudulent manner was not sufficient evidence of agreement. U.S. v. Migliaccio, C.A.10 (Okla.) 1994, 34 F.3d 1517. Conspiracy ↪ 47(6)

Drug distribution conspiracies are often "chain" conspiracies such that agreement can be inferred from interdependence of enterprise, i.e., one can assume that participants understand that they are participating in joint enterprise because success is dependent on success of those from whom they buy and to whom they sell; circumstantial evidence is sufficient to show this agreement. U.S. v. Bourjaily, C.A.6 (Ohio) 1986, 781 F.2d 539, certiorari granted in part 107 S.Ct. 268, 479 U.S. 881, 93 L.Ed.2d 246, affirmed 107 S.Ct. 2775, 483 U.S. 171, 97 L.Ed.2d 144. Conspiracy ↻ 44.2; Conspiracy ↻ 47(2)

To sustain conviction for conspiracy, government must prove agreement or understanding between two or more persons to commit criminal act and overt act by one of coconspirators in furtherance of conspiracy. U.S. v. Caudle, C.A.4 (N.C.) 1985, 758 F.2d 994. Conspiracy ↻ 43(12)

In order to convict defendant of conspiracy, existence of conspiracy must be established with substantial evidence showing presence of agreement between two or more persons to commit crime and overt act in furtherance of agreement by one of the conspirators. U. S. v. Arredondo-Morales, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1980, 624 F.2d 681. Conspiracy ↻ 23.1

Crime of conspiracy is separate and distinct from the related substantive offense; it requires proof of the additional element of an agreement between the alleged coconspirators. U. S. v. Dansker, C.A.3 (N.J.) 1976, 537 F.2d 40, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 732, 429 U.S. 1038, 50 L.Ed.2d 748. Conspiracy ↻ 28(3)

To establish defendant's guilt of conspiracy to possess marihuana with intent to distribute same, government was required to prove only that defendant was party to an agreement which contemplated that marihuana in question would be held for distribution. U. S. v. Ramirez, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1975, 513 F.2d 72, rehearing denied 515 F.2d 1184, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 215, 423 U.S. 912, 46 L.Ed.2d 140. Conspiracy ↻ 44.2

The government is not required to prove that the agreement in a conspiracy case necessitated a precise advance definition of each member's role. U. S. v. Cirillo, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1972, 468 F.2d 1233, certiorari denied 93 S.Ct. 1501, 410 U.S. 989, 36 L.Ed.2d 188. Conspiracy ↻ 44.2

In conspiracy prosecution, proof of the agreement or common purpose must rest upon inferences drawn from relevant and competent circumstantial evidence, ordinarily, the acts and conduct of the conspirators themselves. U. S. v. Warner, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1971, 441 F.2d 821, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 65, 404 U.S. 829, 30 L.Ed.2d 58. Conspiracy ↻ 47(2)

Conviction of conspiracy to commit offense or to defraud United States cannot be sustained unless there is proof of agreement to commit offense against United States. Nelson v. U. S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1969, 415 F.2d 483, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 751, 396 U.S. 1060, 24 L.Ed.2d 754. Conspiracy ↻ 28(1); Conspiracy ↻ 33(1)

A single act performed with parties who are involved in more than one conspiracy may be insufficient to draw an inference of existence of an agreement between the parties in case of multiple conspiracies; knowledge of existence of other parties to conspiracies is insufficient. U. S. v. Varelli, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1969, 407 F.2d 735. Conspiracy ↻ 24(3)

In conspiracy prosecution it is essential to determine what kind of agreement or understanding to commit crime existed as to each defendant. U. S. v. Borelli, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1964, 336 F.2d 376, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 647, 379 U.S. 960, 13 L.Ed.2d 555. Conspiracy ↻ 24(1)

It is usual and often necessary in conspiracy cases for the agreement to commit crime to be proved by inference from acts. U. S. v. Borelli, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1964, 336 F.2d 376, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 647, 379 U.S. 960, 13 L.Ed.2d 555. Conspiracy ↻ 47(1)

Proof of an agreement, express or implied, to commit offense, is required, to sustain conspiracy charge. Hanis v. U. S., C.A.8 (Mo.) 1957, 246 F.2d 781. Conspiracy ↻ 24(1)

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

To establish a conspiracy to use mails to defraud, there must be proof of an agreement of intended use of the mails. Abbott v. U.S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1956, 239 F.2d 310. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1)

To sustain a charge of conspiracy, the Government need not furnish proof of the unlawful plan or agreement, but such charge may be sustained by evidence showing concert of action in commission of unlawful act, or by proof of other facts from which natural inference arises that unlawful acts were in furtherance of a common design of alleged conspiracy. U.S. v. Nelson, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1950, 185 F.2d 758. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

A conspiracy to commit an offense can rarely be proved by direct evidence, and it is not necessary that the participation of one charged with conspiracy should be shown by direct evidence. U.S. v. Nelson, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1950, 185 F.2d 758. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(2)

In order to prove a conspiracy, it is necessary to prove agreement by defendants to co-operate in order to accomplish an illegal purpose, or to violate a law to accomplish a legal purpose, and some act in furtherance of the agreement. Samuel v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1948, 169 F.2d 787. Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2

In prosecution for conspiracy to defraud the United States by corruptly administering or procuring the corrupt administration of the Frazier Lemke Act, §§ 201 to 203 of Title 11, it was necessary to prove that the conspirators did agree to procure a corrupt administration of said sections and that an overt act was committed, but it was not necessary that the conciliation commissioners should themselves be corrupt or that they should knowingly participate in the corrupt means used by the conspirators to accomplish their purpose. Joyce v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1946, 153 F.2d 364, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 1349, 328 U.S. 860, 90 L.Ed. 1631. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(2.1); Conspiracy ⚡ 33(2.1)

In prosecution for engaging in conspiracy to violate internal revenue laws relating to intoxicating liquors, it was necessary to show that accused had agreed to act in concert with some one to commit the substantive crimes charged. U S v. Silva, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1942, 131 F.2d 247. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(7)

To establish conspiracy, actual proof of definite plan or agreement entered into by conspirators need not be offered, but evidence showing concert of action in commission of unlawful act or other facts and circumstances from which natural inference arises that unlawful overt act was in furtherance of common design, intent and purpose of alleged conspirators to commit it, is sufficient. Braverman v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Mich.) 1942, 125 F.2d 283, certiorari granted 62 S.Ct. 1037, 316 U.S. 653, 86 L.Ed. 1733, reversed on other grounds 63 S.Ct. 99, 317 U.S. 49, 87 L.Ed. 23. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(2)

A "conspiracy" is usually established by a number of apparently disconnected circumstances which when taken together throw light on whether the accused have an understanding or are in common agreement. U.S. v. Glasser, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1940, 116 F.2d 690, certiorari granted 61 S.Ct. 835, 313 U.S. 551, 85 L.Ed. 1515, modified on other grounds 62 S.Ct. 457, 315 U.S. 60, 86 L.Ed. 680, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 629, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 637, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(2)

To sustain charge of conspiracy, government need not prove unlawful plan or agreement, but evidence showing concert of action in commission of unlawful acts of proof of other facts from which natural inference arises that such acts were in furtherance of common design of alleged conspiracy is sufficient. U.S. v. Holt, C.C.A.7 (Ind.) 1939, 108 F.2d 365, certiorari denied 60 S.Ct. 616, 309 U.S. 672, 84 L.Ed. 1018, rehearing denied 60 S.Ct. 806, 309 U.S. 698, 84 L.Ed. 1037. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(2)

In conspiracy cases, the unlawful combination, the confederacy, and agreement between two or more persons, that is, the conspiracy itself, is the gist of the action, and is the corpus delicti charged and therefore the agreement must be established to sustain a conviction. Shannabarger v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1938, 99 F.2d 957. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1); Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

Evidence of conspiracy must disclose something further than participation in offense which is object of conspiracy at some stage of its execution, for there must be proof of an unlawful agreement, either express or implied. Luteran v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1937, 93 F.2d 395, certiorari denied 58 S.Ct. 642, 303 U.S. 644, 82 L.Ed. 1103, rehearing denied 58 S.Ct. 756, 303 U.S. 668, 82 L.Ed. 1124, certiorari denied 58 S.Ct. 643, 303 U.S. 644, 82 L.Ed. 1104. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

Proof of unlawful agreement and of defendants' participation therein with knowledge of agreement is essential in prosecution for conspiracy, and mere evidence of participation in offense which is object of conspiracy is insufficient. Langer v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (N.D.) 1935, 76 F.2d 817. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

Government, to sustain charge of conspiracy, need not furnish proof of unlawful plan or agreement. U.S. v. Wilson, D.C.W.Va.1927, 23 F.2d 112. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

Proof of conspiracy to violate statute requires evidence of more than participation in substantive offense, namely, unlawful agreement and participation with knowledge thereof. Dickerson v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Iowa) 1927, 18 F.2d 887. Conspiracy ↪ 23

To sustain conviction for conspiracy to violate a federal statute, a combination or understanding, tacit or otherwise, must be shown. Graham v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Okla.) 1926, 15 F.2d 740, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 587, 274 U.S. 743, 71 L.Ed. 1321. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

Proof of unlawful agreement, as well as participation in offense which is object of conspiracy, is necessary to establish conspiracy to violate criminal statute. Linde v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (S.D.) 1926, 13 F.2d 59. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

Combinations and conspiracies are seldom to be proved by formal agreements and all the facts and circumstances must be considered and the acts of the particular defendants must be looked at with reference to them. Wilson v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1911, 190 F. 427, 111 C.C.A. 231.

"The rule of law is well settled that in conspiracy cases it is often necessary to resort to inferences, and that it is proper so to do. It is also settled that it is not required to prove by direct evidence and agreement to act together, and that 'ordinarily it is only necessary to prove the acts of particular defendants leaving the question of conspiracy to be determined by inference.'" Alkon v. U.S., C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1908, 163 F. 810, 90 C.C.A. 116.

Evidence need not show that the alleged members of the conspiracy entered into any express or formal agreement or that they directly stated between themselves the details of the scheme and its object or purpose or the precise means by which the object or purpose was to be accomplished; neither need it be shown that all persons charged to have been members of the conspiracy were members of the conspiracy or that the alleged conspirators actually succeeded in accomplishing their unlawful objective. U. S. v. Masiello, D.C.S.C.1980, 491 F.Supp. 1154. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

To establish conspiracy, the Government must prove that defendants entered into unlawful agreement to violate criminal statute and that thereafter at least one overt act in furtherance of unlawful conspiracy was performed by one or more of the coconspirators. U. S. v. Garramone, E.D.Pa.1974, 380 F.Supp. 590, affirmed 506 F.2d 1050, affirmed 506 F.2d 1051, affirmed 506 F.2d 1052, affirmed 506 F.2d 1053, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 1428, 420 U.S. 992, 43 L.Ed.2d 673. Conspiracy ↪ 28(1)

Conspiracy to commit an offense against United States under this section cannot be deemed to be proved unless there is proof of an agreement to commit an offense against the United States. U.S. v. DeLoache, W.D.Mo.1968, 279 F.Supp. 720. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

Agreement constituting a conspiracy need not be expressed but may be tacitly understood, and may be inferred from actions of alleged conspirators, but it is still necessary that an agreement be found to exist even though proof of it may be circumstantial. U. S. v. Markowitz, E.D.Pa.1959, 176 F.Supp. 681. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1)

Proof of the unlawful agreement charged plus commission of any overt act, but not necessarily all those alleged, is sufficient to support a conviction for conspiracy, and hence such conviction, whether on verdict or plea of guilty, is not sufficient of itself, without further evidence, to prove that defendant either admitted or was found guilty by jury of committing any particular overt act. U. S. v. Ben Grunstein & Sons Co., D.C.N.J.1955, 127 F.Supp. 907. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1); Judgment ⚡ 648

To prove a "conspiracy", evidence must be produced from which it may be reasonably inferred that there was a joint assent or agreement of the minds of two or more parties to the prosecution of the unlawful object, and disconnected circumstances, any one of which or all of which are just as consistent with a lawful purpose as with an unlawful undertaking, are insufficient to establish a conspiracy. U.S. v. Haskins, W.D.Mo.1941, 40 F.Supp. 219. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

That previous indictment against one defendant for possessing still was dismissed did not preclude prosecution of such defendant for conspiracy to possess the same still and mash and distilled spirits and to commence business of distiller without filing notice of intention, since all that need be proven to make conspiracy complete was the unlawful agreement between two or more persons to possess the still set up, mash and distilled spirits, and performance of one or more overt acts in furtherance of the conspiracy. U.S. v. Carlisi, E.D.N.Y.1940, 32 F.Supp. 479. Double Jeopardy ⚡ 151(4)

The evidence to establish a conspiracy is sufficient if it proves the existence of an agreement to do the unlawful act, although its terms and the time and place where it was entered into are not shown. U. S. v. Hutchins, C.C.S.D.Ohio 1876, 26 F.Cas. 442, No. 15430. See, also, U.S. v. Hamilton, C.C.Ohio 1876, Fed.Cas. No. 15,288.

516. ---- Common design or purpose, matters to be proved, evidence

Fact that each defendant charged with conspiracy to violate Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO) had individual interests that motivated him to participate in conspiracy and that at times put him at odds with coconspirators was not inconsistent with inference that the three were acting in unison to achieve their shared overall goal and did not preclude conspiracy conviction. U.S. v. Ford, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1994, 21 F.3d 759. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1); Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2

Although a single conspiracy does require proof of mutual dependence, that dependence need not be absolute; conspirators often sell in parallel strands rather than in links essential to one another through networks which are vertically integrated and loosely knit. U.S. v. Whaley, C.A.7 (Ind.) 1987, 830 F.2d 1469, certiorari denied 108 S.Ct. 1738, 486 U.S. 1009, 100 L.Ed.2d 202. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(3)

Common enterprise necessary for admission of hearsay statement under coconspirator rule cannot be established solely by words of self-proclaimed participant but rather there must be clear preponderance of evidence independent of hearsay statement to satisfy judge that declarant was a participant. U. S. v. Trowery, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1976, 542 F.2d 623, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 1132, 429 U.S. 1104, 51 L.Ed.2d 555. Criminal Law ⚡ 427(5)

Having established the presence of an illegal conspiracy, the government need only introduce slight evidence to connect an individual defendant to the common scheme. U. S. v. Crockett, C.A.5 (Ga.) 1976, 534 F.2d 589. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

If the totality of the evidence is sufficient to show a concert of action, all parties working together understandingly, with a single design for the accomplishment of a common purpose, then conspiracy may be found. U. S. v. Prout,

C.A.5 (La.) 1976, 526 F.2d 380, rehearing denied 529 F.2d 999, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 114, 429 U.S. 840, 50 L.Ed.2d 109. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1)

Where circumstances are such as to warrant a jury in finding that conspirators had a unity of purpose or a common design and understanding, or a meeting of minds in an unlawful arrangement, conclusion that a conspiracy is established is justified. U. S. v. American Radiator & Standard Sanitary Corp., C.A.3 (Pa.) 1970, 433 F.2d 174, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 928, 401 U.S. 948, 28 L.Ed.2d 231, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 929, 401 U.S. 948, 28 L.Ed.2d 231. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

To prove a single conspiracy, prosecution must show, among other things, that all defendants agreed to effectuate a central criminal design. Daily v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1960, 282 F.2d 818, on rehearing 293 F.2d 33. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

Where defendant was charged with conspiracy to commit an offense against or to defraud the United States, it was not necessary for government's proof to show that defendant actually agreed in terms with others to have a common design and to strive to accomplish it by same means, but it was sufficient if from the evidence it appeared that defendant acted in furtherance of the same illegal object as the other persons. Badon v. U.S., C.A.5 (La.) 1959, 269 F.2d 75, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 199, 361 U.S. 894, 4 L.Ed.2d 152. Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2

Evidence of successive details of scheme, indicating with requisite certainty existence of preconceived plan to commit crime, is sufficient to establish unlawful conspiracy, though all participants did not contribute alike to making or fulfillment of scheme, as what one conspirator does, pursuant to common purpose, all do. U.S. v. Holt, C.C.A.7 (Ind.) 1939, 108 F.2d 365, certiorari denied 60 S.Ct. 616, 309 U.S. 672, 84 L.Ed. 1018, rehearing denied 60 S.Ct. 806, 309 U.S. 698, 84 L.Ed. 1037. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

If the proof in a prosecution for conspiracy shows a previous meeting and a concert of action thereafter, each of the parties doing some act contributing to accomplish an unlawful purpose, a jury is justified in finding that they were conspiring together to accomplish that purpose. Radin v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1911, 189 F. 568, 111 C.C.A. 6. Conspiracy ⚡ 47

It is sufficient to show that the parties are acting together understandingly to accomplish the same unlawful purpose, even though individual conspirators may do acts in furtherance of the common unlawful design, apart from and unknown to others. Marrash v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1909, 168 F. 225, 93 C.C.A. 511. Conspiracy ⚡ 47

"If the evidence shows a detail of facts and circumstances in which the alleged conspirators are involved, separately or collectively, and which are clearly referable to a preconcert of the actors, and there is a moral probability that they would not have occurred as they did without such preconcert, that is sufficient if it satisfies the jury of the conspiracy beyond a reasonable doubt." Davis v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1901, 107 F. 753, 46 C.C.A. 619.

It is not necessary to prove that defendants actually agreed in terms upon a design to be pursued by common means, but where they pursued the same objects with a view to its attainment, the jury may conclude that they were engaged in a conspiracy to effect it. The Mussel Slough Case, C.C.Cal.1881, 5 F. 680, 6 Sawy. 612. Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2; Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

If it be proved that the defendants pursued by their acts the same objects, often by the same means, one performing one part and another another part of the same, so as to complete it with a view to the attainment of the same object, the jury will be justified in the conclusion that they were engaged in a conspiracy to effect that object. The Mussel Slough Case, C.C.Cal.1881, 5 F. 680, 6 Sawy. 612. Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2; Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

In prosecution for conspiracy, Government need not prove that all means or methods stated in indictment for carrying out conspiracy were agreed on or actually used by defendants, but evidence establishing to jury's satisfaction beyond reasonable doubt that one or more of such means or methods was agreed on by defendants to effect or accomplish an object or purpose of conspiracy is sufficient on such issue. U. S. v. Schneiderman, S.D.Cal.1952, 106 F.Supp. 906. Conspiracy ↻ 47(1)

A conspiracy may be proved by direct and positive evidence, or by facts showing that there was a concert of action and a unity of purpose in effecting an unlawful object. U. S. v. Smith, C.C.S.D.Ohio 1869, 27 F.Cas. 1144, 2 Bond 323, No. 16322. Conspiracy ↻ 24(1); Conspiracy ↻ 47(2)

517. ---- Knowledge and intent, matters to be proved, evidence

With the exception of the situation in which reference to the knowledge of the parties to an illegal agreement is necessary to establish the existence of federal jurisdiction, where knowledge of the facts giving rise to federal jurisdiction is not necessary for conviction of a substantive offense embodying a mens rea requirement, such knowledge is equally irrelevant to questions of responsibility for conspiracy to commit that offense. U. S. v. Feola, U.S.N.Y.1975, 95 S.Ct. 1255, 420 U.S. 671, 43 L.Ed.2d 541. Conspiracy ↻ 28(1)

Motive or intent may be proved by the acts or declarations of some of conspirators in furtherance of the common objective. Pinkerton v. U. S., U.S.Ala.1946, 66 S.Ct. 1180, 328 U.S. 640, 90 L.Ed. 1489, rehearing denied 67 S.Ct. 26, 329 U.S. 818, 91 L.Ed. 697. Criminal Law ↻ 423(1)

Conscious avoidance jury instruction at trial for conspiracy to commit securities and tender offer fraud did not impermissibly dilute mens rea requirement for conspiracy charge, where it made clear that guilty knowledge could not be established by showing that defendant was merely negligent, foolish, or mistaken, and instruction as a whole repeatedly and emphatically instructed jury that it had to find that defendant intentionally engaged in charged scheme. U.S. v. Svoboda, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 2003, 347 F.3d 471, certiorari denied 124 S.Ct. 2196, 541 U.S. 1044, 158 L.Ed.2d 735. Criminal Law ↻ 772(5)

Mere knowledge of illegal activity, even in conjunction with participation in small part of conspiracy, does not by itself establish that person has joined in grand conspiracy. U.S. v. Dimeck, C.A.10 (Kan.) 1994, 24 F.3d 1239. Conspiracy ↻ 40.1

In establishing conspiracy to defraud federally insured financial institution, government must establish defendants' participation in conspiracy with intent to further its aims. U.S. v. Brandon, C.A.1 (R.I.) 1994, 17 F.3d 409, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 80, 513 U.S. 820, 130 L.Ed.2d 34, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 81, 513 U.S. 820, 130 L.Ed.2d 34. Conspiracy ↻ 32

Once the intent for the crime charged has been established, it is immaterial that the defendant may also have a second intent. U.S. v. Allred, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1989, 867 F.2d 856. Criminal Law ↻ 20

Conviction for conspiracy to obstruct the IRS was sufficiently supported by evidence that defendant knowingly participated in scheme to launder untaxed money, and that scheme was structured so as to prevent IRS detection, regardless of whether defendant knew that money came from sale of illegal drugs. U.S. v. Montalvo, C.A.5 (Miss.) 1987, 820 F.2d 686. Conspiracy ↻ 47(9)

Offense of conspiracy to defraud United States did not require proof of antifederal intent, since whether persons who planned to defraud United States in fact realized that federal dollars were object of their scheme was irrelevant to this section's primary goal of safeguarding federal fiscal resources. U.S. v. Sorrow, C.A.11 (Ga.) 1984, 732 F.2d 176. Conspiracy ↻ 33(1)

Fact that issue of intent had been waived by pretrial motion did not prevent the government from putting on proof in nature of motive or intent to establish the fact of conspiracy. *U. S. v. Showing that defendant was aware of illegal plan charged in conspiracy count and even approved of it might impugn his character but did not alone place him in violation of this section. *U. S. v. In a conspiracy prosecution, the government is not compelled to prove that a defendant was familiar with each and every detail of the conspiracy but, rather, that defendant had knowledge of the agreement and associated with the plan in order to promote its success. U. S. v. Cuesta, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1979, 597 F.2d 903, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 451, 444 U.S. 964, 62 L.Ed.2d 377, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 452, 444 U.S. 964, 62 L.Ed.2d 377. Conspiracy ⤴ 40.1

Where conspiracy is charged, Government must prove specific intent to violate substantive statute beyond reasonable doubt. U. S. v. Bertolotti, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1975, 529 F.2d 149. Conspiracy ⤴ 47(1)

Evidence that defendant knew of conspiracy almost from its inception and that in at least one respect he acted to further its objectives was all that was required to support a finding of his complicity; from knowledge of the conspiracy and an act in furtherance of it, participation in the illegal agreement could be inferred. U. S. v. Calaway, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1975, 524 F.2d 609, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 1462, 424 U.S. 967, 47 L.Ed.2d 733. Criminal Law ⤴ 427(5)

Evidence of mere attendance at a meeting or knowledge of a conspiratorial act, without more, is not sufficient to support inference of active participation in a conspiracy. *U. S. v. It is not fatal to prosecution's conspiracy case that it does not prove that defendants knew or participated in every phase of the unlawful scheme, and it is only necessary that the defendants knew of conspiracy, associated themselves with it, and knowingly contributed their efforts in its furtherance. *U.S. v. Conspirator's intent to defraud may be inferred from fact that he personally knew that venture was operating deceitfully, but since it is personal knowledge of invidious fact which warrants such inference, nothing less than personal knowledge of that fact will do to establish the fact even circumstantially. *Phillips v. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Where two or more persons are shown to be engaged in the same unlawful conspiracy, having for its object the same common and unlawful purpose, it is unnecessary to prove knowledge by one of the defendants of the dealings, or even of the existence, of the others, in order to render evidence of the actions of the others admissible against defendant. Poliafico v. U. S., C.A.6 (Ohio) 1956, 237 F.2d 97, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 590, 352 U.S. 1025, 1 L.Ed.2d 597, rehearing denied 77 S.Ct. 718, 353 U.S. 931, 1 L.Ed.2d 725. Criminal Law ↪ 423(1)

To convict one of conspiracy there must be proof, circumstantial or direct or both, that person charged had knowledge of the existence of the conspiracy and with that knowledge intentionally did some act or thing to further and carry it on. Duke v. U.S., C.A.5 (Ga.) 1956, 233 F.2d 897. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

In prosecution for conspiracy to defraud the United States, knowledge that concerted action was contemplated and invited and adherence to the fraudulent scheme and participation in it are sufficient to convict. *McGunnigal v. In prosecution for conspiracy to violate § 12 of Emergency Relief Appropriation Act 1937, §§ 721 to 728 note of Title 15, evidence that accused coerced political contributions from Works Progress Administration workers and influenced workers' votes under threat of loss of jobs was sufficient to establish a corrupt motive, and hence knowledge of statute would be imputed to accused and need not be proved. *Cruz v. sustain a heavier burden of proof as to the intent of the conspirators than under other counts in the indictment charging a violation of said former section, and in order to sustain the charge of conspiracy, it was necessary to prove an intent, not only to defraud, but also to defraud by the use of the mails. Farmer v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1915, 223 F. 903, 139 C.C.A. 341.

In a prosecution for conspiracy to procure fraudulent homestead entries of government land, if a conspiracy is shown, and persons were procured to make entries in pursuance thereof, who did not in fact intend to live on the land, it is not essential to conviction that it should be proved that defendants had actual knowledge of such intention. Richards v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1909, 175 F. 911, 99 C.C.A. 401. Conspiracy ↻ 33(4)

Where an indictment for conspiracy to defraud the United States of government land by fraudulent homestead entries charged defendants with conspiring to defraud the government of lands embraced in certain homestead claims filed by certain named persons, the government was properly permitted, for the purpose of proving defendants' intent and guilty knowledge, to show that various other persons had also filed on and made final proof on various other tracts of land under the homestead laws, in pursuance of an agreement with the defendants and for their benefit. Jones v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Or.) 1908, 162 F. 417, 89 C.C.A. 303, certiorari denied 29 S.Ct. 685, 212 U.S. 576, 53 L.Ed. 657. Criminal Law ↻ 371(1); Conspiracy ↻ 45

Where an indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] charged that defendants conspired to defraud the United States by unlawfully and fraudulently procuring the issuance of, and converting to their own use, certain land script, and that to effect the objects of the conspiracy they "unlawfully, knowingly, falsely, and fraudulently" applied for and procured the appointment of a pretended administrator of the succession of a person to whom a private land claim had been confirmed, on whose application the script was issued, it was not necessary that the government should prove that defendants had actual knowledge of the true facts in relation to the succession, or knowledge that the allegations made in their petition for the appointment of the administrator were false, but it was sufficient if defendants had no knowledge of their truth, or reason to believe them to be true, and they were in fact false, and this was true although the indictment averred actual knowledge, such an averment being surplusage, and one which need not be proved. U.S. v. Bradford, C.C.E.D.La.1905, 148 F. 413, affirmed 152 F. 616, 81 C.C.A. 606, certiorari denied 27 S.Ct. 795, 206 U.S. 563, 51 L.Ed. 1190. Conspiracy ↻ 43(12)

While a conspiracy cannot exist without a guilty intent being then present in the minds of the conspirators, this does not mean that they must know that they are violating the statutes of the United States. U.S. v. Newton, S.D.Iowa 1892, 52 F. 275.

Where a particular motive for the conspiracy is alleged in the indictment, and the jury is justified from the evidence in finding that such motive did really exist, it is immaterial that the evidence shows that the conspirators had different motives additional to that the indictment describes. U.S. v. Lancaster, C.C.S.D.Ga.1891, 44 F. 896. Conspiracy ↻ 43(12)

To convict defendant of conspiracy to distribute a controlled substance, Government was required to prove beyond reasonable doubt that defendant was in possession of a controlled substance and that he had the intent to distribute that controlled substance. U. S. v. Masiello, D.C.S.C.1980, 491 F.Supp. 1154. Conspiracy ↻ 47(12)

Proof of knowledge on part of participant in alleged conspiracy is essential element, as well as showing of intent to agree to do wrongful act. U. S. v. Munford, E.D.Pa.1977, 431 F.Supp. 278. Conspiracy ↻ 24.5

Once conspiracy is established beyond reasonable doubt from all the credible evidence, it must be determined whether defendant unlawfully, knowingly and wilfully entered into it. U.S. v. Gisehaltz, S.D.N.Y.1967, 278 F.Supp. 434. Conspiracy ↻ 40.1

Defendant's guilty state of mind is essential to conspiracy, and proof of that state of mind may be circumstantial.

In order to sustain conviction for conspiracy to interfere and hamper government in obtaining competitive bids for automobiles, government was required to prove, not only the act of conspiracy, but also that it was done and entered into with specific criminal intent to do an unlawful act. U.S. v. Belisle, W.D.Wash.1951, 107 F.Supp. 283. Conspiracy ↻ 24.5

518. ---- Means of accomplishing conspiracy, matters to be proved, evidence

The government, in prosecution under former § 88 of this title [now this section], for conspiracy, was not required to prove in detail all allegations relating solely to means employed to carry out conspiracy. Langley v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Ky.) 1925, 8 F.2d 815, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 204, 269 U.S. 588, 70 L.Ed. 427. Conspiracy ↻ 43(12)

Acts of coconspirators, constituting part of means employed to accomplish object of conspiracy in violation of National Prohibition Act, former § 12 of Title 27, were none of them essential elements of conspiracy, and hence proof thereof was not essential to proof of guilt. Langley v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Ky.) 1925, 8 F.2d 815, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 204, 269 U.S. 588, 70 L.Ed. 427. Conspiracy ↻ 43(12)

It is sufficient for the prosecution to show that any one of the means described in the indictment as having been used to carry out the conspiracy was used to execute that purpose. U.S. v. Cassidy, N.D.Cal.1895, 67 F. 698. Conspiracy ↻ 43(12)

To establish existence of conspiracy, government is not required to prove that each of methods allegedly employed to effect its objectives were brought into play. U. S. v. Kane, S.D.N.Y.1965, 243 F.Supp. 746. Conspiracy ↻ 47(1)

519. ---- Consummation of offense, matters to be proved, evidence

To convict for conspiracy, it is not necessary to prove that conspiracy was successful. Collins v. U.S., C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1960, 284 F.2d 517, certiorari denied 81 S.Ct. 753, 365 U.S. 837, 5 L.Ed.2d 746. Conspiracy ↻ 24.10

Proof of accomplishment of object of conspiracy is not necessary to conviction, if overt act in furtherance thereof was committed. Lewis v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Mich.) 1926, 11 F.2d 745. Conspiracy ↻ 27

520. ---- Commission of substantive offense, matters to be proved, evidence

Proof of conspiracy, even if established by circumstantial evidence, must be such as to establish beyond a reasonable doubt the defendant's agreement to a plan to commit a federal substantive offense. U. S. v. Pepe, C.A.3 (Del.) 1975, 512 F.2d 1129. Conspiracy ↻ 47(2)

Under indictment charging conspiracy to violate § 1791 of this title by agreement to introduce or attempt to introduce on grounds of federal penal institution five jars of instant coffee without knowledge or consent of warden, government case was made for jury on conspiracy count by proof of agreement to introduce coffee into penitentiary grounds without knowledge and consent of warden and payment of money to effectuate object of agreement, and it was unnecessary to prove commission of substantive offense alleged as second overt act to effectuate object of conspiracy. Carter v. U. S., C.A.10 (Kan.) 1964, 333 F.2d 354. Conspiracy ↻ 48.1(2.1)

Proof of the substantive crime of unlawful importation of heroin was not essential to prove crime of conspiracy to

In order to prove conspiracy, it is not necessary to prove the commission of any substantive offense, and proof of any substantive offense does not necessarily prove the conspiracy. Samuel v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1948, 169 F.2d 787. Conspiracy ↪ 28(1)

In prosecution for conspiracy to personate federal officers, government need prove only agreement and overt acts charged, not commission of substantive offense. Heskett v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1932, 58 F.2d 897, certiorari denied 53 S.Ct. 89, 287 U.S. 643, 77 L.Ed. 556. Conspiracy ↪ 44.2

Proof of crime, without connection with conspiracy charged, will not support conviction of conspiracy. Wyatt v. U S, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1928, 23 F.2d 791, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 436, 277 U.S. 588, 72 L.Ed. 1002. Conspiracy ↪ 47

Government may prove several offenses committed by conspirators pursuant to their criminal scheme. Harvey v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1928, 23 F.2d 561. Criminal Law ↪ 372(6)

Conspiracy alleged may fail in proof, as well as proved conspiracy may fail in execution; hence failure to prove the existence of a conspiracy alleged to have been formed to defraud the United States cannot affect the right, regardless of conspiracy, to prove that the fraud which was the alleged object of the conspiracy was actually committed. Kelly v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1919, 258 F. 392, 169 C.C.A. 408, certiorari denied 39 S.Ct. 391, 249 U.S. 616, 63 L.Ed. 803. Indictment And Information ↪ 171

Evidence of substantive offense is not sufficient to prove conspiracy or agreement to commit overt act. U. S. v. Holz, E.D.Ill.1950, 103 F.Supp. 191, reversed 191 F.2d 569. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

521. ---- Parties to conspiracy, matters to be proved, evidence

To establish that defendant was participant in conspiracy, government must prove beyond reasonable doubt that defendant knew of conspiracy and that defendant intended to join in furthering conspiracy's aims. *U.S. v. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Once the Government has established the existence of a conspiracy, even slight evidence connecting a particular defendant to the conspiracy may be substantial and therefore sufficient proof of the defendant's involvement in the scheme. U.S. v. Kirk, C.A.8 (Mo.) 1976, 534 F.2d 1262, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 1174, 430 U.S. 906, 51 L.Ed.2d 581, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 2971, 433 U.S. 907, 53 L.Ed.2d 1091, conviction vacated in part on other grounds 723 F.2d 1379, certiorari denied 104 S.Ct. 1717, 466 U.S. 930, 80 L.Ed.2d 189. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

Once the existence or common scheme of a conspiracy is shown, slight evidence is all that is required to connect a particular defendant with the conspiracy. U. S. v. James, C.A.5 (Miss.) 1976, 528 F.2d 999, rehearing denied 532 F.2d 1054, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 382, 429 U.S. 959, 50 L.Ed.2d 326, rehearing denied 97 S.Ct. 770, 429 U.S. 1055, 50 L.Ed.2d 772, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 383, 429 U.S. 959, 50 L.Ed.2d 326; U.S. v. Kates, C.A.Pa.1975, 508 F.2d 308; U.S. v. See, C.A.Cal.1974, 505 F.2d 845, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 1428, 420 U.S. 992, 43 L.Ed.2d 673; U.S. v. Prieto, C.A.Fla.1974, 505 F.2d 8; U.S. v. Smith, C.A.La.1974, 504 F.2d 560; U.S. v. Nunez, C.A.Ariz.1973, 483 F.2d 453, certiorari denied 94 S.Ct. 594, 414 U.S. 1076, 38 L.Ed.2d 483. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

Where agreement or common scheme of conspiracy exists, slight evidence is all that is necessary to connect individual defendants to the conspiracy. U. S. v. Reynolds, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1975, 511 F.2d 603. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

Neither associations with conspirators nor knowledge that something illegal is going on by themselves constitute proofs of participation in a conspiracy. U. S. v. Quintana, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1975, 508 F.2d 867. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

In order to obtain conviction in prosecution for conspiracy, Government need not show that defendant participated in every transaction or even that he knew identities of his alleged conspirators or precise role which they played. U. S. v. Kates, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1975, 508 F.2d 308. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

While mere association with conspirators or knowledge of illegal activity does not of itself constitute proof of participation in the conspiracy it does constitute some evidence of such participation. U. S. v. Johnson, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1974, 504 F.2d 622. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(2)

Issue of whether defendant, who was charged with substantive and conspiracy counts, had ever met with another conspirator at a particular restaurant was material, since it tended to establish that defendant, who was later charged with making false declarations for having denied that he had ever met with the conspirator at the restaurant, was part of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Gugliaro, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1974, 501 F.2d 68. Perjury ⚡ 11(2)

When the existence of a conspiracy is shown, slight evidence may be sufficient to connect the accused with the conspiracy. U.S. v. Wilson, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1974, 500 F.2d 715, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 1403, 420 U.S. 977, 43 L.Ed.2d 658, post-conviction relief denied 916 F.2d 984, rehearing en banc granted 925 F.2d 827, on rehearing 937 F.2d 228, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 978, 502 U.S. 1076, 117 L.Ed.2d 141. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

Government must prove an individual defendant's participation in an unlawful conspiracy by his own words and actions and not those of other participants. U. S. v. Cardi, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1973, 478 F.2d 1362, certiorari denied 94 S.Ct. 147, 414 U.S. 852, 38 L.Ed.2d 101, certiorari denied 94 S.Ct. 355, 414 U.S. 1001, 38 L.Ed.2d 237. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

Once a conspiracy has been established, only slight evidence is necessary to support jury verdict that individual defendant was a member. U. S. v. Gimelstob, C.A.3 (N.J.) 1973, 475 F.2d 157, certiorari denied 94 S.Ct. 49, 414 U.S. 828, 38 L.Ed.2d 62, rehearing denied 94 S.Ct. 606, 414 U.S. 1086, 38 L.Ed.2d 491. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

Before jury may be permitted to consider other conspirators' hearsay statements in furtherance of conspiracy as means of determining particular defendant's guilt, trial judge must first conclude from all evidence that defendant

in question has been shown to be member of that conspiracy by fair preponderance of evidence independent of hearsay utterances. U. S. v. Calarco, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1970, 424 F.2d 657, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 46, 400 U.S. 824, 27 L.Ed.2d 53, rehearing denied 91 S.Ct. 1522, 402 U.S. 934, 28 L.Ed.2d 870. Criminal Law ⚡ 427(2)

Fact that jury announced, in prosecution for conspiracy to travel interstate to further unlawful activity, that it had found defendant guilty of conspiracy, but that it was divided as to whether codefendant was guilty, did not indicate inconsistency, in view of evidence sufficient to support finding that defendant had been engaged in interstate conspiracy with one other than codefendant. U. S. v. Marquez, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1970, 424 F.2d 236, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 56, 400 U.S. 828, 27 L.Ed.2d 58. Conspiracy ⚡ 48.3

It is sufficient to connect defendant with conspiracy if his acts and conduct were of such character that minds of reasonable men could conclude therefrom that unlawful agreement or understanding existed and that defendant, with knowledge of existence of unlawful enterprise, acted to further it. U. S. v. Knight, C.A.9 (Ariz.) 1969, 416 F.2d 1181. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(2)

Once existence of conspiracy is clearly established, only evidence which viewed alone is of relatively slight import is needed to connect each conspirator with it. U. S. v. Pardo-Bolland, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1965, 348 F.2d 316, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 388, 382 U.S. 944, 15 L.Ed.2d 353, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 407, 382 U.S. 946, 15 L.Ed.2d 354. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

Conviction for conspiracy to evade federal gambling tax laws cannot be sustained without proof that defendants were parties to agreement to defeat or evade taxes, or that defendants had knowledge that taxes were due and were not being paid, plus conduct in furtherance of plan to evade them. U.S. v. Andrews, C.A.6 (Ky.) 1965, 347 F.2d 207, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 431, 382 U.S. 956, 15 L.Ed.2d 360, rehearing denied 86 S.Ct. 613, 382 U.S. 1021, 15 L.Ed.2d 537, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 436, 382 U.S. 956, 15 L.Ed.2d 360, rehearing denied 86 S.Ct. 615, 382 U.S. 1021, 15 L.Ed.2d 537, rehearing denied 86 S.Ct. 614, 382 U.S. 1021, 15 L.Ed.2d 537, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 437, 382 U.S. 956, 15 L.Ed.2d 360. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(7)

Defendant's participation in conspiracy must be proved by evidence relating to his participation; existence of conspiracy may be proved by act of any of conspirators. Esco Corp. v. U. S., C.A.9 (Or.) 1965, 340 F.2d 1000. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

Testimony in conspiracy prosecution of two deliveries of narcotics to a defendant, on the instructions of one partner on one occasion and another partner on another occasion would not justify a finding that defendant had thereby made himself a part of whatever narcotics enterprises the partners and their future partners might engage in for the rest of their lives, provided only that these were uninterrupted; the government must present evidence justifying the jury in finding beyond a reasonable doubt that the particular agreement into which defendant entered continued into the period not barred by limitation. U. S. v. Borelli, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1964, 336 F.2d 376, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 647, 379 U.S. 960, 13 L.Ed.2d 555. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(12)

Proper manner of proving defendant's role in gambling operation on which was based charge of conspiring to engage in business of accepting wagers without payment of special federal occupational tax was for government agents to follow defendant and determine what, if anything, he did with numbers slips collected from another person, and defect resulting from agents' failure to do so could not be remedied by agents' assuming role of experts and stating their opinions as to that which they had to prove. *U. Evidence of conspiracy need not be first received as condition precedent to admissibility of evidence showing participation of defendant. Rand v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Iowa) 1935, 77 F.2d 52. Criminal Law ⚡ 427(3)

One charged with conspiring with several may be convicted on proof of his conspiracy with some of them. Hardy v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Tex.) 1919, 256 F. 284, 167 C.C.A. 456, certiorari denied 40 S.Ct. 9, 250 U.S. 659, 63 L.Ed. 1194. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(12)

Any of the defendants may be found to have participated in conspiracy even if they joined or terminated their relationship with core conspirators at different times. U.S. v. Sims, N.D.Ill.1992, 808 F.Supp. 620. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(3)

In prosecution for violating narcotics laws and for participation in conspiracy to violate such laws, the government failed to sustain its burden of proof as to identification of one defendant and hence such defendant would be acquitted. U. S. v. Beigel, S.D.N.Y.1966, 254 F.Supp. 923, affirmed 370 F.2d 751, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 2049, 387 U.S. 930, 18 L.Ed.2d 989, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 2053, 387 U.S. 930, 18 L.Ed.2d 989, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 2062, 387 U.S. 936, 18 L.Ed.2d 998. Where accused was not present or physically connected with act, party carrying burden must show conspiracy between accused and one actually committing act. General Am. Life Ins. Co. v. Cole, E.D.Mo.1961, 195 F.Supp. 867. Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2

Evidence adduced at voir dire hearing, on question of competency of proposed testimony concerning telephone conversation, sufficiently established that woman with whom witness spoke was defendant. U S v. Lo Bue, S.D.N.Y.1960, 180 F.Supp. 955. Criminal Law ⚡ 386

Once a conspiracy is clearly established, slight evidence may be sufficient to connect a defendant with it. U. S. v. Gilboy, M.D.Pa.1958, 160 F.Supp. 442. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

While one may become a party to or member of conspiracy without full knowledge of all details thereof or means to be used by conspirators, a person having no knowledge of conspiracy, but acting in a way which furthers an object thereof, does not become a conspirator, as some wilful participation by him in conspiracy with intent to further common purpose or design must be shown to establish his guilt of conspiracy. U. S. v. Schneiderman, S.D.Cal.1952, 106 F.Supp. 906. Conspiracy ⚡ 40.1

To prove conspiracy, evidence need not show that parties thereto entered into express or formal agreement or directly stated between themselves, by words or in writing, their object or purpose, details thereof or means of achieving it, but evidence that they positively or tacitly came to mutual understanding to accomplish common and unlawful design in any way or manner or through any contrivance is sufficient. *U. furtherance of the agreement's illegal objective; such overt act must be susceptible of demonstrating that the conspirators had more than a subjective mental intent to commit a crime. U. S. v. Wieschenberg, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1979, 604 F.2d 326. Conspiracy ↪ 27

In conspiracy prosecution, the Government is not limited in its proof at trial to those overt acts alleged in the indictment, and is under no obligation to prove every overt act alleged. U. S. v. Adamo, C.A.3 (N.J.) 1976, 534 F.2d 31, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 116, 429 U.S. 841, 50 L.Ed.2d 110. Conspiracy ↪ 43(12)

To make out crime of conspiracy, once unlawful agreement is shown, proof of single overt act in furtherance of agreement by single conspirator establishes guilt of each member of conspiracy. U. S. v. Fontenot, C.A.5 (Ga.) 1973, 483 F.2d 315. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

Conspiracy to smuggle merchandise into the United States is established if evidence establishes the commission of any of the over acts specified in the indictment. U. S. v. Montgomery, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1971, 440 F.2d 694, certiorari denied 92 S.Ct. 221, 404 U.S. 884, 30 L.Ed.2d 166. Conspiracy ↪ 47(3.1)

It is not necessary to conviction of party to conspiracy that he perform any overt act or that conspiracy succeed, and conviction may rest on proof of doing of any overt act by any of his coconspirators for purpose of effecting object of conspiracy, and it is not necessary to conviction that overt act in itself be one prohibited by law. Cave v. U. S., C.A.8 (Iowa) 1968, 390 F.2d 58, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 2059, 392 U.S. 906, 20 L.Ed.2d 1365. Conspiracy ↪ 40

A conspiracy conviction can rest upon proof of an overt act not charged in the indictment. Brulay v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1967, 383 F.2d 345, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 469, 389 U.S. 986, 19 L.Ed.2d 478. Conspiracy ↪ 43(12)

Evidence to establish existence of a general conspiracy requires proof that an act was committed in furtherance of the conspiracy. Downing v. U. S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1965, 348 F.2d 594, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 235, 382 U.S. 901, 15 L.Ed.2d 155. Conspiracy ↪ 27

Failure to specify in indictment any particular piece of conduct as overt act does not prevent proof thereof in conspiracy case. Napolitano v. U. S., C.A.1 (Mass.) 1965, 340 F.2d 313. Conspiracy ↪ 43(12)

At common law, an overt act in furtherance of conspiracy need not be alleged or proven. U. S. v. Garfoli, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1963, 324 F.2d 909. Conspiracy ↪ 43(12)

Substantial similarity between facts alleged in overt act and those proved is all that is required. Strauss v. U. S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1963, 311 F.2d 926, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 1299, 373 U.S. 910, 10 L.Ed.2d 412. Conspiracy ↪ 43(12)

In order to sustain a conviction for conspiracy, it is not necessary to prove each of the overt acts alleged in the indictment, and failure to prove one overt act is therefore not fatal. U. S. v. Vittoria, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1960, 284 F.2d 451. Conspiracy ↪ 43(12)

Previous acts of coconspirators were sufficient to satisfy overt act requirements of crime of conspiracy. U.S. v. Bletterman, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1960, 279 F.2d 320. Conspiracy ↪ 27

Proof of overt acts in themselves is not sufficient to prove a conspiracy for it must be established that a conspiracy or agreement, which is charged to have existed and which is the gist of the offense, had been formed before and was existing at the time of the commission of the overt act or acts. Harms v. U.S., C.A.4 (Va.) 1959, 272 F.2d 478, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 590, 361 U.S. 961, 4 L.Ed.2d 543. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Overt acts done in apparent pursuance of a common plan serve as evidence to demonstrate existence of conspiracy. U. S. v. Giuliano, C.A.3 (N.J.) 1959, 263 F.2d 582. See, also, U.S. v. Migliorino, C.A.Pa.1956, 238 F.2d 7. Conspiracy ↪ 46

Proof of commission of an overt act might also be proof of an agreement among conspirators depending on nature of act and character of proof. Schnautz v. U.S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1959, 263 F.2d 525, certiorari denied 79 S.Ct. 1294, 360 U.S. 910, 3 L.Ed.2d 1260. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

To warrant prosecution for allegedly continuing conspiracy, there must be some overt act within the period of limitation and such act must be proved. United States v. Reina, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1957, 242 F.2d 302, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 1294, 354 U.S. 913, 1 L.Ed.2d 1427, rehearing denied 78 S.Ct. 9, 355 U.S. 852, 2 L.Ed.2d 61. Criminal Law ↪ 150

Overt acts of the parties may be considered with other evidence and attending circumstances in determining whether a conspiracy exists, and where the overt acts are of a character which are usually, if not necessarily, done pursuant to a previous scheme and plan, proof of acts have a tendency to show such pre-existing conspiracy, so that when proven they may be considered as evidence of the conspiracy charged. U.S. v. Morris, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1955, 225 F.2d 91, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 179, 350 U.S. 901, 100 L.Ed. 792, rehearing denied 76 S.Ct. 300, 350 U.S. 943, 100 L.Ed. 823. Conspiracy ↪ 46

Where conspiracy count charged six overt acts, proof of one overt act in carrying out conspiracy would support conviction. Robinson v. U.S., C.A.D.C.1954, 210 F.2d 29, 93 U.S.App.D.C. 347. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

The overt act necessary to be proved in conspiracy cases is an act to effect the object of the conspiracy. Singer v. U.S., C.A.6 (Mich.) 1953, 208 F.2d 477. Conspiracy ↪ 27

The telephoning of prospective buyer of sheet steel, which defendant had allegedly conspired to possess after its theft from interstate commerce, constituted such an overt act, proof of which is essential to conviction for conspiracy. Singer v. U.S., C.A.6 (Mich.) 1953, 208 F.2d 477. Conspiracy ↪ 27

Overt acts of parties may be considered with other evidence and attending circumstances in determining whether a conspiracy exists, and where overt acts are of a character which are usually, if not necessarily, done pursuant to a previous scheme and plan, proof of acts has tendency to show such pre-existing conspiracy, so that when proven they may be considered as evidence of conspiracy charged. U. S. v. Crowe, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1951, 188 F.2d 209. Conspiracy ↪ 46

Proof of overt acts may prove a conspiracy. U.S. v. Nelson, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1950, 185 F.2d 758. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

Overt acts not alleged in a conspiracy indictment may be proved at the trial. Culp v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Ark.) 1942, 131 F.2d 93. See, also, U.S. v. Westbrook, D.C.Ark.1953, 114 F.Supp. 192. Conspiracy ↪ 43(12)

The finding of letters written by alleged conspirator and finding of opium in alleged coconspirators' possession constituted evidence that "overt acts", which had been charged in the indictment, had been committed. Pastrano v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (Md.) 1942, 127 F.2d 43. Conspiracy ↪ 47(12)

The offense of "conspiracy" becomes complete when the agreement is made, and the only effect of a statutory requirement that an overt act be shown is to permit an abandonment of the conspiracy in the meantime and the consequent avoidance of the penalty which the statute imposes. U.S. v. Manton, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1939, 107 F.2d 834, certiorari denied 60 S.Ct. 590, 309 U.S. 664, 84 L.Ed. 1012. Conspiracy ↪ 27

Conspiracy may be proved by overt acts. Stack v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1928, 27 F.2d 16. Conspiracy ↻ 47(1)

Under indictment for conspiracy to rob mail carrier, proof of overt act is necessary. Bellande v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (La.) 1928, 25 F.2d 1, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 602, 277 U.S. 607, 72 L.Ed. 1012. Conspiracy ↻ 43(12)

In proof of conspiracy, government is not limited to overt acts pleaded. Marcus v. U S, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1927, 20 F.2d 454, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 122, 275 U.S. 565, 72 L.Ed. 429. It is unnecessary to prove more than one of the overt acts alleged, or that more than one conspirator took part in it. Burkhardt v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1926, 13 F.2d 841. Conspiracy ↻ 43(12)

Proof of overt act, in addition to fact of conspiracy, is essential to valid conviction. Weinstein v. U.S., C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1926, 11 F.2d 505, certiorari denied 47 S.Ct. 94, 273 U.S. 699, 71 L.Ed. 847. Conspiracy ↻ 43(12)

The government need not prove all overt acts alleged in the indictment, and it is sufficient if it establishes any one of the acts alleged. Williams v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1925, 3 F.2d 933. See, also, Christensen v. U.S., C.C.A.Or.1926, 16 F.2d 29; Tacon v. U.S., C.C.A.La.1921, 270 F. 88; De Lacey v. U.S., Cal.1918, 249 F. 625, 161 C.C.A. 535; U.S. v. Richards, D.C.Neb.1906, 149 F. 443; People v. Arnstein, 1926, 218 N.Y.S. 633, 128 Misc. 176.

Proof of overt act alone will not warrant conviction for conspiracy, which requires proof of both overt act and unlawful agreement. Bell v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Utah) 1924, 2 F.2d 543.

To warrant conviction for conspiracy, under former § 88 of this title [now this section], the overt act charged in the indictment, or one of the overt acts charged must have been proved. Fredericks v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1923, 292 F. 856. Conspiracy ↻ 43(12)

Under an indictment charging conspiracy to commit numerous violations of the National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, it was incumbent on the government to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendants, or two or more of them, entered into a conspiracy for the unlawful purpose charged prior to the commission of the overt acts alleged in the indictment, and that one or more of the overt acts was committed by one or more of the defendants after the conspiracy had been formed, and while it was still in existence, and in furtherance of the purposes of that conspiracy. Remus v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1923, 291 F. 501, certiorari denied 44 S.Ct. 180, 263 U.S. 717, 68 L.Ed. 522. Conspiracy ↻ 44.2; Intoxicating Liquors ↻ 223(1)

The overt acts charged must be proved as laid. U.S. v. Ault, W.D.Wash.1920, 263 F. 800.

In prosecution for conspiracy to evade and to aid others in evading Selective Service Act, § 6 (temporary), the prosecution could prove what might have been laid as overt act, but was not so charged, not being confined to overt acts charged, as there can be no legal complaint of testimony tending to show object of conspiracy, which evidence one may call overt act. Fraina v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1918, 255 F. 28, 166 C.C.A. 356. Conspiracy ↻ 43(12)

Certain acts charged to have been committed by conspirators in furtherance of a conspiracy were not mere part and parcel of the formation of the conspiracy but constituted overt acts, proof of any one of which was sufficient to sustain a conviction. Donaldson v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1913, 208 F. 4, 125 C.C.A. 316. Conspiracy ↻ 27

The government is not required to prove that all the overt acts alleged were committed, nor that all defendants named in the indictment were engaged in the conspiracy, and, in such a prosecution, the fact that there was evidence tending to show that the conspiracy in which some of the defendants not on trial were engaged was

U.S.*, C.C.A.Ohio 1923, 291 F. 501, certiorari denied 44 S.Ct. 180, 263 U.S. 717, 68 L.Ed. 522; U.S. v. Goldberg, C.C.Wis.1876, Fed.Cas. No. 15,223.

Under an indictment for conspiracy, based on former § 88 of this title [now this section], an allegation that the conspiracy was formed within the district need not have been proved, where it was alleged and proved that overt acts were committed within the district. Baker v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Ga.) 1922, 285 F. 15, certiorari denied 43 S.Ct. 248, 260 U.S. 749, 67 L.Ed. 494. Conspiracy ↻ 43(12)

Proof of the formation by the defendant and others, more than three years before the indictment, of such a conspiracy as that charged in the indictment and of an overt act thereunder prior to the three years is insufficient to sustain the charge of a conspiracy within the three years. Ware v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1907, 154 F. 577, 84 C.C.A. 503, 12 Am. Ann. Cas. 233, certiorari denied 28 S.Ct. 255, 207 U.S. 588, 52 L.Ed. 353. Criminal Law 150

An indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] need not have averred with exact accuracy the date of the formation or beginning of the conspiracy, nor, if the date was alleged, need it have been proved as laid, but it was sufficient if the conspiracy was proved to have existed prior to the commission of the overt act charged, and that it continued to exist at that time. Bradford v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (La.) 1907, 152 F. 617, 81 C.C.A. 607. Conspiracy 43(12)

An indictment charging that the defendants conspired together "before and on July 30, 1901" could not be sustained by evidence showing, as an act constituting with others the conspiracy something done subsequent to that date. Browne v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1905, 145 F. 1, 76 C.C.A. 31, certiorari denied 26 S.Ct. 755, 200 U.S. 618, 50 L.Ed. 623.

Where indictment was returned on Oct. 4, 1983, government had burden of proving that conspiracy was still in existence on Oct. 4, 1978 and that at least one overt act in furtherance of conspiracy was performed after that date. U.S. v. Walls, N.D.Ga.1984, 577 F.Supp. 772. Criminal Law 330

524. ---- Bankruptcy offenses, matters to be proved, evidence

Indictment alleging conspiracy to conceal bankrupt's merchandise and cash received from sale thereof did not limit proof of concealment of cash to that received from concealed merchandise. Gerson v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Okla.) 1928, 25 F.2d 49. Conspiracy 43(12)

Government in prosecution for conspiracy to conceal bankrupt's assets had burden to show facts and circumstances excluding every other hypothesis than that of guilt. Gerson v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Okla.) 1928, 25 F.2d 49. Conspiracy 47(3.1)

525. ---- Collusion, matters to be proved, evidence

Collusion to perform illegal acts need not be established by direct evidence thereof, but may be inferred from acts of the parties. Ilseng v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1941, 120 F.2d 823, certiorari denied 62 S.Ct. 125, 314 U.S. 665, 86 L.Ed. 532, certiorari denied 62 S.Ct. 126, 314 U.S. 665, 86 L.Ed. 532. Conspiracy 47(2)

Where indictment for conspiracy to interfere and hamper government in obtaining competitive bids for automobiles charged the making and submitting of collusive bids, such charge of collusion could not be established by mere showing of making of identical bids, since collusion would occur only if there was dishonest pretense of bid. U.S. v. Belisle, W.D.Wash.1951, 107 F.Supp. 283. Conspiracy 47(6)

526. ---- Customs offenses, matters to be proved, evidence

Where, in a trial of a member of a firm for conspiracy to defraud the customs revenue, there was proof that his firm was concerned in such conspiracy, it was not mere partnership in the firm, nor relation to some acts, that the law required to be done in the course of passing goods through the custom house, that was demanded to show guilty connection with the conspiracy, but it must inevitably appear that such connection was used, or such relation assumed for the purposes of subserving the conspiracy. U.S. v. Cohn, C.C.S.D.N.Y.1904, 128 F. 615, affirmed 145 F. 1, 76 C.C.A. 31, certiorari denied 26 S.Ct. 755, 200 U.S. 618, 50 L.Ed. 623. Conspiracy 40

527. ---- Defrauding United States, matters to be proved, evidence

Ratzlaf intent element, requiring knowledge that conduct was unlawful, need not be proven to establish that defendant conspired to defraud United States. U.S. v. Khalife, C.A.6 (Mich.) 1997, 106 F.3d 1300, rehearing and suggestion for rehearing en banc denied, certiorari denied 118 S.Ct. 685, 522 U.S. 1045, 139 L.Ed.2d 632. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(1)

Statutes under which contractors were convicted of conspiring to defraud and defrauding federal agencies did not require minimum loss to victim, and Government's utter failure to prove any loss thus did not mean that defendants would go scot-free, but merely that Government would not be awarded bonus punishment points. U.S. v. Schneider, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1991, 930 F.2d 555. Conspiracy ⚡ 28(3); Fraud ⚡ 68.10(1)

In prosecution for conspiracy to defraud government, it was not necessary for government to prove that government employees received portion of bribe; it was enough that they knowingly caused bribe to be made to third person. U.S. v. Ackal, C.A.5 (La.) 1983, 706 F.2d 523, rehearing denied 711 F.2d 1054. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(2.1)

Since agreement itself, along with other evidence of criminal or fraudulent purposes, demonstrates that parties to it manifest a disposition to criminal activity and pose inherent danger to community by their concerted mutually enforcing actions, element of compensation is not necessary to guard against danger that innocent will become ensnared in net of conspiracy prosecution, and thus, although anticipated benefit may be evidence of alleged coconspirator's mens rea, a benefit or "stake in the venture" is not element of conspiracy to defraud the United States that must be proved with respect to each conspirator. U. S. v. Shoup, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1979, 608 F.2d 950. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(1)

When government proceeds under conspiracy-to-defraud clause of this section, it must plead and prove agreement with respect to essential nature of alleged fraud; thus, just as particular offense must be specified under "offense" branch, fraudulent scheme must be alleged and proved under conspiracy-to-defraud clause. U. S. v. Rosenblatt, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1977, 554 F.2d 36. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(12)

In order to find defendant guilty of crime of conspiracy to defraud United States by concealing, possessing, and passing counterfeit Federal Reserve notes, government must prove defendant guilty of substantive crime of possessing and passing counterfeit money with intent to defraud, pass, utter, publish, sell or possess or conceal, falsely made, counterfeited, forged or altered obligations of the United States. U. S. v. Crocker, C.A.10 (Okla.) 1975, 510 F.2d 1129. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(2.1)

Conviction for conspiracy under this section cannot be sustained unless there is proof of agreement to commit offense against United States. Jones v. U. S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1966, 365 F.2d 87. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

Once the conspiracy to defraud the government was established it was not necessary to show that fraud was actually perpetrated, since the crime consists of entering into conspiracy and is complete as soon as one or more of conspirators does an overt act to effect the object of the conspiracy. Wagner v. U.S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1959, 263 F.2d 877. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(1)

In prosecution for conspiring to defraud the United States by inflating cost basis of tuition rate and increasing cost charged to Veterans Administration for supplies for veterans' training under Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, [see § 1501 et seq. of Title 38], showing of extent to which Veterans Administration had been fooled was not necessary to establish the conspiracy. U. S. v. Weinberg, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1955, 226 F.2d 161, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 305, 350 U.S. 933, 100 L.Ed. 815. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(2.1) conspiring to defraud the government, to show that the government was actually defrauded. Stager v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1916, 233 F. 510, 147 C.C.A. 396.

In a prosecution for conspiracy to defraud the United States by the execution of straw bail, it was not necessary that the government should prove that the accused did not appear on the day required, since the government was defrauded when the accused were released on the strength of a recognizance, apparently good, but worthless in fact. Radford v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1904, 129 F. 49, 63 C.C.A. 491. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(2.1)

Conspiracy to defraud United States means to interfere with or obstruct one of its lawful governmental functions by deceit, craft or trickery, or at least by means that are dishonest; deceit or trickery is essential to satisfy the defrauding requirement of the statute and when government proceeds under conspiracy-to-defraud clause it must plead and prove an agreement with respect to the essential nature of the alleged fraud. U.S. v. Cogswell, N.D.Cal.1985, 637 F.Supp. 295. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(1); Conspiracy ⚡ 43(12)

Although Government need not show actual pecuniary loss to successfully maintain prosecution for fraud, it must show that some legitimate government activity has been hampered. U. S. v. Woll, E.D.Pa.1957, 157 F.Supp. 704. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(1)

528. ---- Election offenses, matters to be proved, evidence

To sustain a conviction for a conspiracy to procure persons to go into another county to vote illegally, it need not be shown that illegal votes were actually cast or offered, or that any person went into the other county to vote illegally. U.S. v. Wrape, C.C.Ind.1879, 28 F.Cas. 780, No. 16767. Conspiracy ⚡ 27

529. ---- Immigration offenses, matters to be proved, evidence

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate Alien Registration Act of 1940, § 457(c) of Title 8, by filing application containing false answers, it was necessary for a conviction of any defendant to prove that he gave an answer in his application for registration which he knew to be untruthful. U.S. v. Ausmeier, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1945, 152 F.2d 349. Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2

530. ---- Liquor offenses, matters to be proved, evidence

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate the internal revenue laws relating to liquor, it was not necessary to a conviction that either the whiskey, manufactured by conspirators or a chemist's analysis thereof be introduced in evidence. Butler v. U. S., C.A.4 (Va.) 1957, 243 F.2d 567. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(10)

In prosecution for concealing alcohol with intent to defraud the government of tax thereon, while under former § 550 of this title accused need not have been shown to have been present at places where crimes were committed or to know all the details thereof, government had burden to prove that accused did with intent to defraud, aid, abet, counsel, command, induce or procure the removal, deposit or concealment of the particular alcohol and it was insufficient merely to prove that he was a member of conspiracy to manufacture illicit alcohol and that in course of conspiracy the particular crimes were committed by other conspirators. *U.S. v. In prosecution for conspiracy to unlawfully sell and transport intoxicating liquor, evidence need not show a conspiracy to both sell and transport. Anstess v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ind.) 1927, 22 F.2d 594. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(12); Indictment And Information ⚡ 168

In prosecution under former section for conspiracy to violate the National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, and § 497 of Title 19, government must prove that defendants were parties to crime committed in the district. Ford v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1926, 10 F.2d 339, certiorari granted 46 S.Ct. 475, 271 U.S. 652, 70 L.Ed. 1133, affirmed 47 S.Ct. 531, 273 U.S. 593, 71 L.Ed. 793. Conspiracy ☞ 44.2; Criminal Law ☞ 325

To warrant conviction against two of several defendants for conspiring unlawfully to transport and sell whisky for beverage purposes, in violation of National Prohibition Act, former § 12 of Title 27, government was not required to establish guilt of any other individual defendant. Langley v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Ky.) 1925, 8 F.2d 815, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 204, 269 U.S. 588, 70 L.Ed. 427. Conspiracy ☞ 43(12)

Where indictment for conspiracy to violate National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, charged but one combination or conspiracy, which had many different objects, no accused could be convicted thereunder, unless shown to be member of, or party to, such conspiracy. Terry v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1925, 7 F.2d 28.

In a prosecution for a conspiracy to violate the National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, where the liquor in question was shown by allegation and proof to have been "whisky," its alcoholic content need not have been proved, in view of the provision of former § 4 of Title 27, that "intoxicating liquor" shall be construed to include whisky. Robinson v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1923, 290 F. 755, certiorari denied 44 S.Ct. 6, 263 U.S. 700, 68 L.Ed. 513. See, also, Weinstein v. U.S., C.C.A.Mass.1926, 11 F.2d 505.

On an indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section], the government was not bound to strict proof of the ownership of the rectifying distillery to which it was alleged spirits were unlawfully removed. *U. To prove a conspiracy to remove whisky without paying the tax, it is only necessary to show that defendants were acting in concert, or with a mutual understanding, to effect the removal without inspection and branding according to law. U.S. v. Noblom, C.C.La.1878, 27 F.Cas. 181, No. 15896.

531. ---- Lottery offenses, matters to be proved, evidence

To warrant conviction of employees of operators of numbers game for conspiracy to evade and defeat payment of federal taxes imposed on lottery operations, a showing of knowledge on part of employees that employers were liable for federal taxes by reason of the gambling operation was an essential ingredient of proof, for without knowledge the intent could not exist. Ingram v. U.S., U.S.Ga.1959, 79 S.Ct. 1314, 360 U.S. 672, 3 L.Ed.2d 1503, rehearing denied 80 S.Ct. 42, 361 U.S. 856, 4 L.Ed.2d 96. Conspiracy ☞ 33(7)

532. ---- Mail fraud, matters to be proved, evidence

To complete proof in prosecution for use of mails to defraud, and for conspiracy, it was not necessary to prove intent of defendants to use mails but it was enough to show that mails were actually used, where conspiracy was shown. U. S. v. Tenenbaum, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1964, 327 F.2d 210, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 1165, 377 U.S. 905, 12 L.Ed.2d 177. Postal Service ☞ 35(6)

To sustain conviction for conspiracy to commit mail fraud, it is sufficient to show that mails were used and that scheme was one which reasonably contemplated use of mails. *Fisher v. U. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

In prosecution for conspiracy to use mails in furtherance of scheme to defraud, with regard to intent to use mails, it is enough to show that mails were used and that scheme was one which reasonably contemplated the use of the mails. Blue v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1943, 138 F.2d 351, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 1046, 322 U.S. 736, 88 L.Ed. 1570, rehearing denied 64 S.Ct. 1259, 322 U.S. 771, 88 L.Ed. 1596, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 1046, 322 U.S. 737, 88 L.Ed. 1570. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(5)

The intent to use the mails to effect a scheme to defraud is a necessary element to establish offense of conspiracy to use the mails to defraud, but such intent is not a necessary element of the substantive offense of using mails to defraud. Guardalibini v. U. S., C.C.A.5 (Ala.) 1942, 128 F.2d 984. Conspiracy ⚡ 32; Postal Service ⚡ 35(6)

In prosecution of corporation officers for posting letters in pursuance of scheme to defraud and for conspiracy to use mails to defraud, the prosecution need not prove that the conspiracy included all the misrepresentations laid in the indictment, since there was a "scheme to defraud" and a conspiracy to use the mails in a "scheme to defraud," if defendants united to use the mails for any of the fraudulent misrepresentations charged. U.S. v. Dilliard, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1938, 101 F.2d 829, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 484, 306 U.S. 635, 83 L.Ed. 1036. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(12)

In prosecution for conspiracy to use the mails to defraud, intent to use the mails to effect scheme must be shown in addition to proving a scheme to defraud. Mazurosky v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Or.) 1939, 100 F.2d 958. Conspiracy ⚡ 32

The intended use of the mails is a substantive element of the offense, and without proof of such element a conviction cannot be sustained. Burns v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Okla.) 1922, 279 F. 982. See, also, Morris v. U.S., C.C.A.Ark.1925, 7 F.2d 785, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 205, 270 U.S. 640, 70 L.Ed. 775. Conspiracy ⚡ 32

For conviction of conspiracy to use the mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud, it is not necessary that the person defrauded should have been, in the formation of the original conspiracy, selected as its victim, nor is it necessary that defendant was present at the time of the defrauding. Shea v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1918, 251 F. 433, 163 C.C.A. 451, certiorari denied 39 S.Ct. 132, 248 U.S. 581, 63 L.Ed. 431. Conspiracy ⚡ 32; Postal Service ⚡ 35(2)

To establish conspiracy under former § 88 of this title [now this section] to commit violation of former § 338 of this title, punishing the use of mails to promote frauds, the government had to prove an intent to defraud and a defrauding by use of the mails. Farmer v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1915, 223 F. 903, 139 C.C.A. 341. Conspiracy ⚡ 32

While in an indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section] for a conspiracy to use the mails to defraud, a fraudulent purpose must have been averred and proved, and where a purpose to defraud two jointly was charged, it must have been proved as laid, where the sending of individual letters to parties named was charged in different counts, an averment in general terms of an intent to defraud these parties did not necessarily import that the conspiracy contemplated a joint defrauding of the whole number named; the parties not being jointly interested in the property which it was the aim to secure. Marrin v. U S, C.C.A.3 (Pa.) 1909, 167 F. 951, 93 C.C.A. 351, certiorari denied 32 S.Ct. 523, 223 U.S. 719, 56 L.Ed. 629.

Where one was tried for conspiring to use the mails to carry out a scheme to defraud, it was sufficient for the government to show that written or printed matter about the scheme charged was mailed to one of the three persons named in the indictment as the persons defendant planned to defraud, and that copies of the same printed matter were sent through the mails to a mailing list throughout the United States. US v. Marrin, E.D.Pa.1908, 159 F. 767, affirmed 167 F. 951, 93 C.C.A. 351, certiorari denied 32 S.Ct. 523, 223 U.S. 719, 56 L.Ed. 629.

533. ---- Narcotics offenses, matters to be proved, evidence

Testimony in conspiracy prosecution of two deliveries of narcotics to a defendant, on the instructions of one partner on one occasion and another partner on another occasion would not justify a finding that defendant had thereby made himself a part of whatever narcotics enterprises the partners and their future partners might engage in for the rest of their lives, provided only that these were uninterrupted; the government must present evidence justifying the jury in finding beyond a reasonable doubt that the particular agreement into which defendant entered continued into the period not barred by limitation. U. S. v. Borelli, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1964, 336 F.2d 376, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 647, 379 U.S. 960, 13 L.Ed.2d 555. Conspiracy ↻ 47(12)

Government was required to show, in prosecution for conspiracy and narcotic offenses, more than that defendant was acquainted with seller of narcotics or that the two men were friends, and proof that defendant knew seller of narcotics and rode 70 blocks in same vehicle with him was not enough to prove that defendant had been seller's "partner" in the illegal sale of narcotics. U. S. v. Euphemia, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1958, 261 F.2d 441. Conspiracy ↻ 47(12); Controlled Substances ↻ 45; Internal Revenue ↻ 5291.1

In conspiracy to violate narcotic laws, it is not necessary to prove that a conspirator engaged directly in the buying and selling of narcotics or received a profit therefrom. *Poliafico v. U. In prosecution for conspiracy to violate narcotic laws, where evidence showed that one of the defendants delivered to other defendants a substance that all of them assumed to be heroin and they adulterated it and made samples thereof for customers, it was not necessary for government to prove that substance delivered by defendant was actually heroin in order to convict him of the conspiracy to violate narcotic laws. Poliafico v. U. S., C.A.6 (Ohio) 1956, 237 F.2d 97, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 590, 352 U.S. 1025, 1 L.Ed.2d 597, rehearing denied 77 S.Ct. 718, 353 U.S. 931, 1 L.Ed.2d 725. Conspiracy ↻ 44.2

In prosecution for a conspiracy to violate narcotic laws, it was not necessary to show financial interest of defendants in conspiracy, since to comply with rule that it must be shown that defendant had a stake in the enterprise, the interest shown could be that of seeking by action to make the venture succeed. Poliafico v. U. S., C.A.6 (Ohio) 1956, 237 F.2d 97, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 590, 352 U.S. 1025, 1 L.Ed.2d 597, rehearing denied 77 S.Ct. 718, 353 U.S. 931, 1 L.Ed.2d 725. Conspiracy ↻ 40

In prosecution under conspiracy count and under substantive counts for violation of narcotic laws, co-conspirators could be found guilty under substantive counts if one of their members had done the affirmative acts pursuant to and in furtherance of conspiracy. *Carrado v. Controlled Substances ↻ 45

There was sufficient evidence of defendant's participation in drug conspiracy to warrant denial of his motion for acquittal; defendant possessed a beeper, defendant was present at time and place of delivery of cocaine, his actions at time of delivery could be construed to be those of lookout, beeper contract was renewed at same time as that of convicted conspirator, and defendant belonged to same health club as codefendants. U.S. v. Cuervelo, S.D.N.Y.1989, 726 F.Supp. 103, affirmed 930 F.2d 911. Conspiracy ↻ 48.1(4)

To establish a conspiracy to violate narcotics laws, proof of actual dealings in narcotics is not required; such conspiracy may be established by adequate proof of unlawful agreement, commission of an overt act in furtherance thereof, and that a defendant knowingly associated himself with the conspiracy; an additional element is knowledge by alleged conspirator of illegal importation of narcotics. U. S. v. Beigel, S.D.N.Y.1966, 254 F.Supp.

Government is not required to prove name and address of contemplated or prospective purchasers of stimulant or depressant drugs, in prosecution for unlawful sale of drugs. U. S. v. Cummings, S.D.N.Y.1969, 49 F.R.D. 160. Controlled Substances ⚡ 34; Controlled Substances ⚡ 68

534. ---- Securities offenses, matters to be proved, evidence

In prosecution for mail fraud and securities fraud, government is not required to prove that anyone was defrauded or that any investors sustained loss. Farrell v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1963, 321 F.2d 409, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 631, 375 U.S. 992, 11 L.Ed.2d 478. Postal Service ⚡ 49(1); Securities Regulation ⚡ 193

In prosecution for violating Securities Act, § 77q of Title 15, for using the mails to defraud, and for conspiracy to effect scheme to defraud, government was required to prove falsity of statements and representations made to purchasers of securities. Holmes v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1943, 134 F.2d 125, certiorari denied 63 S.Ct. 1434, 319 U.S. 776, 87 L.Ed. 1722. Securities Regulation ⚡ 193; Postal Service ⚡ 49(1)

All the allegations relative to false representations need not be proved as part of scheme to warrant conviction of violating Securities Act, § 77q of Title 15, using the mails to defraud and conspiring to effect scheme to defraud, since a scheme to defraud necessarily consists of numerous elements, no particular one of which need be proved if sufficient is shown to constitute the scheme. Holmes v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1943, 134 F.2d 125, certiorari denied 63 S.Ct. 1434, 319 U.S. 776, 87 L.Ed. 1722. Securities Regulation ⚡ 195; Postal Service ⚡ 48(8)

In prosecution for violating Securities Act, § 77q of Title 15, for using the mails to defraud and for conspiracy to effect scheme to defraud, a charge of falsity of scheme in each count of indictment necessitated proof of fraudulent character of scheme and falsity of representations and a denial of the bona fide character of the scheme. Holmes v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Neb.) 1943, 134 F.2d 125, certiorari denied 63 S.Ct. 1434, 319 U.S. 776, 87 L.Ed. 1722. Securities Regulation ⚡ 195; Postal Service ⚡ 48(8)

In prosecution for conspiracy and use of mails to defraud in sale of stock, all misrepresentations alleged in indictment need not be proved, although some of them must be proved beyond reasonable doubt. *Levine v. 535. ---- Stolen property, matters to be proved, evidence

When charge was not substantive offense of receiving stolen goods, but was conspiracy to receive stolen goods, government was not required to prove that goods were in fact stolen; all that was necessary as to mens rea was proof of defendants' belief that goods they conspired to purchase were stolen. U.S. v. Rosa, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1994, 17 F.3d 1531, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 211, 513 U.S. 879, 130 L.Ed.2d 140. Conspiracy ⚡ 24.5; Conspiracy ⚡ 28(3)

Proof of defendants' knowledge that ring was stolen was not required in prosecution for conspiracy to commit wire fraud in planning to recover from police ring stolen from murder victim; government was only required to prove that defendants were members of conspiracy and sought to obtain ring by fraud in furtherance of that conspiracy. U.S. v. Homick, C.A.9 (Nev.) 1992, 964 F.2d 899. Conspiracy ⚡ 28(3)

Offense of receiving stolen property, knowing it to be stolen, does not require specific intent; thus, offense of conspiring to receive stolen property also does not require specific intent. U.S. v. Henneberry, C.A.8 (Mo.) 1983, 719 F.2d 941, certiorari denied 104 S.Ct. 1612, 465 U.S. 1107, 80 L.Ed.2d 141. Receiving Stolen Goods ⚡ 3

In prosecution for receiving and possessing stolen goods moving in interstate commerce with value of more than $100, knowing goods have been stolen, and conspiracy to receive and possess such goods, brief custody of stolen pharmaceuticals by detectives at undercover trucking company did not amount to "recovery" of drugs for their rightful owner and eliminate stolen character of goods; rather, use of company's facilities as "drop" for stolen pharmaceuticals merely facilitated surveillance of unlawful transaction and enabled detectives to apprehend ultimate purchaser. U. S. v. Muzii, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1982, 676 F.2d 919, certiorari denied 103 S.Ct. 139, 459 U.S. 863, 74 L.Ed.2d 118. Receiving Stolen Goods ↪ 2

To convict for conspiracy to receive stolen property knowing same to have been stolen in violation of section 2315 of this title, it is not necessary to prove actual knowledge, but only that defendant could reasonably anticipate that property might have been embezzled or stolen in course of interstate transportation. U. S. v. Smith, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1974, 502 F.2d 1250. Conspiracy ↪ 47(11)

Convictions of conspiring to defraud the United States by causing Treasury bills to be presented for payment, knowing that they had been stolen, was not defeated, notwithstanding that the United States might not have suffered pecuniary loss from paying stolen bills, in that true owner was required to post indemnity bond when it was repaid pursuant to section 738a of Title 31; conviction could be supported on ground that the legitimate official action and purpose of the United States in raising funds and controlling supply of money through issuance and redemption of short term bearer bills was defeated when the government paid party who had obtained obligations from thief. U. S. v. Jacobs, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1973, 475 F.2d 270, certiorari denied 94 S.Ct. 116, 414 U.S. 821, 38 L.Ed.2d 53, certiorari denied 94 S.Ct. 131, 414 U.S. 821, 38 L.Ed.2d 53. Conspiracy ↪ 33(5)

To justify convictions for conspiracy to receive stolen chattels knowing that the chattels had been stolen while in course of interstate transportation, one of the express or implied terms of the agreement among the conspirators must be to commit the federal offense. Clark v. U.S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1954, 213 F.2d 63. Conspiracy ↪ 28(3)

In prosecution for conspiracy to steal certain goods and chattels from an interstate shipment of freight on truck containing whiskey, with intent to convert same to defendants' own use, testimony by checker at corporation where whiskey was loaded on truck, that carton was filled with whiskey at time it was shipped, was sufficient proof of contents of truck. U.S. v. Nelson, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1950, 185 F.2d 758. Conspiracy ↪ 47(11)

Gravamen of charge of conspiracy to transport stolen motor cars in interstate commerce and conceal them while moving in such commerce is an agreement or understanding between two or more of defendants and while certain evidence under such counts charging the substantive offense of transporting and concealing stolen automobiles is identical, much of the evidence necessary to establish conspiracy is not required nor proper for proof of the substantive charge. U.S. v. Sharpe, E.D.Ky.1945, 61 F.Supp. 237, affirmed 164 F.2d 94. Receiving Stolen Goods ↪ 8(2); Conspiracy ↪ 28(3)

536. ---- Tax offenses, matters to be proved, evidence

Conviction for conspiracy to defraud the United States by impeding the assessment and collection of income tax did not require proof that defendant intended to avoid paying a particular tax, or on the calculation of a particular tax liability. U.S. v. Tucker, C.A.8 (Ark.) 2005, 419 F.3d 719, rehearing and rehearing en banc denied, certiorari denied 126 S.Ct. 1583, 164 L.Ed.2d 301. Conspiracy ↪ 33(7)

Intent element of conspiracy to defraud United States by obstructing and impeding the ability of Internal Revenue Service (IRS) to ascertain and collect taxes does not require government to prove that conspirators were aware of criminality of their objective, but it does require government to show that conspirators knew of liability for federal taxes. U.S. v. Collins, C.A.6 (Ky.) 1996, 78 F.3d 1021, rehearing and suggestion for rehearing en banc denied, certiorari denied 117 S.Ct. 189, 519 U.S. 872, 136 L.Ed.2d 127. Conspiracy ↪ 33(7)

Conspiracy to impede the Internal Revenue Service in the ascertainment, computation and collection of federal income taxes is comprised of three elements: existence of agreement, overt act by one conspirator in furtherance of agreement's objectives, and intent on part of conspirators to agree, as well as to defraud the United States. U.S. v. Vogt, C.A.4 (N.C.) 1990, 910 F.2d 1184, rehearing denied, certiorari denied 111 S.Ct. 955, 498 U.S. 1083, 112 L.Ed.2d 1043, dismissal of habeas corpus affirmed 17 F.3d 1435, certiorari denied 114 S.Ct. 1648, 511 U.S. 1071, 128 L.Ed.2d 367. Conspiracy ⚡ 33(7)

Conviction for conspiracy and for possession of sugar intended for use in violating internal revenue laws required proof beyond reasonable doubt that defendants acted in concert pursuant to common understanding, that one or more of overt acts charged were committed, that defendants possessed the sugar, and that it was intended for use in violation of internal revenue laws. U. S. v. Ragland, C.A.4 (Md.) 1962, 306 F.2d 732, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 504, 371 U.S. 949, 9 L.Ed.2d 498. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(9); Internal Revenue ⚡ 5307

In prosecution for conspiracy to evade income taxes, government was not required to prove that the prosecution was not barred by limitations. U.S. v. Keenan, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1959, 267 F.2d 118, certiorari denied 80 S.Ct. 121, 361 U.S. 863, 4 L.Ed.2d 104, rehearing denied 80 S.Ct. 254, 361 U.S. 921, 4 L.Ed.2d 189. Indictment And Information ⚡ 166

In prosecution for conspiracy to defraud government by filing false tax returns, it is only necessary to show that sum was amount due, and that returns were knowingly false in that respect. Cooper v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Iowa) 1925, 9 F.2d 216. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(12)

"Lack of good faith" and "intent to violate the law" embraced in compromise, by corporate taxpayer with commissioner, of all civil and criminal liability for violations of internal revenue laws due to withdrawal and use by taxpayer or its officers, directors and employees of specially denatured alcohol in liniment for sale for internal human use, could be proved without showing scheme between two or more persons and were distinct from crime of conspiracy, and such compromise would not bar prosecution for conspiring to defraud United States by selling, for internal human purposes, liniment made with specially denatured alcohol without payment of taxes thereon. U.S. v. J.R. Watkins Co., D.C.Minn.1954, 127 F.Supp. 97. Internal Revenue ⚡ 5280

537. ---- Travel and transportation, matters to be proved, evidence

In a prosecution for inducing another to travel by common carrier interstate for the purpose of prostitution and for conspiracy, where proof of interstate transportation was not disputed, what happened after the victim got to her destination was immaterial and the offense was complete when there was transportation of the female in interstate commerce for immoral purposes. Bell v. U.S., C.A.8 (Minn.) 1958, 251 F.2d 490. Prostitution ⚡ 1

In order to sustain convictions for violation of conspiracy and white slavery statute, § 2421 of this title, it is not necessary that the victim of the transportation be innocent of prior sexual misconduct. Wright v. U.S., C.A.5 (Ga.) 1957, 243 F.2d 569, certiorari denied 78 S.Ct. 45, 355 U.S. 831, 2 L.Ed.2d 43. Conspiracy ⚡ 28(3)

538. Standard of proof, evidence

To establish intent essential to conviction for conspiracy, evidence of knowledge must be clear and not equivocal, for without knowledge intent cannot exist. Ingram v. U.S., U.S.Ga.1959, 79 S.Ct. 1314, 360 U.S. 672, 3 L.Ed.2d 1503, rehearing denied 80 S.Ct. 42, 361 U.S. 856, 4 L.Ed.2d 96. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

To establish seller's intent to further, promote, and co-operate in buyer's illegal use of narcotics, evidence of seller's knowledge that buyer purposed unlawful action must be clear and not equivocal. Direct Sales Co. v. U.S., U.S.S.C.1943, 63 S.Ct. 1265, 319 U.S. 703, 87 L.Ed. 1674. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(2)

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Conviction for conspiracy to defraud the United States requires that government prove beyond reasonable doubt that defendants agreed to defraud the United States and that one of the conspirators committed overt act in furtherance of conspiracy. U.S. v. Migliaccio, C.A.10 (Okla.) 1994, 34 F.3d 1517. Conspiracy ⚡ 27; Conspiracy ⚡ 33(1)

To establish guilt for conspiracy, government must prove beyond reasonable doubt that two or more people agreed to pursue unlawful objective together, that defendant voluntarily agreed to join conspiracy, and that one of members of conspiracy performed overt act to further conspiracy. U.S. v. Faulkner, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1994, 17 F.3d 745, rehearing and rehearing en banc denied 21 F.3d 1110, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 193, 513 U.S. 870, 130 L.Ed.2d 125, rehearing dismissed 115 S.Ct. 786, 513 U.S. 1105, 130 L.Ed.2d 679, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 663, 513 U.S. 1056, 130 L.Ed.2d 598. Conspiracy ⚡ 24(1); Conspiracy ⚡ 27

Government must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant knew of the conspiracy and that he voluntarily became part of it. U.S. v. Yamin, C.A.5 (La.) 1989, 868 F.2d 130, 10 U.S.P.Q.2d 1300, rehearing denied, certiorari denied 109 S.Ct. 3258, 492 U.S. 924, 106 L.Ed.2d 603. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

In prosecution on charge of conspiracy to defraud by use of mails, government has burden of proving beyond reasonable doubt that conspiracy to defraud existed, that defendant was party to conspiracy, and that act or acts which would constitute use of mails were performed in furtherance thereof. U. S. v. Lynn, C.A.10 (Wyo.) 1972, 461 F.2d 759. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(5)

Evidence of defendant's knowledge of purpose of conspiracy must be clear and unequivocal; it may, however, be inferred from circumstances, acts and conduct of parties. U. S. v. Fellabaum, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1969, 408 F.2d 220, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 125, 396 U.S. 858, 24 L.Ed.2d 109, certiorari denied 90 S.Ct. 55, 396 U.S. 818, 24 L.Ed.2d 69. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(2)

While proof of conspiracy may be circumstantial or direct or both, it must convince beyond a reasonable doubt that a conspiracy existed, that the defendant knew it, and that with that knowledge he intentionally did some act or thing to further or carry out that conspiracy. Causey v. U. S., C.A.5 (Ga.) 1965, 352 F.2d 203. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(2)

Government had burden of submitting to jury sufficient evidence showing beyond reasonable doubt that conspiracy charged existed and that defendants were members thereof. U. S. v. Allegretti, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1964, 340 F.2d 243, on rehearing 340 F.2d 254, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 1531, 381 U.S. 911, 14 L.Ed.2d 433, rehearing denied 85 S.Ct. 1800, 381 U.S. 956, 14 L.Ed.2d 728, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 1532, 381 U.S. 911, 14 L.Ed.2d 433, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 830, 390 U.S. 908, 19 L.Ed.2d 876. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

A count charging conspiracy is an accusation of a distinct crime, and evidence to support it must be so clear and convincing as to leave no reasonable doubt. U S v. Silva, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1942, 131 F.2d 247. Criminal Law ⚡ 561(2)

Where guilt in prosecution for using mails to defraud, violation of § 77a et seq. of Title 15, and conspiracy rests upon circumstantial evidence, government has burden of proving its case not only beyond a reasonable doubt, but to exclusion of every reasonable hypothesis of innocence. Beckman v. U. S., C.C.A.5 (La.) 1938, 96 F.2d 15. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(5); Postal Service ⚡ 49(11); Securities Regulation ⚡ 199

The facts proven must be of such a character that, in connection with all explanations given, the jury could rightly think them inconsistent with innocence. Green v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1925, 8 F.2d 140, 4 Ohio Law Abs. 254.

To establish a conspiracy to violate a certain criminal statute, the evidence must convince the jury that defendants did something more than participate in the substantive offense which was the object of the conspiracy. U.S. v. Heitler, N.D.Ill.1921, 274 F. 401, error dismissed 43 S.Ct. 163, 260 U.S. 703, 67 L.Ed. 472, transferred 43 S.Ct.

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate Smith Act, § 2385 of this title, by advocating and teaching and helping to organize as Communist Party persons teaching and advocating overthrow of Government by force, burden is on prosecution to prove beyond reasonable doubt existence of conspiracy charged, defendants' knowing and willful membership therein, commission of at least one of overt acts charged within limitation period before filing of indictment, and knowing commission of such act in furtherance of an object or purpose of conspiracy. U. S. v. Schneiderman, S.D.Cal.1952, 106 F.Supp. 906. Conspiracy ↪ 47(3.1)

Government had burden of proving defendant, charged with conspiracy, guilty beyond reasonable doubt. U. S. v. Boyer, E.D.Pa.1949, 84 F.Supp. 905. See, also, U.S. v. Silva, C.C.A.N.Y.1942, 131 F.2d 247; Haning v. U.S., C.C.A.Neb.1927, 21 F.2d 508. Criminal Law ↪ 561(2)

To justify conviction of conspiracy, it must be found beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant was a party to conspiracy and that unlawful agreement charged continued up to time an overt act was committed. U.S. v. Anderson, S.D.Cal.1942, 45 F.Supp. 943. Criminal Law ↪ 561(1)

539. Burden of proof, evidence--Generally

Government was required to prove only conspiracy to commit theft, not conspiracy involving United States, to obtain convictions for conspiracy to commit offense against United States, based on indictment charging conspiracy to violate statute prohibiting theft from Indian tribal organization. U.S. v. Brave Thunder, C.A.8 (N.D.) 2006, 445 F.3d 1062. Conspiracy ↪ 28(3)

To show that defendant acted with specific intent, of kind required to support his conviction of conspiring to trade with Cuba in violation of the American-Cuban embargo in place under the Trading with the Enemy Act (TWEA) and the Cuban Assets Control Regulations (CACRs), government had to prove that defendant had general knowledge of the law which forbade his actions and acted with specific intent to circumvent that law, but did not need not prove that defendant had knowledge of specific regulation governing the conduct in question; defendant could not avoid prosecution by claiming that he had not brushed up on the law. U.S. v. Brodie, C.A.3 (Pa.) 2005, 403 F.3d 123. Conspiracy ↪ 28(3)

In conspiracy prosecution, not only must Government prove knowledge of illegal objective, it must also prove agreement with coconspirator to pursue that objective as common one. U.S. v. Krasovich, C.A.9 (Ariz.) 1987, 819 F.2d 253. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

Although government may not have established that defendant knew every detail of conspiracy to commit arson, such was not its burden in conspiracy prosecution. U. S. v. Benmuhar, C.A.1 (Puerto Rico) 1981, 658 F.2d 14, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 2927, 457 U.S. 1117, 73 L.Ed.2d 1328, rehearing denied 103 S.Ct. 16, 458 U.S. 1132, 73 L.Ed.2d 1402. Conspiracy ↪ 44.2

In prosecution for conspiracy to accept bribes and to aid an inmate's escape wherein defendant claimed that he had been entrapped, it was the government's burden to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant was ready and willing to commit the offense if given an opportunity to do so. U. S. v. Martinez-Carcano, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1977, 557 F.2d 966. Criminal Law ↪ 569

Where conspiracy is charged, Government has burden of establishing that defendant had specific intent to violate substantive statute; required intent is neither less nor more than that necessary to commit substantive crime. U. S. v. Friedman, C.A.8 (Ark.) 1974, 506 F.2d 511, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 2407, 421 U.S. 1004, 44 L.Ed.2d 673, rehearing denied 96 S.Ct. 160, 423 U.S. 885, 46 L.Ed.2d 116. Conspiracy ↪ 44.2

Where there was no evidence of coercion, fear or duress of any kind, in relation to inculpatory statements made by defendant charged with bank robbery and conspiracy, and where defendant in fact testified that he was told that he had the right to be quiet until he saw a lawyer, government sustained its burden of establishing that there was a voluntary waiver of Miranda rights. U. S. v. Howell, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1971, 447 F.2d 1114. Criminal Law ↻ 414

Initial burden was on defendant to go forward with some evidence, but more than a scintilla, that government informers had induced him to commit offense, but "burden of going forward" was not to be confused with "burden of proof," sometimes referred to as "risk of nonpersuasion." U. S. v. Groessel, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1971, 440 F.2d 602, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 2263, 403 U.S. 933, 29 L.Ed.2d 713. Criminal Law ↻ 330

Where evidence of guilt was overwhelming and evidence as to overt acts three, four and five was clearly sufficient, appellant, who had failed to urge below his argument that submission to jury of first overt act alleged in conspiracy count of indictment was error, failed to sustain burden of demonstrating "plain error." U. S. v. Mahler, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1966, 363 F.2d 673. Criminal Law ↻ 1035(1)

While no formal agreement is necessary to constitute conspiracy to commit substantive offense under this section, government has burden of proving what amounts to an agreement to do so. U. S. v. Zuideveld, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1963, 316 F.2d 873, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 671, 376 U.S. 916, 11 L.Ed.2d 612. Conspiracy ↻ 44.2

In prosecution for unlawful sales of government owned wool being made into army jackets, a conspiracy to defraud the government and for making of false statements about disposition of wool serge furnished manufacturer, test establishing the yardage of serge going into a jacket did not bring into play safeguards of net worth tax evasion cases and burden was not on the government to prove the amount of wool which permissibly went into scrap but was never returned or accounted for, since the problem related not to the defendants' property but to the property of the government, title to which remained in the government throughout the manufacturing process and which defendants had a duty to return in form of finished articles or scrap. U. S. v. Fabric Garment Co., C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1958, 262 F.2d 631, certiorari denied 79 S.Ct. 1117, 359 U.S. 989, 3 L.Ed.2d 978. Criminal Law ↻ 388.2

Where both an illegal sale of narcotics and a conspiracy to make such a sale were induced by a Government agent, Government had burden of proving a sufficient excuse for the inducement, in reply to defense of entrapment. United States v. Masciale, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1956, 236 F.2d 601, certiorari granted 77 S.Ct. 568, 352 U.S. 1000, 1 L.Ed.2d 545, affirmed 78 S.Ct. 827, 356 U.S. 386, 2 L.Ed.2d 859, rehearing denied 78 S.Ct. 1367, 357 U.S. 933, 2 L.Ed.2d 1375. Criminal Law ↻ 327

In prosecution for violation of narcotics law, § 4704 et seq. of Title 26 [I.R.C.1939] and for conspiracy to commit the offense, burden was upon the government to prove the conspiracy charge, by either direct proof or circumstantial evidence or both. U. S. v. Iacullo, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1955, 226 F.2d 788, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 435, 350 U.S. 966, 100 L.Ed. 839. Conspiracy ↻ 47(12)

In prosecution for possessing goods with knowledge that they had been stolen while a part of an interstate shipment of freight, and for conspiring to commit such offense, burden was on defendant to show that other goods were substituted for those stolen while the goods were in the possession of the thieves from whom defendant allegedly purchased the goods, as contended by defendant. U.S. v. Smolin, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1950, 182 F.2d 782. Receiving Stolen Goods ☞ 8(1)

On a charge of conspiracy to violate former § 338 of this title, the government had to sustain a heavier burden of proof as to intent of the conspirators, not only to defraud, but also to defraud by the use of the mails. Blue v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1943, 138 F.2d 351, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 1046, 322 U.S. 736, 88 L.Ed. 1570, rehearing denied 64 S.Ct. 1259, 322 U.S. 771, 88 L.Ed. 1596, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 1046, 322 U.S. 737, 88 L.Ed. 1570. Conspiracy ☞ 44.2

In prosecution for conspiracy to conceal and for concealing alcohol with intent to defraud government of tax thereon, the government's burden of proof to sustain charge of concealment might have been met by production of direct evidence of participation or by production of circumstantial evidence from which participation might fairly be inferred. U.S. v. Sall, C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1940, 116 F.2d 745. Criminal Law ☞ 552(1); Internal Revenue ☞ 5307

Where government established prima facie case of conspiracy to violate a statute, burden of adducing evidence to rebut presumption of knowledge of existence of statute rested on defendants, since lack of knowledge was a fact peculiar within defendants' knowledge. Cruz v. U S, C.C.A.10 (N.M.) 1939, 106 F.2d 828. Conspiracy ☞ 44.2

In a prosecution for conspiracy to unlawfully transport liquor, the burden is not on the government to prove that defendants did not have a permit for the transportation. Goldberg v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Ga.) 1924, 297 F. 98. Intoxicating Liquors ☞ 224

It is the duty of the government to prove guilty knowledge of accused. Stirlen v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1910, 183 F. 302, 105 C.C.A. 514, certiorari denied 31 S.Ct. 721, 220 U.S. 617, 55 L.Ed. 611.

Where an indictment for conspiracy to willfully misapply the funds of a national bank charged that the conspiracy had been formed between officers of the bank and defendant K. to willfully misapply the bank funds to the use of a company, and that such conspiracy was accomplished by defendant K. in drawing and accepting a draft in behalf of the company, and in depositing the draft in the bank, and obtaining credit therefor in the company's account, to effect the object of the conspiracy, the burden was on the government to prove that the conspiracy as alleged was entered into, that defendant K. was a party to it, and that the acts referred to were done by him to effect the object of the conspiracy. Prettyman v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1910, 180 F. 30, 103 C.C.A. 384. Banks And Banking ☞ 257(2); Conspiracy ☞ 44.2

Petitioner failed to show that there was a fundamental legal error in his conviction for conspiracy, based on underlying substantive offense of honest services wire fraud, as would warrant relief through writ of error coram nobis, where information charged petitioner with a federal crime, and petitioner agreed to the underlying facts of that crime at plea hearing; facts included in information and conceded at plea hearing provided a rational basis for a plausible inference that petitioner, a public official whose job included issuing search warrants, intended to engage in a scheme to deprive state of his honest services. U.S. v. George, D.Mass.2006, 436 F.Supp.2d 274. Criminal Law ☞ 1451

The government, on indictment for conspiracy to defraud government, had burden of proving beyond reasonable doubt the material allegations of the indictment by which defendants were charged. U.S. v. Belisle, W.D.Wash.1951, 107 F.Supp. 283. Criminal Law ☞ 561(2)

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate § 2385 of this title, burden of proof was on defendants to show alleged tapping of defendants' telephone wires by the government. U.S. v. Frankfeld, D.C.Md.1951, 100 F.Supp. 934. Criminal Law ☞ 394.5(4)

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate and for violation of espionage laws, burden was on the government to establish that evidence it intended to offer to substantiate the charges, sprang from independent sources, untainted by and not traceable to unlawful wire tapping of telephones. U.S. v. Coplon, S.D.N.Y.1950, 88 F.Supp. 921. Criminal Law ⚡ 394.5(4)

In prosecution under indictment charging that named individual as employee of national banking association misapplied funds of bank and that three other individuals did abet him and that all conspired to misapply bank funds, burden would be on government to submit proper proofs to sustain its charges. U.S. v. Jacobson, D.C.N.J.1940, 34 F.Supp. 214. Banks And Banking ⚡ 257(3)

Evidence was sufficient to find defendant guilty of mail fraud and conspiracy to commit mail fraud; government was not required, in order to establish intent to defraud, to prove that victim lost money or that defendant wanted victim to lose money. *U.S. v. 540. ---- Withdrawal from conspiracy, burden of proof, evidence Burden of proof for withdrawal from conspiracy is on defendant. U.S. v. Payne, C.A.6 (Ohio) 1992, 962 F.2d 1228, rehearing denied, certiorari denied 113 S.Ct. 306, 506 U.S. 909, 121 L.Ed.2d 229, certiorari denied 113 S.Ct. 811, 506 U.S. 1033, 121 L.Ed.2d 684.

Burden of proving withdrawal from conspiracy rests upon defendant; defendant must take affirmative action, either making clean breast to authorities or communicating his withdrawal in manner reasonably calculated to reach coconspirators, and mere cessation of activities is not enough. U.S. v. Granados, C.A.8 (Neb.) 1992, 962 F.2d 767, denial of post-conviction relief reversed 168 F.3d 343. Conspiracy ⚡ 40.4; Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2

In conspiracy prosecution, burden is on defendant, having once been member of conspiracy, to demonstrate his withdrawal. U. S. v. Boyd, C.A.8 (Minn.) 1979, 610 F.2d 521, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 1052, 444 U.S. 1089, 62 L.Ed.2d 777. Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2

Burden of proof of withdrawal from a conspiracy rests on the allegedly withdrawing defendant. U. S. v. James, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1979, 609 F.2d 36, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 1082, 445 U.S. 905, 63 L.Ed.2d 321. Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2

Period of conspiracy was matter for trial and for proof and burden was on defendant to show his disassociation from conspiracy, once he had been connected with it, and he could not narrow period of conspiracy merely by relating count charging conspiracy to substantive counts. Strauss v. U. S., C.A.5 (Fla.) 1963, 311 F.2d 926, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 1299, 373 U.S. 910, 10 L.Ed.2d 412. Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2

A confederate, once shown to have been such, has burden of satisfying jury that he has withdrawn from the enterprise in order to escape conviction. U.S. v. Cohen, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1944, 145 F.2d 82, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 553, 323 U.S. 799, 89 L.Ed. 637, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 553, 323 U.S. 799, 89 L.Ed. 638, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 554, 323 U.S. 800, 89 L.Ed. 638. Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2

In prosecution for conspiracy to defraud the United States of taxes on distilled spirits wherein there was evidence that the conspiracy had actually continued after the time the accused considered that it had terminated, accused had duty to prove his disassociation from the conspiracy after the time on which he relied, and testimony for government concerning events which took place after that date was admissible. U.S. v. Novick, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1941, 124 F.2d 107, certiorari denied 62 S.Ct. 795, 315 U.S. 813, 86 L.Ed. 1212, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 913, 315 U.S. 830, 86 L.Ed. 1224. Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2; Conspiracy ⚡ 45

Defendant has burden of proving withdrawal from conspiracy in order to avoid admission of overt acts occurring after alleged withdrawal. U.S. v. Burger, D.Kan.1991, 773 F.Supp. 1430. Conspiracy ↻ 44.2

Burden of proof as to withdrawal from a conspiracy is on the defendant. U. S. v. Lowell, D.C.N.J.1980, 490 F.Supp. 897, affirmed 649 F.2d 950. Conspiracy ↻ 44.2

Defendant who was alleged to be coconspirator or co-schemer in stock manipulation conspiracy had burden of establishing defense of withdrawal, and, where both conspiracy and nonconspiracy counts of indictment were facially proper, question of whether defense of withdrawal was established was singularly inappropriate for pretrial decision on motion to dismiss and would be left for jury. U. S. v. Bloom, E.D.Pa.1977, 78 F.R.D. 591. Criminal Law ↻ 330; Indictment And Information ↻ 144.2

541. Presumptions, evidence--Generally

Presumptions of guilt of conspiracy are not lightly to be indulged from mere meetings. U. S. v. Di Re, U.S.N.Y.1948, 68 S.Ct. 222, 332 U.S. 581, 92 L.Ed. 210. Conspiracy ↻ 44.2

Government failed to rebut presumption, arising from facts set forth by defendant, that the narcotics conspiracy for which he had been previously convicted and the narcotics conspiracy of which he was convicted at present trial were in fact one conspiracy so that the second conspiracy conviction could not stand. U. S. v. Mallah, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1974, 503 F.2d 971, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 1425, 420 U.S. 995, 43 L.Ed.2d 671. Criminal Law ↻ 295

It would not be presumed that government investigators had tampered with jars of whiskey admitted into evidence in prosecution for conspiracy to sell distilled spirits not evidencing required revenue stamps and for making such unlawful sales. O'Quinn v. U. S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1969, 411 F.2d 78. Criminal Law ↻ 322

Defendant cannot be found guilty merely by association, and his contacts with alleged coconspirators are presumed innocent unless circumstances indicate otherwise. U. S. v. Kompinski, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1967, 373 F.2d 429. Conspiracy ↻ 40; Conspiracy ↻ 44.2

Presumptions of guilt of conspiracy are not lightly to be indulged from mere meetings. Rent v. U.S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1954, 209 F.2d 893. Conspiracy ↻ 44.2

Where the specific results of a conspiracy have been shown, the conspirators are presumed to have intended the natural consequences of their acts. U.S. v. General Motors Corp., C.C.A.7 (Ind.) 1941, 121 F.2d 376, certiorari denied 62 S.Ct. 105, 314 U.S. 618, 86 L.Ed. 497, motion granted 62 S.Ct. 124, 314 U.S. 579, 86 L.Ed. 469, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 178, 314 U.S. 710, 86 L.Ed. 566. Criminal Law ↻ 24

The defendants charged with conspiring to obstruct passage of mail, and who were shown to have conspired to stop railroad transportation, were presumed to have intended consequences of their acts which interfered with mails, and hence proof of express agreement to interfere therewith was unnecessary. U.S. v. Anderson, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1939, 101 F.2d 325, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 822, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1502, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 822, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1503, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 823, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1503, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 823, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1504, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 824, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1505, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 824, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1506, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 825, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1506, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 825, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1507, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 825, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1508, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 826, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1508, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 826, 307 U.S. 625, 83 L.Ed. 1509. Conspiracy ↻ 44.2; Criminal Law ↻ 24

Where an indictment for conspiracy avers that defendant conspired with persons to the grand jury unknown, and there is no evidence to the contrary, the truth of the averment of want of knowledge by the grand jury will be presumed. Roberts v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Wash.) 1918, 248 F. 873, 160 C.C.A. 631, certiorari denied 38 S.Ct. 583, 247 U.S. 522, 62 L.Ed. 1247. Conspiracy ↪ 44.2

In habeas corpus proceedings to procure discharge from an order directing petitioners to be taken to another district for trial, allegations of the indictment against petitioners that the overt acts were committed in furtherance of the object of the conspiracy cannot be presumed to be false in the absence of conclusive evidence in conflict therewith. Witte v. Shelton, C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1917, 240 F. 265, 153 C.C.A. 191, certiorari denied 37 S.Ct. 745, 244 U.S. 660, 61 L.Ed. 1376. Habeas Corpus ↪ 85.1(1)

542. --- Continuation of conspiracy, presumptions, evidence

Conspiracy is presumed to continue until there is affirmative evidence of abandonment, withdrawal, disavowal, or defeat of purposes of conspiracy. U.S. v. Bloch, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1982, 696 F.2d 1213. Conspiracy ↪ 44.2

Where conspiracy contemplates continuity of purpose and continued performance of acts, it is presumed to exist until there has been affirmative showing that it has terminated and its members continue to be conspirators until there has been affirmative showing that they have withdrawn. U. S. v. Hamilton, C.A.6 (Ky.) 1982, 689 F.2d 1262, certiorari denied 103 S.Ct. 753, 459 U.S. 1117, 74 L.Ed.2d 971, certiorari denied 103 S.Ct. 754, 459 U.S. 1117, 74 L.Ed.2d 971. Conspiracy ↪ 44.2

The time when a continuing conspiracy terminates depends upon particular facts and purposes of the conspiracy, and an unlawful conspiracy is presumed to continue until its objectives or purpose is achieved. U. S. v. Armocida, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1975, 515 F.2d 29, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 111, 423 U.S. 858, 46 L.Ed.2d 84. Conspiracy ↪ 44.2

A conspiracy is completed when the intended purpose thereof is accomplished, but where a conspiracy contemplates a continuity of purpose and a continued performance of acts, it is presumed to exist until there has been an affirmative showing that it has terminated, and its members continue to be conspirators until there has been an affirmative showing that they have withdrawn. U. S. v. Mayes, C.A.6 (Ky.) 1975, 512 F.2d 637, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 2629, 422 U.S. 1008, 45 L.Ed.2d 670, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 69, 423 U.S. 840, 46 L.Ed.2d 59. Conspiracy ↪ 40; Conspiracy ↪ 44.2

Fact that government did not offer proof of continued existence of conspiracy at regular intervals during period charged did not require finding that it had ended, absent some affirmative act of withdrawal. U. S. v. Cantone, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1970, 426 F.2d 902, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 55, 400 U.S. 827, 27 L.Ed.2d 57. Conspiracy ↪ 44.2

Conspiracy, especially one which contemplates a continuity of purpose and a continued performance of acts, is presumed to continue until there has been affirmative showing that it has terminated, and its members continue to be conspirators until there has been an affirmative showing that they have withdrawn. U. S. v. Etheridge, C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1970, 424 F.2d 951, certiorari granted 91 S.Ct. 462, 400 U.S. 991, 27 L.Ed.2d 437, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 463, 400 U.S. 993, 27 L.Ed.2d 442, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 464, 400 U.S. 1000, 27 L.Ed.2d 452, rehearing denied 91 S.Ct. 885, 401 U.S. 926, 27 L.Ed.2d 830, certiorari dismissed 91 S.Ct. 2174, 402 U.S. 547, 29 L.Ed.2d 102, rehearing denied 92 S.Ct. 32, 404 U.S. 875, 30 L.Ed.2d 122. Conspiracy ↪ 44.2

A presumption existed that conspiracy which was shown to exist continued. U. S. v. Baxa, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1965, 340 F.2d 259, certiorari granted 85 S.Ct. 1556, 381 U.S. 353, 14 L.Ed.2d 681. Criminal Law ↪ 315

A conspiracy, once established, is presumed to continue until the contrary is demonstrated. U. S. v. Bentvena, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1963, 319 F.2d 916, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 345, 375 U.S. 940, 11 L.Ed.2d 271, rehearing denied 90 S.Ct. 894, 397 U.S. 928, 25 L.Ed.2d 108, rehearing denied 84 S.Ct. 515, 375 U.S. 989, 11 L.Ed.2d 476,

Arrest of conspirator removes presumption of continuing participation by him in conspiracy. U.S. v. Consolidated Laundries Corp., C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1961, 291 F.2d 563. Conspiracy 44.2

Where defendants were shown to have become parties to conspiracy on particular date, it was presumed that they continued in conspiracy until they proved that they had left it. United States v. Reina, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1957, 242 F.2d 302, certiorari denied 77 S.Ct. 1294, 354 U.S. 913, 1 L.Ed.2d 1427, rehearing denied 78 S.Ct. 9, 355 U.S. 852, 2 L.Ed.2d 61. Criminal Law 315

Where a conspiracy contemplates a continuity of purpose and a continuation of performance of acts in furtherance of its express objectives, that single conspiracy continues in operation at law until there is a showing that the conspiracy has ended. Silkwood v. Kerr-McGee Corp., W.D.Okla.1978, 460 F.Supp. 399, affirmed 637 F.2d 743, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 132, 454 U.S. 833, 70 L.Ed.2d 111. Conspiracy 1.1

Once membership in a conspiracy is proved, there is a presumption that membership continued unless there is affirmative evidence of withdrawal offered by defendant. U. S. v. Bentvena, S.D.N.Y.1960, 193 F.Supp. 485. See, also, U.S. v. Ogull, D.C.N.Y.1957, 149 F.Supp. 272. Criminal Law 315

543. Inferences, evidence--Generally

Charges of conspiracy are not to be made out by piling inference upon inference. Ingram v. U.S., U.S.Ga.1959, 79 S.Ct. 1314, 360 U.S. 672, 3 L.Ed.2d 1503, rehearing denied 80 S.Ct. 42, 361 U.S. 856, 4 L.Ed.2d 96. See, also, *Direct Sales Co. v. Each element of conspiracy may be inferred from circumstantial evidence. U.S. v. Faulkner, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1994, 17 F.3d 745, rehearing and rehearing en banc denied 21 F.3d 1110, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 193, 513 U.S. 870, 130 L.Ed.2d 125, rehearing dismissed 115 S.Ct. 786, 513 U.S. 1105, 130 L.Ed.2d 679, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 663, 513 U.S. 1056, 130 L.Ed.2d 598. Conspiracy 47(2)

Crime of conspiracy is rarely susceptible of proof by direct evidence, but may be inferred from circumstantial evidence. U. S. v. Shelton, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1982, 669 F.2d 446, certiorari denied 102 S.Ct. 1989, 456 U.S. 934, 72 L.Ed.2d 454. Conspiracy 47(2)

Guilt of conspiracy cannot be inferred from the mere presence of a defendant at the scene of the crime or the mere association with members of a criminal conspiracy. U. S. v. Graham, C.A.8 (Iowa) 1977, 548 F.2d 1302. Conspiracy 44.2

Charges of conspiracy are not to be made out by piling inference on inference, and when first or basic inference is impermissibly drawn, it cannot thereafter serve to support other inferences on which a subsequent finding is based. U. S. v. Grow, C.A.4 (Va.) 1968, 394 F.2d 182, certiorari denied 89 S.Ct. 118, 393 U.S. 840, 21 L.Ed.2d 111, certiorari denied 89 S.Ct. 120, 393 U.S. 840, 21 L.Ed.2d 111. Conspiracy 47(1)

Generally, a conspiracy can be established only from the acts and conducts of the conspirators and the general inferences deducible therefrom, and such evidence will be sufficient if it logically and consistently points to and supports the charge. Butler v. U. S., C.A.10 (Okla.) 1952, 197 F.2d 561. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1)

The connection with conspiracy of acts of co-conspirator apart from and unknown to the others may be inferred from such circumstances in evidence as legitimately tend to sustain inference that the overt acts were in furtherance of the common design, intent, and purpose. U. S. v. Randall, C.C.A.7 (Ind.) 1947, 164 F.2d 284, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 729, 333 U.S. 856, 92 L.Ed. 1136, rehearing denied 68 S.Ct. 901, 333 U.S. 878, 92 L.Ed. 1153, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 733, 333 U.S. 856, 92 L.Ed. 1136. Conspiracy ↪ 41

Generally, a conspiracy is established by circumstances and conclusions that reasonably flow from conduct of conspirators, but conspiracy must be established by competent evidence, direct or circumstantial. Bacon v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Okla.) 1942, 127 F.2d 985. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

A common purpose sufficient to sustain conviction for conspiracy may be inferred where parties concerned are pursuing the same object and adopt means leading to the same unlawful result. U.S. v. Potash, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1941, 118 F.2d 54, certiorari denied 61 S.Ct. 1103, 313 U.S. 584, 85 L.Ed. 1540. Conspiracy ↪ 44.2

Natural and reasonable inference from facts and circumstances is sufficient to sustain conviction for conspiracy. Anstess v. U.S., C.C.A.7 (Ind.) 1927, 22 F.2d 594. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

In prosecution for conspiracy to violate National Prohibition Act, former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, evidence that liquors landed in the secrecy of night were intoxicating and fit for beverage, was unnecessary, such inference being warranted by attendant circumstances. McDonnell v. U.S., C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1927, 19 F.2d 801, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 114, 275 U.S. 551, 72 L.Ed. 421.

Conspiracy to conceal assets from trustee in bankruptcy may be shown by inference. Carter v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1927, 19 F.2d 431. Conspiracy ↪ 47

Conspiracy may be determined by inference from the facts proved, to make a case for the jury. Alkon v. U.S., C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1908, 163 F. 810, 90 C.C.A. 116.

A conspiracy may be inferred where it is shown that any two or more of the parties charged, aimed, by their acts, to accomplish the same unlawful purposes or object, one performing one part and another another part of the same, so as to complete it, although they never met together to concert the means, or to give effect to the design. U S v. Sacia, D.C.N.J.1880, 2 F. 754. Conspiracy ↪ 47

A single conversation may be innocent or reflect no illicit purpose, and by itself permit no inference of wrongful conduct; even a discussion apparently relating to illicit activity followed by removal and delivery by one of conversing participants to the other of a brown paper bag may have no particular significance, but when considered with other incidents, some of them clandestine, all related in purpose and subject, and followed by actual delivery of a substantial quantity of narcotics, each incident not only gains color from the others, but may permit a reasonable inference they were in furtherance of a conspiratorial objective. U. S. v. Beigel, S.D.N.Y.1966, 254 F.Supp. 923, affirmed 370 F.2d 751, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 2049, 387 U.S. 930, 18 L.Ed.2d 989, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 2053, 387 U.S. 930, 18 L.Ed.2d 989, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 2062, 387 U.S. 936, 18 L.Ed.2d 998. Conspiracy ↪ 47(12)

Inference of conspiracy may be drawn from simultaneous doing of similar acts by persons connected with same corporation. U. S. v. Outer Harbor Dock & Wharf Co., S.D.Cal.1954, 124 F.Supp. 337. Conspiracy ↪ 44.2

A conspiracy to advocate and teach necessity and duty of overthrowing United States Government by force or conspirators' intent to cause or bring about such end by such means as speedily as circumstances permit, cannot be inferred by jury from alleged conspirators' expressions of opinions deemed by jurors to be crudely intemperate, to contain falsehoods, or to be designed to embarrass government. U. S. v. Schneiderman, S.D.Cal.1952, 106 F.Supp. 906. Conspiracy ↻ 28(3)

In conspiracy prosecution, direct evidence when available supplies the necessary foundations on which guilt of the offense charged may be properly predicated, but it is principally the reasonable deductions and irresistible inferences of the trier of facts arising from such premises that may justify his conclusion of the illegality of the questioned joint purpose. U.S. v. General Petroleum Corp. of Cal., S.D.Cal.1940, 33 F.Supp. 95. Conspiracy ↻ 47(2)

544. ---- Existence of conspiracy, inferences, evidence

Existence of a conspiracy may be proved by circumstantial evidence and may be inferred from concert of action. *U.S. v. 545. ---- Agreement, inferences, evidence

Although agreement between conspirators and defendant is essential element of conspiracy conviction, agreement may be inferred from concert of action. U. S. v. Berry, C.A.5 (Ala.) 1981, 644 F.2d 1034. Conspiracy ↻ 24(1)

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

The agreement of the conspirators need not be proved by direct evidence; it can be inferred from the facts and circumstances of the case. U. S. v. Bankston, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1979, 603 F.2d 528. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(2)

No proof of formal agreement is necessary to establish an unlawful conspiracy; conspiracy may be proved by inferences arising from concerted actions of parties working toward a common design. U. S. v. Anderson, C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1965, 352 F.2d 500, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 1576, 384 U.S. 955, 16 L.Ed.2d 550. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

Mutual consent need not be bottomed on express agreement, for any conformance to agreed or contemplated pattern of conduct will warrant inference of conspiracy; exchange of words is not required, and even lack of action may support inference. Esco Corp. v. U. S., C.A.9 (Or.) 1965, 340 F.2d 1000. Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2

Although purchase or sale of contraband may warrant inference in conspiracy prosecution of an agreement to commit crime going well beyond the particular transaction, a sale or a purchase is not a sufficient basis for inferring agreement to cooperate with opposite parties for whatever period they continue to deal in this type of contraband, unless some such understanding is evidenced by other conduct which accompanies or supplements the transaction. U. S. v. Borelli, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1964, 336 F.2d 376, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 647, 379 U.S. 960, 13 L.Ed.2d 555. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(3.1)

No direct proof of agreement is essential in criminal conspiracy cases and evidence taken as a whole is proper basis for drawing necessary inferences. United States v. Pagano, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1955, 224 F.2d 682, certiorari denied 76 S.Ct. 137, 350 U.S. 884, 100 L.Ed. 779. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

A joining of intentions of the parties into a conspiracy may be established by inference from evidence of relationships and conduct and other probative circumstances. Phelps v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Minn.) 1947, 160 F.2d 858, rehearing denied 161 F.2d 940, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 1525, 334 U.S. 860, 92 L.Ed. 1780. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(2)

546. ---- Participation, inferences, evidence

Agreement between defendants to accomplish objective of conspiracy of impeding operation of Federal Home Loan Bank Board (FHLBB), could be inferred from evidence that defendants joined in structuring condominium transactions and preparing necessary documentation in such a way as to conceal one defendant's participation from FHLBB. U.S. v. Molinaro, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1993, 11 F.3d 853, certiorari denied 115 S.Ct. 668, 513 U.S. 1059, 130 L.Ed.2d 602. Conspiracy ⚡ 44.2

Although defendant's mere proximity to scene of crime is insufficient to establish his knowing participation in conspiracy, seemingly innocent acts, when viewed in proper context, may support inference of guilt. U.S. v. Buena-Lopez, C.A.9 (Ariz.) 1993, 987 F.2d 657. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

Although mere proximity to scene of illicit activity is not sufficient to establish involvement in a conspiracy, a defendant's presence may support such an inference when viewed in context with other evidence. U.S. v. Thomas, C.A.9 (Mont.) 1989, 887 F.2d 1341. Conspiracy ⚡ 40

Participation in conspiracy need not be proved by direct evidence, but may be inferred from actions of accused or by circumstantial evidence of a scheme. U.S. v. Carter, C.A.11 (Fla.) 1985, 760 F.2d 1568. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1); Conspiracy ⚡ 47(2)

Once conspiracy is proved, slight evidence is all that is required to connect defendant with the conspiracy. U. S. v. Beecroft, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1979, 608 F.2d 753. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

Conspiracy is almost always a matter of inferences deduced from the acts of the accused. U. S. v. Barrentine,

To prove an over-all single conspiracy, government need not prove that each accused knew identity and function of all his alleged co-conspirators or that all worked together consciously to achieve a desired end, and proof that defendant was aware that he was not alone in plotting with common conspirators to violate law is sufficient to raise necessary inference that he had joined in an over-all agreement. *Daily v. When two men join together to commit single robbery one may infer from their common participation in robbery that they have conspired to commit the robbery but in a multiparty conspiracy with actors performing many different tasks in many places, inference does not necessarily follow from one contact with one member of conspiracy. *United States v. Prosecution did not negligently ignore indications that ink expert overstated his participation in initial ink tests, for purposes of defendants' motion for a new trial; the absence of expert's name on the forensic report was not necessarily suspicious, nor was it inconsistent with his representation that he worked with another employee, expert's explanations of initial failure to test the ink content of the computer dash did nothing to put prosecutors on notice that expert would later misrepresent the extent of his participation in the testing, and co-worker's description of an initial meeting with prosecutors did not establish that she informed them that she alone conducted the ink testing. *U.S. v. 549. --- Concealment, inferences, evidence

After the central criminal purposes of a conspiracy have been attained, a subsidiary conspiracy to conceal may not be implied from circumstantial evidence showing merely that conspiracy was kept a secret and that conspirators took care to cover up their crime in order to escape detection and punishment, since allowing such conspiracy to conceal to be inferred or implied, from mere overt acts of concealment would result in an awesome widening of the scope of conspiracy prosecutions, and would extend life of conspiracy indefinitely. *Grunewald v. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

The requisite agreement supporting a conspiracy conviction need not be express, but rather can be an informal, tacit understanding between the coconspirators and can be proved entirely by circumstantial evidence. U.S. v. Fletcher, C.A.8 (Ark.) 2003, 322 F.3d 508. Conspiracy ↻ 24(1); Conspiracy ↻ 47(2)

Existence of an agreement may be shown, in a conspiracy case, by circumstances indicating that criminal defendants acted in concert to achieve a common goal. *U. S. v. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

552. ---- Agreement, circumstantial evidence

Conspiracy conviction was supported by circumstantial evidence that there was agreement to defraud state Treasurer by deputy state treasurer and her associates through illegal kickback scheme that appeared as superficially legal transactions; while there was no direct proof, circumstantial evidence was that once deputy treasurer knew she would be named state's chief trader, she contacted her associates who set up brokerage account for state and agreed to share their commissions with deputy, and that kickbacks took form of direct money transfers, associates' funding of mortgage trust on deputy's new home, and associate purchasing deputy's former home and former business for significant amounts. U.S. v. Pretty, C.A.10 (Okla.) 1996, 98 F.3d 1213, certiorari denied 117 S.Ct. 2436, 520 U.S. 1266, 138 L.Ed.2d 197, post-conviction relief denied 6 Fed.Appx. 810, 2001 WL 331955. Conspiracy ↪ 47(6)

Ample circumstantial evidence allowed jury to infer existence of conspiracy to impair Internal Revenue Service's (IRS) ability to collect income taxes could be inferred, even though there was no evidence that defendant ever discussed effect of alleged extortion scheme and its financial transactions on the IRS; there was evidence that defendant and conspirators obtained extortion money under guise of legal payments as political contributions, gifts and business investments, and that disguise effectively foreclosed ability of IRS to attribute, ascertain, compute and collect taxes properly. U.S. v. Collins, C.A.6 (Ky.) 1996, 78 F.3d 1021, rehearing and suggestion for rehearing en banc denied, certiorari denied 117 S.Ct. 189, 519 U.S. 872, 136 L.Ed.2d 127. Conspiracy ↪ 47(9)

Evidence was sufficient for jury to infer defendant's agreement to join conspiracy to defraud United States of lawful government functions of Federal Home Loan Bank Board, where defendant was aware of use of sham liens to disguise excess profits from real estate transactions financed by savings association, and defendant-controlled entities and associates were employed to disguise fact that these loan proceeds were then being used to purchase "real estate owned" (REO) that savings association had acquired through foreclosure, thereby allowing association to remove those properties from its books without suffering any loss due to depressed real estate values. U.S. v. Pettigrew, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1996, 77 F.3d 1500. Conspiracy ↪ 47(6)

That defendants were together both when they passed counterfeit bills at business and when they visited various other businesses in area from which counterfeit bills were later recovered and that they were on a cross-country camping trip during which they spent numerous hours together, on road and off, supported inference that they conspired to utter counterfeit obligations, justifying conviction for conspiracy. U.S. v. Armstrong, C.A.8 (S.D.) 1994, 16 F.3d 289. Conspiracy ↪ 47(3.1)

In finding existence of conspiracy, jury may consider presence or association, as well as the development and collocation of circumstances. U.S. v. Allred, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1989, 867 F.2d 856. Conspiracy ↪ 23.1

Existence of agreement and cooperation of defendant may be proved by circumstantial evidence, such as inferences from conduct of alleged participants in conspiracy or from circumstantial evidence of scheme. U.S. v. Smith, C.A.11 (Ga.) 1983, 700 F.2d 627. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Initial agreement to participate in an illegal venture, as well as actual knowledge of the plan and association in it, which are required elements of a conspiracy conviction, may be inferred from performance of acts that further its objectives and may be proved by circumstantial evidence. U. S. v. DeLucca, C.A.5 (Ala.) 1980, 630 F.2d 294, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 1520, 450 U.S. 983, 67 L.Ed.2d 819. Conspiracy ↪ 44.2

Evidence of knowledge and association may be combined with other circumstantial evidence to prove an agreement to join a conspiracy. U. S. v. Grassi, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 616 F.2d 1295, rehearing denied 624 F.2d 1098, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 363, 449 U.S. 956, 66 L.Ed.2d 220. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Agreement may be shown by circumstantial evidence, and once conspiracy is established, even slight evidence may suffice to link a particular defendant to conspiracy. U. S. v. Dalzotto, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1979, 603 F.2d 642, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 530, 444 U.S. 994, 62 L.Ed.2d 425. Conspiracy ↪ 47(1); Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

In a conspiracy prosecution, proof of the illegal agreement or common purpose may rest on either direct evidence or on inferences drawn from relevant and competent circumstantial evidence. U. S. v. Houde, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1979, 596 F.2d 696, rehearing denied 604 F.2d 671, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 452, 444 U.S. 965, 62 L.Ed.2d 377. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Direct proof of an agreement is not necessary in a prosecution for conspiracy; circumstantial evidence supporting conclusion that there was an agreement is sufficient. U. S. v. Frick, C.A.5 (La.) 1979, 588 F.2d 531, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 2013, 441 U.S. 913, 60 L.Ed.2d 385. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Knowledge of a criminal plan is a factual issue which may be proved by circumstantial evidence; it is not necessary that there be evidence of a formal agreement in order to have an unlawful conspiracy. U. S. v. Votteller, C.A.6 (Ky.) 1976, 544 F.2d 1355. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Agreement constituting conspiracy may be inferred from acts of parties. U. S. v. Camacho, C.A.9 (Ariz.) 1976, 528 F.2d 464, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 2208, 425 U.S. 995, 48 L.Ed.2d 819. Conspiracy ↪ 44.2

Existence of agreement between coconspirators need not be established by direct proof; the agreement may be proven by circumstantial evidence from which the trier of fact may infer a common design to achieve an unlawful end. U. S. v. Miller, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1974, 508 F.2d 444. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Gist of a conspiracy is an agreement; however slight or circumstantial evidence may be, it must, in order to be sufficient to warrant finding of conspiracy, tend to prove that defendant entered into some form of agreement, formal or informal, with his alleged coconspirators. U. S. v. Kates, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1975, 508 F.2d 308. Conspiracy ↪ 24(1)

While conscious agreement must be proved in trial for conspiracy, such agreement may be proved by circumstantial evidence and such proof will be sufficient if it places defendant "at the hub of the wheel of events" so that jury may reasonably find that evidence excludes every reasonable hypothesis except that of guilt. U. S. v. Goodson, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1974, 502 F.2d 1303. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Government may rely upon circumstantial evidence of a concert of action among defendants to prove conspiracy. U. S. v. Flaxman, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1974, 495 F.2d 344, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 512, 419 U.S. 1031, 42 L.Ed.2d 306. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Proof of formal agreement between conspirators is unnecessary; an agreement may be proven entirely by circumstantial evidence and may be shown if there be concert of action, all the parties working together understandingly, with single design for accomplishment of common purpose. U. S. v. Ford, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1963, 324 F.2d 950. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Since partnership in crime is seldom evidenced by written agreement or other writing between or among other persons, finding of agreement to violate law ordinarily must rest upon inference drawn from relevant and competent circumstantial evidence including conduct of defendants. Daily v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1960, 282 F.2d 818, on rehearing 293 F.2d 33. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

While agreement of conspiracy may be established by circumstantial evidence, and even though it is not necessary that such circumstantial evidence exclude every reasonable hypothesis consistent with innocence, evidence should be sufficient to prove this element of crime beyond a reasonable doubt. *Harms v. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Offense of conspiracy can rarely be proved by direct evidence because no formal agreement is necessary to constitute an unlawful conspiracy, and therefore conspiracy may be proved by circumstantial evidence. Davenport v. U.S., C.A.9 (Or.) 1958, 260 F.2d 591, certiorari denied 79 S.Ct. 585, 359 U.S. 909, 3 L.Ed.2d 573. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Since a conspiracy is seldom capable of proof by direct testimony, it may be inferred from things actually done and it is enough if the minds of the parties meet in an understanding way with a single design to accomplish a common purpose which may be established by circumstantial evidence or deduction from the facts from which the natural inference arises that the overt acts were in furtherance of a common design, intent and purpose. Castle v. U. S., C.A.8 (Minn.) 1956, 238 F.2d 131. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Conspiracies are rarely established from direct evidence and it is sufficient if the circumstances, acts and conduct of the parties are of such character that minds of reasonable men can conclude therefrom that an unlawful agreement or understanding exists. Heald v. U. S., C.A.10 (Colo.) 1949, 175 F.2d 878, certiorari denied 70 S.Ct. 101, 338 U.S. 859, 94 L.Ed. 526, certiorari denied 70 S.Ct. 102, 338 U.S. 859, 94 L.Ed. 526. See, also, *Cruz v. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

In conspiracy prosecution, proof of an agreement in writing or in formal words is unnecessary but the agreement may be inferred from statements and circumstances and may be established by circumstantial evidence. Wilder v. U.S., C.C.A.10 (Okla.) 1938, 100 F.2d 177. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

In conspiracy cases, the agreement between two or more persons, that is, the conspiracy itself, may be proven by circumstantial evidence. Shannabarger v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1938, 99 F.2d 957. See, also, U.S. v. Pintar, C.A.8 (Minn.) 1980, 630 F.2d 1270. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Where the government relies upon circumstantial evidence to establish a conspiracy, the circumstances must be such as to warrant the jury in finding that the conspirators had some unity of purpose, some common design and undertaking, and some meeting of minds in unlawful arrangement, and did some overt act to effect its object. Shannabarger v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1938, 99 F.2d 957. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Where the government relies upon circumstantial evidence to establish a conspiracy, the circumstances relied on must be not only consistent with the guilt of the defendants but must be inconsistent with their innocence.? Shannabarger v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1938, 99 F.2d 957. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Conspiracy may be deduced from conduct of parties and circumstances showing mutual implied understanding. Goode v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1932, 58 F.2d 105. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Agreement need not be proved by direct evidence, and conduct pointing to concerted action is sufficient to make out membership in, and the presence of, a conspiracy. *Noerr Motor Freight, Inc. v. 18 U.S.C.A. § 371

553. ---- Common design or purpose, circumstantial evidence

Participation in a criminal conspiracy need not be proved by direct evidence; a common purpose and plan may be inferred from a development and collocation of circumstances. U. S. v. Wyant, C.A.8 (S.D.) 1978, 576 F.2d 1312. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(2)

In conspiracy prosecution, direct proof of agreement is not required; proof of agreement or common purpose may rest upon inferences drawn from relevant and competent circumstantial evidence--ordinarily, acts and conduct of conspirators themselves. U. S. v. Netterville, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1977, 553 F.2d 903, certiorari denied 98 S.Ct. 189, 434 U.S. 861, 54 L.Ed.2d 135, certiorari denied 98 S.Ct. 719, 434 U.S. 1009, 54 L.Ed.2d 752. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(2)

To establish existence of criminal conspiracy, underlying common scheme or plan may be inferred from circumstantial evidence, which evidence is no less probative than direct evidence. U. S. v. Peterson, C.A.9 (Nev.) 1977, 549 F.2d 654. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(2)

Where circumstances are such as to warrant a jury in finding that conspirators had a unity of purpose or a common design and understanding or a meeting of minds in an unlawful arrangement, conclusion that a conspiracy is established is justified. U.S. v. Lutwak, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1952, 195 F.2d 748, certiorari granted 73 S.Ct. 13, 344 U.S. 809, 97 L.Ed. 630, affirmed 73 S.Ct. 481, 344 U.S. 604, 97 L.Ed. 593, rehearing denied 73 S.Ct. 726, 345 U.S. 919, 97 L.Ed. 1352. Conspiracy ⚡ 47(1)

In prosecution of accused, a sugar dealer, for conspiracy to defraud the revenue through operation of an unregistered and therefore untaxed still, testimony of accused's truck driver concerning a "tail" automobile which joined the convoy while truck loaded with sugar was being driven in direction of the still site and concerning warning given by automobile's occupants that truck was being followed was admissible as "circumstantial evidence" of common design. U.S. v. Harrison, C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1941, 121 F.2d 930, certiorari denied 62 S.Ct. 124, 314 U.S. 661, 86 L.Ed. 530. Criminal Law ⚡ 338(2)

It is sufficient if the evidence shows a concert of action in the commission of the unlawful act or other facts and circumstances from which the natural inference arises that the unlawful, overt act was in furtherance of a common design, intent, and purpose of the alleged conspirators. Windsor v. U. S., C.C.A.6 (Ohio) 1923, 286 F. 51, 1 Ohio Law Abs. 339, certiorari denied 43 S.Ct. 523, 262 U.S. 748, 67 L.Ed. 1212. See, also, Keith v. U.S., C.C.A.Ky.1926, 11 F.2d 933; Green v. U.S., C.C.A.Ohio 1925, 8 F.2d 140; Williams v. U.S., C.C.A.Tenn.1925, 3 F.2d 933; Hammerschmidt v. U.S., C.C.A.Ohio 1923, 287 F. 817, reversed on other grounds 44 S.Ct. 511, 265 U.S. 182, 68 L.Ed. 968; Davidson v. U.S., C.C.A.Ohio 1921, 274 F. 285.

The common design which is the essence of conspiracy may be shown by proof of acts or circumstances from which a mutual understanding may be inferred. U.S. v. Silverthorne, W.D.N.Y.1920, 265 F. 853. See, also, Chadwick v. U.S., Ohio 1905, 141 F. 225, 72 C.C.A. 343. Conspiracy ⚡ 47

It was not necessary for the government to prove that the defendants actually agreed in formal terms upon the design, yet there must be evidence from which some concerted action can be inferred; for an agreement to do the unlawful act charged was as indispensable an ingredient as the overt act done in pursuance thereof. In Pettibone v. U.S., Idaho, 148 U.S. 197, 13 S.Ct. 542, 37 L.Ed. 419.

It is impossible in most cases to show by direct evidence that the persons charged met together and agreed to do certain unlawful things; since agreements are usually made secretly, nearly all conspiracies are proven by circumstantial evidence. Murry v. U.S., C.C.A.Ark.1922, 282 F. 617.

554. ---- Knowledge, circumstantial evidence

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Use of circumstantial evidence to support conspiracy conviction does not relieve the prosecution from showing some knowledge, explicit or implied, in each defendant of the principal purpose of the conspiracy and some act or action indicating participation therein. Miller v. U. S., C.A.9 (Ariz.) 1967, 382 F.2d 583, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 1108, 390 U.S. 984, 19 L.Ed.2d 1285, rehearing denied 88 S.Ct. 2037, 391 U.S. 971, 20 L.Ed.2d 888. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Essential proof of requisite knowledge and intent of conspirators need not be made by direct evidence but conspiracy may be shown by circumstantial evidence or permissible inferences or deductions from facts. U. S. v. Zuideveld, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1963, 316 F.2d 873, certiorari denied 84 S.Ct. 671, 376 U.S. 916, 11 L.Ed.2d 612. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Proof of a conspiracy must be circumstantial, and the step between innocent knowledge and guilty intent and agreement may be shown by prolonged and interested cooperation, indicating a stake in the venture. Van Huss v. United States, C.A.10 (N.M.) 1952, 197 F.2d 120. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

555. ---- Participation, circumstantial evidence

Participation in a criminal conspiracy may be shown by circumstantial as well as direct evidence. Delli Paoli v. U.S., U.S.N.Y.1957, 77 S.Ct. 294, 352 U.S. 232, 1 L.Ed.2d 278. See, also, Beatrice Foods Co. v. U.S., C.A.Neb.1963, 312 F.2d 29; Maggiore v. Bradford, C.A.Tenn.1962, 310 F.2d 519, certiorari denied 83 S.Ct. 881, 372 U.S. 934, 9 L.Ed.2d 766. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Participation in a criminal conspiracy need not be proved by direct evidence, but a common purpose and plan may be inferred from a development and collocation of circumstances. Glasser v. U.S., U.S.Ill.1942, 62 S.Ct. 457, 315 U.S. 60, 86 L.Ed. 680, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 629, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 637, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222. See, also, Mosheim v. U.S., C.A.Tex.1960, 285 F.2d 949, certiorari denied 81 S.Ct. 903, 365 U.S. 868, 5 L.Ed.2d 859; Blumenfield v. U.S., C.A.Minn.1960, 284 F.2d 46; William v. U.S., C.A.N.C.1959, 271 F.2d 703; U.S. v. Hack, C.A.Ind.1953, 205 F.2d 723, certiorari denied 74 S.Ct. 127, 346 U.S. 875, 98 L.Ed. 383; U.S. v. Randall, C.C.A.Ind.1947, 164 F.2d 284, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 729, 333 U.S. 856, 92 L.Ed. 1136, rehearing denied 68 S.Ct. 901, 333 U.S. 878, 92 L.Ed. 1153; Braatlien v. U.S., C.C.A.N.D.1945, 147 F.2d 888; U.S. v. Beigel, D.C.N.Y.1966, 254 F.Supp. 923, affirmed 370 F.2d 751, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 2049, 2053, 2062, 387 U.S. 930, 936, 18 L.Ed.2d 989, 998; Cane v. U.S., C.A. Iowa 1968, 390 F.2d 58, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 2059, 392 U.S. 906, 20 L.Ed.2d 1363; U.S. v. Luxenberg, C.A. Ohio 1967, 374 F.2d 241. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Participation in conspiracy need not be proved by direct evidence; common purpose and plan may be inferred from development and collection of circumstances. U.S. v. Chesson, C.A.5 (La.) 1991, 933 F.2d 298, certiorari denied 112 S.Ct. 583, 502 U.S. 981, 116 L.Ed.2d 608. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Knowledge and participation in conspiracy may be proved by circumstantial evidence. U.S. v. Norris, C.A.4 (Va.) 1984, 749 F.2d 1116, certiorari denied 105 S.Ct. 2139, 471 U.S. 1065, 85 L.Ed.2d 496. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Although proof of knowledge on part of participant in a conspiracy is an essential element of the offense, circumstantial evidence is sufficient to connect an alleged coconspirator with the conspiracy. U. S. v. Hedman, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1980, 630 F.2d 1184, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 1481, 450 U.S. 965, 67 L.Ed.2d 614. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

Whether circumstantial evidence of criminal acts is sufficient as a matter of law to support a guilty verdict on the substantive crime does not bear on the sufficiency of that same evidence to convict for conspiracy. U. S. v. Anderson, C.A.4 (N.C.) 1979, 611 F.2d 504. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Once conspiracy is established, evidence establishing beyond a reasonable doubt a connection of defendant with the conspiracy, even though the connection is slight, is sufficient to convict him with knowing participation in the conspiracy. U. S. v. Bailey, C.A.9 (Wash.) 1979, 607 F.2d 237, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 1327, 445 U.S. 934, 63 L.Ed.2d 769. Conspiracy ↻ 47(1)

Intentional participation in a criminal conspiracy need not be proved by direct evidence. U. S. v. Harbin, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1979, 601 F.2d 773, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 433, 444 U.S. 954, 62 L.Ed.2d 327. Conspiracy ↻ 47(2)

Participation in a criminal conspiracy may be shown by circumstantial evidence. U. S. v. Barrentine, C.A.5 (Ala.) 1979, 591 F.2d 1069, rehearing denied 599 F.2d 1054, certiorari denied 100 S.Ct. 521, 444 U.S. 990, 62 L.Ed.2d 419. Conspiracy ↻ 47(2)

Defendant's participation in conspiracy must be shown, with proof that defendant knowingly contributed efforts in furtherance of it. U. S. v. Brown, C.A.8 (Minn.) 1978, 584 F.2d 252, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 1220, 440 U.S. 910, 59 L.Ed.2d 458. Conspiracy ↻ 47(1)

Once existence of conspiracy has been established by satisfactory proof, particular individual's participation in conspiracy may be established by evidence that otherwise seems slight; such proof may be established by circumstantial evidence. U. S. v. Hassell, C.A.8 (Mo.) 1977, 547 F.2d 1048, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 1338, 430 U.S. 919, 51 L.Ed.2d 599. Conspiracy ↻ 47(2)

Mere fact that a conspiracy has been established does not mean that the evidence needed to sustain a conviction regarding an individual's participation in the conspiracy is any less than that needed to uphold a finding that a person has participated in any other crime. U. S. v. Harris, C.A.7 (Ind.) 1976, 542 F.2d 1283, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 1558, 430 U.S. 934, 51 L.Ed.2d 779. Conspiracy ↻ 47(1)

Direct admission against background of persuasive circumstantial proof of particular defendant's role was sufficient to establish such defendant's participation in narcotics conspiracy independent of hearsay evidence admitted pursuant to coconspirator exception. U. S. v. Santana, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1974, 503 F.2d 710, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 632, 419 U.S. 1053, 42 L.Ed.2d 649, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 1352, 420 U.S. 963, 43 L.Ed.2d 439, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 1450, 420 U.S. 1006, 43 L.Ed.2d 764. Criminal Law ↻ 414

Although defendant did not appear at meeting at which arrest and seizure of cashiers' checks stolen from national bank took place, where testimony of defendant's prior meeting with an undercover agent clearly established his partnership with coconspirator, his knowledge of existence of stolen checks, and his financial stake in proceeds of venture, evidence was sufficient to establish that defendant was a participant in conspiracy to dispose of checks. U. S. v. Mauro, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1974, 501 F.2d 45, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 235, 419 U.S. 969, 42 L.Ed.2d 186. Conspiracy ↻ 47(11)

Proof of agreement in conspiracy trials must usually rest on inferences to be drawn from circumstantial evidence, but mere proof of association with one "bad man" is insufficient without more to show necessary agreement to commit criminal acts. U. S. v. Oliva, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1974, 497 F.2d 130. Conspiracy ↻ 47(2)

Direct proof of defendant's state of mind or participation in criminal conspiracy is not required; intent, knowledge, and participation in conspiracy may be inferred from activities of parties and thus may be proved by circumstantial evidence. U. S. v. Prince, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1974, 496 F.2d 1289, rehearing denied 502 F.2d 1168, certiorari denied 95 S.Ct. 779, 419 U.S. 1107, 42 L.Ed.2d 804. Conspiracy ↻ 47(2)

Participation in criminal conspiracy may be shown by circumstantial as well as direct evidence. U. S. v. Mendez, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1974, 496 F.2d 128. Conspiracy ↻ 47(2)

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Participation in conspiracy need not be proved by direct evidence, and a common purpose and plan may be inferred from a development and collocation of circumstances. *U.S. v. Court may consider conduct, knowledge and statements of defendants and others in establishing their participation in conspiracy. U.S. v. Sims, N.D.Ill.1992, 808 F.Supp. 620. Criminal Law ↪ 427(4)

Participation in a conspiracy can be proved circumstantially even if precise date of entry into conspiracy of a defendant is unknown and direct proof of entry of any particular person into conspiracy is not necessary. U. S. v. Bennett, S.D.N.Y.1958, 190 F.Supp. 181. Conspiracy ↪ 47(2)

556. Corroboration, evidence

Admissions made by codefendant in his taped conversation with a coconspirator were made during the course of the conspiracy, rather than after its consummation, and might be sufficient to establish the codefendant's guilt even without corroboration; however, if corroboration was required, it was provided by, inter alia, a letter from drug supplier to the codefendant. U. S. v. Head, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1976, 546 F.2d 6, certiorari denied 97 S.Ct. 1551, 430 U.S. 931, 51 L.Ed.2d 775.

Federal rule is that testimony of accomplices in criminal conspiracy case need not be corroborated. U. S. v. Kelly, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1965, 349 F.2d 720, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 1467, 384 U.S. 947, 16 L.Ed.2d 544.

Generally, a conviction of conspiracy may not be sustained solely on an admission or confession of the accused, unless corroborated by independent evidence of the corpus delicti. U.S. v. Di Orio, C.C.A.3 (N.J.) 1945, 150 F.2d 938, certiorari denied 66 S.Ct. 175, 326 U.S. 771, 90 L.Ed. 465. See, also, Colt v. U.S., C.C.A.Fla.1947, 160 F.2d 650; *Tabor v. "Corroboration", within rule that confession must be corroborated by other proof of the crime to warrant a conviction, means to strengthen or add weight and credibility to a thing. Anderson v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1941, 124 F.2d 58, certiorari granted 62 S.Ct. 941, 316 U.S. 651, 86 L.Ed. 1732, reversed on other grounds 63 S.Ct. 599, 318 U.S. 350, 87 L.Ed. 829.

Evidence found in confession need not be corroborated by other positive evidence, and all that is required is some proof that the crime charged has been committed or circumstances corroborating and fortifying the confession, and proof of any of such facts consistent with truth of confession or which confession has led to discovery of, tending to show commission of offense, is sufficient "corroboration". Anderson v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1941, 124 F.2d 58, certiorari granted 62 S.Ct. 941, 316 U.S. 651, 86 L.Ed. 1732, reversed on other grounds 63 S.Ct. 599, 318 U.S. 350, 87 L.Ed. 829.

In conspiracy prosecution evidence other than confessions of defendants was not required to be such as independently of confessions established corpus delicti or confessing defendant's guilt beyond reasonable doubt, and if, in addition to confessions, there were circumstances which, although susceptible of an innocent construction, would suggest commission of crime and for explanation of which confession of particular defendant furnished key, case could not be taken from jury for failure to show corroboration, and all that was required was that there be such substantial corroborative circumstances as would, when taken in connection with the confessions, establish corpus delicti beyond reasonable doubt. Anderson v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1941, 124 F.2d 58, certiorari granted 62 S.Ct. 941, 316 U.S. 651, 86 L.Ed. 1732, reversed on other grounds 63 S.Ct. 599, 318 U.S. 350, 87 L.Ed. 829.

The testimony of an accomplice was required to be subjected to close scrutiny and minute examination and weighed with great care and caution and could be attacked before jury as incredible, unworthy of belief, and prompted by unworthy motives, but nevertheless a conviction for conspiracy could rest upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice. U.S. v. Glasser, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1940, 116 F.2d 690, certiorari granted 61 S.Ct. 835, 313 U.S. 551, 85 L.Ed. 1515, modified on other grounds 62 S.Ct. 457, 315 U.S. 60, 86 L.Ed. 680, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 629, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 637, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222.

Although an accomplice's testimony may be attacked before trier of facts as unworthy of belief, it is competent evidence and may, standing alone, support a conviction. U.S. v. Corso, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1938, 100 F.2d 604.

In prosecution for conspiracy, corpus delicti cannot be established by defendant's admissions or confessions alone, but they must be corroborated by independent proof, although such proof need not be strong enough of itself to establish corpus delicti. Ryan v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1938, 99 F.2d 864, certiorari denied 59 S.Ct. 484, 306 U.S. 635, 83 L.Ed. 1037, rehearing denied 59 S.Ct. 586, 306 U.S. 668, 83 L.Ed. 1063. Criminal Law ¶ 517.3(2)

When a state statute provides that no person shall be convicted of a crime upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice, the same rule should be observed in similar trials in the federal courts within such state. U. S. v. Van Leuven, N.D.Iowa 1894, 65 F. 78.

Existence of alleged criminal conspiracy cannot be proved solely by evidence of defendants' declarations or statements, but there must be some corroborating evidence of existence of such corpus delicti aliunde defendants' extra-judicial incriminatory statements or declarations, unless they were made before crime or themselves constitute offense charged or essential element thereof. U. S. v. Schneiderman, S.D.Cal.1952, 106 F.Supp. 892.

That conspiracy was carried out in accordance with plans laid down by original conspirators constitutes corroboration, although not definite proof, of fact that conspiracy was entered into. U.S. v. Ryan, W.D.Mo.1938, 23 F.Supp. 513.

Defendant having testified on cross-examination that he did not remember transactions, it was not error to permit government to show transactions existed, and were within scope of conspiracy charged. *Madden v. 558. Suppression of evidence--Generally

Joint motion of certain defendants to quash search warrant and suppress evidence was properly overruled in prosecution for accepting wagers as copartners and conspiring to evade large part of excise tax on wagers where warrant showed its adequacy on its face and stated sufficient grounds for its issuance and all items seized thereunder were instrumentalities of crimes charged. *U.S. v. Government constructively amended indictment charging income tax fraud to allege general conspiracy to defraud Government; prosecutor's argument that defendants could have been indicted for one count of conspiring to defraud Government, admission of evidence of money laundering scheme, without showing that scheme was part of income tax conspiracy, improper argument that witness allegedly involved in money laundering scheme was coconspirator and jury instruction on conspiracy count all combined to raise possibility that defendant was convicted of offense for which he was not charged in indictment. U.S. v. Mollica, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1988, 849 F.2d 723. Indictment And Information ¶ 159(2)

There was no variance between indictment and evidence presented in prosecution for tax fraud, since evidence showed that defendants knew deductions limited partners would take on their tax returns were based in large part on nonexistent transactions and that the Treasury would be deprived of substantial sums in tax revenues as a result, evidence showed that defendants' intent in putting together tax shelter schemes was to defeat lawful collection of tax revenues, and conspiracy could encompass transaction in which conspirators did not realize benefits directly from the United States. *U.S. v. C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1927, 21 F.2d 425. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(12)

Assuming, but not conceding that knowledge by the grand jury of a more particular description of the goods recovered would constitute a variance, the court below correctly sustained the objections of the government to questions which sought to elicit testimony to that effect. Throughout the case counsel seem to overlook the fact that this is an indictment for conspiracy. The material inquiry is, not what goods the trustee found and dragged out of hiding places, but what goods the defendants conspired to conceal. The fact that they only partially succeeded is entirely consistent with the indictment, and with the idea that the defendants themselves, at the time they entered into the conspiracy, and while they were committing overt acts under it, had not determined upon the particular goods or the particular description of goods they would conceal. An indictment may be as general as the conspiracy it seeks to punish." Jollit v. U. S., C.C.A.5 (Ala.) 1922, 285 F. 209, certiorari denied 43 S.Ct. 519, 261 U.S. 624, 67 L.Ed. 832.

Where an indictment charged a conspiracy to defraud the United States of moneys thereafter to become due from a certain mercantile firm as customs duties, proof that the merchandise in question was consigned to a firm of customs brokers, who paid the duties thereon, was not a variance, the goods being owned by the mercantile firm, and so consigned only for convenience of entry. Grunberg v. U.S., C.C.A.1 (Mass.) 1906, 145 F. 81, 76 C.C.A. 51. Customs Duties ⚡ 134

561. ---- Means of accomplishing conspiracy, variance between indictment and proof, evidence

Prejudicial variance did not exist between indictment charging single conspiracy to defraud United States in various ways and proof that certain types of fraudulent practices occurred during one period and other types at different periods, where evidence disclosed one continuous and persistent conspiracy to defraud. Nye & Nissen v. U.S., U.S.Cal.1949, 69 S.Ct. 766, 336 U.S. 613, 93 L.Ed. 919. Criminal Law ⚡ 1167(1)

562. ---- Overt acts, variance between indictment and proof, evidence

Variance between allegation in indictment that defendant transported currency and evidence that defendant did not actually transport the money was immaterial as there was little question that defendant accompanied government agent on entire trip and that he physically carried the money part of the way, and consequently, despite legally immaterial variance, defendant's actions, as proved, sufficed as an overt act. U. S. v. Enstam, C.A.5 (Tex.) 1980, 622 F.2d 857, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 1351, 450 U.S. 912, 67 L.Ed.2d 336, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 1974, 451 U.S. 907, 68 L.Ed.2d 294. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(12)

Government is not limited to overt acts pleaded in the indictment in proving a conspiracy; it may show other acts of conspirators occurring during the life of the conspiracy. U. S. v. Elliott, C.A.5 (Ga.) 1978, 571 F.2d 880, rehearing denied 575 F.2d 300, certiorari denied 99 S.Ct. 349, 439 U.S. 953, 58 L.Ed.2d 344. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(12)

Where four overt acts were alleged to have been committed by defendants in furtherance of a conspiracy, defendants could not have been prejudiced by variance as to only one of them so that fact that indictment alleged that the defendants had, while conspiring to rob United States mail, conducted surveillance of postal facility of Livingston, Montana, whereas it was proved at trial that they had conducted surveillance only of the postal facility at Bozeman, Montana, was not fatal. U. S. v. Bolzer, C.A.9 (Mont.) 1977, 556 F.2d 948. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(12)

Where each of the seven overt acts charged in support of conspiracy relating to destruction of draft records occurred by terms of indictment on or about a specified date, introduction of statements made by defendants at press conference held some 20 days later on ground that the press conference was arguably a continuation of conspiracy made out in indictment was not a variance in proof which affected substantial rights of defendants who were aware that evidence of press conference would be sought to be introduced at trial. U. S. v. Donner, C.A.7

Variance between the indictment charging that defendant accused of conspiracy to smuggle amphetamine tablets into United States caused transportation of approximately 1,958 pounds of amphetamine tablets from garage to another location and the proof that defendant drove an automobile whose trunk contained amphetamine tablets, was not fatal to conviction where there was no motion for bill of particulars, there was no objection except on U.S.C.A. Const. Amend. 4 grounds when evidence of the overt act found was admitted, and at no time did defendant claim surprise and thus no substantial right of the defendant was affected. Brulay v. U. S., C.A.9 (Cal.) 1967, 383 F.2d 345, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 469, 389 U.S. 986, 19 L.Ed.2d 478. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(12)

In prosecution for conspiracy to transport stolen automobile in foreign commerce with knowledge of its stolen character, legal prejudice did not result from allegation in indictment of overt acts which were not proven. *Beeler v. Proof of an overt act other than the one alleged in indictment charging conspiracy does not constitute a fatal variance, but may warrant a continuance on the ground of surprise. U.S. v. Negro, C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1947, 164 F.2d 168. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(12); Criminal Law ⚡ 599

Even if evidence of first overt act in conspiracy was evidence of existence of conspiracy, there was no variance, where indictment charged subsequent overt acts. Pearlman v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Or.) 1927, 20 F.2d 113, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 85, 275 U.S. 549, 72 L.Ed. 419. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(12)

Variance between indictment under former § 88 of this title [now this section], charging the presentation of a false claim in bankruptcy proceeding, and proof of its presentation in a composition, was not fatal, nor was variance between indictment charging an overt act in the state of the prosecution, and proof of the overt act there and conspiracy in another state, fatal. Bernstein v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (Va.) 1916, 238 F. 923, 151 C.C.A. 657, certiorari denied 37 S.Ct. 246, 242 U.S. 653, 61 L.Ed. 546. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(12)

563. ---- Participants, variance between indictment and proof, evidence

Variance is not "material" where indictment charges a conspiracy involving several persons, and the proof establishes conspiracy against only some of them. Berger v. U.S., U.S.N.Y.1935, 55 S.Ct. 629, 295 U.S. 78, 79 L.Ed. 1314. Conspiracy ⚡ 43(12)

Defendant's conviction for conspiracy involving two persons could not be permitted to stand on ground that it was proved that he conspired with others, especially where indictment and bill of particulars failed to disclose conspiracy between defendant and such others. *Harlow v. Where accused was charged with conspiring with others to violate Emergency Price Control Act, 50 U.S.C.A.App. former § 904, in paying for field corn above the ceiling price, that more persons appeared to have been involved with him than were charged in indictment did not present such variance from indictment against accused as to inure to his advantage. Quirk v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Iowa) 1947, 161 F.2d 138. Conspiracy ↪ 43(12)

It was not a fatal variance of which defendant could complain on ground of insufficiency of evidence that conspiracy in which he participated did not last as long or include as many persons as indictment alleged. Neely v. U. S., C.C.A.5 (Ala.) 1944, 145 F.2d 828. Conspiracy ↪ 43(12)

Conviction of accused who was charged with conspiracy to violate internal revenue laws relating to intoxicating liquor and acquittal of other defendant did not give rise to fatal inconsistency, where indictment alleged and proof showed that other persons participated in the conspiracy. *Heflin v. In prosecution against six defendants for conspiracy to sell cocaine, in violation of Harrison Act, § 2550 et seq. of Title 26, nolle prosequi against one of defendants was not to avoid conviction of other five, it being no variance to allege conspiracy of six and prove one of five. Harrison v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1925, 7 F.2d 259.

In a prosecution for conspiracy to violate the National Prohibition Act former § 1 et seq. of Title 27, by shipping a carload of whisky and distributing it among bootleggers or dealers, where the indictment named 31 conspirators, and there were various other persons who may or may not have been parties to the conspiracy, there was no fatal variance, because the indictment charged the defendants named with conspiring with divers other persons to the grand jurors unknown, while offered evidence would have shown that some of the other persons were known to the grand jurors, where the indictment alleged the means and overt acts with sufficient particularity to inform defendants of the nature and cause of the accusation, as required by U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 6. U.S. v. Heitler, N.D.Ill.1921, 274 F. 401, error dismissed 43 S.Ct. 163, 260 U.S. 703, 67 L.Ed. 472, transferred 43 S.Ct. 185, 260 U.S. 438, 67 L.Ed. 338, affirmed 289 F. 1021, certiorari dismissed 44 S.Ct. 135, 263 U.S. 728, 68 L.Ed. 528. The doing by one of an overt act to effect the object of a previously formed conspiracy being sufficient, under former § 88 of this title [now this section], to complete the offense, variance between indictment and proof as to number participating in such act was immaterial. *Hardy v. There was not a fatal variance between indictment and proof in a prosecution for conspiracy under former § 88 of this title [now this section], because the indictment charged that the defendants conspired with each other and with others to the grand jurors unknown, while the evidence showed that the name of another conspirator was in fact known, where the indictment fully set out his connection with the conspiracy, and designated him by name, so as to clearly advise the defendants of the charge against them. *Jones v. 564. ---- Prejudice, variance between indictment and proof, evidence

That indictment charged conspiracy to utter counterfeit federal reserve bank notes and that proof showed two separate conspiracies within the indictment, except that one defendant was a party to both conspiracies, did not require reversal of conviction where no prejudice to substantial rights of an alleged member of one of the conspiracies was shown. Berger v. U.S., U.S.N.Y.1935, 55 S.Ct. 629, 295 U.S. 78, 79 L.Ed. 1314. Criminal Law ↻ 1168(1)

Variance is fatal where indictment charges one large conspiracy and proof shows two different and disconnected smaller conspiracies, provided defendant's substantial rights have been prejudiced. Berger v. U.S., U.S.N.Y.1935, 55 S.Ct. 629, 295 U.S. 78, 79 L.Ed. 1314. Conspiracy ↻ 43(12)

Even when variance exists between allegation in indictment, charging single conspiracy between defendant and codefendants, and proof at trial, Court of Appeals reverses conviction on ground that defendant was denied fair trial only upon showing of "substantial prejudice," i.e., that evidence proving conspiracies in which defendant did not participate prejudiced case against him in conspiracy to which he was party. U.S. v. Johansen, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1995, 56 F.3d 347, as amended. Criminal Law ↻ 1167(1)

Evidence established one continuous conspiracy between codefendant and defendant, joined in by lesser coconspirators, to enable codefendant to evade payment of substantial federal taxes on his 1974-1975 taxable income and to take such steps as might become necessary to defraud government into belief that all income taxes due for those years had been paid and therefore there was no fatal variance between indictment, which charged a single conspiracy, and the proof; furthermore, since defendant participated in unlawful activities from the beginning to the end, he could not claim, even if multiple conspiracies had been shown, prejudice. U.S. v. Cunningham, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1983, 723 F.2d 217, certiorari denied 104 S.Ct. 2154, 466 U.S. 951, 80 L.Ed.2d 540. Conspiracy ↻ 43(12); Criminal Law ↻ 1167(1)

Possibility of prejudice resulting from a variance between indictments charging a single overall conspiracy and proof showing a number of smaller ones increases with the number of defendants tried and the number of conspiracies proven, and while question of prejudice is not solely quantitative, a consideration of the numbers involved in case is an appropriate starting point for analysis of whether the variance resulted in prejudice to defendants requiring reversal of their convictions. U. S. v. Bertolotti, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1975, 529 F.2d 149. Criminal Law ↻ 1167(1)

Variance between indictment charging a single conspiracy and proof revealing three small conspiracies was not prejudicial where defendant was essential figure in each of the alleged three small conspiracies and was not subjected to danger that he might be convicted on basis of evidence that related only to a conspiracy of which he was not a part. U. S. v. Moore, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1975, 522 F.2d 1068, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 775, 423 U.S. 1049, 46 L.Ed.2d 637. Criminal Law ↻ 1167(1)

566. ---- Separate conspiracies, variance between indictment and proof, evidence

There was no fatal variance between single conspiracy alleged in indictment and evidence adduced at trial, and jury did not find more than one conspiracy, even though defendants were convicted on count alleging their participation in one conspiracy to defraud savings and loan institutions through fraudulent land loans, but jury did not find same underlying substantive offenses as to each defendant, since nature of dealings among defendants was such that all were integral and important participants, and by nature of scheme different participants played different but important functions necessary to its success. *U.S. v. Proof of separate conspiracies after an indictment charging one conspiracy is not per se prejudicial. U. S. v. Grassi, C.A.5 (Fla.) 1980, 616 F.2d 1295, rehearing denied 624 F.2d 1098, certiorari denied 101 S.Ct. 363, 449 U.S. 956, 66 L.Ed.2d 220. Conspiracy ☞ 43(12)

A fatal variance between allegations in indictment and proof at trial was not shown in prosecution for conspiring to transport and distribute stolen automobile engines and parts, notwithstanding claim that indictment alleged one overall conspiracy while proof at trial showed many separate conspiracies, where there was evidence on which a finding of a single four-part conspiracy might have been based even though ultimate receivers were acquitted. *U. Existence of a spillover or guilt transference effect, wherein jury convicts one set of conspirators not on basis of evidence relating to them, but by imputing to them guilt based on activities of other set of conspirators, turns in part on whether number of conspiracies and conspirators involved is too great for jury to give each defendant the separate and individual consideration of evidence against him to which he is entitled. *U. Considering the character of the property involved and the nature of the crime in alleged conspiracy for distribution of stolen and counterfeit securities, there was a permissible inference of knowledge on the part of any one member of the conspiracy concerning the existence and function of other members of the conspiracy, and evidence was sufficient to establish a single conspiracy, rather than several independent conspiracies, so that there was no fatal

Transcripts of prior trials 656

Travel and transportation 692

Wire communication offenses 693

Withdrawal from conspiracy, declarations of coconspirators 624

591. Generally, admissibility of evidence

In conspiracy prosecution, evidence was sufficiently connected with conspiracy to be admissible, or merely cumulative, and its admission harmless. Ford v. U.S., U.S.Cal.1927, 47 S.Ct. 531, 273 U.S. 593, 71 L.Ed. 793.

Evidence obtained by city police officers while searching entirely on their own initiative in furtherance of their duties as local officers was properly admitted in federal prosecution for conspiracy to violate and violations of narcotic laws. Fredericks v. U. S., C.A.5 (Tex.) 1953, 208 F.2d 712, certiorari denied 74 S.Ct. 875, 347 U.S. 1019, 98 L.Ed. 1140.

Coat, bill, and signal code abandoned by fleeing defendants were admissible. Rubio v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1927, 22 F.2d 766, certiorari denied 48 S.Ct. 213, 276 U.S. 619, 72 L.Ed. 734.

Testimony tending to prove controverted fact was properly retained, although confused. Dawson v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Idaho) 1926, 10 F.2d 106, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 638, 271 U.S. 687, 70 L.Ed. 1152.

In prosecution for conspiracy to use deadly weapons against employees of Bureau of Animal Industry, with intent to prevent them from discharging their duties of supervising the dipping of cattle, in order to prevent spread of diseases and to eradicate cattle fever tick, in violation of former § 118 of this title, contract between state veterinarian and Chief of Bureau of Animal Industry was admissible to show that federal employees were present by authority of the state, and were not merely intruders. Thornton v. U.S., C.C.A.5 (Ga.) 1924, 2 F.2d 561, certiorari granted 45 S.Ct. 354, 267 U.S. 589, 69 L.Ed. 801, affirmed 46 S.Ct. 585, 271 U.S. 414, 70 L.Ed. 1013.

Where defendant and others were charged with purchasing goods for fictitious company on credit, disposing of them without payment, and pocketing proceeds, evidence showing defendant knew of existence of sellers from which fictitious company received goods was admissible, but not evidence that defendant had not paid personal debts due such sellers. Erber v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1916, 234 F. 221, 148 C.C.A. 123.

592. History of continuing conspiracy, admissibility of evidence

The entire history of a continuing conspiracy is admissible, although prosecution for some of the period may be barred by the statute of limitations at the time of trial. Continental Baking Co. v. U.S., C.A.6 (Tenn.) 1960, 281 F.2d 137.

Admission of testimony which was so closely a part of the history of alleged conspiracy and of substantive act as to be part of an interwoven chain of relevant circumstances was discretionary. Gordon v. U.S., C.C.A.6 (Mich.) 1947, 164 F.2d 855, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 741, 333 U.S. 862, 92 L.Ed. 1141.

593. Discretion of court, admissibility of evidence

District court did not abuse its discretion in admitting other acts evidence of prior arrest for possession of firearm, in trial for conspiracy to violate statute prohibiting person from transporting into or receiving in state where he resides any firearm purchased or otherwise obtained by such person outside that state, where evidence of prior arrest went to whether defendant knew his conduct was illegal and nevertheless decided to disregard law. U.S. v. Mitchell, C.A.2 2003, 328 F.3d 77. Criminal Law  370

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

In prosecution of members of organization known as Aryan Nations for conspiracy to bomb a homosexual bar, there was no abuse of discretion in admitting testimony which referred to controversial aspects of the organization, permitting limited explanation of some practices of the organization while not allowing prosecutor to offer in-depth explanations. U.S. v. Winslow, C.A.9 (Idaho) 1992, 962 F.2d 845, as amended.

Absent showing that audit reports of outside auditors examining finances of local community action agency related to subject matter of indictment charging defendant with conspiracy to defraud United States, with substantive theft offenses, and with perjury, it was not abuse of discretion to refuse to admit the audit reports, upon which defendant claimed he relied in administering the agency, into evidence in the prosecution, which resulted in conviction on conspiracy charge. U. S. v. Vincent, C.A.5 (La.) 1981, 648 F.2d 1046.

In prosecution for transportation of illegal aliens, exclusion of evidence of subsequent similar incident occurring in same area as previous interception but at which defendant was not arrested was not abuse of discretion, since probative value of proffered evidence was at best minimal and the danger of confusion of the issues, undue delay and wasted time was great. U. S. v. Hendrix, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1977, 549 F.2d 1225, certiorari denied 98 S.Ct. 58, 434 U.S. 818, 54 L.Ed.2d 74, rehearing denied 98 S.Ct. 493, 434 U.S. 960, 54 L.Ed.2d 321.

In prosecution for illegal gambling conspiracy under section 1511 of this title, admission of testimony concerning payments made to defendant to protect illegal sale of alcoholic beverages and operation of lounge beyond legal hours for purpose of showing intent, scheme or plan was within discretion of trial judge. U. S. v. Crockett, C.A.5 (Ga.) 1975, 514 F.2d 64.

Admission, in prosecution for wilful misapplication of bank funds, wilful making of false entries in bank records, and conspiracy to misapply bank funds, of credit report that bore defendant's handwritten initials was not abuse of discretion. U. S. v. Silverthorne, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1970, 430 F.2d 675, certiorari denied 91 S.Ct. 585, 400 U.S. 1022, 27 L.Ed.2d 633.

Refusal to permit defendant charged with conspiracy to deal in narcotics to present his testimony with aid of interpreter was not abuse of discretion, in absence of any showing that defendant was hampered in understanding or testifying and in view of fact that trial was to court and that court could understand Spanish. U. S. v. Sosa, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1967, 379 F.2d 525, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 94, 389 U.S. 845, 19 L.Ed.2d 111.

District Court did not abuse discretion in denying defendants charged with conspiracy and smuggling an opportunity to present evidence at a hearing in support of their claims of discrimination as to grand jury selection, where affidavit of their attorney contained conclusory allegations of systematic exclusion based on alleged discussions with unnamed political persons and information supplied by unnamed political figures. U. S. v. Bowe, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1966, 360 F.2d 1, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 401, 385 U.S. 961, 17 L.Ed.2d 306, certiorari denied 87 S.Ct. 779, 385 U.S. 1042, 17 L.Ed.2d 686, rehearing denied 87 S.Ct. 1040, 386 U.S. 969, 18 L.Ed.2d 127.

Trial court's refusal to order production of signed statement given by government's witness to French police in reliance on representation of French officer that French law forbade its production was within its discretion. U. S. v. Pardo-Bolland, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1965, 348 F.2d 316, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 388, 382 U.S. 944, 15 L.Ed.2d 353, certiorari denied 86 S.Ct. 407, 382 U.S. 946, 15 L.Ed.2d 354.

In prosecution of defendant, who, in Texas, purchased maps stolen from Pittsburgh office of oil company, for conspiracy to transport in interstate commerce geophysical maps knowing them to have been stolen, admission of testimony to effect that defendant knew that certain maps, which he exhibited to exploration manager of a Canadian oil company but which were not set forth in indictment or bill of particulars, had been stolen was within sound discretion of trial judge in determining whether any prejudicial effect was counterbalanced by testimony's relevance and materiality on question of guilty knowledge. U. S. v. Lester, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1960, 282 F.2d 750, certiorari denied 81 S.Ct. 385, 364 U.S. 937, 5 L.Ed.2d 368.

Where, in prosecution for conspiracy, trial judge offered to hold a preliminary hearing at time conspirator's confession was to be introduced, but conspirator and his counsel stated that such would not be satisfactory and they "stood mute throughout the remainder of the trial", refusal to interrupt testimony of alleged accomplice to inquire into voluntariness of conspirator's confession constituted a proper exercise of trial judge's discretion. United States v. Bando, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1957, 244 F.2d 833, certiorari denied 78 S.Ct. 67, 355 U.S. 844, 2 L.Ed.2d 53.

In a conspiracy case wide latitude is allowed in presenting evidence, and it is within the discretion of trial court to admit evidence which even remotely tends to establish conspiracy charged. Nye & Nissen v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1948, 168 F.2d 846, certiorari granted 69 S.Ct. 81, 335 U.S. 852, 93 L.Ed. 400, affirmed 69 S.Ct. 766, 336 U.S. 613, 93 L.Ed. 919. See, also, Egan v. U.S., C.C.A.Mo.1943, 137 F.2d 369, certiorari denied 64 S.Ct. 195, 320 U.S. 788, 88 L.Ed. 474; Devoe v. U.S., C.C.A.Mo.1939, 103 F.2d 584, certiorari denied 60 S.Ct. 84, 308 U.S. 571, 84 L.Ed. 479. Conspiracy ↪ 45

In a conspiracy case, much discretion is left to the trial court in its rulings on the admission of evidence, and its rulings will be sustained on appeal, if the testimony which is admitted tends even remotely to establish the ultimate fact. Phelps v. U. S., C.C.A.8 (Minn.) 1947, 160 F.2d 858, rehearing denied 161 F.2d 940, certiorari denied 68 S.Ct. 1525, 334 U.S. 860, 92 L.Ed. 1780.

In conspiracy prosecution, trial judge could in his discretion allow testimony which tended to throw light upon a particular fact, to explain the conduct of a particular defendant, or to show his purpose, knowledge, or design, notwithstanding the testimony tended to show guilt of an independent crime. U.S. v. Glasser, C.C.A.7 (Ill.) 1940, 116 F.2d 690, certiorari granted 61 S.Ct. 835, 313 U.S. 551, 85 L.Ed. 1515, modified on other grounds 62 S.Ct. 457, 315 U.S. 60, 86 L.Ed. 680, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 629, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222, rehearing denied 62 S.Ct. 637, 315 U.S. 827, 86 L.Ed. 1222.

In conspiracy prosecution, much latitude in scope of admission of evidence is permitted and much dependence should be placed upon the wide discretion of the trial judge, to admit testimony tending to prove existence of an unlawful combination, and to exclude prejudicial testimony so remote from point of inquiry as to result in practical injustice to defendants. Walker v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (W.Va.) 1939, 104 F.2d 465.

In prosecuting for conspiracy, much discretion is vested in trial court with reference to admissibility of evidence of circumstances, and ruling of trial court will ordinarily be sustained if testimony which is admitted tends in some degree to establish ultimate fact, or makes evidence intelligible. Walker v. U.S., C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1937, 93 F.2d 383, certiorari denied 58 S.Ct. 642, 303 U.S. 644, 82 L.Ed. 1103, rehearing denied 58 S.Ct. 755, 303 U.S. 668, 82 L.Ed. 1124, rehearing denied 58 S.Ct. 756, 303 U.S. 668, 82 L.Ed. 1124. See, also, Smith v. U.S., C.C.A.Neb.1920, 267 F. 665, rehearing denied 269 F. 365, certiorari denied 41 S.Ct. 450, 256 U.S. 691, 65 L.Ed. 1174. Conspiracy ↪ 45

Proof of conspiracy to violate federal law may be by circumstantial evidence or by overt acts alone, in which case much is left to discretion of the trial court, which will not be reversed unless practical injustice has been done by admission of irrelevant testimony. Marino v. U.S., C.C.A.9 (Cal.) 1937, 91 F.2d 691, certiorari denied 58 S.Ct. 410, 302 U.S. 764, 82 L.Ed. 593.

In conspiracy cases, great latitude is allowed in introduction of testimony, and it is sufficient if evidence offered tends to elucidate inquiry or to assist in determining truth. McNeil v. U.S., App.D.C.1936, 85 F.2d 698, 66 App.D.C. 199.

Trial court has wide discretion in admission of evidence of one conspirator's acts and statements in trial for conspiracy. Barkley v. U.S., C.C.A.4 (N.C.) 1933, 66 F.2d 74.

Relevancy of evidence regarding acts of conspirators in prosecution for conspiracy rests in discretion of trial judge.

18 U.S.C.A. § 371

Harvey v. U.S., C.C.A.2 (N.Y.) 1928, 23 F.2d 561.

In conspiracy cases, broad discretion and great latitude are permitted in the reception of evidence. U. S. v. General Elec. Co., D.C.N.J.1949, 82 F.Supp. 753, 80 U.S.P.Q. 195.

District Court was within its discretion in admitting at trial for conspiring to commit bank fraud, bank fraud, and possession of a forged security evidence regarding defendant's history of depositing forged checks, where evidence was relevant to issues of knowledge and intent, in that uncharged bad acts and charged acts both involved attempt to obtain money from banks by submitting falsified documents. U.S. v. Mingo, C.A.2 (N.Y.) 2003, 76 Fed.Appx. 379, 2003 WL 22221358, Unreported. Criminal Law ↻ 370; Criminal Law ↻ 371(1)

594. Conditions, admissibility of evidence

It was not necessary to admissibility of statements made by alleged coconspirator after his arrest that government prove what, if anything, third person had actually done to "straighten out the case" and evidence, including showing that alleged coconspirator had stated when released on bond that third person would "straighten out the whole case", sufficiently established continuance of conspiracy after arrest of alleged coconspirator. U. S. v. Allegretti, C.A.7 (Ill.) 1964, 340 F.2d 254, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 1531, 381 U.S. 911, 14 L.Ed.2d 433, rehearing denied 85 S.Ct. 1800, 381 U.S. 956, 14 L.Ed.2d 728, certiorari denied 85 S.Ct. 1532, 381 U.S. 911, 14 L.Ed.2d 433, certiorari denied 88 S.Ct. 830, 390 U.S. 908, 19 L.Ed.2d 876. Criminal Law ↻ 427(5)

In prosecution for violations of Mail Fraud Act, former § 338 of this title, for violations of fraud provisions of Securities Act of 1933, § 77q(a)(1) of Title 15, and for conspiracy to violate said sections by promotion of membership club with ultimate object of obtaining money and property from club members, reception in evidence of sworn statement of some of defendants made to an internal revenue agent was not objectionable on ground that it violated a promise to defendants, in view of fact that oral promise made by agent to defendants was that he would not cooperate with Securities and Exchange Commission's investigation then in progress and agent testified that he had kept that promise. U. S. v. Monjar, C.C.A.3 (Del.) 1944, 147 F.2d 916, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 1191, 325 U.S. 859, 89 L.Ed. 1979, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 1192, 325 U.S. 859, 89 L.Ed. 1979, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 1192, 325 U.S. 859, 89 L.Ed. 1980, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 1193, 325 U.S. 859, 89 L.Ed. 1980, certiorari denied 65 S.Ct. 1194, 325 U.S. 859, 89 L.Ed. 1981.

595. Acquittal or conviction of others, admissibility of evidence

Evidence as to defendant's alleged involvement in thefts of property from one government installation, for which defendant had been acquitted, was admissible in prosecution for conspiracy to steal goods from a second government installation in order to show knowledge and intent, and evidence was not inadmissible on theory that its potential for unfair prejudice substantially outweighed its probative value. U. S. v. Moore, C.A.9 (Cal.) 1975, 522 F.2d 1068, certiorari denied 96 S.Ct. 775, 423 U.S. 1049, 46 L.Ed.2d 637.

Acquittal of an alleged fellow conspirator is not evidence for defendant being tried for conspiracy. U. S. v. Toner, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1949, 173 F.2d 140.

Conviction of an alleged fellow conspirator after trial is not admissible as against defendant being charged. U. S. v. Toner, C.A.3 (Pa.) 1949, 173 F.2d 140.

596. Acts after termination of conspiracy, admissibility of evidence

Where essential fact of conspiracy to defraud United States and to commit offenses against United States by illegally obtaining entry of aliens as spouses of veterans was existence of phony marriage ceremonies entered into for sole purpose of deceiving immigration authorities and perpetrating fraud on the United States, acts which took place after conspiracy ended and which were relevant to show spuriousness of marriages and intent of parties in going through the ceremonies were competent. Lutwak v. U.S., U.S.Ill.1953, 73 S.Ct. 481, 344 U.S. 604, 97 L.Ed. 593, rehearing denied 73 S.Ct. 726, 345 U.S. 919, 97 L.Ed. 1352.

A conspirator's acts which are relevant to prove the conspiracy are admissible even though such acts may have occurred after the conspiracy has ended. Lutwak v. U.S., U.S.Ill.1953, 73 S.Ct. 481, 344 U.S. 604, 97 L.Ed. 593, rehearing denied 73 S.Ct. 726, 345 U.S. 919, 97 L.Ed. 1352.
